INTRODUCTION.

In the following brief sketch of the Badger family it will be noticed that it is more of a genealogical than of a historical nature, a few facts as to occupation and prominence being noted as they came to the knowledge of the writer, he having commenced on this work simply to complete his own family record and trace his line of ancestry, and came across so much valuable data that it seemed best to put it in permanent form before it was forever lost, although fragmentary as it is, the first four generations being practically complete, but from there down incomplete, and the readers must govern themselves accordingly. Many letters have been written to descendants who could have given information but have neglected to do so, but to those who have contributed data their kindness is much appreciated. Of course, as in all works of this kind, mistakes will occur, but the records have been printed as they have been found, viz.: town histories, vital records, gravestone records, family records, etc. The system of arranging is simple, as each one is numbered consecutively in the first four generations, and where there is any further record of them, other than in the children's record, they will be found with the same number in the next generation. The later generations, which are incomplete, are numbered differently; for instance, 17a and 17b, etc., are children of 17, and 17a-1 and 17a-2, etc., are children of 17a and so on. It is hoped that some one with more ability, means, and time on seeing this little work will publish a more elaborate history of the Badger family, but if any one will send all corrections and all additional data that they may have to the author, if not published later, it will be carefully preserved, together with much unconnected data, and deposited with the New Hampshire Historical Society, Concord, N. H.

Respectfully,

JOHN C. BADGER.
