INTRODUCTION.

CONCERNING THE NAME.

As a derivative of the verb to cut, especially in the primary sense "to thrust, to drive, to strike"—signifying more particularly, "to divide or sever with an edged tool"—the name CUTTER is frequently applied to familiar implements, and to trades and mechanisms in which such instruments are absolutely essential. It is interesting to notice some less general and obsolete meanings of this word, and seek a clue to the origin of the patronymic. "A light one-horse sleigh," in many sections of the United States, is known by this name. Bartlett's Dict. Americanisms (Boston, 1859) affords examples :

Sleighs are swarming up and down the streets, of all sorts and sizes, from the huge omnibus with its thirty passengers, to the light, gaily-painted cutters with their solitary fur-capped tenants, &c.—The Upper Ten Thousand, p. 4.

And then we'll go sleighing, in warm raiment clad,
With fine horses neighing, as if they were glad.
The shining bells jingle, the swift cutter flies :
And if our ears tingle, no matter ; who cries ?—N. Y. Tribune.

"A nimble boat that cuts the water and used by ships of war," and also "a vessel with one mast and a straight running bowsprit"—"the teeth (incisores) that cut the meat"—"an officer of the exchequer that provides wood for the tallies, and cuts the sum paid upon them, and then casts the same into the court to be written upon"—all bear the name, and are variously noticed by lexicographers.

Richardson (English Dictionary, London, 1838) among several examples cites the following from standard authorities :

* * * * never saw I figures
So likely to report themselves ; the cutter
Was as another nature dumb : outwent her,
Motion and breath left out.—SHAKES. Cymbeline, Act ii. sc. 4.

And beholde I sente for thy scruantes, the Cutters and hewers of timber.—Bible, 1551, 2 Chron., c. 2.

I remember inquiring of a skilful cutter of diamonds and polisher of gems, whose customer I had been, about some conjectures I had concerning things belonging to his profession.—BOYLE, Works, vol. v. p. 36.

The other teeth (the cutters and dog-teeth) have usually but one root.—Id. Ib., vol. v. p. 434.

I hoisted out the Cutter, and manned her, &c.—Cook, Voyages, vol. iii. b. II. 9.

In works treating of “obsolete and provincial English words from the English writers previous to the 19th century, which are no longer in use, or are not used in the same sense, and words which are now used only in the provincial dialects,” occur the ensuing extracts, which assign its use to Northumberland and Lancashire.

CUTTER, in Northumberland, signifies “an engraver.”—(Halliwell, Archaic and Provincial Dictionary, London, 1847, vol. i. 288.) Also “to whisper,” “to coo” — cuttering, cooing.—(Wright, Provincial Dictionary, London, 1857, vol. i. 368.) In Lancashire, according to Grose (Provincial Glossary, F. Grose, Esq., London, 1811), CUTTER means “to fondle or make much of, as a hen or goose of her young.” CUTTER, as a substantive, was a well known cant word for a swaggerer, bully, or sharper; in one sense derived from committing acts of violence like those ascribed to the Mohawks in Addison’s time; in the other from cutting purses. Cotgrave translates “A cutter (or swashbuckler)” by “balaffreux, taillebras, feudeur de naseaux.” Coles has a cutter (or robber), gladiator, latro.

How say you, wife, did I not say so much?
He was a cutter and a swaggerer.

Fair Maid of Bristol, 4to. A. 3.

He’s out of cash, and thou know’st by cutter’s law we are bound to relieve one another.*—Match at Midnight, O. Pl. vii. 353.

Cowley’s Cutter of Coleman Street, or Captain Cutter, is a town adventurer; or, as he is aptly expressed in the Dramatis Personæ, “a merry sharking fellow about the town, pretending to have been a colonel in the king’s army.”†

* “The personages who say this are actually lying in wait to rob a traveller; so that we may fairly conclude the latter sense to be the proper one there.”—Narc’s Glossary English Authors.

† Narc’s Glossary; Richardson’s English Dictionary. The participial adjective CUTTING is an epithet formed on the same principles as Cutter. Hence in Beaumont and Fletcher’s “Scornful Lady,” when Morecraft, the usurer, suddenly turns buck, this title is applied to him:

Eld. Love. How’s this?

You. Love. Bless you, and then I’ll tell. He’s turn’d gallant.

Eld. Love. Gallant?

You. Love. Ay, gallant, and is now called cutting Morecraft.

B. & Fl. Scornf. L., Act v.

Wherefore have I such a companie of cutting knaves to waite upon me?—Friar Bacon, &c., 4to. Sign C. 2 b.

The substantive CUTTLE in Shakespeare is probably only a corrupted form of Cutter; for

If the family of Cutter descended from the "loins" of "blustering knaves" and "ruffians," from "robbers and bravos," or "rough swaggering fighters," a passage from an author of reliability and credit may afford consolation. It is found in Furguson's English Surnames and their Place, &c. (London, 1858), iv. 88, 89; and forms a paragraph in a chapter devoted to "Names derived from, or connected with Hero Worship." This writer, taking the surnames in the London City Directory, of two thousand and odd pages, as a basis, seeks to prove that the majority of English patronymics, generally supposed to be of Norman origin, are really derived from the Saxons. Accordingly the patronymic CUTTER, derived from "Cutherd or Cuthra," was originally the regal name "Cutha," whose Saxon root signifies "known, famous." The passage is here quoted entire:

CUTTS	} This group is probably from Old Saxon euð, cut —Anglo Saxon euð—Saterlandic (a dialect of Frisian) cut , signifying known, famous. Hence the word Cutha, one known, rendered famous. This name is most common in the royal line of Wessex, where there are three named Cutha, and six with various compounds. Hence our names CUDD, CUTTS, CUTTO (an old Saxon termination), CUTTING (ing , son or descendant). COOTE and COUTTS may belong to this group; or they may be from the Old Norse Cuti , a dwarf, a surname in Ann. Isl. Of compounds we have CUTHBERT,* CUTLACK (Cuthlac), CUTTER (Cutherd or Cuthra)† CUTTS is generally considered to be a contraction of CUTHBERT. But if a contraction at all, it might as well be of Cuthwin or Cuthred, or any other compound of Cuth . So far, however, from being a contraction, I hold it to be the most ancient name of all. There were Cuthas before there were Cuthberts.

It is said a Danish history is extant in which the Cutter name is mentioned as having anciently existed in Denmark as a prince or king; and that the family, being exiled, went to England. The Saxons in Northumberland were frequently invaded by Danish pirates.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.

Wherever the Cutters may have had their origin, it is certain that the emigrant ancestors of the family in New England lived, prior to their emigration from the old country, in Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne, an ancient city and river-port of Northuman allusion to the cuttle-fish and its black liquor, is much too refined for the speakers in the scene. Doll Tearsheet says to Pistol:

berland County, England, is situated on the left bank of the Tyne, and ten miles from its mouth in the North Sea. The situation of Newcastle, not far from the borders of Scotland, rendered it one of the principal frontier towns during the hostilities with the sister kingdom; and, since that unhappy time its extensive coal trade has become a consideration of general and national importance. Notwithstanding several strenuous efforts, a pedigree of the Cutters in Newcastle has not yet been obtained. If this were at hand, many matters of interest concerning the emigrants to New England might be more fully explained. Certain traditional facts, however, have been secured, and further knowledge of the family could be had by searching the records of the Newcastle churches. In 1862, a tourist found there only one gentleman of the name—John Cutter, butcher, Nos. 41 and 42 Butcher Market, Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Since that time another visitor from the United States has gleaned additional facts, most of which are contained in the following communication.

“Mr. John Cutter, No. 28 Market Stall, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, lives 29 Lovaine Place; has one brother and one sister, both unmarried. His father, Anthony Cutter, was clerk twenty-one years at St. Thomas Church, and he succeeded him. The clerk of St. John’s Church said he could trace back the family two hundred years in the register.* His great grandfather’s uncle went to America. The family came from Morpeth, in Northumberland, and its neighborhood.† In Bolam Church, Northumberland, is a slab to the memory of Marmaduke Cutter, yeoman of about 1650, whose daughter married the rector of Morpeth. Bolam is eight miles west of Morpeth.‡ The stone farm-house held by the Cutters three hundred years under the corporation of Newcastle, still stands near Sandyford Bridge, a short distance from Lambert’s Leap.§ ‘Cutters Fields,’ south of Westgate, is now covered with buildings. Westmoreland Street, Newcastle,

* “The register of this church for births, marriages and burials, begins in January, A.D. 1587.”—Brand’s Hist. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (London, 1789), i. 111.

† Morpeth, a place of considerable antiquity, is pleasantly situated on the northern bank of the river Wansbeck, among woody undulating hills, and distant some fourteen miles north from Newcastle. Its weekly cattle market is one of the largest in England. Population in 1851, 10,012.—Black’s Picturesque Tourist of England (Edinburgh, 1861), 395.

‡ The name of “Marmaduke Cutter, Gent.,” occurs as a lessee of the impropriated, or great tithes of Bolam Parish, in Northumberland, which belong to the Royal Free Grammar School of Newcastle-upon-Tyne.—Brand’s Hist. Newcastle, i. 104.

§ “On September 20, 1759, a spirited Scotch galloway, on which Mr. Cuthbert Lambert, son of an eminent physician in Newcastle, was riding, took fright, and flying along Sandyford-lane, leaped the battlement of the bridge and fell about 37 feet to the bed of the rivulet. Mr. Lambert kept his seat, and the branch of an old ash tree broke their fall. The poor animal jumped up, and after running a few yards, fell down and expired; and its rider, from the violence of the shock, was for some time indisposed. On examining the body of the mare, all the joints of the back were found displaced. ‘Lambert’s Leap’ was cut upon the coping stone of the battlement in commemoration of this remarkable occurrence.”—Mackenzie’s Hist. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (Newcastle, 1827), 187, 188.

passes through the midst of the fields.* There is in Morpeth a family by the name of Cutter; one a wood-merchant. In Bolam Church is a slab in the aisle, upon which can be read with difficulty, 'Margaret, wife of Marmaduke Cutter, of Bolam White House.' †

* The Newcastle Gazetteer was printed in 1751, by William Cuthbert, "Cutter's Entry," Close.—Mackenzie's Newcastle, 727.

† "The Messrs. Richardson, of this town, are now preparing an elaborate and exceedingly minute history of Newcastle, in which I believe some of your ancestor's relations will figure. There are still Cutters in the town, and a 'Cutter's Field' in the vicinity."—Letter of R. M. Glover, M.D., of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, to Dr. B. Cutter, of Woburn, Nov. 17, 1846.

The town of Newcastle has more than doubled its size during the present century, and has undergone a most wonderful change during the last few years, having been subject to many noble and magnificent improvements. It is rumored in the United States that the Cutter "Fields," or "Farms," became immensely valuable as the city enlarged, and that this property was appropriated by the British government about 1850, on account of the non-appearance of the rightful owner or heirs.

† Newcastle and vicinity is celebrated for the number of its tall men. Marmaduke Cutter, it is said, was unusually tall. He is reported to have been seven feet high.

Appos to the above may be cited the following from the Boston (Mass.) Daily Evening Transcript, for Dec. 3, 1870.

Speaking and Singing without a Tongue.—In the transactions of the Philosophical Society, published between 1742 and 1744, there is an account of MARGARET CUTTER, who when four years old lost her entire tongue from a cancerous affection; but who, nevertheless, afterwards retained the power of taste, swallowing and speech, without any imperfection whatever. She not only spoke as fluently and with as much correctness as other people, but also sung to admiration, articulating with distinctness all her words while singing. What is not less singular, she could form no idea of the use of a tongue in other persons. This remarkable case was brought before the Royal Society, under certificates of attestation from the minister of the parish, a medical practitioner, and another respectable citizen, well known in Suffolk, where she resided. On account of the extraordinary character of the case, the Society requested an additional report on the subject, and from another set of witnesses named by the Society for the purpose, and for whom they drew up the necessary questions and marked out the proper course of examination. The second report coincided with the first in all particulars, and shortly afterward the young woman was brought to London, where she confirmed the account by personally appearing, and speaking and singing in the presence of the members of the Royal Society and many other persons.

I.

Emigrant Ancestors.

ELIZABETH CUTTER.

ELIZABETH CUTTER, widow, came to New England about A.D. 1640. She was quite in years when she bade farewell to her native country. Her husband—whose name was Samuel, probably—died previous to her departure; and her emigration was accomplished during a season of sickness, and through many “sad troubles by sea.”

A manuscript volume in the autograph of Rev. Thomas Shepard, who succeeded Messrs. Hooker and Stone, as minister of Cambridge, Mass., contains the relations of the experience of persons admitted as members of the church.* Among these “Confessions of diverse p’pounded to be recieved and entertained as members,” occurs an important statement of the “experience” of “Old Goodwife Cutter.”

“I was born in a sinful place where no sermon was preached. Concerning my parents, I knew not my father; my mother sent me to Newcastle, where placed in a godly family (as I think), I heard the words, ‘Fear God and keep his commandments:’ two of which (the third and fourth commandments) I saw I brake. For six or seven years I was connected there, and then went into another family where the people were carnal, and there fell to a consumption [waste?], and afterward followed with Satan. And afraid he would have me away, Mr. Rodwell came to me, and was an instrument of much good to me. Afterwards the Lord’s hand was sad on me. My husband was taken away, and I was sent to this place [Cambridge:] and I desired to come this way in sickness time; and the Lord brought us through many sad troubles by sea; but when here the Lord rejoiced my heart.

“However, when I had come I had lost all hope of salvation, and had no comforter. Hearing from Foolish Virgins † that ‘Those who were not sprinkled with Christ's blood were undone; I saw I was a christless creature, and hence in all His ordinances was persuaded nothing did belong to me—durst not seek, nor call God, Father; nor think Christ shed his blood for me.

“And afterward going to T. S. [Thomas Shepard] I found more liberty, and so had less fear. But hearing the ‘Foolish Virgins were cast off’—so should I be likewise, being a poor ignorant creature. Going to servants of the Lord I told them I could not be persuaded to live thus long; and hearing Mr. Shepard say, ‘If I went as Abram and had such gifts, the Lord would accept,’ I sought the Lord the more—though still a poor creature. On a day of humiliation by sundry places in scripture He rejoiced my heart—‘Christ came to save sinners’—‘Christ came not to save the righteous, but sinners’—and to find the lost and broken-hearted, ‘Come unto me ye weary.’

“But still I thought I had no repentance; yet was encouraged to seek the Lord, and be content with his condemning will, and to lie at His feet, seeing my need of Him—not knowing whither else to go, and knowing that whosoever cometh unto Him He'll not cast away. And so I desired the Lord to teach me; and desire to submit.”

This venerable matron “sojourned about twenty years” in the family of her “very loveing sonne” Mr. Elijah Corlet, the husband of her daughter Barbara, and the “memorable old schoolmaster in Cambridge.” She rewarded these persons, whose “love and care, with continuall expenses for her support” were “very great,” by appointing them her heirs, and bestowing upon them and their offspring her maternal blessing. Three of her children emigrated to this country—sons William and Richard, and the daughter above named; and possibly several married daughters likewise.

Elizabeth Cutter died at Cambridge the 10th of January, 1663–4, aged about eighty-nine years; and left at her decease a property which, according to her inventory, amounted to the sum of £19 4s. 6d. Her Will and the Inventory of her personal estate are found in the Registry of Probate for Middlesex County. Both are well worthy a careful perusal.

Will of Elizabeth Cutter.

I, Elizabeth Cutter of Cambridge in New England, widow, aged about 87 years, being throw the Lord's mercy as yet of sound judgement and memory, yet considering my age and weakness of body accompanying the same, and dayly minded of my latter end, and do therefore hereby declare my last will and testament in manner following, viz.:

All my estate now remayning, which is but little, but what it is, of what nature or kind soever, I do give and bequeath unto my very loveing sonne Mr. Elijah Corlet and to my daughter Barbere his wife, with whome I have now sojourned about twenty years, and whose love and care with continuall expenses for my support in this my long weakness have been very great, so that I must acknowledge myself utterly unable to recompense their great love towards mee otherwise than by leaving the blessing of God Almighty upon their heads and hearts, souls and bodies of them and their offspring, unto whose grace I humbly commit them and under whose covert and protection do leave both them and theirs.

And any former wills, gifts by word of mouth, or other bequeathall of any of that small pittance of my goods now remaying to mee, I do hereby revoak and make null and voyd, on the grounds above premised.

And I do hereby nominate and appoint my daughter Barbere Corlet sole executrix of this my last will and testament.

Thus humbly committing my selfe, soul and body into the hands of God's mercy that he will lay no more upon mee than by his Divine assistance I shall be inabled to his honor and my own comfort both in life and death to pass throw, I humbly desire to wait his pleasure when he will come and give me perfect deliverance from and victory over all those evils both of sin and the just demerits thereof that I either feel or have just cause to fear, acknowledging that hitherto God hath given mee cause to say that God hath been a very good, a very merciful and faithfull God unto mee, and doth yet uphold my heart that for the future he will not faile me nor forsake mee.

WILLIAM CUTTER.

William, the elder son of Elizabeth, perhaps came to New England prior to her emigration. He was made freeman April 18, 1637, and became a member of the Artillery Company of Boston in 1638.*

* Colonial Records, i. 373; Whitman's Hist. Sketch A. and H. Art. Co., 148.

He lived at Charlestown, where he purchased real estate of Mr. Francis Willoughby, "houses, shops, &c.;" * owned a place "near unto the Great Bridge"; and had a grant of land in Cambridge, 1648.†

He pursued the cooper's vocation, and belonged to the association called "Coopers Incorporate," as evident from legislative enactments of the General Court;‡ e. g. October 18, 1648.

"Upon the petition of the cowpers inhabiting in Boston and Charlestowne and upon consideration of many complaintes made of the great damage the Country hath sustained by occasion of defective and insufficient caske, for redress hereof—

"It is ordered, and the Co^{te} doth hereby graunt liberty and power to Thomas Venner, John Mileham, Samuell Bidfeld, James Mattock, Willi: Cutter, Bartholo: Barlow, and the rest of the cowpers of Boston and Charlestowne, or the greater number of them (upon due notice given to the rest) to meete together and to appoint a certaine time and place to wh^{ch} they shall call together all the cowpers, being housekeepers and inhabiting this jurisdiction, who being so assembled, they, or the greater number of them shall have power to choose a m^r and two wardens, four or six ass., a clarke, a gager, a sealer, a packer, a searcher, and a beadle, wth such other officers as they shall find necessary, and these officers and ministers shall be chosen aforesaid every yeare or oftener," &c. &c.

William Cutter figured in the will of Thomas Bittlestone, who appointed him an overseer over his daughter's portion.§ He was a creditor to Mr. Nathaniel Sparrowhawk's estate, 1647.|| He attested to sundry deeds,¶ and is mentioned elsewhere in similar instruments.

Previously to 12th January, 1653-4, he appears to have returned to England, and resided at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, as a power of at-§ Bittlestone d. 23 Nov. 1640. In will, dated Oct. 30th, he gave his dtr. Elizabeth £150, "for her child's portion"; to Rev. Thomas Shepard, pastor at Cambridge, £5; to Rev. Robt. Fordham, who came over in the ship with him, 20s. "for a token"; to his wife the rest of the estate and his boy John Swan. In case of his daughter's death, ere of "perfect age," then her estate "to return" to his wife; should both "dye," then a third to be given to his "naturall kindred in ould England," a third to the Church of Cambridge, and the other third to his friends "Thomas Cheesholme and William Cutter"; both of whom to "have the oversight" of his daughter's estate. The witnesses were Richard and Barbara Cutter, Katherine Haddon. The Inventory, signed by Thos. Cheesholme, John Sill and William Cutter, amounted to £271. 2. 2.; £175 of which was in money. He had been probably but a short time in N. E. His widow d. 1 July, 1672. His daughter m. John Briscoe, Watertown.—Vide N. E. Geneal. Reg. ii. 263.

torney of that date is found in the first volume, Middlesex Registry of Deeds, 133d instrument, to Edward Goffe, Elijah Corlet, Thomas Sweetman, of Cambridge, and Robert Hale, of Charlestown, with Giles Browne and Henry Hawkesworth (Scribe) as witnesses.

In a division of wood and commons on the north side of Mystic river among the inhabitants and estates of Charlestown, March 1, 1658, is the following entry: "Sarg^t Cutter's hous 10 acr^s wood, 1½ commons." Public woodland and pasture, a frequent source of dispute, was usually disposed of by lot and according to the taxable rates each citizen paid. Sergeant Cutter's property still remained unsold, and his share was assigned to his "hous," or estate, as above.

A power of attorney, dated 26th October, 1674, is found in the third volume, Middlesex Registry of Deeds, from "William Cutter, wine cooper, to his loving brother Richard Cutter, cooper; Elijah Corlet, M.A.; Hugh Atkinson, of Northumberland, merchant; and to brother William Stilson, of Charlestown," to sell "his messuages &c." in Charlestown, as before.

"William Cutter's Instructions to his Attorneys.

"1st I desire my three friends Mr. Elijah Corlet and Richard Cutter and Hugh Atkinson, marchant, to joyne together, after consultation about the selling of my houses at Charlestowne, for my best advantage.

"2^{andly} I am willing that the one half of the price should be divided among those friends I named in my letter formerly sent to Mr. Edward Collins, and because I heare the houses are not like to amount to so much as then my friends thought they would amount to, I desire that we may all suffer together.

"3^{ly} What goods may be procured at present that will be merchantable in England I would have them delivered to my friend Mr. Hugh Atkinson, to make the best returns he can for my use.

"4^{ly} I desire my three friends, before named, would all joyne together in the saile of the houses, or if they cannot be sold before Mr. Atkinson depart from New England, I do appoint Brother Stilson of Charlestowne to joine with the other two to sell the houses, and send me the one halfe of them in the most merchantable commodities that can be gott to make returns into England, which returns I desire my friends to intreat Mr. Richard Russell, merchant, of Charlestowne, aforesaid, to consign to Mr. Barret, merchant, of London, who is Major Locrett's Brother-in-law, and intreate him to recieue and order these goods for the use and account of Mr. Thomas Partis of Newcastle-upon-tine.

"Witness my hand and seale the xxvjth day of October Anno Dom̄i.

WILLIAM CUTTER and a Seale."

Accordingly, 29th May, 1675, the attorneys sold John Phillips, "marriner," the house and land near the warehouse, &c. of Francis Willoughby, for £120 in money.* June 10, 1693, Richard Cutter transferred his right to the place "near unto the Great Bridge" in Cambridge—consisting of a fourth of an acre of land, with the house and barn upon the same—"formerly the right and proper estate" of William Cutter, "deceased," and "from him due," as Richard's "lawful right and inheritance," to his son William, with William Johnson of Woburn, Jonathan Dunster of Cambridge, and Samuel Cutter (Richard's son) as witnesses.

At Newcastle, in 1656, William Cutter witnessed an instrument intended for the last will and testament of William Reade, formerly of Woburn, Massachusetts.† When the great increase in the coal-trade in the river Tyne induced the corporation of Newcastle "to appoint an additional officer to their water serjeant, whose province it was to cress the ballast, make out bills concerning it, &c., with the title of 'ballast assessor,'" the third incumbent was William Cutter, "sworn June 23d, 1657." This office, of "great credit and trust," is modernly known by the name "assistant water-bailiff," and the salary was formerly £10 per annum.‡

William Cutter was surely dead by 1693. He was possibly a bachelor, and returned to England obviously without issue. Whether he assumed the marital relation and left posterity in his native country remains doubtful. He was unquestionably a person of station and influence.

RICHARD CUTTER.

Richard, the younger son of Elizabeth, very likely was a voyager in the ship with his mother when she emigrated about the year 1640. He was probably under twenty years of age at the time of his arrival, and unmarried. He was a cooper by trade, and the small oaken chest, made to keep his clothes when apprenticed, is now the property of the writer.

Richard became entitled to suffrage in the election of the colonial magistrates by his admission as freeman, June 2, 1641.§ The privilege was earnestly desired by every man, and all freemen at that period were required to be "orthodox, members of the church, twenty years old, and worth £200." The oath sworn at admission required them to be "true and faithful" subjects of the Commonwealth, to "yield assistance and support thereunto" with person and estate; "maintain and preserve" all her "liberties and privileges;" submit to her "wholesome laws;" never "plot nor practise" evil against her; nor "consent to any that shall so do," but "timely discover and reveal the same to lawful authority, for the speedy preventing thereof." Moreover, they solemnly bound themselves "in the sight of God," that whenever called to give their voice "touching any such matter of the state" wherein freemen were to deal, they would give their "vote and suffrage" as they judged in their own consciences might best "conduce and tend to the public weal of the body" without respect of persons or favor of man.

He became a member of the Artillery Company in 1643. This association, formed in 1637, met for improvement in discipline and tactics; and comprised the leaders and officers of the volunteer "train-bands," and the principal magistrates and citizens. The first regularly organized company in America, "it may be considered the germ from which all our military character in New England, if not in the United States, has sprung;" and exists still under the name of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery" of Boston.*

Richard Cutter was a member of Cambridge church in full communion,† and the following relation of his religious experience is found in Mr. Shepard's manuscript volume:

"The Lord was pleased for to give my parents hearts to bring me up in the fear of the Lord, though I had much opposition of heart against my parents, and those that were over me.

"And so I came to this place, and coming by sea and having a hard voyage, still my heart was dead and fearless and I found my heart as stubborn as before. And though I had some affection, yet held nothing by me. Hearing one sin continued in with obstinacy and hardness will separate forever from Christ, I considered, if one would, what would many? Which affected me much at the time. And hearing the way to subdue a rebellious heart was to bring it to a straight; and John xiii. 8, 'Thou shalt never wash my feet,' and 'If I wash thee not.'—But nothing struck until the speaker came to the 30th verse of the same chapter, where those that were ready went immediate communion of it.—And at the naming of the doctrine I thought I was not ready for Christ; and one reason because all were naturally unready, but in use of terror.—Then they that art not prepared shall not enjoy him; and very sad it was, for my heart did slight it.

* Whitman, Hist. Sketch, 153.

† "Richard Cutter, readmitted; Elizabeth Cutter (the wife of Richard Cutter) is member with us in f. c. Their children, Elizabeth, Samuel, William, Ephraim, Gershom, and Marah, all borne and baptized in this church. Nathaniel Cutter (the son of Richard and [Frances] formerly Embsden), baptized Januar. 24, '63; Rebekah, baptized Octob. 8, 1665; Hephzibah, baptized Decemb. 1, 1667, deceased."—Mitchell, Church Record. (Newell, Camb. Chh.-Gathering, 63.)

“But if I be separate from Christ, 'tis for that cause which maketh angels stand amazed at it. Following Judas' example, I went immediately out [John xiii. 30;] and I stood behind the meeting-house; and, acknowledging that one sin whereby some men present their petitions was opposing his members, by this sin many other sins were brought to my mind—I could not speak to any one, and could apply nothing but what was against the evil. Yet supported by some scripture—one from Jer. iii. 4, ‘Will he retain his anger forever?’—I saw I had done as much evil as I could.—And Jer. viii. 4, ‘Shall they fall and not arise? the Lord turn away and not return?’—And another was Hosea vi. 1, 2—I considered the Lord had wounded me, and ‘we shall know [his mercy] if we go on.’ And so I was encouraged. Hearing in Matt. xxv. of many differences one was to live to God; I thought it would be the greatest mercy if ever the Lord would help me ‘to live to God.’ I knew not which way to go—and I thought I did sin in eating—and I considered I had sins enough—and hence needed not neglect my body—and hence on lecture day a friend coming to ask how it was with me, he said, ‘Take heed you do not keep the Devil's counsel!’—and next day he came again and spake to me—and hence I considered of the bitterness of sin; and in private I began to consider the same. Hearing out of Mark xiv. ‘Christ was sorrowful to the death;’ and there were four causes: 1st, Christ saw all the sins of the world. 2d, He saw the wrath due to them. 3d, Felt the intolerable weight of wrath. 4th, He had felt the presence of the Father.—And by thinking thus sin became bitter unto me.

“And thus after consideration of my condition, I complained I was ignorant of his people's ways. And hearing Mr. Phillips, ‘About calling,’ &c. &c.—And from Mr. Wells, saw how ‘sin of nature’ did reign. And thus going on, in xxv. Matt. 11, 12, observed it a sad misery not to be known of Christ—And saw evil of this, and not to have one thought, word, shed blood, to do for him, nor to accept any thing from him. Nor to accept anything, this was very sad for to me, and Joel i. 8; Lam. i. 16, both set on my heart; and I considered the bitterness of being parted from Christ, and being so forever.—Or if one did not mean acceptance of Christ.—And Mr. Mather, ‘I account all things loss.’ And so I had stirring up of desire after Christ, and I was counselled to believe, but I could not believe in Christ. And hearing in Matt. xxv. ‘To labor to accept of it when offered,’ showed the offer was universal; hence personal. 2d, Real. 3d, Vehement.—And Rev. iii. ultimo, ‘I counsel thee to believe; be at peace.’—And if the Lord counsel them that felt not, much more a soul that mourns after the Lord Jesus.—And Rev. xxii. ult., ‘Freely take it.’—And the Lord thus clearing the offer, he would have me receive it only on condition I was humble; if so much humble as to come to Christ. * * * And when I was come home I considered what shall I do; but then objected; but may'st presume. And looking on 2 Cor. xix. ‘If I took Christ,’ &c., after this the Lord cleared up Christ more fully.”

February 14, 1662-3, Richard married Frances (Perriman) Amsden, the widow of Isaac Amsden, or Emsden, of Cambridge. She survived Richard's decease.*

The purchasing of land was a highly important transaction with the colonial fathers. December 6, 1653, Richard Cutter purchased of Joseph and Hannah Hills, of "Maulden," the houses and lands of Edward Mellows, of Charlestown, "deceased;" twenty-three, and five and a half acres meadow in Charlestown, in a "place commonly called Winattimus field," the "lots" of Zechariah Symmes and of Edward Convers, of Woburn.† Dec. 1, 1678, for 16s. he bought of Jonathan Dunster, "planter," forty poles of land in Charlestown.‡ In 1680, he bought of Thomas and Grace Shippen, two and a half acres of land, formerly Richard Lowden's, in Menotomy.§ Ephraim and Bethia Cutter, his children, sold him a "parcel of meadow" in Charlestown, on "Menotomyes river," 23d June, 1682. || He sold twenty acres of land south of Charles River to Walter Hastings, of Cambridge; purchased four and a half acres in "Winattomies" field, Charlestown, of Richard and Mary Lowden;¶ and in 1686 bought land of John Stedman.

December 24, 1657, a writ was issued against Richard Cutter for debt. Aug. 17, 1659, "Gleason's hogs were in his corn"—a subject of litigation. Having suffered in an action against him by Thomas Eames, of Medford, he petitioned the General Court, 12th Nov. 1659, with the following result:

Richard's residence was in Menotomy, but its exact location is a matter of conjecture. He requested to be buried in "Cambridge burying-place," and near his first wife's grave. ELIJAH CORLET, M.A.

" 'Tis Corlet's pains, and Cheever's, we must own,
That thou, New England, art not Scythia grown." *

Elijah Corlet, the husband of Barbara Cutter, was the son of Henry Corlet, of London. He was admitted to matriculation in Lincoln College, Oxford, 16th March, 1626; came to Cambridge as early as 1641; and was admitted freeman of the Colony, May, 1645.†

Immediately after his arrival he was installed teacher of Cambridge Grammar School. In "New England's First Fruits," published in 1642, is the following passage:

"By the side of the Colledge a faire Grammar Schoole, for the training up of young schollars, and fitting of them for Academicall learning, that still as they are judged ripe, they may be recieved into the Colledge of this Schoole: Master Corlet is the Mr. who hath very well-approved himself for his abilities, dexterity, and painfulnessse in teaching and education of the youths under him."

How early this school was established does not appear, but it seems to have been nearly coeval with the town, and an object of uncommon solicitude. Great exertions were made for the master's steady and permanent support; and some years after its founding it was liberally endowed by Governor Hopkins of Connecticut, whose donation constituted eventually a very respectable fund.‡ For his "extreordinary pajnes" with the tuition of the Indian scholars, who were intended for the College, Corlet received compensation from the Society for Propagating the Gospel, and was repeatedly and very honorably mentioned in the accounts transmitted from New England to that association.

‡ Edward Hopkins, Esq., died in England, 1657. For the encouragement of these "Foreign plantations," for the "breeding up of hopeful youth in a way of learning, both at the Grammar School and College, for the public service of the country in future times," he bequeathed £500 to the college and grammar school in Cambridge, which sum was laid out in real estate in the town of Hopkinton. According to the donor's instructions, three-fourths of the income of this was applied to the maintenance of five resident Bachelors of Arts at Harvard, and the other fourth to the "Master of Cambridge Grammar School," in consideration of his giving instruction in "Grammar Learning" to five boys, nominated by the faculty of the college and by the minister of Cambridge, whom the will constituted "Visitors of the said School," their annual visitation occurring the week previous to Commencement, when they were to see if the provisions of the gift were fulfilled, and note the proficiency of these scholars in learning. Afterwards the Massachusetts Legislature made such addition to this fund that "six bachelors might reside at the college," and seven boys receive instruction at the Grammar School.—Holmes, Hist. Cambridge, 22, 23.

Having directed "Mr Corletts farme" to be laid out "in any place not legally taken up," the Court judged meet to allow his allotment to be taken "of the farme of five hundred acres" of "Mrs Margery Flynt," by her order. This tract, located in Framingham, was known by his name even as late as 1750, when it was delineated on a survey of the town.*

November 7, 1668: "In ans^r to the petiçõn of Mr Elijah Corlett, the Court hauing considered of the petiçõn and being informed the petiçõner to be very poore, and the country at present having many engagements to satisfie, judge meete to grant him five hundred acres of land where he can find it according to lawe." †

In 1679 each Colonial town was required by law to render an account to the General Court of the number of families and male persons, "rateable to the country," residing therein, with the annual allowance to their pastor, with their schools, and also their tythingmen. In such a statistical return for the town of Cambridge, signed by Samuel Andrews and John Watson, who were chosen by the town to make the record, occurs this item:

"30. 1. 1680. Our Latin Schoolmaster is Mr. Elijah Corlitt; his scholars are in number 9 at present." ‡

A letter from the Commissioners of the United Colonies to the Corporation in England, dated at Hartford, 7th Sept., 1659, states: "There are five Indian youtnes att Cambridge in the lattin Schoole; whose dilligence and profisiency in their studdies doth much encourage vs to hope that god is fiting them and preparing them for good Instruments in this great and desirable worke wee haue good Testimony from those that are prudent and pious that they are diligent in their studdies and ciuell in their carriage; and from the Present of the Colledge; we had this testimony in a letter directed to us the 23 of August 1659, in these words; the Indians in Mr Cor-

† Under this resolve it appears that he found it on the southerly and easterly side of "Flint's Pond," in Grafton, Mass. The land, surveyed in 1674, was bounded East by the river running from the pond, and extended more than half around it on the east and west sides. The Boston and Albany Railroad passes through this territory. It is not known whether Corlet made any improvements on this territory, nor why he made this selection. King Philip's war ended all attempts at colonization. It certainly did not relieve Corlet's poverty.—Vide *Proc. Mass. Hist. Corlet was deservedly enlogized for his learning and fidelity. He was author of "some lines" which Cotton Mather introduces at the close of his "Life of Mr. Thomas Hooker, the Light of the Western Churches; the Renowned Pastor of Hartford Church, and Pillar of Connecticut Colony," with the following tribute: †

"Or, for a more extended epitaph, we may take the abridgement of his Life as offered in some lines of Mr. Elijah Corlet, that memorable old schoolmaster in Cambridge, from whose education our colledge and country has received so many of its worthy men, that he is himself worthy to have his name celebrated in no less a paragraph of our church history, than that wherein I may introduce him, endeavouring to celebrate the name of our great Hooker unto this purpose: "

[TRANSLATION ACCOMPANYING.]

If to our prayers the boon we ask were given,
 Our HOOKER had not passed so soon to heaven :
 We loved so truly, that we fain would stay
 His blissful transit to the realms of day.
 The thought will come, when o'er him thus we moan,
 That in his grave New-England finds her own.
 Worthy wert thou to stem the flight of Time,
 And, like the eagle, to renew thy prime !
 To spread afresh the triumphs of thy worth,
 And win a loftier destiny on earth.

Emanuel College ! who dost fitly shine
 Mother of thousands of the prophet-line ;
 And happy Chelmsford ! brought most near to heaven,
 When Hooker to thy sacred courts was given ;
 Bear witness to that excellence, which grew
 In daily beauty to your raptured view.

Yet did his country spurn his hallowed life ;
 His sacred office was a theme of strife ;
 Nor did e'en Chalcas, though a heathen seer,
 Find Truth inspire so little wholesome fear
 As did our HOOKER, who proclaim'd that God
 Would make rebellious ENGLAND feel His rod.
 Episcopacy drove him from his home,
 Stricken in heart, in foreign climes to roam ;
 Less kindly than the fever, which o'ercame,
 On Holland's coast, his much-enfeebled frame.
 And then, NEW-ENGLAND ! o'er the ocean's breast
 He came to thee—a dove of peace and rest.
 To thine elect he seemed their joy and crown,
 And added honour to thy young renown :
 A gentle friend, a pastor true and kind,
 Rich in the gifts of heart and tongue and mind.

We saw thee ready, waiting, to depart,
 Yet, save with prayers and tears that wrung the heart,
 Strove not to stay from its celestial goal
 Thy struggling, thine emancipated soul.

For seventy-five long years he lingered here,
 A weary pilgrim on this earthly sphere :
 Now to his "father's mansions" is he come,
 "The better country," his eternal home.

Corlet probably continued master of the grammar school until his decease, 25th February, 1686-7, at the age of seventy-eight. Rev. Nehemiah Walter, of Roxbury, published an elegy on his death in blank verse.* With Barbara, his wife, he was member of Cambridge church in full communion.†

"The Lord let me see my condition by nature out of xvi. of Ezekiel, and by seeing the holiness of the carriage of others around my friends; and the more I looked upon them the more I thought ill of myself.

"I embraced the motion to New England, and went through many miseries and sad passages by sea. Stumbling blocks at last remained, and after I came hither I saw my condition more miserable than ever—knew not what to do, and spake to none, knowing none like me.

"Yet hearing, 2 Cor. v. 19, 'God was in Christ;' and then what need there was of coming to Christ—what need of him to take away iniquity and cleanse our robes—thereby I saw my

SUPPOSED CHILDREN OF ELIZABETH CUTTER.

The supposition is, several married daughters of Elizabeth Cutter came to this country about the time of her emigration.

1. ISABELLA, wife of Thomas Sweetman, of Cambridge. "Thomas Swetman and Isabell, his wife," were members of Cambridge church, "both in full communion." He became freeman, 2d May, 1638, and died 8th Jan. 1682-3, æ. 73. He is mentioned in the power of attorney, noticed on page 6. His widow received "alms from the church up to the 12th December, 1709." Their issue were:

- i. ELIZABETH, b. 6 Jan. 1646-7; m. Benjamin Wellington, 7 Dec. 1671—the grandmother of Hon. Roger Sherman, signer of the Declaration of Independence. [Boul's Watertown, 628.]—ii. REBECCA, b. 7 Apr. 1649; m. Michael Spenser.—iii. SARAH, b. 2 May, 1651; m. Josiah Treadway, Framingham, 9 Jan. 1673-4; d. 5 Mar. 1696-7. [Boul's Watertown, 608.]—iv. THOMAS, b. 18 Jan. 1655-6; d. Jan. 27th.—v. RUHAMAH, b. 28 Mar. 1657.—vi. SAMUEL, b. 16 Apr. 1659; grad. Harv. Coll. 1677.—vii. BETHIA, bapt. 7 July, 1661; m. James Hewes, Boston, 12 Dec. 1692.—viii. HEPHZIBAH, b. 19 June, 1666.

2. JOYCE, wife of Edward Goffe, of Cambridge. They embarked at Ipswich, in Suffolk, in the Hope, October, 1634.† Goffe was made freeman 25th May, 1636; was proprietor of a homestall and one other lot in Watertown, 1642; selectman ten years; representative to the General Court, 1646 and 1650; and died 26th Dec. 1658. Joyce, his wife, died November, 1638. His second wife Margaret, daughter of widow Isabella Wilkinson, married, 1662, John Witchfield, of Windsor. Goffe's will mentions his widow Margaret, son Sam.

vileness, and hence was discouraged; but heard again the soul was not further off when stripped of excellencies, and that when coming for reconciliation it must see nothing, but 1st, condemned for best desires—2nd, Christ on Tree—and should find no reason why the Lord should pity it. But hence to hang on his good pleasure, which God made precious to me if He would pity me and honor himself in me," &c. &c.—Rev. T. Shepard's MSS. Vol.

* A. R. Corlet passed the winter of 1674 with his brother-in-law Minot at Dorchester. Jan. 5, 1674-5, a collection "was made for Mr. Corlet, for his labor in preaching during Mr. Flim's sickness."—Dorchester Chh. Records.

uel, daughters Lydia, Deborah, Anna, and Abiah; and widows Barnard and Wilkinson. His issue by wife Joyce were:

- i. SAMUEL, b. in England; m. Hannah, dau. Phebe, widow of John Barnard, Watertown, 25 June, 1656. "Samuel Goffe, Senr." d. 15 Jan. 1705-6. "Anna," his wife, d. April, 1679, æ. 44.—ii. LYDIA, b. England; m. John Sprague, 2 May, 1653.—iii. NATHANIEL, b. Feb. 1638; probably d. young.*
3. ELIZABETH, wife of Deacon William Stitson, or Stilson, of Charlestown. She had been a widow Harris, and her marriage with Stitson probably occurred in England. He was admitted freeman 11th June, 1633, and with his wife joined the church at Charlestown, 22d Mar. 1633-4. He was a member of the Artillery Company, 1648, and a sergent of the volunteer train-band; held the office of selectman for twenty years; representative to the General Court six years; and was deacon of the church "31 years & 5 mo.," as inscribed on his tombstone, still to be seen. He died 11th Apr. 1691, æ. about 91; and in his will kindly remembered the children of Elizabeth by her former husband;† gave a legacy to Deborah, wife of Matthew Griffin, and the blessing of freedom to his negro Sambo.

Dea. Stitson's wife Elizabeth died 16th Feb. 1669-70. August 22, 1670, he married Mary, widow of Francis Norton. The historian of Charlestown asserts, "He was as active in ecclesiastical affairs as in civil;" and "the bare recital of the offices he held" is the only memorial he can give of "this venerable patriarch."

4. JOANNA, wife of Dea. Robert Hale, of Charlestown. Both came probably in the fleet with Gov. Winthrop, July, 1630. Hale was one of the earliest members of the Boston church, his name being eighteenth in order of membership; and with his wife assisted at the founding of the First Church, Charlestown, 14th Oct. 1632; of which Ralph Mousal and himself were the first chosen to the office of deacons.

Hale, admitted freeman 14th May, 1634, was member of the Artillery Company, 1644. He was ensign of Charlestown train-band, held the office of selectman eleven years, and performed many offices of trust in behalf of the town. Deacon Robert "Hail" died 16th July, 1659. His consort Joanna married Richard Jacob, of Ipswich, and died about 1679. Their son, Rev. John Hale, the noted pastor at Beverly, left descendants eminently distinguished in our country's annals.

“Of the mother of John Hale but little is known; but when we consider the characters of those who descended from her for three successive generations, without other means of judging, we are led to very favorable inferences.”* Dea. Robert and Joanna Hale had issue:

- i. JOHN, b. 3 June, 1636; grad. Harv. Coll. 1657; ordained Beverly, 1667; m. (1st) Rebecca Byles, (2d) Sarah Noyes, (3d) Elizabeth Clark; and d. 15 May, 1700, having “rested from his labors in his 64th year.”†—ii. MARY, b. 17 May, 1639; m. Edward Wilson.—iii. ZECHERY, b. 3 Apr. 1641; d. æ. 2.—iv. SAMUEL, b. 9 Apr. 1644; a mariner; by wife Lydia had Lydia, baptized 28 Oct. 1677; he d. 1677.—v. JOANNA, m. John Laken, 9 Nov. 1664.‡

Second Generation.

CHILDREN OF RICHARD CUTTER, EMIGRANT ANCESTOR.

RICHARD CUTTER was sire of fourteen children, and progenitor of the Cutter Family of New England. By his wife Elizabeth he had:—

1. ELIZABETH, b. 15 July, 1645, and baptized at Cambridge; probably died unmarried after 1658.
2. SAMUEL, b. 3 Jan. 1646–7, was “borne and baptized” in Cambridge. “I counsell my son Samuel to dwell with his brother William Cutter while he remains unmarried.”—Richard's Will, 1693.
3. THOMAS, b. at Cambridge, 19 July, 1648. Rev. Mr. Mitchell—perhaps through inadvertence—makes no mention of his baptism.* He was probably dead when his father's will was made, which accounts for the reason he is not mentioned therein.† By wife Abigail he had four children born in Cambridge. Regarding these, nothing further is known.
 - i. ABIGAIL, b. 31 Oct. 1674.—ii. THOMAS, b. 19 Jan. 1677–8.—iii. MARY, b. 15 Mar. 1680–1.—iv. HANNAH, b. 7 Mar. 1682–3.
4. WILLIAM, b. at Cambridge, 22 Feb. 1649–50. Mitchell mentions his baptism in the church of that place, but gives no date.

He married Rebecca Rolfe, whose father, John Rolfe, of Cambridge, originally from Newbury, came hither about 1670, from Nantucket Island, but no record of the date of the marriage occurs among the authorities as yet consulted. William and wife were admitted to membership in Cambridge church, July 28, 1700; and a cherished relic, the family Bible, bears marked evidence of frequent use. His residence was in that part of the town which formed the district called Menotomy, and on the banks of the stream flowing from Lexington through Arlington into Mystic River. Here, on the occasion of Rolfe's decease, Oct. 1, 1681, he received from his estate an acre of land. Later, April 10, 1684, he purchased of John Rolfe, Jr., four acres additional, on which he built the house, afterwards his son John's, which formerly stood on the site of the present residence of his descendant, Cyrus Cutter. This land was the "west corner" of the Rolfe's homestead, and with the purchase William had "liberty to build a dam for the convenience of the mill" near his house, together with "the half part of a sawmill" on Sergeant Francis Whitmore's estate also. He dwelt in the house mentioned, it appears, until he sold it for £60 to his son John, April 9, 1717, with ten acres of land "adjoyning the place called the 'Rocks,' and lying on both sides of the mill brook."

Vacating these premises, he removed to that comfortable old-fashioned house of two stories, once doubtless the home of the "Rolfe's," which many now living remember as the mansion of his lineal descendant, the "Valiant." In 1844 it was purchased by Albert Winn, Esq., and demolished, and a cottage erected on its site. While undergoing demolition, a beam, the support of a fire-place, was removed from the chimney, inscribed with the figures, "1671;" the probable date of its erection by its builder and first occupant, the father-in-law of William, John Rolfe. From William it passed through four generations of his descendants, embracing a period of a century's duration.

William was an heir of his father's estate and an executor of his will. A carpenter or "house-wright" by profession, he was also somewhat of an husbandman, and dealt largely in real estate, as the multitude of deeds and other documents in which he is mentioned bear evidence. He did not confine his land speculations to his immediate neighborhood, but sometimes extended his operations to other localities, and in several instances gave mortgages.* In addition to these pursuits he appears to have added that of a miller, and carried on this business in mills erected on the banks of the stream near his house.

A few of his transactions in the sale of land deserve notice. May 1, 1690, he bought of his aunt "Barbery Corlet, widow," eight acres at "Cambridge Rocks." Jan. 20, 1692-3, for £9, he bought three acres of Jonathan Dunster in Charlestown, in a place "formerly called Limfield, now Menotomy Fields."† Feb. 8, 1697-8, Samuel Manning, of Billerica, "yeoman," sold him eight acres at the "Rocks," near his house; the land being on both sides of the mill-brook. July 28, 1707, he sold to William Locke, of Woburn, for £25, twenty-five acres of the "Cook or Rolfe Farm," in Cambridge. Sept. 15, 1710, of the same to Daniel Bloggett, of Woburn, "taylor," he sells for £50 twenty acres more.‡

* Namely, July 8, 1686, to Roger Buck and one Thatcher; Dec. 26, 1686, to "E. Thomas's Mills;" in 1688, to Ephraim and Bethia Cutter [I'ide ii. 5.]. A mortgage from "Ephraim and Bethia" to "William and Rebecca," 1696, was discharged 1713.—Midd. Reg. Deeds, i.-xii.

‡ Bounded N. E. by William Locke, Jr.; N. W. by William Johnson and Samuel Whittemore; S. W. by "Vine Brook;" and S. E. by his land "running across the cartway."

An indenture made June 26, 1706, between "John Gibbs of the Island Bermudas, joiner, and Susannah, his now wife, the daughter of William Prout and Love, his wife (daughter of Jotham Gibbons, formerly of Boston, Gent.)," and "William Cutter, housewright, for £100 in current New-England, granted and sold him of certain land in Charlestown, commonly called 'Squaw Sachem's farme,' about fifty-six acres;"* and "John Vaughan, Isle Bermudas, Gent., and Margaret, his wife (daughter of John Fowle of Bermudas, minister)," on the same day sold William Cutter, for £100, about fifty-six acres more, "being the eighth lott of the 'Squaw Sachem's farm,' that was formerly Major Gibbon's estate," then included within the limits of Charlestown.† William thus became possessor of a tract of land now the nucleus of several valuable farms on the western shore of Mystic Pond.

In the preceding paragraphs mention is made of a certain mill privilege near William's homestead. This property, quite intimately connected with his interests, still remains a means of support to numbers of his descendants. It is proper to digress somewhat and give of it some historical notice.

On Oct. 3, 1635, the ship Defense, Thomas Bostocke, master, arrived at Boston from London, with Rev. Mr. Shepard and family, Col. Roger Harlackenden, Joseph and George Cooke, and other emigrants as passengers.

Fleeing religious intolerance at home, this little company of voyagers had departed clandestinely, and in several instances embarked under assumed characters. The ship left port in the earlier days of the July previous, and having "a bottom too decayed and feeble indeed for such a voyage," a perilous leak endangered her safety on the way hither.‡

Among the passengers who "assumed characters," were the brothers Cooke, who were registered as servants to Col. Harlackenden; and they resorted apparently to this subterfuge to mislead the pursuivants, whom the vigilant authorities had directed to thwart their departure. They became freemen, March 3, 1635-6, and settled with their pastor at Cambridge, where they distinguished themselves by their public spirit. George was captain of the Cambridge train-band in 1642; a member of the Artillery Company of Boston, and its commander, 1643; a representative to the General Court of the Colony for five consecutive years, and its speaker in 1645. He commanded the troops sent to arrest the enthusiast Gorton and company, 1643; and was one of the commissioners appointed by the government to determine and settle the controversy, either by a mild and impartial hearing, or by bringing the Gortonists to Boston by force in case of refusal. Afterwards he appears to have returned to the old country, and in 1651 was a colonel in the Protector's forces then operating in Ireland, where he probably died in Cromwell's service the year following.§

Shortly after his arrival at Cambridge Col. Cooke built a grist-mill on the brook before noticed, and Dr. Samuel Read, of Stafford, in England, furnished funds for the purpose.* This was a great enterprise in those times, and controlled the location of highways in that section. The colonists adopted very primitive appliances for grinding grain, having recourse usually to aboriginal stone mortars and pestles. Cooke's molendinary structure possibly stood on the present estate of Mr. Cyrus Cutter, and was erected for "the first supply of Boston market with rye and Indian corn meal, furnishing the healthy bread of its first inhabitants." † In the neighborhood of the mill Cooke owned considerable land, which was afterwards designated as his "farm." By wife Alice he had issue in Cambridge.‡

While absent from home he consigned his business to the care of his consort, a woman sagacious and energetic. Once during her administration certain officers of revenue chanced to visit the region, assessing taxable property. Mrs. Cooke, rather averse to the tax, determined to evade payment in the greatest degree possible, and prepared duly for their reception. Mills incapable of the usual functions appear not liable to heavy assessment. Evidently aware of this, Mrs. Cooke adapts her knowledge to the exigency. She proceeds to the mill with a servant, and directs the removal of the horns from the water-wheel; arranging the machinery in a manner the spindle would revolve without turning the mill-stones. When the officers examined the premises, particular attention was called to this circumstance, which they failed to understand. Mrs. Cooke's explanations found ready credence, and convinced the assessors of its depreciated value. They accordingly departed, and the mill rested awhile lest suspicion might arise; but the night following it was kept steadily grinding to regain lost time.§

As Cooke was of an adventurous and military turn of disposition, the wars then waged by the Protector Cromwell doubtless engaged his earnest attention, and instigated his return to his native country to do service in them, as before mentioned. Pecuniary difficulties perhaps oppressed him, and his family very likely accompanied him when he left these shores forever.

His estate in this country appears to have descended at his decease to his daughter Mary, who eventually married, it is said, Samuel Annesley, Esq., of Westminster, England, who was called "her mother's younger brother," and with whom she was living in 1691. Her sister Elizabeth married Rev. John Quick, of St. Giles, Cripplegate, London.¶ On April 19, 1669, Mary consigns the entire estate to her attorney to be sold in her behalf; and September 27, 1670, it was purchased by John Rolfe, of Nantucket, "planter," for the sum of one hundred and sixty pounds.¶¶

For some reason, now unknown, Cooke's mill and the buildings adjoining were demolished, and at the time of Rolfe's purchase "a few small ruins thereof" were the sole remains. Rolfe rebuilt the mill, erected a house and barn, and carried on the business until his death, Oct. 1, 1681.* Dying at the house of his brother Benjamin Rolfe, at Newbury, he made his will on the day of his decease; in which instrument he bequeathed his eldest son John the land he "lived upon, with the mill and houses upon it"—excepting one acre of land he had given "his son William Cutter." His farm was divided among his other sons, and his inventory makes mention of his owning "three-quarters of the corne mill," and meadow adjoining in Charlestown.

The genealogy of John Rolfe is somewhat obscure, but all authorities agree in pronouncing him the grandson of Henry Rolfe, an early settler of Newbury. He was the parent of several children, and father-in-law of William Cutter.† From John Rolfe, Jr., the mill property appears to have been transferred to his "brother-in-law," abovesaid, who built a dam for its convenience. At William's decease it was conveyed to his sons, and has remained in possession of certain of their descendants ever since.

William Cutter, by his wife Rebecca, was parent of ten children, nine of whom attained maturity and gave birth to a numerous progeny. June 3, 1724, his widow married John Whitmore, Sen., a deacon, and highly trustworthy citizen of Medford. She gave £6 towards defraying the expense of "communion utensils" for Menotomy church, 1739, and died Nov. 23, 1751, aged ninety years. Dea. Whitmore, her husband, died Feb. 22, 1739-40, æ. 84.‡

William Cutter was respectably affluent. His will and inventory are curious and interesting documents. The former exhibits good sense and paternal care: the latter minutely enumerates the pecuniary value of his "moveable estate." Choice passages of scripture, inscribed in his chirography on the fly leaves of the family Bible, reveal his general religious sentiments.

"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning: Psal. 30. 5."

"Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and save me from bloody men: Psal. 59. 2."

"Hear my prayer, O Lord, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears; for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were.

"O spare me, that I may recover strength before I go hence, and be no more. Psal. 39. 12, 13." "William Cutter, 1708."

"Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: 1 Chron. 29. 11."

"Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul: Ps. 25. 1."

"Vanity of Vanities, Saith the Preacher, Vanity of vanities; all is vanity: what profit hath a man of all his Labour which he taketh vnder the Sun: one generation passeth away and another cometh; but the world abideth forever."

"It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes: Psal. 119. 71."

5. EPHRAIM, b. 1651, and baptized at Cambridge, was a glazier by trade, and resided successively in Cambridge, Charlestown, and Watertown Farms, now Weston. Feb. 11, 1678-9, he married Bethia Wood, probably daughter of Nicholas and Mary (Williams) Wood, of Medfield, and born July 28, 1660.

While resident at Charlestown he drew pay as an officer in Philip's War, and was probably the "Captain Cutter" who commanded a company in the expedition sent to "range the woods towards Hassanamesit," now Grafton, April 27, 1676. The forces comprising this expedition "succeeded in capturing small parties of the enemy, among whom were some of 'considerable rank;' but the season proving rainy, and many being sick, after a short campaign the troops were released 'for the recovery of their health,' and returned for the most part to Boston." According to tradition he once commanded in a fight with Indians at Fort Hill, in Thompson, Conn.*

March 19, 1678-9, Ephraim Cutter, "of Cambridge, glazier," purchased of Jonathan Bunker, "planter," one and a half acres meadow in Menotomy; his brother William Cutter being a witness of the deed. June 12, 1680, Ephraim Cutter, "of Charlestown," bought of Samuel Andrews, "marriner," for £26, a house with land in Cambridge.* His eldest son, Ephraim, was born in Charlestown the following August: and he appears first at Watertown, Aug. 18, 1689, when three of his children were baptized.

June 23, 1682, he sold a "parcel of meadow" in Charlestown on "Menotomyes river," to his father Richard. April 9, 1703, he bought of Daniel Child, for £50, two acres of land with a mansion house, barn, and orchard, at Watertown.† July 6, 1696, he sold a "homestead of ten acres," with nine acres meadow, and a farm of one hundred acres in Watertown to his brother William Cutter.‡ The "Cutter Farm," located in Weston, Ephraim and his brother sold to William Williams, "clerk," Dec. 3, 1713. Ephraim, Jr., and John Cutter (William's son) were witnesses of the sale.

Ephraim Cutter is mentioned in his father's and brother William's wills. The date of his decease is unknown. His wife was interred in Watertown.

December, 1675, Gershom served as a soldier in the "Narragansett war," and apparently fought in the noted Swamp fight, and endured the extreme hardship of this memorable campaign.

He was an executor of his father's will and an heir to his estate; was a farmer in Menotomy, and probably dwelt at the “Foot of the Rocks,” a locality in which many of his descendants long continued to reside. May 8, 1678, he bought of Jonathan Dunster six acres of land in “Menotomy Fields.” Jan. 2, 1693-4, he buys of Richard Procter, for £24, twenty acres of land at the “Rocks.”* Jan. 30, 1698-9, he buys of Israel Mead the third of an orchard, six acres land, situated a half respectively in Cambridge and Charlestown. Sept. 26, 1705, Joseph Rolfe, of Woodbridge, New Jersey, “millwright,” deeds, on account of “great trouble about the land,” to Edward Winship, Francis Locke, and Gershom Cutter, eight acres at the “Foot of the Rocks,” which he had formerly purchased of his brother John Rolfe, “farmer, deceased.”

August 6, 1721, he was admitted member of Cambridge church. His inventory was taken by Isaac Bowman, Samuel Brooks, and Joseph Winship, June 22, 1738. His son Gershom and grandson Gershom Cutter, with Samuel Whittemore, administered the estate. His gravestone was one of the earliest erected in Arlington old burying-place.

His inventory mentions "leather britches, a new dark wigg, sundry old wigs, yarn leggens, pistols, warming pan, wooden plates," &c.

The site of the “ Grist Mill ” mentioned is still pointed out in the creek near the dwelling which Richard occupied, now the residence of Mr. Samuel R. Cutter.

March 8, 1719–20, Richard Cutter was chosen “ overseer of the pore ” in Woodbridge for the year ensuing. Mar. 14, 1756, he was again chosen the same. He was honorably mentioned in his father's will, who by a “ deed of gift ” gave him an important part of his estate, which Richard afterwards transferred to his brothers who remained near the family homestead. He was appointed an executor of this instrument, but did not appear at the office of probate when the will was proven. He however in some degree assisted in its final administration. His descendants have been numerous in Woodbridge, where he appears to have been a citizen of the first importance, and where his monumental stone is yet standing. He was the first of the name to leave New England and settle in a distant locality.

- vi. JOSEPH,⁴ m. Ann Campyon, who was born about 1730. Her mother was a widow, who lived and owned the house where the post-office is now kept at Woodbridge. Here was the first tea drank, or tea-party that took place perhaps in the State, when Mrs. Cutter was but five years old. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Cutter went to housekeeping in one end of the old house at the mill. They soon began to feel that the old hive was getting too crowded, and determined to strike out into a new settlement. They bought a small farm about three miles west, where they put up a small house, cutting down large forest trees to make room for a garden and other improvements. Their eldest son was five years old the first time he was brought to the new settlement, riding on horse-back behind his mother. Mr. Cutter was a very kind, mild, and affectionate man, and "departed this life" April 30, 1767, "in the 42^d year of his age."

Mrs. Cutter was a very energetic, domestic, tidy, decided woman; and with her son Campyon, then a lad, and a colored boy a few years older, managed the farm, and soon began to add to it from time to time, as property was offered that joined, until the old farm covered about four hundred acres. Much of it was heavily timbered, which in time became very valuable.

Mrs. Cutter was for many years a member of the church. She died in 1813 at the residence of her son Campyon, in Woodbridge, with her faculties unimpaired, and "in her 83d year."*

5. JOHN,³ b. 15 Oct. 1690, was baptized at Cambridge, Sept. 15, 1700. He married Lydia, daughter of John and Hannah (Winter) Harrington, of Waltham, baptized Mar. 2, 1689-90.* Both became members of the church at old Cambridge, June 4, 1710.

He dwelt in the house, built about 1684, which he purchased of his father, 1717, and which formerly stood on the site of Mr. Cyrus Cutter's residence, Arlington. He was an executor of his father's will, and an heir to his estate; was an husbandman, and probably had a share in the work of the mill with his brothers William and Samuel. Oct. 25, 1711, he purchased of Moses Rolfe, of Woodbridge, N. J., "yeoman," one fifth of "Cooke's Farm" (130 acres) for "£57 current passable money." May 24, 1712, he bought of John and Elizabeth Harrington one half of "Harry Rolfe's lot" (38 acres) in Cambridge. Apr. 24, 1713, of the same, a portion of Cooke's Farm in Lexington, which he sold to Daniel Monroe in 1714. Nov. 27, 1717, to Thomas Bloggett, Lexington, he sells thirty acres of land in Woburn.†

April 13, 1737, he was chosen, with Capt. Ephraim Frost, of Mennotomy, as member of a committee of nine persons "for Vigilance Committee of y^e Church." This committee, appointed originally by the desire of Rev. Dr. Appleton, the pastor, and perpetuated for many years by his influence, "was a kind of privy council to the minister, though without authority," and appears to have been very serviceable to the interests of religion. It was proposed and recommended in the year 1736, and consisted of a "number of wise, prudent and blameless Christians, chosen among themselves, whose special care it should be, to inspect and observe the manners of professing Christians and such as were under the care and watch of the church." This measure they "apprehended might be serviceable for reviving religion, and suppressing growing disorders."‡

September 9, 1739, John and wife were founders of the church in the Second Precinct of Cambridge, now Arlington; signing and acknowledging the covenant drawn up by Rev. Samuel Cooke, the first pastor. Nov. 17, he was unanimously chosen a deacon, and was one of the two incumbents who first held the office in that church.*

In his latter days his mind became unsound, and his son John Cutter, "miller," and Joseph Adams, "yeoman," were appointed guardians, Feb. 3, 1775. His wife died twenty years previous to his death. Their monumental stones are readily found near the centre of Arlington burial-ground.

Mr. Cutter was a miller in charge of his father's establishment in Menotomy. He was a substantial and influential citizen, and resided in the venerable house next above the Universalist Church on Arlington Avenue.* He was rather eccentric, and bore the sobriquet of "minister." He subsisted on an abstemious diet, and for a number of years before his death would drink no water save from a certain spring in the neighborhood. This peculiarity subjected him to annoyance from mischievous boys. He had no issue.

About 1770, Richard removed his family to Nottingham West, now Hudson, N. H. He settled upon the banks of the Matarnac Brook, and distant some half a mile easterly from Taylor's Falls Bridge.

In 1775, he served one month with the provincial forces before Boston, as substitute for his son Seth, then at home on furlough. He fought in the engagement of Bunker Hill, which occurred at this period.

He was mainly engaged in agriculture.

Nov. 12, 1772, Ammi wedded Abigail, daughter of Simon and Abigail Holden, of Charlestown. She was born 28 Sept. 1744; became a church member at Menotomy, 1 Nov. 1772, and died in travail with her only child (stillborn), June 29, 1773, "aged 28 years." Her epitaph: "Blessed are the meek in spirit, for they shall see God."

Oct. 27, 1774, Ammi marries Abigail's sister, Hannah Holden, who was born 5 Aug. 1752. The propriety of this marriage being questioned in Massachusetts, the ceremony was performed in New Hampshire.‡ Hannah joined the church 7 Sept. 1783; was mother of a second family of ten children, and died 23 Aug. 1801, "Ætat. 48 Years & 18 Days."

of offices upon his acceptance. He was clerk of the church in which he worshipped, and as chorister led the music for more than thirty years.*

April 19, 1775, the day of Lexington Battle, he participated in the capture of a convoy of provisions at Menotomy, belonging to Lord Percy's reinforcement, and detained at the passage of Charles River, in Cambridge, until beyond protection of the main body. The convoy, in charge of a sergeant's guard, following after the troops, was further separated by a false direction as to the road. An express conveyed information of its approach. About twelve exempts of the "alarm list" assembled forthwith at Cooper's tavern to arrange for its capture, Ammi among them. David Lamson, a mulatto, who had previously seen service, was their leader; and posting themselves behind the covert of a wall opposite the meeting-house, awaited the convoy's arrival. Soon appearing, it came to the ambush. Lamson, ordering his men to rise and aim, commanded the convoy to halt and surrender. No attention was paid to the demand, and the drivers hastened the speed of their horses. The men in ambush fired, killing several horses, two men, and wounding several others. The drivers, springing from their places, fled in terror with the guards to the shore of Spy Pond; threw their muskets into the water, and ingloriously surrendered soon after to an old woman, who delivered them to the care of a party of provincials. Meanwhile the exempts, securing their prize, drew the wagons into the hollow, near the present railway station, despoiling them of their contents; then effacing all traces of the action upon the road, sent the surviving animals to Medford, and by direction of Rev. Mr. Cooke, dragged the dead ones to a field near Spring Valley, where the bones lay bleaching many years.†

After the capture, some of the party returning home met Lieut. Gould of the Fourth Infantry, wounded at Concord Bridge, and returning alone on horseback to Boston. Making him prisoner they led him first to Ammi's dwelling, and afterwards to Medford. As the British troops, retreating from Lexington, entered Menotomy, Ammi hastened from his house across the brook to advise his neighbor, the heroic Jason Russell, to leave his dwelling for a place of greater security. Russell refusing, exclaimed, "An Englishman's house is his castle!" Ammi left him, and getting over the wall on the other side of the road, saw the advance of the enemy's flanking party close behind him. Being quickly fired upon he speedily fled, and stumbling, fortunately fell between the logs at the neighboring mill—the bullets striking off the bark upon him, and scattering a parcel of silver money in the pocket of his trowsers. The foe, supposing him dead, passed on; and he extricated himself from this unpleasant predicament, rejoicing in his happy escape.‡

He died of apoplexy twenty years after Lexington Battle.§

* Vide APPENDIX.

† A British lieutenant, with a negro servant, accompanied the convoy for recreation, and to view the country. Tradition says this officer fell by the gun of Cutter, in whose house he expired the night ensuing. The servant took charge of his corpse and effects.

6. REBECCA,² b. 18 Jan. 1692-3, baptized Sept. 15, 1700, at Cambridge; married Lieut. Joseph Adams, of Menotomy,
 Jan. 18, 1710-11; and died Jan. 12, 1717-18.

Lieut. Adams was the son of Joseph and Margaret (Eames) Adams, and grandson of John and Anne Adams, of Cambridge, who were emigrants from England.* The mother of Lieut. Adams was the daughter of Thomas Eames of Sudbury.† He became a member of Cambridge church, Mar. 16, 1717-18; married Rachel Allen, of Weston, June 26, 1718;‡ and died in Menotomy, Oct. 18, 1774, æ. 86.

William Cutter gave his "son-in-law," Joseph Adams, a legacy of £20; and to his children, "born of Rebeckah (his first wife, deceased)," £30—"to be equally divided and paid to them as they came of age." Her issue were:

* Three sons of Henry Adams, who came from Devonshire to Quincy, came to Concord about 1616. Two removed to Chelmsford in 1654, and became leading men in that town. The other, John, removed to Cambridge,—Shattuck, Hist. Concord, Mass., 361.

John Adams was a "skillful millwright;" and lived at Menotomy on the spot where Dea. John Adams's old house lately stood, near the railway station in Arlington Centre. He settled here as early as 1650. The place was then called Menotomy Row. May 18, 1666, John and Anne Adams became church members at Cambridge. Interesting notice of John Adams and a number of his descendants occurs in the Farmer's Monthly Visitor for April 30, 1847.

Joseph Adams, his son, father of Lieut. Adams, married Margaret Eames, Feb. 21, 1687-8. He died in Cambridge, July 20, 1701, æ. 43. His widow married Lieut. Daniel Dane, or Deane, of Concord, Dec. 27, 1705.

† She was born in Sudbury, July 8, 1666. Her father's dwelling-house, situated several miles from the village, was assaulted by Indians, Feb. 1, 1676, and fired; her mother killed, and she, with the other children, carried into captivity, from which she was redeemed before marriage.—Hubbard, Indian Wars, 153.

7. WILLIAM,³ b. 1697, bapt. at Cambridge, Sept. 15, 1700, joined the church there March 15, 1724–5, and with his wife Anne was at the founding of Menotomy church in 1739.

When and where he married does not appear, and his wife's surname is unknown. She joined the church at Cambridge, Apr. 11, 1725. William was an executor of his father's estate; an heir to a portion of the “homelands” in Cambridge and Charlestown; to a quarter of the remainder of the lands in Cambridge, Charlestown, and Lexington; to a parcel of meadow land his father purchased of his uncle Ephraim Cutter; and to a quarter of the mill estate—the rest being the legacy of his brothers Richard, John, and Samuel.‡ His father's will directs that William should choose land for his “houseplot,” from the estate “lying in the bounds of Charlestown,” and adjoining the “homeplace.” The barns and dwelling house of the father were to descend to the oldest son Richard on the widow's decease. The widow married, and removed to Medford; Richard settled in New Jersey, and William eventually occupied the homestead, where he died Nov. 16, 1756, æ. 59.

His wife was several years his senior. Her epitaph is as follows:

He occupied the homestead of his father and grandfather; pursued the miller's vocation, and owned the mills, which he finally sold to Ammi Cutter, his cousin. He died Apr. 24, 1770, æ. 44. The day preceding his death he made a nuncupative will of his property to his wife. Rev. Samuel Cooke, Ammi Cutter and Hannah Holden, were witnesses; and Jason Russell, Ammi Cutter, and Samuel Cutter (his cousin) appraised his estate, May 15, 1770. He was an executor of his parent's will, and an heir to his estate. He dwelt in the house formerly on the site of the late William Whittemore's residence, on the road to Winchester and Woburn West-side, and within Charlestown limits. Administration on his estate was granted by the proper authorities, Nov. 7, 1737. John Butterfield of Cambridge, "cordwainer," and Ebenezer Cutter, of Charlestown (his cousin and brother-in-law), "husbandman," were bondsmen. Capt. Ephraim Frost, Lieut. Caleb Brooks,* Jonathan Butterfield, Abram Watson, and Seth Reed oversaw the division of the property. The inventory was taken by Deacon Joseph Hartwell, John Butterfield, and Samuel Brooks; and the pecuniary value of the estate amounted to £4186 7s. 10d.

His tombstone is near the centre of Menotomy burial-place.

- vii. SAMUEL,⁴ b. 21 Jan. 1736; married 28 Apr. 1757, Susanna, daughter of Ebenezer and Rachel (Tufts) Francis, of Medford, b. 28 Nov. 1734.

Samuel dwelt in the paternal homestead. When the Revolutionary War commenced he enlisted early in the provincial forces assembling about Boston to besiege the British foe. He was ensign of Capt. Isaac Hall's company, and fought at Bunker Hill Battle, June 17, 1775. This corps, composed of men from Medford, Charlestown, Woburn, Malden, Cambridge and Stoneham, enlisted for eight months service, was attached to Col. Thomas Gardner's regiment, which was commissioned 2d June. After the British landed at Charlestown, preparatory to their first assault of the redoubt, this regiment was stationed in the road leading to Lechnere's Point, East Cambridge; and late in the day was ordered to Charlestown. On arriving at Bunker Hill, Gen. Putnam ordered part of it to assist in throwing up defences commenced at this place. One company (Capt. Harris's, Charlestown) took post at the rail fence. The greater part of the regiment, under the lead of their colonel, on the third attack of the British, advanced towards the redoubt. On the way, while descending Bunker Hill, Col. Gardner received his death-wound from a flying bullet. The Provincials, just driven from their defences, were hard pressed by the British; still Gardner's men, under Major Jackson, pressed forward, and with three companies of Ward's and a part of Gerrish's regiment, poured between Breed's and Bunker Hill, a well-directed fire upon the enemy, and gallantly covered the retreat.

July 6, 1775, a regimental return mentions Samuel Cutter, "Ensign." The company was then stationed in the lines on Prospect Hill. Capt. Hall and the lieutenant, Caleb Brooks, were residents of Medford. Hall resigned charge before the close of the year, Lieut. Brooks was chosen captain, and Ensign Cutter became lieutenant in his stead.†

June 1, 1778, mention occurs in a legal instrument of Samuel Cutter, "Gent."

April 7, 1791, while ascending the eastern slope of Winter Hill, in Somerville, on his way home in a cart with a barrel of tar, an accident to his conveyance threw him headlong from his seat into the road—the heavy tar falling upon him, and he was instantly killed.

His epitaph at Arlington commemorates his end as follows:

9. SARAH,³ baptized Oct. 18, 1702; married Ebenezer Cutter [Vide iii. §4, 4]. She received a legacy of £80 from her father's estate, and died in Medford of "old age," Feb. 4, 1788.
10. AMMI RUHAMAH,³ baptized at Cambridge, May 6, 1705, was a student of Harvard College when his father died; and his parent bequeathed him the houseplot in Cambridge, formerly purchased of "Cousin Champney," and provided suitable maintenance for his education in the "schools of learning" until he received his "second degree in the Colledge." He gave him also a young horse, "fit for riding," when he commenced "Master;" and the memorandum he compiled (Nov. 21, 1725) of the debts and legacies due out of his father's estate accredits him with an inheritance amounting to £460 17s. 2d.

Graduating from college in 1725, he pursued for a while the vocation of land-surveyor. Nov. 26, 1727, he was admitted to full membership in Cambridge church; being styled in the records as "Sir Cutter," a title applied to all graduates during the interval between taking their first and their second or Master's degree.*

* A copy of the "Schola Wintoniensis Phases Latinae," by H. Robinson, D.D. (London, 1673), is a cherished heirloom in the family of the late William Cutter, Esq., of Brewer, Me. On the inside of cover, a printed placard with an embroidered border contains the inscription: "Ammi-Ruhamah Cutter est Verus Possessor hujus Libri, 1721." 1721 is re-inscribed with the pen 1786, when it was probably the property of Dr. A. R. Cutter, of Greene, Me., pupil and nephew of Dr. A. R. Cutter, of Portsmouth, and the sire of William Cutter, of Brewer.

Ammi-Ruhamah Cutter, M.A., 1728, was numbered among the subscribers of Princee's Chronology; thus appearing in a list "comprising the principal Literati of New England who flourished at the beginning of the last century."—N. E. Geneal. Register, vi, 192.

In 1727 the trustees and proprietors of North Yarmouth, Maine, resettled that propriety. The erection of a "convenient house for the public worship of God," and the provision of "a good orthodox minister" claimed early consideration.* Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, as candidate, preached his first sermon, Sunday, Nov. 10, 1729; and became the first settled minister of the town.

Nov. 18, 1730, the organization of the church was effected by the Rev. Mr. Cutter and eight others affixing their signatures to a covenant in the presence of the elders and messengers from the neighboring churches. The church thus organized was the tenth church in Maine, and on the same day and by the same council Rev. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter was ordained.*

The adverse circumstances and protracted difficulties of the infant settlement caused remissness in the payment of its pecuniary indebtedness. Mr. Cutter's troubles from this source are explained in his correspondence with the propriety committee at Boston, whose agent he appears to have been. Mar. 18, 1730-1, in an epistle dated at Boston and addressed to that body, he speaks of the manner his delinquent dues may be obtained. Aug. 16, 1731, he complains of the non-payment of his salary. Mar. 9, 1733-4, in a letter written at North Yarmouth, he says, "The interest of the money I have been kept out of, would have amounted to about £48 at 6 per cent. There are yet behind £167 of my salary and settlement, which was all due in 1731, the whole salary for 1732, and one half the present year's salary—in all, £349. In the mean time I am at the mercy of the usurer, and give excessive interest to support myself in the town." His meeting-house was slow in the process of completion. Raised in 1729, and boarded the same year, little further was done. In this state it had been used as a house of worship through two severe winters, when Mr. Cutter writing to the committee, complaining of them for postponing a contemplated visit, says (June 26, 1733), "The people are much grieved at this delay, especially as the meeting-house will be hereby so retarded that there can't be time to do anything to purpose this fall; and we dread passing another winter in it, as we did the last." †

* The Council consisted of Rev. Messrs. Jefferds, of Wells; Smith, of Falmouth; Thompson, of Scarboro'; and Willard, of Biddeford, with their delegates.—Vide Greenleaf, Eccles. Hist. Maine, 64; Shepley, Hist. Notes, 55, 56.

† Shepley, Hist. Notices of North Yarmouth, 44, 50. This church was demolished about 1833. The weather-vane is planted on the summit of the "Ledge."

In addition to these difficulties his creed became offensive; and in August, 1735, the neighboring clergy in council at North Yarmouth gave decisions which led eventually to his dismissal.* In church-meeting, Nov. 28, 1735, "Post preces ad Deum, a vote was called in writing whether the said church continued uneasy with the Rev. Mr. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, their pastor, or no: voted uneasy. Then voted that the said Mr. Cutter be dismissed from his pastoral relation to said church." Two days previous to this action of the church, the town had voted his dismissal in case his relation to the church should be dissolved; in reference to which proceeding of the town it is recorded: "Peter Weare does protest against the carryings-on of this day." Though removed from the pastorate, Mr. Cutter appears to have continued in the church relation. As was not unusual with his cotemporaries, he "united the clerical with the medical profession;" and after his dismissal he remained in the town about seven years as a physician.†

Before his dismissal he married Dorothy Bradbury, sister of Mr. Moses Bradbury, an early inhabitant of the town, and originally from Newburyport. April 23, 1738, she made public profession of her faith in the church of North Yarmouth.

Sixty members were admitted to the church during Mr. Cutter's ministry—thirty-three by public profession.‡ While at North Yarmouth he took a prominent part in all public transactions. His graceful chirography was highly appreciated, and frequently employed in writing deeds and other instruments. In 1741 he was the town's agent in the General Court of Massachusetts.§ In 1742 he was appointed superintendent of a trading house for the Indians. Three

"He continued Pastor of the Church for the space of five years. Some dissatisfaction then arising, Mr. Cutter was dismissed in an orderly manner, with the advice of a Council."—Greenleaf, Eccles. Hist. 64.

An erroneous notice of Rev. Ammi R. Cutter appears in Williamson's Hist. Maine, ii. 109. † Shepley, Hist. Notes, 54, 57.

Nov. 17, 1736, Rev. Nicholas Loring, his successor, was ordained. Tradition represents Mr. Cutter as imposing in physique, commanding in bearing, having a piercing dark eye. Mr. Loring was small in stature, and rather timid. When Mr. Cutter attended Mr. Loring's service, it is said he would enter church enveloped in a long cloak—stalk up the centre aisle—halt after the military fashion—fix his eye on his successor in the pulpit—give him a very severe glance—and then quietly sit down in a neighboring pew.—Capt. Cushing Prince.

of these stations had been established in Maine, as stipulated in a treaty of government with the natives. That superintended by Mr. Cutter was on the Saco river about nine miles from its mouth. The keepers, called "truck-masters,"* were chosen annually, "special regard being paid in the selection to men of the greatest probity, patience and discretion, whose characters and manners were likewise acceptable to the natives." The salary was £120, and the situation was sought by men of "distinguished reputation and influence." The "truck house" on the Saco, situated first at Winter Harbor, was relinquished in 1759.† "The Savages on the east of Saco River," says Sullivan,‡ "could not understand the language of those further west within New England." None of the words in their dialect "are found in Elliot's Bible." In order "to conduct his business with the Indians," which were altogether of the "Pickwicket and Ossipee tribes," Mr. Cutter "composed a Vocabulary, which yet remains."§

He was captain of a company in Sir William Pepperell's expedition for the reduction of Louisburg. His command was attached to Col. Jeremiah Moulton's regiment from York County.¶ March 24, 1745, the American fleet left Boston, and on April 4th reached Canso. A military depot was established, and a block house with eight cannon erected. On April 14th, Capt. Cutter with two companies was detailed to "keep possession."¶ April 29th, the whole fleet sailed from Canso for Cape Breton. June 16, 1745, Louisburg capitulated. The success of this New England expedition sent a shout of joy throughout the whole British Empire.

After the capture some of the troops were persuaded by an increase of wages to abide at Louisburg, others were detained by reason of the dysentery, and some returned home sick. The winter following the surrender Capt. Cutter was detailed to remain as surgeon and chief commandant of the fortress.†† He died at Louisburg in March, 1746, a victim probably to the general contagion.‡‡

August 8, 1746, Capt. Benjamin Morgridge, of Kittery, arrived at North Yarmouth, having in charge the papers and effects of Capt. Cutter, the news of whose death had before reached his friends. The "ministerial house," where his family resided, was built at the "committee's charge." The house lot reserved for the "first settled minister of five years continuance," Mr. Cutter had retained.* Mrs. Cutter possessed much of her husband's activity and enterprise, and so exalted a character that her memory is held in the highest veneration by her descendants to the present time. She died in North Yarmouth, June 17, 1776, aged 68 years. The eldest of her issue—"a person of rare ability, comprehensive views and extensive literary acquirements; of winning address, combined with dignity; who had the respect and love of a large community to an unusual degree"—was that physician of distinguished professional reputation—Dr. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, of Portsmouth.

- i. AMMI RUHAMAH,⁴ born at North Yarmouth Mar. 15, 1735; was sent in 1747 to be educated under the care of a clergyman at Cambridge, about one hundred and fifty miles distant. Much of the road lay through a thick wilderness. The difficult and perilous journey was performed by the youth on horseback, attended by a servant; and more than seventy years afterward his grandchildren often heard the venerable old man recite the "hair-breadth 'scapes" of the ride.

He entered Harvard College after a year's preparatory discipline in Cambridge, and graduated with honor in 1752. Among his fellow students were some young gentlemen from Portsmouth, one of whom was John Wentworth, afterwards governor of the Province of New Hampshire. "With these, particularly with Mr. Wentworth, he formed habits of close intimacy, and was prevailed upon by them to select that town as the place to pursue his professional studies." The letters to Dr. Cutter from his young friends "indicate that the qualities of his mind and heart, which in after life rendered him so justly beloved and esteemed, were then fully developed."

He studied medicine under the tuition of Dr. Clement Jackson, of Portsmouth, and being admitted to practice was forthwith "appointed surgeon of a body of rangers under the celebrated Robert Rogers, which formed a part the usual nervous or slow fever. We have tidings daily of our people dying at Cape Breton, and of many coming home and dying after arrival."

1746, Jan. 22. "We hear that the sickness at Louisburg increases much; and that Capt. Cutter is dead."—Smith's Journal, 121, 122.

* Sullivan's Maine, 188, 189; Shepley, Hist. Notes, 48, 57. The dwelling stood about twenty yards east of the church "Under the Ledge." No trace of the foundation remains. During the Indian wars it was garrisoned. Near by is the family burial place. In 1852, Capt. A. Greely Cutter, of New Gloucester, reentered the remains in a common grave; surrounded it with an iron fence; and erected a handsome marble obelisk within the enclosure. The original inscriptions were transferred to the monument, beneath which the stones were deposited. The silver coffin plates, found in perfect preservation, were consigned to the common grave.

of the army on the frontiers in the war with the Indians in 1755.* In 1756 an expedition was set on foot by Gen. Shirley against the French at Crown Point. The New Hampshire regiment raised for this expedition was commanded by Col. Nathaniel Meserve, of Portsmouth. Meserve joined the army with his regiment, and was put in charge of Fort Edward. Soon Shirley was superseded by the dilatory Earl Loudoun, and the army was suffered to remain inactive, being employed only in "erecting fortification and constructing batteaux." Dr. Cutter at this period was stationed at Fort Edward.

"Sept.—Visited Dea. Emery's negro (with Master Jackson) with 2 balls shot through his thigh. 19.—Visited by myself: extracted 9 pieces of bone. [This was probably his first patient.]"—A. R. Cutter's Almanac.

"N. Yarmouth, June 3, 1754.—I rejoice to hear of your prosperity, which I hope will always attend you if you are in a way of your duty. As you are setting out in the world I hope you will not be unmindful of the duty you owe to God for the many favors he has bestowed upon you. I should be glad to see you but I am something afraid of the Indians, for we expect they will do mischief."—Letter of Mrs. Dorothy Cutter.

Henry, and my own from Fort Edward, proceeded to Albany, and thence to New York, where Shepherd's new company from New Hampshire joined us. Here we embarked on board a Transport, and left Sandy Hook June 10, with a fleet of 100 sail, bound to Halifax, where we soon arrived, and encamped on the Dartmouth side of the harbour, while the army lay on the Halifax side. July 3, I went to Lawrence-town; thence to Schitzcook, where some of our men were employed to make hay in the meadows, for the use of the horses in the Louisburg Expedition; others covered the haymakers, and others went upon scouts, one of which brought in two deserters of the 45th Regiment. In the latter part of July, 40 Rangers were sent across the Isthmus of Nova Scotia to the settlements on the bay of Fundy, and a party down the North West arm to scour the woods for deserters, which brought in several both of the army and navy.”—*Capt. the English ministry and the colonial governors, was limited to the defence of the frontiers and the capture of Louisburg. Preparations for the latter expedition had been rapidly pushed in England; and seven regiments of infantry and a detachment of artillery commanded by Major General Hopson, were assembled at Cork to await the arrival of a powerful fleet of fourteen line-of-battle ships, which were to bear them to America. This armament, under Admiral Holborne, was to proceed on its voyage, and on reaching Halifax was to be joined by Lord Loudoun with all the forces he could collect. In June Lord Loudoun left New York, with six thousand men, in the fleet of Sir Charles Hardy, consisting of four ships of war and seventy transports; ten days after he reached Halifax; early in July the whole armament was assembled; and nineteen ships of the line and frigates, with innumerable smaller vessels, and an army of thirteen battalions comprising ten thousand men, were mustered at the disposal of the British leaders. But the pusillanimous Loudoun, 'whom a child might outwit or terrify with a popgun,' instead of pushing forward immediately to the attack, wasted his time in 'making sham fights and planting cabbages,' until the French fleet had been reënforced by a number of ships of the line, when, deeming it useless to proceed, he abandoned the expedition and returned to New York."—Barry, Hist. The journal ends with the approach of the smallpox. Dr. C. caught the infection from his patients, and narrowly escaped falling a victim to its virulence. The direful contagion "committed greater ravages among the Americans than the arms of the enemy, and carried off, among others, the commander of the New Hampshire troops, the friend and patron of Cutter."

"Towards the last of May, Amherst, after a long passage, reached Halifax. Twenty-two ships of the line and fifteen frigates, with one hundred and twenty smaller vessels, composed the fleet under Boscawen; and fourteen battalions of infantry and engineers, in all twelve thousand men, formed

* Colonel Nathaniel Meserve, or Messervé, died of the smallpox at Louisburg, together with his son and many others. He had under his command a body of 108 carpenters when he embarked, but all, save sixteen, were taken with the above disorder, and the well were obliged to attend the sick. Col. Messervé was a gentleman of a fine mechanical genius. Being a shipwright by profession, he attained to eminence in his business, and acquired a handsome fortune. His moral and social character was unblemished, and, in the military line, he was highly respected. The Earl of Loudoun had such a sense of his merit that he made him the present of a piece of plate, with an inscription, acknowledging "his capacity, fidelity, and ready disposition in the service of his country."—Belknap's Hist. N. Hampshire, ii. 391; N. E. General Register, xxlii. 201-203.

the army of Amherst. Wolfe, who, while a lad, had fought at Dettingen and Fontenoy, and who had won laurels at Laffeldt when just of age, painted for fresh honors on the new scene of action; and Cook, afterwards celebrated as the circumnavigator of the globe, served in this expedition. In five days the armament arrived off Cape Breton. Wind and fog delayed the landing for six days more. Four days later the French withdrew from their outposts, and the lighthouse battery was surprised. At the end of six weeks Louisburg was in ruins, and the fortress surrendered. More than five thousand prisoners were taken; eleven ships of war were seized or destroyed; two hundred and forty pieces of ordnance, fifteen thousand stand of arms, and a vast amount of ammunition, provisions and military stores fell into the hands of the victors; and eleven stand of colors were laid at the feet of George II., and afterwards deposited with great solemnity in the Cathedral of St. Paul's. A few hovels mark the site of the Dunkirk of America."—Barry, Hist. Mass., ii. 229, 230.

"We have often heard Dr. Cutter speak of the events of this interesting expedition, in which the military resources, courage and talents of New England were a second time successfully displayed to the world. He delighted to speak of General Wolfe, the second in command, whom he personally knew, and whose easy and engaging manners and chivalrous character rendered him no less the idol of the army than his subsequent services justly made him the favorite of his country. Dr. Cutter used to say that the death of Wolfe was a fortunate event for the Americans: an opinion which the remarkable incapacity of the British generals during the war of our revolution seems to justify."—CHARLES WILLIAM CUTTER, Esq., in Thatcher's Medical Biography.

After recovering from the smallpox, Dr. Cutter returned safely to Portsmouth. November 2, 1758, he married Hannah Treadwell, who was born in Portsmouth, August 24, 1734.† She was the daughter of Charles and Mary (Kelly) Treadwell. Her father came to Portsmouth from Ipswich, Mass., in 1724. Her mother was of English parentage, and a woman of uncommon decision of character, and who, it is said, from a small beginning succeeded in acquiring property sufficient to erect three of the largest mansions in Portsmouth, all which are still conspicuous objects of interest to the lover of the olden time. Mrs. Cutter enjoyed the best advantages in the completion of her education the times afforded, and when a young lady was sent from home to attend for the space of a year the exercises of a boarding school in Boston. She was a member of the Congregational Church in Portsmouth during most of her life, and a most excellent wife and mother. She died January 20, 1832, at the age of ninety-seven.

After his marriage Dr. Cutter "immediately entered upon the sober duties of life. As he united great courteousness and suavity of manners to unwearied diligence and unwavering integrity, he soon obtained a very extensive range of practice. In 1759 Major Rogers urged him to resume his station in the service in another expedition of the Rangers to the frontiers and into Canada, but his professional engagements and the sweets of domestic life counterbalanced his inclination.* From this period until the commencement of the Revolution, it does not appear that there were any events in Dr. Cutter's life worthy of being made public; the cares of an increasing family and the duties of a responsible and laborious profession were enough to fully occupy his attention. The breaking forth of the Revolution presented the great question to his mind under circumstances of more than common embarrassment. Sir John Wentworth, Governor of the Province, had been the friend of his youth, and their mutual friendship had ripened with their years. He was an amiable and accomplished gentleman, and an efficient, liberal, and public-spirited magistrate, and he had projected schemes for advancing the prosperity of the Province which were already in the course of successful completion. In joining the whigs, therefore, against the Governor, which Dr. Cutter did early and decidedly, he had to make a sacrifice of private feeling upon the altar of patriotism, which fell not to the lot of all. The Governor had previously procured for him a commission as mandamus counsellor, which, foreseeing the embarrassments which were coming, he very wisely declined accepting.† Their friendly intercourse, however, was not interrupted by difference of political opinions; for after the Governor had been compelled to take refuge on board the ship of war near the fort, he sent a pressing request to Dr. Cutter to give him another meeting. It was their last interview, as the Governor soon after left the harbor never again to return, and Dr. Cutter was probably the last

Physician General of the Eastern Department, American Revolution.

[From the only likeness extant.]

New-Hampshire gentleman he had an opportunity of seeing within the limits of the republic. Forty years afterward, when a gentleman from Portsmouth happened to see Sir John at Halifax, Nova Scotia, when he was Governor of that Province, the first question he asked, after the usual salutation, was as to the welfare of his early friend.*

“In the beginning of the year 1777, Congress resolved to re-organize the medical department, and Dr. Cutter was called upon to give his time and services to his country in her hour of need. He had then a family of ten young children, and an extensive and lucrative range of practice; but in those days no man felt at liberty to choose between the service of his country and his own convenience. The post offered to Dr. Cutter was that of Physician General of the eastern department, and his station was to be at Fishkill on the North River. The following extract of a letter from General Whipple, who signed the Declaration of Independence, and who was then a member of the Congress, will show the nature of this appointment, and serves to exhibit the high estimation in which Dr. Cutter was held. It is dated at Philadelphia, April 15, 1777. ‘The army now forming will, I hope, under Heaven, free America from the calamities of a destructive war. The scenes of horror and distress occasioned by some mismanagement in the medical department last year, were really shocking to humanity. Congress, being sensible of this, and determined to remedy the evil if possible, have formed a plan on the most liberal principles, with a design if possible to draw into the service of their country, gentlemen of the first eminence from different parts of the continent, many of whom have already engaged. Your humanity, and firm attachment to the most glorious cause that ever mankind was engaged in, will, I flatter myself, induce you to forego the pleasures of domestic happiness for a time, as you will thereby render a most essential service to your country. I hope, therefore, soon to have the pleasure of hearing of your acceptance of the trust, and of your arrival at the hospital, which for the department in which you are placed will be at some convenient place on the eastern side of the Hudson River.’

“Dr. Cutter remained at Fishkill and its neighborhood during the greater part of this year, and did not return home until the beginning of the next, when the circumstances of his family compelled him to resign his office, and he returned once more to the business of his profession and the task, to him a delightful one, of educating his children. He was, in the New-England phrase, eminently a domestic man; he sought no higher enjoyments than he could find at his own parlor fireside; that was the scene of his pleasures and the centre of his hopes, and his absence from it during the past year had been rendered doubly distressing by the death of his oldest son, then a promising youth at college.

“Dr. Cutter had no taste and no time for political life; and it is believed he held no other civil office than a seat in the Convention which framed the Constitution of the State of New Hampshire. His opinions, however, on political questions were not wavering; he was a whig before the Revolution, as we have before stated, and when our own governments were established he attached himself from the beginning to that party which formed and car-

* With Gov. Wentworth Dr. Cutter founded the town of Wolfboro' on the shores of Lake Winnepiscogee. He had a grant of 1128 acres of land, and his name appears in the town charter. Gov. Wentworth, on his journeys to his residence there, was usually accompanied by his “friend and physician Cutter.”—Mass. Hist. Coll., 2 Series, iii. 119; Rambles about Portsmouth, &c. Vide APPENDIX.

ried into operation the Constitution of the United States, and he adhered to it so long as it remained a distinct party.

"About the year 1794 he admitted his third son William, a scion worthy of the parent stock, into partnership in his practice; and gradually withdrawing himself from the laborious duties of his profession, as the infirmities of age came upon him, he finally resigned the whole into his hands. As a physician Dr. Cutter was intelligent, kind, and attentive; he remained in active practice more than fifty years, and no one ever possessed in a greater degree the affection and entire confidence of his patients. His scientific attainments were greater than those of most physicians of the time in which he was educated; his literary acquisitions were very respectable, and his fondness for literary pursuits continued to afford employment and gratification until the very close of his protracted life. He was one of the original members, and for a long time President of the New Hampshire Medical Society, and, without derogating from the merit of others, it may be said that for many years he was at the head of the profession in this State. He received the honorary degree of M.D. from Harvard College, and was chosen an honorary member of the Massachusetts Medical and Humane Societies.*

"He was about the middle height; his manners were dignified, yet courteous, and his countenance was strongly marked with the moral energy, intelligence, and benevolence, which formed the leading traits of his character. He united to a naturally fine temper, great vivacity and a social disposition. His colloquial powers were remarkable; he had a tenacious memory, and the diversified scenes of his long life he used to relate with a felicity of language and happiness of allusion, interspersed with frequent flashes of native humor, that made him an instructive and delightful companion.

"Dr. Cutter's distinguishing intellectual powers were, quickness of perception, a retentive memory, an understanding which rarely erred in its decisions, and a will whose energy seldom failed of accomplishing its determinations. His prominent moral qualities were an unbending integrity, a lofty sense of honor, and a benevolence which came from the heart, and which reached the hearts of all around him. This 'good man,' as he was emphatically called by the reverend clergyman who preached his funeral sermon, died suddenly on the eighth of December, A.D. 1820, aged 85 years, in the midst of his family, breathing out his pure and kind spirit in a short ejaculatory prayer to the Being who created it, and who now received it willing to depart; before the frosts of age had palsied his intellect, or lessened in the slightest degree the warm affections of his heart. The influence of his character, and the remembrance of his kindness and his virtues, yet remain, and will not soon perish amid that community, of which he was so long an active and valued member."†

- ii. WILLIAM,⁴ born at North Yarmouth in 1737; married Mehitable Gray. She was the daughter of Andrew and Zeruah

* At an advanced period Dr. Cutter publicly professed his faith in the gospel, and united with the church, in which he continued an earnest member to the end of his life. He never neglected an application for his services on account of the poverty of an applicant; in such cases both attendance and medicine were freely given. In his day the physician carried his medicine to his patients. All was free as the air of heaven.

† He spread his kind protecting arms to every child of grief,
His secret bounty largely flowed and gave unasked relief."

† Thatcher's Medical Biography.

(Standish) Gray, of North Yarmouth, and her mother is reputed a lineal descendant of Capt. Myles Standish, the brave chief-tain and defender of the Plymouth pilgrims. Oct. 5, 1766, William Cutter and his wife were admitted members of the church. He was a farmer and occupied his father's mansion. He was a captain of the militia, a selectman of the town, the fourth incumbent of the office of treasurer, and an excellent citizen.*

From his correspondence with his honored brother, Dr. Cutter, of Portsmouth, he appears to have had charge of the settlement of his father's estate.† In a letter to his brother, dated at North Yarmouth, July 30, 1772, he describes his providential escape from a perilous accident, as follows :

"I thankfully embrace this opportunity which God gives of letting you know His great goodness to me last Wednesday. While in my barn with four of my children, there came a remarkable gust of wind, blowing it down upon us in a moment. Two children with myself were crushed down in a manner that none could think of any of us coming out alive. Nor would we have lived a moment had not that Almighty power which sent the wind preserved us."

That his brother was a convenient agent in transacting the town's business, is evident from the following extract from a letter dated at North Yarmouth, Oct. 18, 1774: "I want two barrels of powder for the town stock. Send them to me if you have opportunity, and I will send you the cash for them."

On April 24, 1775, having received news of Lexington Battle, under the inspiration of the moment he writes: "The greatest alarm in America affects us much in this remote district. This day we have sent Capt. John Drinkwater to procure if possible a quantity of corn. If you can lend him any assistance by saying or writing anything in the town's favor, you'll oblige the town."

Tradition affords the following particulars. On the day of his death, accompanied by his sons John and Ammi, then lads, he proceeded to fell certain trees on his estate, at some distance from his dwelling, on land now owned by a Mr. Russell. While cutting down one tree, it unexpectedly fell and crushed him to the ground. After ineffectually attempting his liberation, he directed the boys to run for assistance. He was borne home a corpse.

His gravestone in Lexington old burying-ground is the only Cutter memorial found there. It exhibits evidence of transplantation from the original site, and stands not far from the entrance of the yard. The inscription reads—

His estate was administered by Rachel, his widow, administratrix; his son John Cutter, "Glazier," and Samuel Winship, "Gent.," being bondsmen. His inventory amounted to £308.‡

Rachel, wife of John Cutter, became a church member at Woburn, Nov. 19, 1756. She afterwards married Barnabas Davis, from Littleton, Mass., and removed with her husband to New Ipswich, N. H., to dwell with her eldest son. Davis was taxed £5 3s. 6d. in the minister's rate of New Ipswich for 1763. After her son's death in 1771, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, and Rachel Cutter, her daughter, resided Daniel Tidd was appointed the guardian of his son Jonathan, "in 20th year of age," Feb. 15, 1747-8. Jonathan Lawrence appointed the guardian of Nathan, "son of John, late of Lexington, over 14 years of age," Jan. 28, 1748-9.

some time in the family of Joseph Cutter, her grandson, afterwards of Jaffrey, N. H. She died at the residence of her son Benjamin Cutter, of Temple, near the close of the last century.*

John and Rachel (Powers) Cutter had issue:

- i. RACHEL,⁴ b. at Woburn, 9 May, 1724, bapt. in Lexington, July 19, the day her mother owned the covenant in Lexington church; removed to New Hampshire with her parents, and d. at Temple, N. H., in 1799. She possessed a "kindly disposition," and was "very pious." She was unmarried.†
- ii. JOHN,⁴ b. at Woburn, 9 Jan. 1726-7; m. Nov. 16, 1749, Susanna, daughter of Joseph and Lydia (Brown) Hastings, of Waltham, b. May 26, 1731. Her father, by trade a housewright, was selectman of the town in 1748. John Cutter, Jr., was a glazier. He appears to have resided at Waltham for a season; and at Lexington, where two children were born unto him. From thence he removed to Shrewsbury, Mass., about 1753, and lived there several years. He then located in New Ipswich, N. H., settling about 1767, on "lot 32," a tract of land situated "North of the old Burial-Ground, and east of the Mountains."

In 1770, John Cutter and his wife Susanna joined the church at New Ipswich by a public profession of their faith. He pursued the occupation of a farmer at New Ipswich, where his dwelling is still standing. His services as a glazier were in demand in all the country round about, and he was frequently long absent from home on his professional tours to more distant towns.

He was interred in the old grave-yard at New Ipswich. His gravestone is slate, two and a half feet in height, and faces the North. It is found on the east side of the yard about two rods from the wall next the road. Near the top is a human face with wings, below which are the words "memento mori," under which is inscribed the epitaph:

His widow became the second consort of Simeon Gould, of New Ipswich, and died in Jaffrey, N. H., Aug. 5, 1827, aged ninety-six years.‡

iii. JONATHAN,⁴ b. at Woburn, 2 Mar. 1728–9; m. Sept. 12, 1751, Elizabeth Hastings, of Watertown, b. Oct. 10, 1734, and sister of Susanna the wife of his brother John. Sept. 6, 1752, Jonathan and wife owned the covenant in Lexington church. He died in Lexington, January, 1755. His brother David Cutter, “cordwainer,” was appointed administrator of his estate, Jan. 13, 1755, and rendered his account to the usual authorities Jan. 10, 1757. His wife died early in life. Their issue:

i. JONATHAN, bapt. Lexington, 22 Oct. 1752; d. soon.—ii. BETSEY, m. James Philbrook, of Rindge, N. H.†

iv. DAVID,⁴ b. at Woburn, 4 Dec. 1730; m. Mary Dix, of Boston, published Mar. 5, 1755. Jan. 27, 1760, his wife became a church member at Woburn. Sept. 10, 1760, she was appointed administratrix of his estate. Their issue:

several inhabitants of Lexington, where Nathan probably at that period resided.*

He was a "housewright" by trade. He married wife Hannah, and removed to New Ipswich, N. H., where his name appeared in the minister's rate for 1763, the first tax levied in that town. This assessment was "on silver at £2 5s. per dollar, as they were set or valued in the Massachusetts Provinces, in the currency of the said Province," and his portion amounted to £5 16s. 3d.

He settled on "lot 28," adjoining the farm of his brother John; and afterward removed to the place known as "Cutter's Lane," where he dwelt until his death.† It is probable he disposed of the former location to his brother previous to the change, and that this estate was occupied by John's son, Joseph Cutter, before the latter's departure for Jaffrey.

Nathan's grave at New Ipswich is situated about three rods west of his brother John's, and is marked with a similar stone inscribed—

In addition to agriculture he pursued the trade of a carpenter. He was a soldier in the war of the Revolution. In 1775 and 1776 he was a member of Capt. Ezra Towne's company from New Ipswich, which served in Col. Reed's regiment at Bunker Hill, and throughout the siege of Boston. He was one of "Eleven men sent to Crown Point in ye year 1776," to serve five months in "Capt. J. Parker's Company, and Col. J. Wyman's Reg't." In 1777 he took an active part in the erection of a new meeting-house. He was a selectman of Temple in 1783. He was surveyor of lumber thirteen different years; first in 1781, last in 1807. In 1787 he was paid £1 5s. 6d. for "warning out" of Temple twenty-two persons, a duty devolving upon his office of town constable. He bore the title of Ensign, and was highly respected for his public spirit. He died in Temple, March 16, 1821.*

The ensuing lines are from his grave-stone :

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time,
When what we now deplore

§1.

DESCENDANTS OF DEACON WILLIAM CUTTER.*

DEACON WILLIAM and MARY (Kent) CUTTER had issue :

1. STEPHEN,⁵ b. 10 Feb. 1745; m. Tabitha Randolph, daughter of Samuel F. Randolph, and married by Dr. Azel Roe, pastor First Church, Woodbridge.

He was a good man; read his Bible every day, and on Sundays spent all his time reading it, but never quoted it in ordinary conversation. It was too sacred, as he said, for outside use. All men spoke well of him but one, just enough to save him from the curse pronounced against those of whom all men speak well. He died in Woodbridge, June 21, 1823 aged 78. Tabitha, his wife, died Nov. 26, 1841, aged 89.

In the Revolutionary war a party of British from Staten Island came up the creek in the night, and once made Mr. Cutter a prisoner. He narrowly escaped being thrown overboard in the middle of the Sound, between the main land and the island, for refusing to row. The enemy found Mrs. Cutter an obstinate rebel. Some soldiers entered her house and shamefully abused her. They damaged her furniture and created disorder, and finally taking her dinner-pot off the fire, strewed the contents over the floor. This she never forgave. She allowed no one afterwards to speak in favor of the English in her presence, without giving her sentiments and relating her experience with Englishmen, and with soldiers in particular.

Mr. Cutter resides respected in New York. He is a successful mechanic, a "ship-finisher" by trade. He commenced business in 1831, and retired over ten years since. He finished a majority of the packet ships till steam took their place; also the Collins line of steamers, and many others. The firm of Youngs & Cutter is extensively known.

Mrs. Mary Sanford Cutter was a person of exemplary life and character. In childhood she was a model of correct deportment and high moral principle. She early evinced her first and only choice to obey the precepts of her heavenly Master. An only daughter, in a home of love and affluence, surrounded by everything inviting to the eye and charming to the sense, she acknowledged God in all her ways; and renouncing the vain pleasures of earth, endeavored to promote the revival of His work and lead the impenitent to Christ. She was conscientious, unselfish, pure-minded, generous and efficient; a beneficent friend to the poor and friendless. The devoted wife and mother, the active Christian laborer in the midst of the great city, she neglected no home duties, but often wended her way silently amid the abodes of want, by the couch of the sick and the dying, and ministered with her own hands to their necessities. For ten years she was a truly beloved and valuable member of the Board of the American Female Guardian Society of New York. In the noonday of life and usefulness, in the midst of a rising family—needing the guidance and watch-care of a mother's loving eye—her Heavenly Father called her to a higher service. To the A. F. G. Society, to the church of which she was a member, and especially to her bereaved family, her loss is irreparable. A comprehensive sketch of her life from the pen of her teacher and intimate friend, was published in the Advocate and Guardian, New York, June 15, 1853.

"There was a symmetry of proportion in the elementary principles of his nature peculiarly marked. Every natural affection had its full development; the law of kindness was written in his heart, and shone in the daily beauty of his life. It was light and warmth, a felt reality. Hence in the fondest relations of life—a husband, father, brother, friend, he was truly lovely and greatly beloved. His mind was well balanced. His understanding was clear; his judgment mature, and his will the bias of a conscientiousness that profoundly pervaded his whole character. But the crown of all was his piety. He had 'the mind which was in Christ.' His purity of motive, devout, meek and quiet spirit, patience, resignation, devotedness; and above all that which underlies the whole superstructure of hope and holiness, his humility, bore the deep impress of the Master—this divine impress was powerfully imaged forth and acknowledged by all who knew him, from the early age of nine, at which he gave decided evidence of piety, until the very latest moment of his life. Though noiseless, his influence was not the less powerful; it was the power of goodness. His illness, though sudden and severe and short, exhibited the triumph of Christian faith. His death was like the quiet beauty of his life—calm, peaceful, trustful, and joyful. 'Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.'"^{*} His issue:

RICHARD and ELIZABETH (Ford) CUTTER had issue:

- 1. EBENEZER,^s m. Katy McGlochlin. Their daughter—
 - i. LOUISA,^g m. ——— Moffat, and resides somewhere on the North River.
- 2. FORD,^s born about 1757; m. Elizabeth Smith, of Pennsylvania, and died near 1817. Ford Cutter was a farmer in Woodbridge. He was in the battle of Monmouth, and so injured his health on that terribly hot day that he never fully recovered from it.

In the Revolutionary War the British often made raids from Amboy up through Woodbridge, to supply their wants. At one time they herded a large number of cattle in the square around the Strawberry-Hill Schoolhouse. A yoke of oxen belonging to Ford Cutter was among the captives. Mr. C. was reluctant to lose them. Being old acquaintance he knew they would readily follow his footsteps, should he make his appearance. At night, when all was quiet, he stealthily entered the enclosure and found his steers, who willingly followed him, and the rest followed them until they were out of the reach of the soldiers.

In 1797, Ford Cutter, then of Elizabeth Town, N. J., in connection with Col. Ward, of Newark, ran a line of stages from Elizabeth Town to New Brunswick, being a link in the great passenger line from New York to Philadelphia. His issue :

- i. SMITH,⁶ b. 9 Feb. 1781; m. (1st) Nancy Gantley, Feb. 2, 1802—she d. with cholera in 1832; (2d) April 9, 1833, Maria Grenzaback—she died in 1854.

Dr. Smith Cutter, now of Red Bank, N. J., commenced practising medicine in the city of New York, in 1803. He had the yellow fever in 1805. He was employed as surgeon for the government during the war of 1812, and part of the time was located on Bedloe's Island. One day having business to transact in the city, he took a boat with some soldiers to row him ashore. The soldiers were to remain at the Battery until the doctor returned, which occurred towards night and as darkness approached. During the doctor's absence, the soldiers strayed away from the boat and imbibed freely of intoxicating liquor. This the doctor did not discover until his crew had pushed off into the stream. They were unmanageable, and very soon with the strong current and rough weather the boat was capsized. All the soldiers but one were drowned, and that one would have been had not the doctor, being a good swimmer, managed to lash the soldier to the side of the boat, and then fastened himself to the other side. They floated all that night, not being able to make any body hear them. In the morning they were down to Sandy Hook, and no vessel appearing to rescue them, they floated on until towards the night of that day they brought up on Fire Island, where they were kindly cared for. The next day they returned to the city, to everybody's surprise.

In 1822 the yellow fever prevailed again in New York. Hon. Stephen Allen was Mayor, and could get no one to go into the infected districts but Dr. Cutter. Dr. Cutter says that at that distressing period he could stand in Wall Street, in the day time, look up Nassau, down Broad and Wall Street, and not see a person moving. He was health officer part of the time from 1820 to 1830. In 1832 he had the first case of cholera. It was on board a sloop from Albany. At first he was doubtful what it was, but when he pronounced it cholera, the people near his apothecary shop, at 189 Greenwich Street, were much incensed at him for so deciding it. Dr. Cutter has had the yellow fever three times, and is now living in his ninetieth year, enjoying a green old age. His issue :

DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH CUTTER.*

JOSEPH and ANN (Campyon) CUTTER had issue :

1. CAMPYON,⁵ b. in Woodbridge in 1752 ; m. Frances Moores in 1782. She was the daughter of Daniel Moores, of Woodbridge, whose name is often mentioned in the old town records as filling places of trust, and who was also an elder in the church, the leader of the singing, and altogether a very prominent man.

Campyon Cutter inherited his mother's good health and active, cheerful temperament, industry and thrift. For fifty years he was a devoted and faithful elder and trustee in the Presbyterian church. Although he lived three miles distant, he was never absent from church, except when sickness confined him to his bed, which did not often occur. The prayer meeting he always attended. Night and morning prayers held the first place in his household. Every member of the family was expected to be present. His wife was an excellent manager, and remarkably so when the large family she reared is considered, with all the company she entertained, added to the fact that all the clothing was raised, wove and made up on the premises, and the support of a colored family—for in those days slavery was tolerated, and at one time her husband owned seven or eight negroes—whose help was required to do all the work before machinery was invented.

In its fall Mr. P. was caught between it and the deck below, an accident which paralyzed his whole body, and from which he never entirely recovered. He died in New York, Sept. 13, 1864, æ. 81. “For twenty-five years laid aside from active duty, he bore his affliction with Christian fortitude and resignation, looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ.”

delight in battle scenes. 'I don't want to go,' he said, 'but somebody must go, and I have no family dependent upon me—count me in when wanted.' He was wanted. He made his last will, and went; and was brought back from the hospital at Newbern, where he had died, to rest amid the quiet home-scenery he had loved so well."—Rev. E. H. v. LEONARD,⁶ b. 11 March, 1791; d. in Havana, Cuba, April 2, 1824. He was for some years a merchant in Boston, but before long made one of those changes so common in American life, by which the fortunes of not only the actor but often of relatives are also affected. At that time the rich bottom lands of the lower Mississippi were attracting attention, and settlers from different parts of the Union were going thither, expecting soon to realize great wealth from the cultivation of cotton and sugar. Mr. Cutter suddenly determined to join this movement, and become a planter. In a letter, dated April, 1822, he writes:

"I left Philadelphia in September last, and proceeded on to Virginia, where I bought thirty-five slaves, with whom I travelled through to Claiborne County, State of Mississippi, where I arrived early in February. I was between two and three months on the journey in the winter season, and a very severe winter too; during which time I slept in a house only two nights. I travelled on foot for more than twelve hundred miles, and at night lay down in the woods, sometimes in heavy rains which extinguished our fires. My food was fat pork and corn bread, which I sometimes found difficult to procure for so large a family, in which case I fasted myself and fed my negroes. The winter was unusually wet. Puddles of water assumed the magnitude of lakes, and the most contemptible creeks became rivers that swept away bridges and caused me much trouble. I swam streams myself of considerable magnitude, and waded through swamps inundated to the depth of several feet, and covered with ice—in some instances more than an inch thick. My negroes were healthy, and I have not yet experienced any inconvenience from my exposure and hardships, which is more than I ought to have expected.

"It may seem strange to you that I have become an owner of slaves. I offer nothing in justification of the principle of slavery. They are necessary in my present business. I feed and clothe them abundantly, and in fact take better care of them than I have been accustomed to take of myself. They are very fond of me, and nothing would make them so unhappy as to change masters. I have rented lands for this year, having arrived too late to purchase; and if the season proves favorable I think I shall make one hundred bales of cotton."

Soon after he bought a large tract of heavily-wooded land on one of the bayous in Louisiana, and enthusiastically entered upon his new enterprise. But the climate and hardships of a first settler proved too great for him. From unwonted exposure he took severe colds, and had yellow fever, from the effects of which he never recovered; and at the early age of thirty-three died in Havana, whither he had gone for the benefit of his health. Another member of the family went out to settle his affairs, and was so well pleased with the fertility of the soil, and the advantages a planter's life appeared to have over farming in New England, that he became his successor, and thus one branch of the family was established in that distant State.

6. SETH,^s b. at Menotomy, 14 April, 1758; m. Abiah Tallant. "Seth Cutter of Nottingham west," now Hudson, N. H., and "Abiah Tallant of Pelham," were "lawfully published in Pelham in order to marriage," Sept. 11, 1781.

Mrs. Cutter was the daughter of Hugh and Mary (Dodge) Tallant, and was born June 10, 1758, in Pelham, N. H. Her father was a native of Ireland, and when a little boy rode on horseback with his father, and witnessed the battle of Boyne. She d. in Pelham in September, 1841.

The following obituary notice was published in the papers after Mr. S. Cutter's decease:

"Died in Pelham, N. H., Sept. 20th [1853], Seth Cutter, Esq., aged ninety-five years. He was born April 14th, 1758. Mr. Cutter was a veteran of the Revolution. He enlisted in the army in May, 1777, under Gen. Stark, who went into battle with the avowed purpose either that the British troops should be defeated, or that Molly Stark should be bereaved. Mr. C. was a congenial spirit. At first a fifer, as his boyhood seemed to demand, he very soon grew weary of sweet sounds, and thirsted for hard blows. Throwing down his flute and picking up his musket, he changed into the ranks as a private soldier, and was in those brave marches, those desperate sufferings, those stern encounters, which turned the tide in our country's darkest hour, and which led the wondering nations first to understand that Freedom had at length found a home. He was in the battle of Bennington, where Stark was victor, and more than one Molly was made happy—in the battle of Trenton, where the ice of the Delaware snapped at the midnight hour under the firm and unfaltering tread of devoted men, and the Hessians found that they had reckoned without their host—in the battle of Princeton, where many a Redcoat bit the dust—and in many other scoutings and skirmishes, where life was cheap, but hearts were fearless. Mr. C. had a green and vigorous old age. His mind was full of the recollections of those stormy times, and often sitting by the chimney corner, with a kindling eye, a quivering lip, and a genuine eloquence, would he 'fight those battles o'er again.'

"Not only was he in the vanguard of our liberties, he was found faithful and competent in the more difficult work of preserving them. He was a firm pillar of society and of the State. He was a friend of order and law—a promoter of peace and harmony—a supporter of education and of gospel institutions, a generous patron of objects of just enterprise and lofty benevolence. His life was one of earnest action, of marked success, of excellent influence. By self-denying industry and steadfast integrity, by decided opinions and liberal donations, by wisdom of counsel and beauty of life, he sustained many an important enterprise of good both at home and abroad. Having won the confidence of his townsmen and friends in the opening of his history, and in the midst of his strength, he received undiminished tokens of honor, and wore them meekly as a crown of glory in his deep old age. He was buried with many sincere mourners weeping around his bier. The fathers sleep in dust—the hands which struck a timely blow for freedom are quiet now—the hearts which wrestled with God for our enfranchisement are still—are the sons kindred to their sires?"

She was deeply interested in the progress of Christ's kingdom, especially in its extension among the heathen. The family of John P. Cutter took an honorable position as pioneers in the settlement of Kansas. By intelligence and enterprise, cultivation of mind and refinement of manners, stern resolve and brave endurance, they planted a New-England home in the prairies of the West.

George Cutter took up a land claim in Douglass Co., Kansas, in 1856, and commenced making improvements. The boat on which he went had on board two thousand stand of arms, which were distributed for the purpose of enforcing the Leecompton Constitution upon the settlers of the new territory. There being much excitement at the time with regard to the presidential nomination, a vote was taken by the passengers of the boat; and the youthful pioneer, boldly avowing himself a staunch advocate of liberty, was then told that Kansas would be no place for him.

He was so often called upon to assist in resisting Border Ruffian invasion, that he could accomplish but little on his farm. After being engaged in several skirmishes, he was severely wounded in an affray near Ossawatimie, Aug. 31, 1856. Two ruffians came upon him, one aiming at his head, and the ball grazing his eyebrow; the other breaking and severely fracturing his thigh-bone. Others of the company robbed him and stripped him of his arms and equipments, and left him, as they supposed, to die. He remained in the bushes during the day, and at night was picked up and kindly cared for by a family in the vicinity; where he remained until March, suffering greatly from the effects of the wound and from fever and ague. He was then carried to his cabin home, just able to crawl about. He rallied so as to perform some labor on his claim that year.

In 1858 he erected a house, and in the autumn welcomed to his new abode a brother and sister. They were followed the ensuing spring by the remainder of the family. The year 1860 was noted for a drought most disastrous to the settlers, and the undaunted hero of Ossawatimie left home and friends to try his fortunes in the mines of Colorado. He went from there to Montana, July, 1863; left there in the autumn of the next year, and reached home in January, 1865. That year he went with teams to Fort Kearney, Santa Fe, and Fort Gibson. The next winter he was confined to the house by lameness in his injured limb. He was appointed County Commissioner in January, 1867, to fill a vacancy for that year, and was then elected to the same office for the succeeding term of two years.

Previous to her marriage she taught in Macomb, and afterwards in Rushville, Ill. In June, 1843 or 1844, she removed to Princeville, and two years afterwards to Rochester, and continued to teach in both places until her death. She was a faithful and disinterested worker, even to the neglect of herself. Of sterling worth and masculine energy, of uncommon literary attainments, many a noble woman in the vicinity where she dwelt owes her strength of character to her teaching and training. Rev. Robert Breeze died in Princeville, Ill., Sept. 2, 1851, æ. 44. Mrs. Breeze d. April 25, 1852. A marble monument was erected by their many friends over the spot of their burial. Their benevolence will not soon be forgotten. Issue :

At Ipswich in 1839, Mrs. Breeze composed her ingenious poem entitled "The Ologies ;" a few copies of which were printed to save the labor of transcribing. It was particularly requested that no one would take the liberty of publishing it. The opening and closing lines, however, are here presented.

" A respectable group, as they met, on a day,
 Their adventures related, as every one may.
 Among them were found some all hoary with age,
 And others were entering on life's busy stage.
 Some, known in all lands, and then others were there
 With whom the wise only acquaintance might share.
 They came from the land where with lustre have shone
 The proudest of spirits the world e'er has known ;
 Where Homer, and Plato, and Socrates dwelt,
 And oft at the shrine of Minerva had knelt.
 In vales they had gambolled and roamed o'er the hills,
 And dug in the earth, and had drank at the rills ;
 Had traversed the world, in excursions so free,
 And soared to the stars, and plunged deep in the sea ;
 Delighted, the footsteps of time had looked o'er,
 And future events they had sought to explore.
 But I'll preface no longer, nor make an Apology,
 But only inform you their title is Ology.
 Two kind ones came forward to lend me their aid,
 While I with this group an acquaintance now made.
 The one was a student, profound Lexicology :
 A lecturer clear was the other, Orthology :

They bade me at first to avoid Amphibology,
As well as her talkative sister, Tautology.

Cosmology ne'er her researches confined
To scenes of this earth, for they never could bind
Her spirit, aspiring;—her thoughts wandered far
In the deep azure heavens, to the bright rolling star:
Other suns, other systems, with wonder would scan,
Till oft she would say, 'what is poor feeble man.'
When she ceased to speak there were none who remained
With adventures to tell, and a deep silence reigned:
And this well informed group, with their stories elate,
Regretted to feel they must now separate.
But my friends will conjecture, I very much fear,
Battology lengthens the story they hear,
Or perchance that Cryptology came to my aid,
Or Enigmatology something has said.
But if they're perplexed and cannot understand,
They will find Lexicology ever at hand.
The faithful Orthology, still standing near,
Most readily all my inquiries to hear,
Informed there were those of whom never a word
In this talkative company yet had been heard;
That when worshippers meet, joined in purpose and heart,
Their songs they oft mingle; and, ere they depart,
They frequently call for the aid of Hymnology,
That there, they together, may sing the Doxology."

x. CHARLES,⁶ b. 18 June, 1814: m. Nov. 25, 1841, Olive S., dau.
of James and Abigail (Lovejoy) Noyes, of Windham, N. H.
He d. in Princeville, Ill., May 30, 1869. He regularly graduated from the Medical School of Harvard University in 1843; and in the fall of the same year removed to Princeville, where, with the exception of about three years, he resided, until the period of his death.

For twelve years he devoted his attention to the practice of medicine, until influenced by a growing desire of his own, and by the advice of Christian friends, he felt it his duty to preach the gospel, and was licensed by the Central Congregational Association of Illinois in 1855. Without exclusively devoting himself to the work, he served his Master during the remaining years of his life, preaching as a licentiate in the churches of Dwight, Lafayette, Rochester and West Jersey, Ill. A portion of the year previous to his death was spent in teaching and preaching to the Freedmen at Camp Nelson, Ky.
He was ever a warm friend of the blacks, and among the earliest to espouse their cause. He boldly advocated strong anti-slavery sentiments when few stood at his side, and when bitter opposition was arrayed against him. He was also an active worker in the cause of temperance.

His sufferings during his last illness were protracted and severe.
Under them he manifested great patience and Christian resignation.
His funeral was held in Hitchcock Hall, in Princeville, and was attended by a large concourse of people. His issue:

 - ix. CHARLES SHAW,⁷ b. 7 Nov. 1826; d. in Southboro', Mass., Jan. 22, 1864. The following has already been published:—

“ —‘ What if thou withdraw
In silence from the living, and no friend
Take note of thy departure? All that breathe
Will share thy destiny.’ —

“ Yes, it is even so, and ever will be while the race of man has a being on the earth.

“ But what if the ‘ gay do laugh,’ and ‘ the solemn brood of care plod on,’ and ‘ each one as before do chase his favorite phantom.’ May not memory drop a tear when loved ones die? May not the living lay to heart the teachings of the dead, and dwell with profit on the lessons of their lives? As truly as no man ought to live to himself, so truly ought no one to die unheeded by those who survive him.

“ Each individual is the centre of a circle more or less wide, which is affected by the influence thus exerted, not simply while the individual lives, but long after he has left this world. That influence may be for weal or for woe, for good or for evil. And the good or evil is not to be measured by years. Some men die old, though young in years, if those years, few that they have been, have been so passed as to leave an imperishable record of a well-spent life.

“ What artist ever lived who has left a more enduring record on the scroll of fame than Raphael? But he closed his earthly existence at the age of thirty-seven. He did not die; for genius never dies. Raphael lives in his works, and ever will live while there is one left on the earth who can appreciate true genius.

“ So in every department of life is it true that genuine worth leaves an undying record.

“ The subject of this notice was one who, with instinctive modesty, always shrunk from notoriety, and sought no applause save the verdict of an approving conscience. But though he had no fondness for distinction, and no ambition but to do right, he has left an example worthy of imitation, and possessed virtues which friendship delights to embalm.

“Possessed of rare talents, in the enjoyment of quick intellectual perceptions, an extraordinary facility in stating, analyzing, and comprehending the most complicated and perplexing questions of finance and accounts which enter into the vast business concerns of such a mercantile house as that of which he was for years a partner [JAMES M. BEEBE & Co., Boston], and in which he proved himself an able and highly-valued coadjutor with the well-known head of the establishment in the financial department, he never faltered, or was known to be mistaken; and his judgment on business questions was as sound and reliable as his figures were clear and demonstrable.

“In addition to these talents, which were natural endowments, he possessed a highly cultivated mind, showing that he had not kept his talents in a napkin, but, on the contrary, had turned them to valuable account.

“He was industrious to a fault—inconstant in labor and application to what he esteemed to be his duty.

“He never seemed to have a thought of himself as such, but only what he could do, and how it might be best performed.

“He was, of course, ‘not slothful in business,’ but his industry was not prompted by avaricious or unworthy motives. He did not desire wealth, or seek its attainment as an end; but only as a means.

“He was fond of his chosen employment, and worked cheerfully; but when he had earned a competence, it was his aim and desire to use his gains so as to make others comfortable and happy.

“To this end he sought out objects of need, and was eager to relieve them.

“He had no leisure for the gay pleasures of life; but preferred his own library, or his mother’s fireside to the more public or fashionable places of resort. When the insidious and treacherous disease, to which he has fallen a victim, first prostrated his frame to such a degree that he was compelled to relinquish his attention to his accustomed business occupations, he sought to arrest its progress by visiting foreign countries, and when he found that the experiment failed, he cheerfully returned to his native land and to his mother’s house, and there, peacefully and gracefully acquiescing in the manifest will of his Heavenly Father, he passed his remaining days on earth.

“It was a pleasure to him, as it certainly was to those who loved him most tenderly, that it was so ordered that he might thus end his life, if his work was to be thus early done.

“It is within the knowledge of the writer that Mr. Cutter was beloved to an uncommon degree by all his associates in business. Not only did he win their confidence by his integrity, and command their respect by his talents, but he also secured their esteem, and even affection, by the lovely traits of character which were a part of his very self.

“His end was peace. He was spared even a conflict with the King of Terrors; but quietly, cheerfully, finally, as he had lived, so he died, surrounded by his family, consoled by the teachings of that religion which he professed, and in the faith of which he breathed his last—having but a short time before his departure from this world received from his pastor the memorials of a Saviour’s dying love, he was permitted, as we humbly hope, to exchange the chamber of sickness and weakness for the mansions of eternal joy.

“Would that his example might stimulate other young men to work and toil like him, to do good to others, to honor God, and to leave behind them the fragrant memory of a well-spent life.

“Boston, January 27, 1864.”

Mr. Cutter was a farmer, and owned a valuable estate lying east of the present cemetery in Arlington, and bordering on Mystic river. He lived in a large house with brick ends, much after the model of Col. Royall's mansion in Medford, and which stood a few rods east of the residence of Mr. Joshua Robbins. It was once struck by lightning, and the mind of the owner affected. It is now demolished. He was an original character, and held peculiar views on political and religious topics, which he never failed to broach on every available occasion. Many of his ideas were indeed in advance of the times, and worthy of a better cultured intellect. He was notably eccentric in habits and disposition, and few men in his vicinity have been more odd. His estate at his widow's decease descended to the families nearest akin. Interesting papers regarding the settlement are presented in the APPENDIX.

After marriage Ephraim Cutter resided in Charlestown, in the part now Somerville, on Prospect Hill, Milk Row. Here he continued until his father's decease, in 1795, when he returned to his native town and occupied the land of his inheritance, buying also the shares of his younger brothers. He occupied his father's mill, and prospering in business, enlarged the mill-pond by building a new dam and the mill now standing near Mr. S. A. Fowle's establishment, where he labored until a few months previous to his death.

About 1803–4 he built the house—corner Main and Water Streets—now owned by his daughter and occupied by his grandson, Mr. Henry C. Whittemore. He resided in this house until his death.

* Vide Book of Lockes, 78, 162.

He conformed to the ordinances of the church of which he was an active member and for many years a deacon. He never enjoyed any educational advantages, but by assiduous endeavor attained a good standing among his townsmen. He was a man of unpretending manners. His success in life he ascribed under God to the judicious influence of his excellent wife.

Mrs. Cutter was a person of sound sense, interesting in manners and conversation. Notwithstanding her great weight, between three and four hundred pounds, she was remarkably agile, and her footstep noiseless and graceful. Her death was the result of an accidental fall, and occurred Jan. 29, 1823.

The death of Mr. Barrell was caused by a melancholy accident. While returning from a drive to Bellefontaine Cemetery, with several members of his family, he stopped to discharge a revolver he had in his possession. After firing all the barrels, as he thought, at a small target—a piece of money—he proceeded to replace the pistol in his pocket. In doing so, the remaining barrel was accidentally discharged, the ball entering his abdomen, inflicting a wound from which he died twelve hours afterwards. He was an excellent citizen, and at one time was a partner in business with ex-Mayor Daniel G. Taylor, of St. Louis. He was a member of the Knights Templar Order of the Masonic Fraternity, and a week or two previous to his death, with his accustomed hospitality, he entertained the Cyrene Commandery, of Memphis, while they were on a visit to St. Louis. Benjamin Cutter

- x. BENJAMIN,⁶ b. 4 June, 1803; m. Sept. 26, 1824, Mary, dau. of Amos and Rebecca (Russell) Whittemore, of West Cambridge, and granddaughter of Amos Whittemore, the distinguished inventor.* Dr. Benjamin Cutter d. in Woburn, Mass., March 9, 1864.

He graduated at Harvard College in 1824, and took his medical degree from the same College in 1827, and from Philadelphia in 1857. Keen in observation, sound in judgment, prompt in action, diligent in study, modest yet self-reliant, with a mind of the highest order, possessing extensive and varied acquirements, he honored his profession in a practice of nearly forty years. As a citizen always reliable, as a Christian always consistent, his death carried sorrow to all who knew him.

Gifted by nature with qualities that go far to make a true man and a good physician, these were sedulously trained and cultivated, which combined to make him a person of rare worth and prominence among his fellow citizens and cotemporary practitioners.

His predilection for study was early manifest, and his parents sent him from home at the age of eight years to enjoy better educational advantages than his native town afforded. He was a pupil in the academies at Westford and Andover, Mass., and also at Pelham and Newmarket, N. H. He studied medicine with the celebrated Dr. Francis Kittredge, of Woburn, and succeeded to his practice on the death of that gentleman in 1828. Dr. Cutter's career in college is described in the following communication from his classmate, Rev. A. B. Muzzey, of Cambridge.

"I spent some time with him at Westford Academy in preparing for college, and our pleasant intercourse while there led to an intimacy as classmates, when in 1820 we entered Harvard College. This resulted in our being room-mates during the Sophomore and Junior years.

"He was at that time full of mirth, quick at repartee, and had a large stock of entertaining anecdotes. This made him popular in the class so far as he became known, which owing to his modest and retired habits was not very generally.

"He had by nature unusual ability and quickness of insight as a scholar. His forte was decidedly mathematics, where he might easily have taken a very high rank; but he had no ambition for this sort of distinction. I do not think he enjoyed the ancient classics. He was quite averse to metaphysics. I remember once when good Dr. Hedge pressed him to answer a certain question, he replied, with that spirit which could occasionally be roused within him: 'I have told you, Sir, once—and twice—that I did not know!' This reply called forth the only rebuke I ever knew him to receive from any teacher while in college. His constitutional diffidence made him especially dislike to speak in public. Still he received what was termed 'a part' at one of the College Exhibitions, and another in the exercises of our Commencement.

"But although indifferent to college honors he was fond of general reading, and industrious in his habits of study where his taste was gratified. And with an excellent memory he retained whatever he had read to an uncommon degree.

"He was through our whole college life a predetermined physician. Every branch of our studies, such as chemistry or botany, which looked in that direction, he pursued with avidity; and I would often find him in the little 'study' adjoining our room, trying experiments in chemistry, or perhaps dissecting a frog or some other animal. This decided taste led me to predict for him what he afterwards, I am told, attained, not only prominence in medical skill, but special distinction as a surgeon.

"I will only add, that our acquaintance had been continued, although with too frequent interruptions, up to the close of his life. We had cooperated, to some extent, in the great cause of Temperance, and in the work of Education, which we both had at heart."

On leaving college he received a certificate from the faculty of his alma mater, stating he sustained a "respectable standing in point of scholarship," and "an unexceptionable moral character," and that he was believed "well qualified for the office of instructor." He taught school in Medford during the winter of 1823, and at Wellfleet, in Barnstable County, in 1824. He also taught in other places at a period when he was so young that the large boys used to think they could master him.

In 1826 he was commissioned surgeon's mate, and in 1829 surgeon of a regiment of militia. He resigned this office in 1834. He was a prominent pioneer in the temperance reform of 1828; the leading spirit of the Woburn Young Men's Society, and the organizer of the Woburn Young Men's Library. This library comprised nearly even hundred volumes on history, biography, travels and voyages, and scientific and miscellaneous subjects, but no religious works nor novels. The books were mainly of Dr. Cutter's selection, and are creditable to his judgment and his knowledge of general literature. In estimation of his zeal to advance their credit and welfare, the members of the Young Men's Society presented him with a handsome parlor timepiece, still a cherished memento in his family.

He was a member of the School Committee in Woburn from 1845 to 1849. He was Clerk of the First Congregational Church for twenty-one successive years, and Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Warren Academy for thirty successive years. He was the founder and first President of the Middlesex East District Medical Society. This association of physicians was organized at his residence in Woburn, October 22, 1850; and besides himself, Drs. Davis and Wakefield from Reading, Youngman from Winchester, Stevens from Stoneham, and Drs. Nelson, Plympton, Clough, Drew, Piper, and Rickard, from Woburn, were present.

He was eminent for his antiquarian taste, and his extensive acquaintance with the localities and ancient affairs of the towns in the vicinity where he dwelt. Aside from the arduous duties of his profession, he found time to accumulate a rich fund of local topographical and genealogical history, which he had collected in great measure from his aged patients, and which was marked for its variety, completeness and accuracy. The admirable History of Woburn, from the careful pen of the late reverend and venerable Samuel Sewall, was at first undertaken at his suggestion, and continued under the influence of his friendly, persevering persuasion, counsel, help and encouragement. Like the esteemed author of this interesting work, he did not, however, live to see and examine its pages. As a genealogist his researches were extensive and minute. Names of long standing in the communities where he was particularly intimate, received no small share of his attention, and families to whom he was related by consanguinity, or from which he was lineally descended, he spared no pains to provide with correct genealogies and with choice historic facts. Many of these valuable pedigrees were carried down several generations, and are still in manuscript, and as he left them. His compilations in behalf of his maternal ancestors and their kindred were largely used in the preparation of the well-known Book of the Lockes, and various other works of a similar character are likewise indebted to him for advantageous assistance.

Some thirty or forty years ago he commenced those researches which have culminated in the present history of the Cutter Family of New England. No genealogical investigation afforded him equal interest, and on none did he bestow more labor. The small hours of the night were often spent in its accomplishment. The pressure of business, ill health, and finally death, prevented its completion. Beginning with the emigrants who came to this country nearly two hundred and thirty years since, he carried his work to such a degree of completeness, that almost without exception he had gathered the entire pedigree of five generations, and in some instances carried it down to the sixth and seventh; which generations include the greater portion of the family now living. Indeed, he expressed his whole motive, when to a correspondent he said, "I have for some years been collecting information in relation to the Cutter family, and hope that the result of my labors may not be wholly useless to the race, but enable them to satisfy a laudable curiosity that almost every one feels concerning his kindred."

July 24, 1848, in answer to the queries of a kinsman, he writes:—"I should be pleased to give you such information as I have, after considerable research, been able to procure. This tracing out the genealogy of a family is a work of some magnitude, and can be only consummated by the united efforts of several individuals who may feel interested in such matters. It requires much time to search the records of churches and towns, of registers of deeds and probate, to trace with any degree of accuracy or certainty the connection between families and generations long numbered with the dead. Still there is a satisfaction in the pursuit, and for one I cannot see why we should not as well desire to trace our own lineage as to spend our time in learning that of a race of foreign potentates. It is a remark of Mr. John Farmer, that 'Posterity a few centuries hence will experience as much pleasure in tracing back their ancestry to the New England colonists, as some of the English feel in being able to deduce their descent from the Normans.'"

In a letter to a correspondent in New York, dated May 12, 1863, he says:—"It is some time since I gave up my researches into the genealogy of Richard Cutter's family. I have had returning desires to trace out his descendants, and have debated with myself the propriety of devoting the remaining years of my life to the work. Ill health and professional business have been the reasons for my suspension of genealogical inquiry. I have ascertained pretty completely the list of the earlier generations of the Cutters in this country, so that if a Cutter can tell me who his grandparents are, I can tell the family to which he belongs. * * * I have felt a great interest in the subject more years ago than at present. I have been for some time rather of an invalid, and had all my time taken up, that could be taken, in the occupation of my business. I could wish that some one had leisure, means and taste enough to devote ten years to this research."

His devotion to his profession was entire. Ever ready at the call of pain and suffering, cool, calm and untiring, always studying to ascertain the hidden causes of disease, he was fortunate in living one of the most useful and active professional lives. He was a model for a financier, and left a handsome competency, acquired mainly by his profession. His death was deeply felt in the community of which he had been so long a prominent member, and was widely noticed by the public journals. He had been feeble for a considerable time before his death, but his last illness was of short duration. His naturally robust constitution undoubtedly succumbed to undue application to business and study. His final disease was contracted by exposure on a surgical consultation visit.

The Medical Society of which he was the founder did him honor by attending his funeral in a body, and by unanimously adopting the following testimonial :

BENJAMIN CUTTER, A.M., M.D.

Founder and first President of the Middlesex East District Medical Society, died at Woburn, March 9, 1864, aged 60 years, 9 months and 5 days, of pneumonia and cardiac disease. His death was deemed a public calamity.

Resolved, That by the death of Dr. Benjamin Cutter, late of Woburn, this Society feels impelled in a special manner to bear testimony to the great loss which has been sustained. A large community has been deprived of an experienced, able and conscientious physician, a friend long and thoroughly proved, and a citizen of eminent usefulness—ever seeking earnestly the best good of the public, and exerting through his whole life an exemplary and hallowed influence.

Resolved, That to his agency more than any other we recognize our indebtedness for the origin of the Middlesex East District Medical Society, and to his wise and persistent efforts, its shape, permanence and prosperity. In our personal intercourse we have ever found him eminently courteous, kind and conciliating, and we have all had abundant evidence to judge him both skilful and able, and to accord to him a high position in our profession. Ever quiet and unobtrusive in his deportment, his influence has been the greater.

Resolved, That while we deeply mourn our own loss, we do also tender our heart-felt sympathy to the bereaved family and relatives, to the community at large, and to our profession.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be transmitted to the family of the deceased, also to the newspapers in Woburn, and to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, for publication ;* and that they be copied into the Records of our Society.

* Vide Vol. lxx., pp. 188, 207.

Rev. Joseph C. Bodwell, D.D., his pastor, now Professor in the Theological Institution at Hartford, Conn., delivered an eulogium at his funeral. The same gentleman, in his "Farewell to his Flock"—a Sermon preached in the First Congregational Church, Woburn, August 5, 1866—conferred upon him this beautifully touching tribute :

"I am sure you will remember to-day, and many among you with the renewal of a sorrow which time thus far has only softened, another occasion, when such an assembly was gathered here, for numbers, respectability and intelligence, as this house has very seldom contained. The noble form which lay unconscious in its coffin in front of this pulpit, was the form of Dr. Benjamin Cutter. The presence of that vast concourse, on a week day, from every class in the community, was a spontaneous outburst of grief for a man whose death awakened deep sorrow in all the region round about. Richly and variously endowed by nature, eminently skilful as a physician, familiar, by constant study, with every discovery and advance in his profession, whether in the United States or in Europe, he was the acknowledged Mentor of that Medical Society of which he was the father and founder, and in constant request in difficult cases of consultation in a large circuit of towns. Assuredly this was enough for one man's life. Yet the intelligent stranger who had accompanied him in a pleasant drive among the hills and valleys of this exceedingly picturesque town, would have been very much impressed with his broad and varied intelligence ; his accurate acquaintance with the history of the town, which to him was chronicled, as in a book, in its roads and streams, and ancient, moss-covered houses, and many an indentation where houses long ago had been ; his ready knowledge of every tree, and shrub, and plant, and the facility with which he read the lessons of the rocks, written on the huge boulders, or in the curious layers of the perpendicular gravel banks. Such a stranger might have set him down for a man of literary leisure, but would never have guessed that his heart and hands were constantly full of the labors and responsibilities of a most anxious and exhausting profession : nay, I very much doubt whether he would even have guessed that he was a member of a profession at all, unless, perchance, he had called on a patient by the way.

"Was there any public or social interest of the town which had not his warm sympathy, and his active coöperation ? That beautiful marble monument, erected by personal love, and admiration, and sorrow, over his grave,* will tell to the generations to come of the influence which Dr. Benjamin Cutter exerted on those who are to-day the fathers of the town, stimulating and guiding them in every lofty aim and pursuit, when he was a young man with them. Was there any class in the community who would not listen to his counsel, and was not that counsel always well considered, and judicious, and safe ? In his professional life how well he won the appellation bestowed on the companion and fellow-traveller of Paul, 'the beloved physician !' He carried every where a heart full and overflowing with a tender sympathy, as some of you could testify, who remember the words he spoke to you so kindly in the time of your affliction.

* "Erected by the citizens of Woburn and vicinity in testimony of his worth as a man, physician and Christian."

“But his character shone brightest of all as a Christian man, and a faithful and beloved member of this church of God. How beautiful was the humility which covered him as a garment! All his endowments were consecrated to Christ. He was a contrite man and a believer. Daily he confessed, with a penitent heart, his personal guilt, and daily sought forgiveness through the blood of the Lamb. I almost fear lest I should seem to intrude on what is private and sacred, if I venture to refer to the sweet solace which, under the heavy pressure of his professional labors, he daily sought at his much loved family altar; in its Scripture reading and sweet hymns, with music to which his ear and soul were so nicely attuned, and its fervent prayers. His attendance here was constant and devout. With a modesty and humility which instinctively shrank from observation, he was a strong and beautiful pillar in this church. For the long period of twenty-one years, he was your Clerk, making all your records with a scrupulous accuracy, and with a singular neatness and elegance, and resigned his office only with his life. Do you not see him still, and catch the sound of his clear, sweet voice, as he stood up in his accustomed place with us for the last time, and sung, out of the fulness of his heart—

‘Rock of Ages! cleft for me’?

“Smitten down in the full strength of his powers, and at the point of his highest influence and usefulness, he saw the approach of death without the very slightest symptom of fear, made all his arrangements as calmly as if it had been for a pleasant journey, bade an affectionate farewell to his family, and died as he had lived, in a serene and unfaltering trust in the atoning blood of Christ.”

Dr. Benjamin and Mary (Whittemore) Cutter had issue :

Ephraim Cutter graduated from Yale College, New Haven, in 1852. After teaching a short time in his native place, he studied medicine in Boston, Philadelphia, and Woburn, receiving the degree of M.D. from Harvard College in 1856, and at Philadelphia in 1857. In April, 1862, he sailed for Europe, returning in the September following. During this tour he visited many hospitals and medical schools, endeavoring to make known the medical virtues of Veratrum viride. He has practised his profession at Woburn, where he resides; and in Boston, where he pays special attention to diseases of the throat.

Dr. Cutter has been a frequent writer for the press on the medical topics in which he is interested; especially on Veratrum viride as a remedial agent, on Laryngoscopy and Rhinoscopy, and on certain new pieces of surgical apparatus. His articles on Veratrum viride were printed in several of the European journals during his visit abroad.

In 1861 he gained the Boylston Medical Prize, of Harvard University, for an essay on the question, “Under what circumstances do the usual signs furnished by Auscultation and Percussion prove fallacious?” He has also nearly ready for the press a good sized octavo volume, designed as an Introduction to the Principles and Practice of Laryngoscopy and Rhinoscopy. He was the first physician in this country to construct the laryngoscope, by which alone it is possible to see the inside of the throat. It consists of a simple mirror, about an inch in diameter, which is put as far back as possible in the mouth, and held at such an angle as to allow the observer to see the entire glottis and the movement of the vocal cords. With this instrument it is perfectly easy to see the rima glottidis, or opening between the cords, contract more and more as a higher and higher note is sounded, or to see the cords lose all their tenseness when the voice sinks to a whisper, so that no vibration takes place. The laryngoscope is invaluable in the discovery of tumors or any other local disease of the larynx which could not otherwise be satisfactorily diagnosed.

He is likewise the inventor of Cutter's Clinical Microscope, a portable and simplified modification of the usual first class instrument. This invention has been praised by eminent microscopists; and the simplicity of its mechanism, together with the reduction of price, places the microscope not only within the reach of every physician and student, but even in the hands of children.

Dr. Cutter has also devoted much attention to the vaccination of kine. He has vaccinated over eight hundred cows, and has probably done more in this direction than any other physician in this country. He was a delegate from the Mass. Medical Society to the National Convention, held at Washington, D.C., in 1860, for revising the Pharmacopœia. In 1861 he was appointed a member of the "Committee of One Hundred," in charge of the Massachusetts Soldiers' Fund. He is a member of the Gynæcological Society, of Boston. A retroversion pessary, he has invented, is coming rapidly into notice. His issue:

18. SIMON,^s b. 17 April, 1788; was educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., where he graduated with honor, receiving a silver medal for meritorious scholarship.

In Dec. 1806, he began teaching the high school or academy in Westbrook, Me., a post to which he was highly recommended by Rev. Thaddeus Fiske, of Menotomy, his friend and pastor. In 1808 he married Mrs. Christiana (Dyer) Simonton, of Steuben, Me., the widow of Captain Andrew Simonton, and daughter of Capt. Henry Dyer, an officer of the Revolution, and an influential citizen and settler of Washington Co. Mrs. Cutter was also the great-granddaughter of Lodowick Dyer, Esq., of England, created a Baronet June 8, 1627, and was a woman of a high tone of mind, excelling in those virtues which so much adorn the female character.

About the time of his marriage Mr. Cutter removed from Westbrook to Cape Elizabeth, near Portland, where he continued to teach until the war of 1812, when he served the garrison stationed in Portland harbor in the capacity of commissary or quartermaster. Returning afterwards with his family to Westbrook, he engaged in various mercantile and manufacturing pursuits until his death. In 1827 he was commissioned colonel in the State militia. For many years he was a prominent member of the Masonic Order, and was held in high esteem by the fraternity of his vicinity. As the president of the Washington Temperance Society, of Saccarappa, in 1841, he took a firm stand against the evils of intemperance, and did all he was able to avert its baneful influence upon the young. He was also deeply interested in the political questions of the hour, and wrote frequent and pointed articles for those newspapers in Portland which were the acknowledged organs of the party whose principles he espoused. He was elected candidate for representative in the Maine State Legislature, but his sudden death disappointed the hopes of his expectant constituents. He was the author of certain poetical effusions delivered on sundry public occasions. He died of paralysis, in Westbrook, Sept. 20, 1842. His funeral, remarkably well attended, was the largest ever held in the town. His death cast a cloud of sorrow and gloom over an extended circle of friends. Ever active and useful, profusely hospitable, and genial in his manners, benevolent to the poor, interested in all that pertained to the welfare of the community, liberal in his religious sentiments, and emulous of virtue, he was laid in the grave with profound regret. His widow d. April 6, 1852, æ. 70. Their issue :

“ All those virtues which adorn, elevate and dignify the character were his. He looked with contempt upon meanness in every form. Real misery never appealed to him in vain. His memory will long be cherished in the breasts of his friends.”

To the Memory of Henry Cutter.

Died September 29, 1849, at Maysville, Kentucky, Mr. HENRY CUTTER, aged about forty years.

Among the many victims who have been suddenly prostrated in the flower of their years and the fulness of their strength by that fell destroyer, the cholera, there was none whose inoffensive life, whose active usefulness and unassuming worth were more generally recognized, or whose death is more deeply deplored as a common calamity by the community of which he was so valued a member. Amiable in his disposition, urbane and social in his intercourse with the world, an open hand and a liberal heart, punctual and scrupulously correct in all his business transactions, of stern integrity and a high and delicate sense of honor ; he was a man very dearly beloved by his friends and sincerely respected by all who knew him. Emigrating to this city many years ago from another State, he so lived as to draw to himself the warm affection and unshaken confidence of a community into which he came a stranger from a distant land ; and while, by his energy and enterprise, he became a most important and useful member of the business community, the attractive virtues of his character rendered him no less an ornament of the social circle of which he was the life. Having by his industry and energy amassed a large property, he was ever liberal and free in his contributions to works of public utility as well as private charity. We understand that he has left a large circle of relatives in Massachusetts, his native State, who will feel his death as a calamity not to be repaired.—Maysville Eagle.

* OBITUARY.—“Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season.” Job 5, 26. How beautiful a representation of the peaceful end of the righteous! “The ideas conveyed in this rural comparison,” says Scott, “are an easy death in a good old age, a worthy and respected character, and an honorable interment.” How faithful a portrait this of the venerable man in whose death we are called to mourn the removal of one who fulfilled his lot with rare fidelity, and who, in all the relations of life, was very greatly and justly esteemed! As a husband, he was unselfish and affectionate; as a father, indulgent, yet judicious; as a friend, kind and steadfast; as a citizen, upright and loyal; as a Christian, humble and devoted. His piety, indeed, was of no ordinary type. Within the circle of an acquaintance somewhat extensive among both clergy and laity, the writer is unable to recall one who, in his judgment, could with greater propriety than the subject of this notice have said, as did the great Apostle, “For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.” Many years ago he wisely gave heed to the injunction, “Set thine house in order,” and he had lived since as “a stranger and pilgrim on the earth.” Retiring from the more active pursuits of life, he had been accustomed for a considerable time to occupy much of his leisure in prayer and holy meditation, and a study of the oracles of divine truth. And thus, by the blessing from on high upon his pious engagements, he appeared to have been brought “to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.” When at length Death’s summons came, it found him as one waiting for his Lord. His illness was brief, and his faculties were mercifully preserved to the last. His distrust of self, and his reliance solely upon the merits of the Crucified, were most unequivocal. Although he naturally shrank from the thought of separation from those most near and dear to him, yet he entertained an ardent desire “to depart and be with Christ, which is far better.” As an instance of the self-possession and peace that attended his last hours, and at the same time of the strict conscientiousness which marked all his transactions, it may be mentioned that only a brief space before he “fell asleep,” he made special inquiry in respect to the state of his accounts with each of several tradesmen with whom he had been accustomed to deal, seemingly anxious then, as always, to be mindful of the obligation to “owe no man anything but love.”

In truth, a good man has been taken from our midst. Although occupying at the time of his decease no official position, he was widely known and universally beloved. We sorrow not for him, but for ourselves. We shall behold his stately form no more upon earth. Within the sacred precincts of home, in the social circle, and in the sanctuary of God, he will be sadly missed. Many who have been wont to seek the benefit of his sound judgment and mature wisdom, will henceforth seek them in vain. But then, to our departed friend, how welcome the change! “Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; even so, saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labors.”

† OBITUARY.—When an aged pilgrim, who has attained to more than the usual term of human life, goes to her rest, having throughout maintained a pious, blameless course, a passing tribute to her many excellencies and very consistent example may be valuable and instructive to surviving friends. Mrs. Rogers fulfilled all the duties of life, as wife, mother and friend, with the greatest faithfulness and affection, and sustained the many sorrows incident to it with calmness and resignation to the divine will. Loved and respected by all who knew her, and soothed by the attentions of affectionate and devoted children, who, while they are sincerely thankful for her good example, feel, nevertheless, that a void has been made in their circle which can never be filled, she has been gathered to her fathers, having the testimony of a good conscience, in the confidence of a certain faith, in the comfort of a reasonable religious and holy hope, in favor with God, and in perfect charity with the world. When such depart, ‘tis the survivor dies, and sorrow seems selfish. The redeemed soul has attained the rest promised to the people of God, and received the joyful welcome, “Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.” Let her survivors “not sorrow as those without hope,” but bear in mind her pious example and fervent faith, hoping that their end may be like hers, and that cheered and soothed by an unflinching trust, like her they may calmly sleep in Jesus, and “faithful unto death, may receive the crown of glory.”

‡ Nathaniel Sherburne Rogers commenced the business of a mariner while a youth. While crossing the Atlantic as commander of the ship “Grecian,” in 1834, he relieved a ship in distress. The incidents connected with this event are fully developed in an article published in the New York papers of that date. Copy of the Consul General’s announcement:

The fifth son, Richard, b. 29 May, 1812, was renewed by divine grace to the early age of thirteen years, and lived a consistent Christian to the age of eighteen, and d. 24 March, 1830. The deceased daughter, Harriet Robbins Rogers, b. 20 March, 1818 ; d. 30 May, 1831. Her character was marked by peculiar seriousness from her infancy. She grew up to the age of thirteen almost without a fault, and was the delight of all who knew her. The merciful Saviour early marked her for his own. Disease fell suddenly and heavily upon her, but neither the skill of physicians, nor the prayers and tears of sorrowing friends, could stay its fatal progress.—iv. ELIZABETH CUTTER, m. William S. Cooper, of Dover, N. H., a fond, affectionate and valued father. She was a beloved and godly mother. Issue:—two sons and a daughter—the sons died in infancy.

4. CHARLES,^b b. 12 Sept. 1763 ; was drowned and buried in Cambridge, where his gravestone is standing. The epitaph:

“We have received from the French Consul General the annexed communication, apprising the gallant individual whose courageous benevolence it records, of the honorable token of respect and commemoration that it has called forth from the king of the French, and inviting him to present himself to receive it.

“Communication.—The French brig L'Espérance, of Pampoil, on the 17th of May last, was in the greatest danger and upon the point of foundering. The boat in which the crew hoped to escape had just been crushed by a heavy sea, and a fearful death seemed inevitable for all, when Capt. Nathaniel Rogers, of the ship Grecian, of Portland, then in sight, in despite of the tempest, which then threatened to engulf him, launched his boat, and boldly adventuring in it himself, succeeded after unheard of efforts, and surmounting dangers the most threatening, in taking off the shipwrecked crew, and almost at the same moment, their vessel, L'Espérance, disappeared beneath the waves. Not content with this act of humanity, the Captain treated the unfortunate crew with the most sedulous kindness until he landed them at Havre.

“Such fine conduct, such noble devotedness, and which does so much honor to the American character, could not be suffered to sink into oblivion. The facts just stated were submitted by the Minister of Marine to the king of the French, and his Majesty directed that a gold medal should be struck to commemorate the act, and be presented in his name to Captain Rogers.

“The Consul General for the United States, residing in New York, has received this Medal, and will hold it subject to the order of Capt. Rogers, in case he cannot receive it from the hands of the Consul. (Signed)

“The Consul General of France in the United States,

“New York, Sept. 25, 1834.”

The medal is the size of a doubloon, though much thicker; on the one side is the head of the king, with the legend, Louis Phillipe, Roi des Français; on the other side a civic wreath, within which are the words, Nathaniel Rogers, Capitaine de navire Americain, pour avoir sauvé des marins Français en danger de périr dans les flots, 1834.

The American editor comments on the affair in these words: “Honor to whom honor is due.” This is a mode of commemorating the courage and disinterestedness of Capt. Rogers alike honorable and enduring; for the duplicates of the Medal will take their place in the series of Medals which are preserved to illustrate French history, of which this noble act will thus become an imperishable part.”

LINES ON THE DEATH OF CHARLES CUTTER.

BY A FRIEND OF HIS.

On the death of Charles Cutter, of Portsmouth, student at Harvard College, who in attempting to cross Fresh Pond, in Cambridge, was drowned Oct. 22d, 1779—buried 26th.

Ye youthful sons of Harvard, weep !
 Let fall a tear on Cutter's urn ;
 He's gone the way of all the earth,
 From whence he never will return.

Ill fated youth ! luckless the hour
 When o'er the smooth transparent flood,
 Thoughtless of death or danger near,
 In a small skiff he fearless row'd.

Then from high Heaven the mandate came
 That Cutter must submit to death !
 He fell—he plung'd—he rose again—
 Then sunk—and yielded up his breath !

His dying struggles who can tell,
 Before his youthful spirit fled ?—
 His pangs, when overwhelm'd with waves,
 Ere he was numbered with the dead ?

His soul was hovering to be gone,
 His tender heart was fill'd with fears,
 When instantly the curtain drops,
 And all the eternal world appears !

* N. E. Genearl. Register, ii. 215 ; Harris, Camb. Epitaphs, 134.

And is the lovely generous youth
Fled from the earth to worlds unknown?
Ye ancient walls of Harvard, weep,
And all ye sons of science, mourn!

He that was active, young and gay,
Is now confined within the tomb!
He that was blooming as the May,
Lies low amidst the impervious gloom.

His eyes have all their lustre lost,
His visage wears a smile no more;
That face where sprightliness appear'd,
With death's cold dew is cover'd o'er.

Ye gentle youths of graceful form,
Tho' you can boast ten thousand charms,
Tho' health now blooms upon your cheeks,
You soon may sleep in death's cold arms.

Brookline, Novr 1, 1779.

5. DOROTHY,^s b. 30 Aug. 1765; m. Hon. Clement Storer, of Portsmouth, a gentleman who studied medicine with his father-in-law, but did not eventually pursue that profession.

"He was born on the 20th day of September, A.D. 1760. He successively filled some of the most distinguished offices in the gift of his fellow citizens, and discharged the duties of each faithfully and acceptably. He was an affectionate husband, a sincere friend, a useful and public-spirited citizen. He died on the 21st day of November, A.D. 1830, Honored, Beloved, and Lamented." He was twice sent to the National Congress as Representative, and afterwards as Senator; a general officer in the American army during the war of 1812, and High Sheriff of Rockingham County. Mrs. Storer died March 28, 1841.

Gen. Storer was a man of commanding presence, tall and portly. Both himself and wife were of remarkably dignified yet pleasant manners, and were fine specimens of the New England gentry of the time. They left no children. The late Admiral Storer, U. S. N., was his nephew.

6. DANIEL,^s b. 24 July, 1766; d. Oct. 20, 1832. Unmarried. He was in early life a shipmaster, and afterwards a merchant in Portsmouth.
7. WILLIAM,^s b. 31 Jan. 1769; followed the profession of medicine, and distinguished himself by his skill. He was a person of uncommon powers; witty and graceful; a great favorite in society. No better exposition of his character can be given than the fitting tribute to his worth perpetuated in the epitaph on his gravestone.

WILLIAM CUTTER, M. D.

In memory of
Dr. WILLIAM CUTTER
who died

May 22^d Anno Domini 1817

Aged 48 years.

Having accomplished his medical studies under the direction of his father
A. R. Cutter, he commenced the practice of Physic and Surgery at an early period of life.

With eminent endowments and assiduous industry, he soon acquired the high reputation which he so justly merited.

He was distinguished for quick perception, acute observation, with sound and decisive judgment. His generosity of temper, affectionate feelings and urbanity of manners secure him the tender remembrance of his relations and friends; his liberality of mind, high sense of honor and benevolent deeds gained him their love.*

8. JACOB,^s b. 22 July, 1771; m. Oct. 25, 1798, Miriam, dau. of Gen. Ralph and Miriam (Atkinson) Cross, of Newburyport, a person whose beauties and virtues those only who knew her intimately, so retiring and gentle was she, could fully appreciate. She died Sept. 16, 1856, aged 85. Her father, Gen. Cross, commanded the Essex Regiment of Massachusetts at the capture of Burgoyne; and his brother Stephen, a soldier of the old French war, was at Oswego when it was captured, in 1756. Both Stephen and Ralph Cross were great patriots, and prominent men in their day and generation.

Capt. Jacob Cutter died Oct. 4, 1857. With the exception of three or four years, he passed his whole life in Portsmouth, his native city, where for a long period he was a prosperous merchant and shipowner. Enjoying ever the respect and good wishes of his townsmen, they evinced their confidence in his merit by awarding him those offices of trust New England towns bestow on their best men.

* From July 20 to Oct. 6, 1798, one hundred and seven persons died in Portsmouth; fifty-five with the yellow fever, and fifty-two from dysentery, which then prevailed in the city. Among the latter were twenty-nine children. All business was left undone to care for the sick. "The two Doctors Cutter, father and son, were active and useful, especially the latter, who himself contracted the fever, having first worn himself down by his labors. His recovery was watched by the people with anxiety and hailed with joy; and he ever afterwards till his death held a warm place in their affection and esteem."—Portsmouth Chronicle, Sept. 1855.

Though not what we call a politician, he was public-spirited and energetic, and as a kind and affectionate father and devoted husband he left nothing to be desired. He was one of the participants in the "French Claims," having lost one or two vessels by seizure on the part of the Bonaparte government, and not a dollar was ever refunded. During the latter half of his life he was a sincere and humble follower of his Saviour, and dying at the venerable age of eighty-six years, at last slept with his fathers, leaving to his loving children a memory as delightful as it is beneficial. Capt. Jacob and Miriam (Cross) Cutter had issue:

- i. MARY,⁶ d. in infancy.
- ii. CHARLES WILLIAM,⁶ b. at Portsmouth, June 11, 1799. Graduated at Harvard College in 1818. Died in Chatfield, Minn., Aug. 6, 1856. Unmarried.

He studied law in the office of Hon. Jeremiah Mason (Yale College, 1788); and having been admitted to the bar, he entered upon the practice of the law in Portsmouth. For several years he was a contributor to the "Portsmouth Journal." He afterwards entered upon the political field; and espousing the Whig cause was a writer of much spirit. For a year or two he became a resident of Dover, N. H., where about 1823 he established the "Dover Republican." From July, 1825, to January, 1830, he was an associate editor of the "Portsmouth Journal." As a writer and public speaker he was always well received, and enjoyed a confidence which was rewarded by the honors and emoluments of office. He was aide to Levi Woodbury when the latter was Governor of New Hampshire, and also aide (with the rank of Colonel) to Maj.-General Upham, for several years. He several times represented Portsmouth in the New Hampshire Legislature, held the offices of Clerk of the United States District and Circuit Courts in New Hampshire, Naval Store Keeper and Navy Agent. With the heads of the national government, enjoying the personal friendship of Daniel Webster, he at times possessed an influence from which others have derived advantages. But, although in a degree successful in his course, he expressed deep regrets that he ever left his profession to enter the race in the political arena. To a young man who wished his influence at Washington for an office, he said, "I would caution every young man to follow any honest calling rather than rely for support on any public office." Well informed in the literature of the day, interested in all that relates to State historical researches,* the promoter of the interest of literary institutions, the ready public speaker, whether on the political platform, at the forensic club, or desk at the lyceum, he was ever listened to with respect and cheered with enthusiasm. Though his aim might be high personal position, he was ever noble and generous-hearted to all; and in filial affection none could be more devoted. †

- iii. MARY.⁶

* He was elected to the N. H. Hist. Soc., May 20, 1823. (Hist. Coll., v. 396.) An oration of his, pronounced before the Whigs of Portsmouth on the 4th of July, 1834, was published.

vi. RALPH CROSS,⁶ b. at Portsmouth, 7 May, 1810; m. Sept. 16, 1835, Hannah Hurd, dau. of Henry and Hannah (Hurd) Ladd, of Portsmouth.

Passing three years at Exeter Academy, Mr. Cutter fitted for college, but abandoning that plan he went to the Island of Hayti as a clerk to a merchant, an intimate friend of his father. At the early age of twenty years he commenced business there on his own responsibility, and for several years was largely engaged in importing American produce and exporting the produce of the Island. While the enterprising youth of our interior towns have sought their fortunes in the great West, those of the New England seaports turned their eager gaze to the sea and the lands beyond. Many of them became sailors, and were soon "climbing the giddy mast." Others braved the sickly climes of the West Indies, South America, and the distant shores of Asia. True to the enterprising spirit which led their ancestor to the siege of Louisburg, to the ranks of "Rogers's Rangers," and finally to the regular army of the Revolution, no less than eight of the grandsons of Dr. A. R. Cutter went to the Island of Hayti soon after it emerged from the bloody scenes of the first revolt against France. Four of them became merchants, doing a large business in different localities. These were W. C. and D. R. Rogers, D. R. Draper and Ralph C. Cutter. None of these left anything in print regarding this interesting island, excepting the latter, who contributed a series of papers to the Knickerbocker Magazine of 1841, under the caption "Notes of Life in Hayti."

Mr. Cutter was a member of the last board of Selectmen of the town of Portsmouth, also of the same board under the new city government, and chairman of the High School Committee. Is now an active business man in New York, having his home in Brooklyn. His issue:

On her last voyage from this port, his vessel sprang a leak while on her return passage. 3. PHEBE,^s b. 5 June, 1764; m. Dr. Ammi Ruhamah Mitchell, of North Yarmouth, Aug. 25, 1785, the eldest son of Hon. David Mitchell, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and a scion of one of the worthiest families of the town.

Dr. Mitchell early discovered a vigorous mind and retentive memory, having an ardent thirst for knowledge. The distress incident on the Revolutionary War prevented his entrance to college. Commencing the study of medicine with the noted Dr. A. R. Cutter, of Portsmouth, an opportunity was presented for going abroad to finish his professional studies. The America, a vessel of war built by the United States and presented to France, was ready for her destination. Dr. Meaube, a French gentleman of professional eminence, had come to this country to return as the surgeon of this vessel. During his stay in Portsmouth, forming a strong attachment to young Mitchell, he invited him to accompany him to France as surgeon's mate. Accepting the offer, he enjoyed in France advantages free of expense to himself. Returning, he pursued the practice of his profession at North Yarmouth the remainder of an exceedingly useful life. He represented the town in the Massachusetts Legislature for the period of ten years. He was prominent in musical matters in the vicinity, and ever active in religion's cause. Holding the pen of a ready writer, his professional duties forbade any extended literary efforts, yet his correspondence was unusually large and full of piety and feeling. Several effusions of his pen were published. He died suddenly, May 14, 1823, aged 61, much lamented for his virtue and worth. The church, of which he was an exceedingly efficient member, wore mourning badges as testimony of their respect, and an immense concourse of people followed his corpse to the grave.*

Mrs. Mitchell was worthy her husband's excellence, and d. April 6, 1829. The remains in the family tomb were removed by surviving children, Oct. 25, 1851, and re-interred in the adjoining burying-ground, where an appropriate monument was erected, with the epitaph, "These all died in the Lord." * "Mrs. Cutter was at her death, and had been for forty-two years, a member of the first Church in Yarmouth. This was her native place. Here she had formerly resided, and hither her remains have been brought to be interred in proximity with those of a numerous family connection.

"In circumstances more than ordinarily difficult and depressing, she was called in early life to have the individual responsibility in directing and sustaining her family. Her wisdom, fidelity and success in meeting her responsibilities were such as are not common ; and as a consequence of what she was to her children when young, and of what she continued to be to them and their children through her whole life, she was loved by them with an affection almost passionate. She was remarkable for energy, self-control, cheerfulness in trial, friendship and benevolence, and for native dignity and attractiveness of person and manner, which years did not impair. To the view of her friends she was never old.

"More than all, she was apparently, and it is not doubted, really a follower of Jesus Christ. Her path was 'like the shining light which shineth more and more unto the perfect day.' In later years especially she had longed to follow the Lord fully, and has seemed to do everything out of love. And now, gently, and with brief and slight suffering, her Saviour has taken her to be with himself in a world where love is perfect."

6. SAMUEL,⁵ died in North Yarmouth, March 23, 1776, aged 4.
7. LEVI,⁵ b. at North Yarmouth (now Yarmouth), Me., May 22, ? 1774; m. (1st) Sept. 1796, Lucretia, dau. of Hon. David and Lucretia (Loring) Mitchell, and sister of Dr. A. R. Mitchell, of North Yarmouth. She died April 13, 1827, æ. 57; and he m. (2d) Mrs. Ruth (Kendall) Jenkins, of Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 18, 1833, who died in April, 1862. Hon. Levi Cutter died at Portland, Me., March 2, 1856, aged 81.

His father being killed in 1776, by the falling of a tree, the family was left in care of the mother, a woman of great energy and ability. The children were all young, and compelled at an early age to rely upon their own efforts. Mr. Cutter had only the advantages of a common-school education for a portion of the year, and commenced keeping school himself when but fourteen years of age. He had, as was customary in those days, scholars of adult age, but early manifested the executive power which distinguished him in after life, and was a successful teacher. He was early taught in the Westminster Catechism, with which he was so familiar that he could repeat the whole, both question and answer; and taught it in his family without the use of a book. His mind was early impressed by religious truth, and in a memorable revival in 1791, under the ministry of Rev. Tristram Gilman, he made a public profession of religion, and united (Aug. 14, 1791) with the First Congregational Church in North Yarmouth. On March 22, 1810, he removed his church relations to the Second Church in Portland, under the pastoral care of Rev. Dr. Payson, in which he remained till his death, acting for many years as deacon. For nearly sixty-five years he adorned his profession by a humble, consistent, upright Christian life. He was naturally diffident of speech, and neither in civil nor religious life accustomed to speak in public, but he was always an interested and active worker in the cause of Christ. From 1838 to his death he was a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and attended with great interest the annual meetings. He was all his life an earnest friend of education, a member for many years of the Board of Overseers of Bowdoin College, of which body he was Vice-President at the time of his death. He was of cheerful, happy temperament, in manners and courtesy a fine specimen of the "old school" gentleman, and shared largely in the love and esteem of all who knew him.

He commenced business early in North Yarmouth, but suffering great losses by the "French spoliations prior to 1800," he came to Portland about 1803-5, where he was for many years employed in insurance and banking business, and afterward as partner in the well-known firm of N. & L. Dana & Co. He retired from active business some years before his death, but retained in full vigor his mental powers, and was almost daily consulted in matters of public and private interest by his fellow citizens and friends.

He was ever a public spirited citizen, an active member of the Fire Department in former years, but he held no public office till 1834, when he was elected Mayor of the city of Portland, and held the office for six years. He had a wonderful love for the beautiful city of his adoption, and his administration was a labor of love. The Exchange was built, and the Promenades formed during his term of office. To the last hour of life his love for the city was one of the strongest feelings of his heart—and, when he died, the whole city did him reverence. He was faithful in his household—all of whom he had the unspeakable satisfaction of seeing within the church of Christ;—faithful in the church, to which he gave the dew of his youth and the strength of his manhood—faithful to the State;—and in the family, the church, and the city, he has left an honored name, a hallowed memory.

- iv. WILLIAM,⁶ b. at North Yarmouth, 15 May, 1801; graduated at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, in 1821, and m. Margaret W. Dicks, of Portland, May 29, 1828. She was the daughter of Capt. James Dicks, a merchant of Portland, and deacon of Rev. Dr. Payson's church, and was b. Jan. 16, 1802. Her father originated in Scotland, where the patronymic is Dick. Mrs. Cutter d. in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 12, 1869. William Cutter died after a short illness, Feb. 8, 1867.

A man of genial temper and cheerful, happy spirit, a scholar and a poet, whose occasional poems, delivered on public anniversaries, and minor fugitive pieces, were much admired, but have never been collected into a volume. An earnest, loving Christian. Few ever had more warm devoted friends, or have been more truly missed by those who knew and loved him best.

At college, as everywhere else during his life, William Cutter won warm friends by his joyous and unselfish disposition. Resolved to study for the ministry, he entered Andover Seminary, but was obliged to leave before the end of the course on account of weak eyes. For several years he was an invalid, and at last, much against his wishes and tastes, he was driven into mercantile life. Always interested in the cause of Sabbath Schools, he was, while in Portland, the editor of the Sunday School Instructor, and contributed to many of the leading periodicals of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, also to the Portland Tribune, a literary weekly, and at that time was widely known as a periodical writer. He removed to New York in 1839, and was connected with Grenville Mellen in the editorship of the Church Miscellany during its short existence. In 1846 he removed to one of the suburbs of Brooklyn, then called Bedford, and found there a happy congenial home for more than twenty years. Through his efforts a church was built in the place, which always claimed his most devoted attention. Though constantly occupied in business, he found time for much literary labor. He was for a long time editor of Merry's Museum, and was author of the lives of Putnam and Lafayette, and many books for children, and poems which were anonymously published. His active mind buried itself, even in the last illness, in studies of the classics, and with plans for a new work.

Many of his poems are widely known, though they have often been attributed to other writers, as—

WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

Thy neighbor? it is he whom thou
Hast power to aid and bless—
Whose aching heart and burning brow
Thy soothing hand may press.

Thy neighbor? 'tis the fainting poor,
Whose eye with want is dim,
Oh, turn not from his humble door,
Go thou, and succor him.

Thy neighbor? 'tis that weary man,
Whose griefs are at their brim,
Bent low with sickness, cares and pain,
Go thou, and comfort him.

Thy neighbor? any heart bereft
Of earthly trust or hope,
Widow, or orphan, helpless left—
Go thou, and lift them up.

Thy neighbor? yonder toiling slave,
 Fettered in thought and limb,
 Whose hopes are all beyond the grave—
 Go thou, and ransom him.

Where'er thou meet'st a human form
 Bowed down with grief and care,
 Which love may heal, or kindness warm,
 Thou'lt find a neighbor there.

Oh! pass not, pass not heedless by—
 Perhaps thou canst redeem
 One breaking heart from misery—
 Go share thy lot with him.

Or these lines from the "Buried Talent":

What if the little rain should say—
 "So small a drop as I
 Can ne'er refresh the thirsty fields;
 I'll tarry in the sky!"

What if a shining beam of noon
 Should in its fountain stay,
 Because its feeble light alone
 Could not create a day!

Doth not each rain drop help to form
 The cool refreshing shower?
 And every ray of light to warm
 And beautify the flower?

However small thy gift may be,
 Thy sloth hath no excuse—
 The feeblest talent lent to thee
 Was lent for holy use.

Go, then, and strive to do thy share—
 One talent less than thine,
 Improved with steady zeal and prayer,
 Would gain rewards divine.

The following is less known:

LYRIC POETRY.

Music one day was straying
 In Poesy's sweet bowers,
 Like a pleased infant playing
 Among the fragrant flowers;
 Now with the fairies tripping
 In dances light as air,
 And now from rose hearts sipping
 The nectar treasured there.

At length, with feasting sated,
 And wearied out with play,
 She found herself belated,
 And thought it best to stay.
 Her harp of tuneful numbers
 Upon a rose she flung,
 And sought reviving slumbers
 The dewy leaves among.

While there divinely dreaming
 Of Fairies, Fays and flowers,
 And still in fancy seeming
 To revel in those bowers ;
 Fair Poesy espied her,
 And taking up her lyre,
 Seated herself beside her,
 And touched the trembling wire.

Startled, but not affrighted,
 She swept the lyre again,
 Till every cord, delighted,
 Breathed out its sweetest strain ;
 And as those strains were dying
 In echo's faintest tone,
 " I would," she said, " keep sighing,
 This lyre were all my own."

Music, just then awaking,
 Replied with gentle mien,
 " There can be no mistaking
 Thy right to it, fair queen !
 For she who can so sweetly
 Inform each breathing wire,
 Is named and crowned most meetly
 ' The mistress of the lyre. ' "

Sweet Poesy, deep blushing,
 Gave Music back the toy,
 While through her heart was rushing
 A deep unwonted joy.
 " Nay, lovely sister ! hear me,
 With me do thou abide ;
 Forever one, and near me,
 My throne thou shalt divide. "

" When from their breathing slumbers
 Thou pour'st sweet strains along,
 I'll catch the airy numbers,
 And weave them into song,
 I'll wreath bright flowers and warm them
 With Spirit from above,
 And thou shalt all inform them
 With melody and love. "

Thus formed, this fond alliance
 Has never yet been broke ;
 Since then, in sweet compliance,
 The two as one have spoke ;
 And thence the lyric measures
 In tuneful numbers flow,
 Giving new zest to pleasures,
 And gently soothing woe.

2. JOSEPH,⁵ b. at Lexington, 13 May, 1752; m. at Townsend, Mass., "Tuesday," Dec. 5, 1776, Rachel, dau. of Nehemiah and Rachel (Shattuck) Hobart, of Pepperell, and a lineal descendant of Rev. Peter Hobart, the first minister at Hingham. Joseph Cutter, Esq., d. in Jaffrey, N. H., June 25, 1840.

He was a farmer by vocation, and an executor of his father's will in 1771. Not long after his father's death, he removed from New Ipswich to Jaffrey, where the cellar of his dwelling, near the spacious mansion of his son Joseph Cutter, is still to be seen. During the first year of the revolutionary contest he was once in active service with the provincial forces before Boston, for which duty he was honored with a pension from the government.

He was of medium height, rather stout in body, and quick and agile in his movements. He was forcible in expression, and a man of few words. He held a captaincy in the State militia, and received a commission of Justice of the Peace, but never served the office, being disqualified by a very limited education.

His wife Rachel, b. April 12, 1750, died in Jaffrey, Jan. 20, 1835. She was amiable and industrious, and possessed an excellent judgment. She had a particular fondness for family antiquities.

Joseph and Rachel (Hobart) Cutter had issue:

i. JOSEPH,⁶ b. at Jaffrey, 23 Aug. 1777; m. June 17, 1804, Phebe, dau. of Capt. James and Sarah (Lamson) Gage, of Jaffrey, b. Dec. 15, 1779. He d. in Jaffrey, Nov. 20, 1860. His widow now lives with her children at the West.

Being one of the first born in that then wilderness, and the eldest of a large family, with no schools instituted, his opportunities for even a common school education were very limited. He studied arithmetic under a regular teacher about six weeks, however, and acquired the balance at home from his parents. He was ever very active in body and mind, and proverbially industrious. He was of a nervous temperament, strong compact constitution, and possessed wonderful energetic powers. He was the projector and builder of the spacious mansion, erected about 1806, now standing unoccupied at the base of Mount Monadnock. This capacious structure of two stories contains six large rooms and a hall on each floor, besides a great shed and loft overhead. The exterior measures some forty-six by one hundred feet, and the roof required fifty thousand shingles to cover it.

He provided his children with a good common school education, and enforced their constant attendance in all weathers. He was a man of strict integrity, retiring and unassuming in his manners, of quiet and strictly sober habits, preferring others to himself; and incessantly labored in thought, word and deed for those he loved. His children ever hold him in affectionate remembrance. He had issue as follows :

John Cutter hewed his education with the axe. He had no other advantages than the town then afforded, but was a good arithmetician and possessed a wonderfully acute faculty for investigation. He was very industrious in his habits and decided in his opinions, and open in asserting his convictions. He gave his children a good education and bringing up. He was a successful farmer for that period, and a large wool grower. Determination was a marked characteristic of his mind. He had a strong desire to have things right, and was scrupulously just in his dealings with others. His issue:

i. CALVIN,⁷ b. at Jaffrey, 1 May, 1807; m. (1st) April, 1834, Caroline, dau. of Nathan and Ruth (Waterman) Hall, of Milford, N. H., where she d. Aug. 24, 1812; (2d) Eunice W., dau. of Chester and Eunice (Haskell) Powers, of Warren, Mass., m. Dec. 10, 1843.

Residing with his parents and attending school under the "shades of Monadnock" until twenty-one years old, he then became a pupil at New Ipswich Academy, and afterwards taught district schools in Wilton, New Ipswich, and Ashby. In March, 1829, he became a student in medicine under the tuition of his honored uncle, Dr. Nehemiah Cutter, at Pepperell; attended medical lectures at Bowdoin, Dartmouth, and Harvard Colleges, and received the degree of M.D. at Dartmouth in 1831. He entered upon the practice of his profession at Rochester, N. H., and tarried there some two years. In 1833 he became a private pupil of Dr. Valentine Mott, and attended a course of lectures in the University of New York. The following year found him practising physic at Nashua, N. H., where he remained three years. He then placed himself under the tuition of Dr. Geo. M'Clellan (father of Gen. Geo. B. M'Clellan, U.S.A.) at Philadelphia, and practised three years at Dover, N. H.

From the year 1842 to 1856, inclusive, he visited twenty-nine States of the Union, delivering professional lectures upon anatomy, physiology, and hygiene, before schools, colleges, and public audiences—illustrating his subject with appropriate drawings, models and other apparatus. In 1847 he commenced his famous "Cutter's Physiology," universally known as a popular text book for schools, colleges and families—nearly five hundred thousand copies having been sold to the present time. The introduction of the study of physiology to the general American public Dr. Cutter regards to have been the great work of his life, and he has spent a large fortune in its accomplishment. His valuable book in the hands of missionary laborers located in Turkey, Syria, and India, has been translated and published in the Bulgarian, Armenian, Arabic, Tamil, and other Eastern languages—the author, with his usual energy of purpose, affording every encouragement in his power to the introduction of his work among the less enlightened nations of the globe.

Since 1827 Dr. Cutter has been an earnest advocate of the principles of total abstinence, and since the year 1831, an anti-slavery man, in favor of just and equal rights to all. In the latter cause his activity has been unbounded. In March, 1856, he was selected to convey a supply of Sharpe's rifles to Kansas for the protection of a Free State settlement—a perilous duty, but successfully accomplished. During the July and August following, accompanied by Mrs. Cutter, he went again—being leader of the Worcester Armed Company (sixty men), and afterwards of the force known as "Jim Lane's Army," which he commanded nearly a year. He was President of the Military Council in Kansas, and also was instrumental in the capture of the notorious Col. Titus. His devoted wife shared many of the vicissitudes and dangers to which his position was exposed.

On the 25th of August, 1861, he was mustered into the Union Army as regimental surgeon of the 21st Massachusetts Infantry, and was in active service nearly three years. He was twice wounded on the field—at the battles of Bull Run and Fredericksburg, and was made prisoner at the former battle, but was treated with clemency and courtesy by his captors. During most of his period of service, he had charge of the medical department of the several divisions of the Ninth Army Corps as Surgeon-in-Chief.

In the army Dr. Cutter exhibited the faculty of "getting the most comfort out of the smallest means." His patients never suffered for want of food or other necessities. He had every regard for the preservation of the health of the soldiers, and by his shrewd management of the hospitals under his care, kept many men in the field who would otherwise have been useless for service. He possessed great influence over the "Boys," and was familiarly known as the "Old Surgeon."

He now resides on his farm in Warren, with the hope of improving his health, which is considerably impaired. His eldest child—

1. Eliza,^s died young.

2. Carrie Eliza,^s daughter of Dr. Calvin Cutter by his first wife, Caroline Hall, was b. in Milford, N.H., 29 July, 1842; d. at Newbern, N. C., March 24, 1862, a few days after its capture by the Burnside Expedition.

She was educated at Prof. Russell's school in Lancaster, Mass.; at Mount Holyoke Female Seminary; and at Westchester, Pa., where she paid particular attention to the German language, in which she was highly proficient. In Westchester she made many devoted friends. Her instructress, Miss Darlington, a daughter of Dr. William Darlington, the botanist, was so pleased with her intelligence and progress in her studies, that she invited her pupil to accompany her to Europe, and spend one or more years in perfecting themselves in the German and French tongues. Her passport was obtained, and she was about packing the last articles in her trunk, when a letter arrived from her friend, telling her not to leave Massachusetts then—as the "Southrons in Baltimore had attempted to drive the eagle from his northern eyrie"—that Miss Darlington's relatives must shoulder the musket. Deeply disappointed at the compulsory abandonment of this projected tour on the eve of its fulfilment, Miss Cutter now turned her thoughts to the impending struggle of the Great Rebellion. She devoted her time and attention to the woman's mission of fitting out the soldier with those little conveniences so needful in camp life. She assisted her stepmother, Mrs. E. P. Cutter, who went from town to town organizing Soldiers' Aid Societies, for providing sanitary stores; and not only met the demands of the 21st Mass. Infantry, but was enabled to furnish the entire Second Brigade of Sherman's Expedition to Port Royal with hospital supplies. She sailed with her father in the Burnside Expedition to Hatteras Inlet as an assistant nurse of the sick and wounded. She was present at the taking of Roanoke Island and Newbern. She was probably the first female that entered the service of her country in the war—the first female that fell at her post—and, with the help of her father's present wife, the first to form organized efforts to supply the sick of the army. She perished a victim of the fever, which carried many of our brave defenders to their graves during the early movements of Burnside's campaign. Dying in the ripeness of youth, she gave her young life to the cause without a murmur of complaint, and requested to be laid by the "Soldier brave on the Isle of Roanoke." The voluntary tribute of Surgeon Squires, 89th New York Volunteers, in a private letter from Roanoke Island at the time, is well deserved by this excellent girl:

"The daughter of Dr. Cutter, 21st Massachusetts, of whom I have spoken in a previous letter, died a few days ago at Newbern of typhoid fever. Her remains were brought back to this Island and buried to-day. Who will write her epitaph in befitting verse? She was the friend of the sick and wounded soldier, educated, accomplished, young, beautiful, affectionate, patriotic, pious, self-sacrificing. In her death in the van of the army, a woman pure and lovely has been laid as a victim upon the altar of liberty. She died away from home; a father whom she loved stood by her, but his duties to the wounded prevented him from accompanying her remains to their temporary resting-place on this beautiful island. Sacred be the spot where her remains now lie! Ye winds that whisper in the pines, breathe her a requiem!"

By his second marriage Dr. Cutter has issue :

Daniel Cutter always lived in his native town. He was what is called in this section of the country a farmer; and, in his mode of life and habits of industry, was a good representative of the hardy yeomanry of New England of his day and generation. Possessed of sound physical health and strength, and early inured to toil, labor seemed a pleasure to him. He was a man of sound judgment, determined will and purpose, indefatigable and persevering, and always ready to encounter and overcome any difficulties that stood in his way. He started in life with a few acres of wild land on the side of the Monadnock Mountain, given him by his father, with few or no fences upon it, and no buildings. It was mostly covered with the heavy original forests of that section of the country, consisting of the rock maple, black and yellow birch, the white beech, elm and red oak, and a few scattering spruces, hemlocks and pines. The soil was hard, heavy and rocky, covered here and there with a huge boulder of granite, and mixed with the small cobble stones which sadly impede cultivation and are a sore grievance to the farmers' boys, who are required to gather them into heaps in the early months of the spring, to relieve the scythe of the mower.

This certainly would be an uninviting prospect to the enervated young men of the present day for building up a home and obtaining a livelihood. But with resolute purpose Mr. Cutter took up the task before him, and entered upon the struggles and labors of a life time. He cut down the huge forest trees, cleared up the land, built stone fences around his pastures and tillage land, erected his houses and barns, and filled the latter with flocks and herds. He purchased other adjoining land to the extent of six or seven hundred acres, and from this wild rugged mountain tract, by his own industry and perseverance, he carved out a beautiful farm, and truly made the wilderness "blossom as the rose." He fulfilled at least this Scripture, "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work" to the letter, and "in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." But his was the life of the independent New England farmer. His farm furnished himself and family with nearly all the necessaries of life. His cattle, sheep and swine furnished him with meats for every season of the year. His fields furnished him with wheat for flour, and barley, rye and corn, for meal, and potatoes and other vegetables for his table. The rock maple growing upon his farm afforded all necessary sugar and molasses for his family. The wool from his sheep furnished the family with clothing. This was taken in the raw material, and made into cloth and wrought into garments under his own roof, with the exception of the dyeing and dressing, which were done at a clothier's mill in the village near by. The carding, spinning and weaving were done by his wife and daughters, and a tailoress annually came to the house and made up the garments for the father and sons. From the hides of his cattle slaughtered for food were made the boots and shoes for his family. The hides were tanned at a neighboring tannery "at the halves," as it was termed, and a shoemaker came to his house with bench and tools, and remained till the family were well supplied with shoes.

This was once the mode of life of the New England farmer—a life of toil indeed, but virtuous, honest, independent and happy. The rise and fall of stocks, the failures in trade, and the crises in the money market, never disturbed his sleep. Mr. Cutter's whole life was spent upon his farm. He never had any idle hours for vain amusements, and in his view laziness was a crime.

He was always an early riser—up with the dawn and working until twilight—and he always enjoyed good sound health, never having had to employ a physician until he was sixty years of age and upwards. Himself feeling the want of early school education, he was always desirous of giving his children all the advantages the schools of New England afforded, and sent them all first to the common district schools, and afterwards to the academies of learning, and three of his sons to Dartmouth College.

Mr. Cutter was in every sense of the word an honest man, and in all his dealings with his fellow men acted upon the golden rule, to do by others as he would wish others to do by him, and always gave a full equivalent for every thing he received. He lived upon his own industry, and not by speculation upon the industry of others, and during a long life was a most useful and excellent citizen of the community in which he dwelt.

" Mrs. Cutter, who has just left us, was a woman of refined taste and much culture. Naturally a quick scholar, she cultivated her mental powers with great industry. She found great delight in pursuing historical investigations ; studying with avidity subjects pertaining to the history of her own and other lands. She was well read in the literature of the day, and entered into the progress of events about her with great interest. Her quick mind and reading made her a choice companion.

" Mrs. Cutter was domestic also in her tastes ; her home receiving her constant attention, and her family centered her best thoughts and careful industries. She was interested also in promoting the good of others, and belonged to the " Circle of Industry," a benevolent society connected with the church where she attended meeting. Though conscious from the nature of her disease that she must soon pass away from earth, yet she maintained a serenity of temper and cheerfulness of spirit to the last. Though suffering during "Such was her interest in the affairs of the town and society about her, with which she had been so many years identified, that she entered into the minutest affairs pertaining to its growth, its schools, and all the moral and social interests of the people. Instructed well in early youth in the truths of the Bible, she ever revered its teachings, and expressed to me, one of the last days of her life, her confident trust in God, and the need of dependence on the blood of Christ to secure salvation. Thus has closed a useful life, occasioning a great loss to her family and friends. He graduated from Middlebury College, Vt., Aug. 1814, and M.D. at Yale College, New Haven, in 1817. He commenced practice in Pepperell, became a distinguished physician, and founded a private asylum for the insane, which continued in successful operation during his lifetime. In this enterprise he was a pioneer, and his establishment was probably the first of its kind founded in this country. The original building reared to accommodate his patients was destroyed by fire in 1852, and the succeeding structure is now occupied by Dr. James S. N. Howe, his associate and successor, for a kindred purpose.

Dr. Cutter was an active member, and likewise a deacon, of the Orthodox Church—took a deep interest in its prosperity, and a highly prominent part in the erection of a new ecclesiastical edifice. As a patron of education he was the cause of the founding of an academy in Pepperell, and contributed largely of his own means for its support. Self-possessed on all trying occasions, even in temper, sociable and affable to distinction, he acquired a powerful and salutary influence over the minds of his patients, and his interest in the welfare of the public rendered him greatly beloved, and his loss sincerely regretted.

11. BENONI,^s b. at New Ipswich, 19 Oct. 1771 ; m. Phebe Tenny, May 19, 1799, dau. of Capt. William and Phebe (Jewett) Tenny, of Hollis, N. H., and born Oct. 12, 1777. Dr. Benoni Cutter died in Hollis, Jan. 19, 1816, aged 44 years.

He was not a graduate of college, but was, nevertheless, a well educated man, and thoroughly read and fitted for the faithful discharge of the various duties devolving upon him as a family physician. He began practice in New Salem, N. H., and after marriage removed to Hollis, and located himself near the centre of the village. He took rank as the equal of other physicians in that vicinity, and received the support and confidence of his townsmen. He was prudent and safe, and one whom all classes could approach without reserve. He experienced religion not long after his settlement in Hollis, and united himself in membership with the Congregational Church of that place, then under the pastoral care of the Rev. Eli Smith, a gentleman to whom Dr. Cutter became greatly attached. In this church he was a strong pillar, and during several years before his death was one of its deacons. He was always at his post ; and present at all meetings, unless called away by professional duties. So firm was his belief in the efficacy of prayer, and so frequent and salutary were his intercessions to the Supreme Being for the recovery of the sick, that he went by the name of the "praying physician." No man doubted his piety, or was ever known to speak evil of him. The world bore testimony to his goodness and benevolence.

Dr. Cutter was of medium size, of fair complexion and cheerful countenance. His wife, born and educated at Hollis, was a woman of unusual excellence, and reared her family to be useful and honored citizens. She died in Hollis, Feb. 12, 1835.

Early in January, 1816, Dr. Cutter received a visit from his brother Benjamin and his wife, who were then living in Canada, and whom he had not before seen for over fifteen years. During their brief stay Dr. C. took his brother with him while visiting his patients, and while riding in a covered sleigh during a severe snow-storm the good doctor took a severe cold which settled into the fever which soon terminated his life. On the day, and the hour in which he died, he requested all the members of the family to leave the room. When he was left alone, he was overheard in the adjoining room in prayer. Beginning with the mother he prayed for each child separately, and by name, leaving upon each his last benediction. His children were too young to fully realize their great loss. Rev. Eli Smith officiated at the funeral of Dr. Cutter; and as a physician, a Christian, a citizen, a neighbor or friend, it is doubted whether another citizen in the town of Hollis could then have been found more universally esteemed and beloved by all classes and professions.

Dr. Benoni and Phebe (Tenny) Cutter had issue:

- i. PHEBE CAROLINE,⁶ b. 3 Aug. 1801; d. Nov. 17, 1802.

He began his business career in Hollis, and continued a merchant of the place till 1832, when with his family he removed his home to Louisville, Ky., and entered into partnership with his brother John Hastings Cutter, dealing in dry goods and groceries. Their establishment consisted of two stores situated on Main Street, Louisville, each exclusively devoted to a branch of their business, and was managed on a scale sufficient to extend the repute of their firm throughout the entire West. For the two last years of his life he did business under the firm of Cutter, Watson & Baylis. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, in Louisville, and while at Hollis was for several years a Justice of the Peace. He was remarkable for his moderation of temper and steadfast adherence to principle, and his genial character and Christian excellence rendered him a general favorite, greatly beloved by all whose good opinion was worth having. He then became a student of Phillips Academy, in Andover, and afterwards went to Charlestown and was clerk to James and William Bird. He then commenced business on his own account in Boston, and then under the firm of Cutter & Bird. In Jan. 1831, he removed to New York, and was a short time in the employ of S. & F. Dorr & Co., and from that period until 1834, was salesman in the silk-house of Arthur Tappan & Co. He then entered the dry-goods business with James D. Sherman and William F. Buckley, under the style of Sherman, Cutter & Buckley, at No. 1 Berkeley St., New York, and was burnt out in the great fire of Dec. 16, 1835. On Sherman's retirement from the firm, Jonathan Hunt was introduced, style Cutter, Buckley & Hunt, and in 1837 Charles Ely was added, as Cutter, Buckley, Hunt & Co. Since 1846 Mr. Cutter has been mainly known as a mercantile negotiating and collecting agent, in connection with which he has travelled in all sections of the Union. In 1860, he removed his residence to East Lyme, Ct., where he yet continues, having his business headquarters in New York.

Mr. Cutter has held the office of Deacon in the Congregational Church, of Elder of the Presbyterian Church, of Sabbath-School Superintendent, both in Boston and New York, and of Trustee in the Murray-Street Presbyterian Church, New York, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Dr. Macauley, and in the Central Presbyterian Church under the care of Dr. William Adams. He has been active in many a good work, and prominent as a speaker. His issue :

iv. JOHN HASTINGS,⁶ b. at Hollis, 16 Aug. 1807 ; m. Susan Fletcher, dau. of Hon. Benjamin and Sarah (Fletcher) Poole, of Hollis, and died at his birth-place, July 7, 1860.

Mr. Cutter was quite early in life left to the instruction of his widowed mother. Conscious of his own abilities and that he must rely upon them alone, he sedulously set about opening his own way in the world. Experience soon taught him that the West presented the brightest field for his warm hopes and energetic purposes ; and alone, through trials and difficulties that might cause the boldest to quail, he went forth unflinching and established himself at Louisville, Ky. Here he gained capital and credit, and became prominent among merchants. He was widely known as the manufacturer of Bourbon whisky, in which business, after years of incessant labor, he amassed a large fortune. A few years previous to his death he returned from the West and established himself in the home of his childhood. In politics he warmly cherished democratic principles, and represented his native town several times in the legislature. He was a member of the "Governor's Horse Guards," and was the first to be buried by that organization under arms.

"Some apology may be necessary," says one who well knew him, "for the connection of Mr. J. H. Cutter with the manufacture and sale of whisky. It began with an urgent request from merchants at the North, who knew the character of Mr. Cutter for skill and for probity, and it was continued by his conviction of the humanity of furnishing a pure article of that which men would have, and which in moderate use was, and is, beneficial. He had no sympathy with that false reform, which would behold the continuance of sorrow brought into families by the use not of intoxicating drinks, but of impure ardent spirits. His calling in its intent and in its seen and known effects was a blessing to the world, as direct as unquestioned, and as wide-spread as he who disseminates manna from Heaven. Nor was he unable to maintain his position against all comers. He believed in the gradual course of the amelioration of society, and not in an end to be attained fitfully, by leaps and starts. He believed that society, God's people everywhere, are embarked in a life-boat, and that no force, not even a visionary reformer, could prevent the desired consummation."

The sermon delivered at his funeral was published. From this are made the following selections :

"He had naturally a strong love of life. He loved to battle in the elements of business. He had an unconquerable energy which kept him all his days in ceaseless activity. * * He was devoted to his family. It was his pleasure to administer to the wants of every member. He lived in their joys, and bore all their sorrows. * * Furthermore he had large and unfinished plans of business on his hands which he wished to see completed. He had added farm to farm and had a design of leading the State in the best of everything which the soil could produce. He was drawing these plans to a state of completion when the distant and unmistakable signals of his departure were heard. He resisted these intimations with a remarkable degree of firmness and self-possession, and went on with his purposes, till he was compelled to yield. When, a short time before his death, he felt that 'the last of earth' was at hand, he cheerfully submitted to the decree of his Maker.

"In relation to the character of Mr. Cutter in the courtesies of social life, as a man of business and as a citizen, public and private, it is needless to speak. Here he was born and brought up. Here he commenced his business life. His enterprise, his unyielding perseverance, and his success in accumulations are well known. He was energetic, adventurous and decided. He was self-reliant; made and executed his own plans. He rushed on in his business with a zeal that consumed his physical energies in middle life. His mind was keyed constantly on the highest note, till the strings of the harp, one after another, gave way. His friendship was strong and ardent.

* * His religious faith was that of his father, whose memory he cherished with devout reverence. * * He had seen much of the world. * * Had a larger field of observation, and had experienced more of the changes of business life, than falls to the common lot of men to witness." His issue :

3. GERSHOM,⁵ b. 19 Feb. 1733-4; m. Rebecca Crosby, of Billerica, Mass., March 15, 1757. He died suddenly of apoplexy in West Cambridge, April 20, 1804. His widow d. Sept. 28, 1813, æ. 75. He dwelt at the "Foot of the Rocks," where he built a house which has since been demolished.

He owned a mill-privilege near his residence, and erected a mill for turning and grinding edge tools, in which business he was extensively engaged many years. His dwelling was entered by British troops during the retreat from Concord; the furniture damaged, and the incendiary's torch applied to his property, which was timely saved from being consumed. A regular, killed on his estate, was buried in the meadow, forty rods distant, in rear of this house.

He was a member of the Baptist Church in Menotomy, and was held in good repute for his industry and general excellence. Gershom Cutter, 4th, had issue:

genuity, he constructed a clock which preserved good time for half a century, and which is said to have been injured during the foray of the British troops. He was also engaged in constructing card-machines of the pattern invented by his cousin Amos Whittemore. An inventory of his estate was taken Oct. 14, 1799. It was appraised at $1,574.43, including one half a house and two acres meadow, in Cambridge, and five parcels of land in Vermont. On April 24, 1861, he enlisted at Darlington, Wis., in Capt. Whitman's company, Co. H, 3d Wisconsin Infantry. On June 17, the company left for camp at Fond du Lac. July 12, they started by rail for Hagerstown, Md., where they arrived the 16th. Stayed in Maryland during the fall, and wintered under Gen. Banks—except a campaign of eight days at Harper's Ferry, in Oct. 1861, when they secured 2500 bushwhackers, and participated in their first fight. During the winter the regiment arrested the bogus Maryland Legislature at Frederick. They also went to the help of Col. Baker at Ball's Bluff, but were too late to be of any assistance. On Feb. 25, 1862, they left Frederick for the Shenandoah Valley, which they traversed back and forth; first, driving the enemy under Stonewall Jackson, and in turn being driven by him till July. Were at Cedar Mountain, Aug. 9, then on Pope's retreat—battle Rappahannock, Chantilly, second Bull Run—bringing up at Washington about Sept. 1, where Mr. Cutter found himself in hospital, where he was a month, during which the battle of Antietam was fought, the only time he was away from any engagement the regiment was in. Passed the winter of 1862-63 in Maryland and Virginia; principally at Stafford Court House, Va., in camp from the last of January till April 27, when they started for Chancellorsville, in which action they were hotly engaged. May 6, 1863, they brought up again in the old camp at Stafford C. H. June 9, they participated in the cavalry fight at Beverly Ford, and thence marched to Gettysburg. In Aug. 1863, with other picked troops, they were sent to New York to suppress the draft riots. In the fall of 1863, their corps, with the 11th, were sent West under Gen. Hooker, to assist Gen. Thomas at Chattanooga. Christmas day, 1863, the regiment reenlisted and started for Wisconsin. They rejoined the army early in February, 1864, in Tennessee, where they hunted bushwhackers, guarded railroads, &c., till May, when they started under Sherman in the Atlanta campaign. Were in the battles of Resaca, New Hope Church, Peach Tree Creek, &c., besides constant fighting in the intrenchments at Atlanta from July 23 to Sept. 2, when they occupied the city. After the evacuation of Atlanta, they started on the famous "March to the Sea." Got in front of Savannah Dec. 10, and occupied the city the 21st. Laid at Savannah till Jan. 12, when they started through South Carolina. March 16, battle of Averysboro'—19, battle of Bentonville. Got to Goldsboro' May 20, and to Raleigh April 10. While here Johnston surrendered, and on the 30th they left Raleigh on their homeward march. May 19, they reached Alexandria. 23d and 24th, grand review of the whole army. June 11, they left Washington for Louisville, Ky., where the Western troops were mustered out. July 20, were mustered out, and next day left for Wisconsin. Arrived at Madison July 23, and were paid and finally discharged Aug. 28.

After his father's death he assumed the charge of the grist-mill. His mother continued to occupy the old mill-house some two or three years, when he married and dwelt there himself. In the year 1801, he went to Demarara, West Indies, and built a mill to grind sugarcane by horse-power. After his return home he built a wind-mill in Medford for grinding grain. Soon after going to Canada, he built a wind-mill for the same purpose, and returning to Medford became one of the earliest fishermen in the Mystic river. In 1803 he paid sixty-five dollars for the right of fishing near the "Dike" or "Labor in Vain," and in addition to this pursuit, he often piloted vessels between Medford and Boston. He owned lighters and transported brick to the city, some of which are now seen in the buildings on Central Wharf and Dr. Sharp's Church. From 1809 to 1811, he was Captain of the famous Medford Light Infantry, a company long respected for its efficiency and excellence in martial manceuvre.* In 1810, having purchased the old grist-mill of Caleb Richardson, in Woburn, he built a new structure with two run of stone, which he improved until his death. In 1817, he built a grist-mill in North Chelsea, run by tide-water, which was occupied by his sons until the year 1830, when they sold the estate and removed to Winchester. Capt. “Our obituary list this evening reports the sudden death of Mr. W. F. Cutter, the highly esteemed secretary and treasurer of Mr. Fiske's Dramatic Company. The death of this estimable gentleman is deeply deplored by all who enjoyed the pleasure of his acquaintance. Mr. Cutter was a native of Medford, Mass., but has been well known in Halifax for several years, and he enjoyed the friendship of many of our citizens. He had achieved considerable eminence as an actor, but having lost his voice during two or three years past had been obliged to forego the practice of his profession. The deceased was amiable as he was witty, accomplished as he was manly, and independent as he was honest and truthful. Peace to his memory.”—Halifax Evening Reporter.

7. Louise Jane,⁸ b. 15 Aug. 1835; d. in Medford, Aug. 1, 1854, aged 19. Louise J. Cutter during a period of three years was a welcome contributor to the press, her stories and poems finding an honored station in the publications of the day; and had her life been continued to her, she would have been a writer of great excellence. She was brought up with few advantages of education and few extraneous incentives to the cultivation of her mind, but the genius which was in her could not be repressed. At the age of fifteen she wove her first poem. This elicited the voice of commendation, and was shortly followed by other articles both in song and prose. In health, writing was her favorite pursuit, and afterwards when illness had laid its blighting hand upon her frame, she still strove to breathe forth the earnest thoughts which filled her soul. With a nature deeply moral, everything she wrote was imbued with a pervading sentiment of the Good and True. Scorning deceit and treachery, every creation of her mind taught the final triumph of virtue over the machinations of vice, and breathed of the high aims and purposes which swayed her life. She was an ornament to the home that enshrined her. Life for her had many charms, and her last illness was deeply and peculiarly affecting. Her early and mournful death filled the hearts of her many friends with profound grief. To gratify a sacred, dying wish her writings were gathered and offered to the public in a duodecimo volume, entitled Cypress Leaves, containing her portrait and a biography by Mrs. Mary W. Janvrin—published in Boston in 1856. From this volume are taken the following—the last essays of her pen:—

THE DEAD PET.

My pretty bird! my bright, beautiful canary, with its twinkling eyes of jet, and its velvety feathers of pale, whitish gold! he lay quietly in my open hand, and closed his tiny eyes never to open them more.

My darling bird! how fast the tears rolled down my cheeks as I watched him die. To be sure he was nothing but a bird, but then for years the little creature has been my pet cherished and loved, because his life depended on my watchful care. His golden warblings have many months made sunshine in my sick-room, cheering its loneliness, and making the dreary hours pass less wearily. He was given me by a darling brother, and I loved him the more fondly for that dear one's sake. His pretty songs, caroled so sweetly in the sunshine, seemed almost like the voice of the absent one, and as they fell on my ear, they awoke pleasant memories of hours which have faded in the shadows that fall from the broad wings of time. All through the long days, when the sunlight played over the floor and when the dark storm filled the room with gloomy dimness, his merry voice rang through the house, making music for our hearts, and driving away every shadow of gloom.

Is it a wonder that I wept when I saw his sparkling eyes grow dim? Is it a wonder that my heart grew sad with grief when I saw him lying in my hand, silent and dead?

Dear little pet! his cage hangs in its accustomed place, but it is empty. The golden form that sprang so gracefully from wire to wire will flutter there no more. The music voice that floated on the air in melody, that mingled with the children's gleeful songs, and rang forth with new sweetness when they caressed him with loving words, will never more make sunshine in the house. My sick-room hath lost the charm that soothed its silent weariness; it hath lost the golden tones that made it bright and sunny. Sweet little pet, thy songs are ended; thy cherished form will grace its little cage no more.

Take, take the empty cage away,
The bird will sing no more;
He hath charmed my ear for many a day,
He hath blessed my heart with each dear lay,
But all his songs are o'er.

The sunshine will not gleam again
Upon his pretty head;
I'll hear no more the golden strain
That bound me in its sunny chain;
My little pet is dead.

THE LAST WISH.

Let me hear the song of the summer birds,
That is hushed in the wildwood now,
Let me feel the touch of the summer breeze
Once more on my heated brow.
Let me feel once more through my lattice come
The rose and the violet's breath,
Let me see the flowers and the springing grass,
Ere I sleep in the arms of death.

The wail of the Northern wind goes by
With a cold and dreary sound,
And the winter's sheet of glistening snow
Lies white on the frozen ground.
But the summer I know will soon come back
With its sunshine of birds and flowers,
And oh! I long for its gentle breath,
I long for its quiet hours.

The crimson flush is on my cheek,
The brightness in my eye,
The dark seal set upon my brow
That bringeth death's cold sigh.
But I know the Saviour's open arms
Will take me to his breast,
And his gentle smile beam on me there
In the land of eternal rest.

I know that His mansions are bright and fair,
That His tones are peace and love,
And while I sigh for the home on earth,
I long for the home above.
My heart beats fainter each passing hour,
My dream of life is o'er,
And I shall soon be in that better land
With the loved ones gone before.

But I long to hear the pleasant sounds
Which the wildwood warblers pour,
And to gaze on the soft blue skies again
Ere I go to return no more.
I long to see the violets bloom,
The wildrose and the thyme,
To hear soft winds go whispering by,
To die in summer time.

John Cutter came to Jaffrey in 1789, soon after his marriage, and commenced business as a tanner in the establishment afterwards occupied by his son, B. Cutter, Esq., but since demolished. He was a person of singular energy of character, and by industry, frugality, and strict honesty, acquired not only a comfortable subsistence, but a competency. He was among the first who openly avowed faith in God's impartial grace and salvation, and for many years was considered the pillar of the Universalist Society in Jaffrey. His house was always the home for the ministers who came in town; where they ever found a welcome, both by him and his excellent companion. He died in Jaffrey, Sept. 14, 1835. Mrs. Cutter was one of the excellent of the earth. Her whole life, long and useful, was characterized by strict integrity, virtuous principle, and a Christian walk. She retained her physical and mental faculties in a remarkable degree up to the very close of her earthly pilgrimage. Patient, trustful and hopeful, she met death with calmness. She was the mother of twelve children, fifty grandchildren, and a large number of great-grandchildren. Six of her children and twenty-six of her grandchildren were living at the time of her death. Mr. Cutter was the first person in Jaffrey who kept accounts in Federal money. His issue:

MY MOUNTAIN HOME.

O, how I love my mountain home!
 Each rock, each tree, each flower!
 The bleak wind, with its wildest tone,
 Can soothe my saddest hour.
 I've gazed upon Monadnock's form,
 High towering toward the sky,
 Bathed in the rosy light of morn,
 In sunset's purple dye.
 I've looked and looked, and wondered how
 One soul could view it there,
 And yet refuse to humbly bow
 To the great God in prayer.
 When yet a tiny, tottering child
 I first the green earth scanned,
 Toward it I sprang with wonder wild,
 And stretched my infant hand;
 Not knowing but its feeble grasp
 Could span the mountain wide,
 And bring it with one childish clasp
 A plaything to my side.
 In after days I learned to climb
 Its steep and rugged rock,
 And wonder how it had sustained
 Time's devastating shock.
 The dear old Mount, I love it well!
 The genius of my home;
How dear nor tongue nor pen may tell,
 Wherever I may roam.

PROGENY OF JOHN CUTTER.

273

'Tis the first sight that greets my eyes,
 Returning from afar;
 And as it looms up towards the skies,
 It is my guiding star.
 It leads me to the sweet bright land
 Where my dear loved ones dwell—
 A laughing, joyous, happy band,
 Bound by a magic spell.
 Yes, 'tis a magic spell that binds
 The heart to kindred heart,
 And when are severed kindred minds
 The scalding tear-drops start.
 The fount of life seems gushing up,
 And flowing fast away;
 We deeply drink the bitter cup,
 Nor wish on earth to stay.
 My childhood's home! my mountain home!
 Precious thou art to me!
 And o'er the wide earth if I roam,
 My soul will yearn for thee.

HAPPINESS.

Long as the wheels of Time have rolled
 Their annual circuit round,
 So long has Happiness been sought,
 But sought, and rarely found.

Once on a time, when gentle sleep
 Had closed my weary eyes,
 With spirit's wing unbound, I soared
 To find the far-off prize.

First to a kingly court I went,
 Where all were glad and gay;
 And where amid the festive mirth
 They pass their life away.

Amid the splendor I had thought
 That Happiness dwelt there,
 But soon, indeed, I learned the truth—
 'Twas all as false as fair.

I saw a miser count his gold,
 And thought I'd find it there;
 But on his furrow'd brow I traced
 The marks of wasting care.

Fame next allured, with syren tongue,
 And held the wished-for prize;
 Thousands and thousands hurried on
 With wonder-gazing eyes.

But when they reached it was not there,
 Still farther on it flew,
 'Mid gathering darkness and 'mid clouds,
 Receding from their view.

A beauty now had met my eye,
 A being sylph-like, fair;
 I thought my search was at an end—
 But, ah, it was not there.

The rose is beauteous to behold
 Beneath the dews of morn,
 Its perfume floating on the air—
 But it conceals a thorn.

Once more I looked, ere hope had fled;
 My search was not in vain;
 I found it in its only form—
 Religion was its name.

- iii. ADALIZA,⁷ b. 21 Jan. 1823; m. Gurley A. Phelps, M.D., April 10, 1851, and d. in Jaffrey, June 3, 1852. Dr. Phelps is a native of Vermont and graduated from the Castleton Medical College in 1848. He began practice at Hancock, Vt., and removed to Jaffrey in 1849, where he still continues. Issue:—Grace Mina, b. Jaffrey, 12 April, 1852.

Like her sister Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Phelps left poetical manuscripts, from which a published volume was selected, forming a neat duodecimo of some 300 pages, embellished with her portrait, and dedicated by the husband of the author to her parents, "in view of the great influence she ascribed to them in her education, and in the formation of her general character." The collection was published and offered to the public at the earnest request of friends after her decease. The introductory sketch, from the pen of her husband, describes her as one whose nature "was impulsive, and being moved with a restless fire, she burst forth in the poet's song a simple expression of what she lived, she felt." She wrote not "to be admired, but to be loved." "Joyful and happy in the midst of friends," she felt "with keenest anguish a frown, or unkind look or word." "She lived in smiles or in tears, and her love of whatever was noble and pure and worthy, was only equalled by her resentment and abhorrence of whatever was impure, low, mean, or degrading." Her most considerable poem, "The Life of Christ," is a work of much merit. Two of her fugitive pieces are here presented. The first is descriptive of herself and sisters; the other—her last effort—was written a few weeks previous to her early and lamented death.

THE THREE SISTERS.

Three little girls! I see them still
As when in happy years ago,
They bounded o'er the green, green hill
Or by the silvery streamlet's flow;
The eldest has a thoughtful mien,
A deep, full, spiritual eye,
That oftimes earnestly is seen
Turned upward to its native sky.
The next one is a gentle girl,
Mild as the summer evening air,
With many a soft and golden curl
Clustering around her forehead fair.
The youngest is a careless child,
Mocking the birds upon the tree,
Birds that are not more gay and wild,
Or bear more tameless hearts than she.

Three little maidens! there they stand,
Revealed unto my spirit's gaze,
Heart clasped to heart, hand linked in hand,
As in those joyous by-gone days.
The eldest—we should know her well,
The thoughtful child, the pensive maiden,
The classic brow, the bright eye tell
The wealth with which the soul is laden.
The gentle girl, who won the love
Of all, with her sweet winning grace,
Is still the dearly cherished dove,
With guileless heart and angel face.
The youngest and the gayest one,
Her merry laugh so silvery clear,
From rising to the setting sun,
Rings out like music on the ear.

Three happy school girls—side by side,
 I see them toiling upward now,
 Up where perennial waters glide,
 To lave their weary, burning brow.
 The eldest upward, upward still,
 Lured onward by some mystic finger,
 Tireless ascends the classic hill;
 Below, below, she may not linger.

While by her side that gentle creature
 Glides like a living thing of light,
 With calm joy mirrored on each feature,
 She sips the bubbling waters bright,
 The youngest one is still all gladness,
 Joy dances still in her blue eye.
 Oh, it will need stern scenes of sadness,
 To cause that bounding heart a sigh.

Where are they now? alas, they're parted,
 Those happy loving sisters three,
 The youngest has grown sadder hearted,
 Alone beneath the household tree,
 She misses them, and oh, how sadly!
 Her heart companions from her side,
 Voices that thrilled her soul so gladly,
 Like music on her ear have died.

That middle star, so mildly gleaming,
 Has gone to light another's hearth,
 With eyes of love all gently beaming
 On one who knoweth well her worth;
 That pure white brow is touched by sorrow,
 Which left a holy impress there,
 And from the skies has seemed to borrow
 Looks which we dream the angels wear.

The eldest—she, alas! is lying
 A tenant of the peaceful tomb.
 She heedeth not the wind's low sighing,
 Or flowers that round her bud and bloom.
 She heedeth not the young bird singing,
 His wild and thrilling roundelay,
 The tide of music round her ringing
 From every green and dewy spray.
 She heedeth not the heart's wild anguish,
 Of those she left in sorrow here,
 She knoweth not how oft they languish,
 And shed the bitter, burning tear.
 She knoweth not how much they miss her
 At morning, and when day is done,
 Or how she longs to sleep beside her
 The youngest, and the saddest one.

MY CHILD.

Sweet little blossom of my heart,
 Born with the April birds and flowers,
 Tears of delicious rapture start
 To think that thou, indeed, art ours.

Our own most precious gift from Heaven,
 A living, breathing soul divine,
 A priceless gem the Saviour's given,
 To fashion in his crown to shine.

I look into thy soul-lit eye,
 Just opened to my earnest gaze,
 Soft as the blue of yonder sky,
 And mild as summer evening rays.

I gaze upon thy velvet cheek,
 Upon thy fair and spotless brow,
 And joy, no human tongue can speak,
 I feel to be a mother now.

A mother! O! what holy ties
Now bind this trembling, happy heart;
Aid me, O Saviour, from the skies,
And faith, and hope, and love impart.

O for a faith to lay my child,
My priceless treasure at thy feet,
Pure as the snow-drop, undefiled,
I feel she is an offering meet.

O for a hope thou wilt receive,
And bless the gift to thee I bring,
My treasure on thy breast I leave,
Round her thine arms, O Saviour, fling.

O for a love, a deathless love,
To keep me ever by thy side,
Hourly to look to thee above,
For grace a mother's heart to guide.

Husband, and wife, and child, we come,
To thy kind sheltering arms we flee,
Our hearts, our altar, and our home,
We dedicate our all to thee.

DEPOSITION OF MAJOR JAMES CONVERS.

[Vide page 25 of this work.]

THE original of the following deposition is in the possession of Rev. Lucius R. Paige, D.D., of Cambridge. Major James Convers, of Woburn, distinguished for his resolute defence of Storer's garrison at Wells, died "July y^e 8th, 1706." His father, Ensign James Convers, a valuable and esteemed citizen of Woburn, died May 10, 1715, aged 95. His uncle, Dea. Josiah Convers, died Feb. 3, 1689-90, aged 72. Lieut. Matthew Johnson, "late of Woobourne," mentioned herein, was a son of Capt. Edward Johnson, author of "The Wonder Working Providence of Sion's Saviour in New England," and died July 19, 1696. The foregoing are particularly mentioned in Sewall's History of Woburn, recently published. For further notice of Major Convers, see Mather's Magnalia, Hutchinson's Hist. Mass., Belknap's Hist. New Hampshire, &c.

James Convers aged about fifty-two years being sworne doth say that he very well remembers the mill that stood upon the brook at a place called Menotome in Cambridge bounds, which mill, when it was in being, was called Captⁿ Cooks Mill.

I, this deponent, also do know very well that the said mill was demolished a considerable time before John Ralph bought that place and so were the other buildings, except some small ruins thereof were to be seen when said Ralph came there to live, and the said John Ralph built the mill that is now there standing and the hous and the barne, and the said Ralph bought the timber for the wheels, the Irons for said mill and the millstones of this deponants father and his uncle Josiah Convers, and that Lt. Matthew Johnson late of Woobourne built the said mill for said Ralph that is to say he did the millwright worke thereof, and this deponent did worke at the said mill and dwelling hous, for the afors^d John Ralph, who payd him honestly for the same, and this mill and hous is the same that is now in controversie between Mr. Cothoo [Carthew?] attorney to Mr. Quick and William Cutter.

Sworne in Court Jan^y 28 1696-7.

* This Bible is in the writer's possession. Dr. Benjamin Cutter procured it many years since from Mrs. Anne (Cutter) Brown [Vide vi. 3], to whom it had descended through her ancestors. The writer has also an ancient plan showing a survey of the lands bequeathed by William Cutter to his sons Richard, John, William and Samuel. This plan was probably delineated about 1725, by the youngest son, Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, afterwards minister of North Yarmouth. No inscription appears to explain.

The following Covenant was solemnly entered into by the several members, being publicly read, and subscribed by the males, the females giving their consent, by standing up, as their names were called.

The Church Covenant.

We, whose names are underwritten, apprehending ourselves to be called of God to gather into a church state, or into a christian society for mutual communion, and for the regular settlement of the ordinances of Christ amongst us; Do in a humble sense of our unworthiness of such a favour and unfitness for such a service, knowing our liableness to err and our proneness to backslide, and renouncing all confidence in ourselves and resting on the Lord Jesus Christ the Head of the Church for help and grace,—Covenant before God and with one another in manner following: (viz.)

I. We receive the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, as given by inspiration of God, and as the only sure and sufficient Rule of faith and practice, Declaring and promising that by the help of Divine grace We Do and Will endeavour at all times to regulate our faith and our conduct of ourselves, both towards God and towards one another according to what we find taught and revealed therein.

II. We recognize the Covenant of Grace, that we in a publick and solemn manner entered into, humbly imploring the pardoning mercy of God, through the blood of Christ, for all our violations thereof; and do, renewedly, give up ourselves to God through the mediator, devoting ourselves to his fear and service, depending upon his power and grace for all the assistance we need, and promising by the help of the Divine Spirit, to order our conversation so as will adorn the Doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

III. We do likewise now give up ourselves to one another in the Lord, resolving by his help to treat each other, as fellow members of one body in brotherly love and holy watchfulness, for mutual edification; and to subject ourselves to all the holy administrations appointed by him who is the head of the Church, dispensed according to the rules of the Gospel; and to give our constant attendance on all the public ordinances of Christ, walking orderly as becometh Saints.

IV. We acknowledge our posterity to be included with us in the Gospel Covenant and blessing God for so rich a favour, Do promise to bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and to acknowledge and treat them in their covenant according to the Rules of the Gospel.

V. Furthermore, we promise our utmost care and diligent endeavour to have all such offices and officers as Christ has appointed for the edification of his church settled and continued amongst us: and that we will do our duty faithfully for their maintenance and encouragement, and carry it towards them with that respect and honour that becometh us.

VI. Finally we acknowledge and promise to preserve communion with the faithful churches of Christ, for giving and receiving mutual counsel and assistance, in all cases that may call for it; Declaring that according to our light and understanding we are of the same principles for substance with the churches of New England respecting their doctrines and their government, and that we will endeavour to preserve the faith and the order of the Gospel among us.

Now the good Lord be merciful to us, and as he hath put it into our hearts thus to devote ourselves to him, let him pity and pardon our frailties, humble us out of all carnal confidence, and keep these things forever upon our hearts, to his own glory and our present peace & comfort and our future and eternal happiness, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever. AMEN.

REV. SAMUEL COOKE.

The writer is indebted to the late Miss Anne Bradshaw for the use of Rev. Mr. Cooke's private papers.

Rev. Samuel Cooke, in whom were united the "social friend," the "man of science," the "eminent and faithful clergyman," whose "praise was in all the churches," was ordained the first minister of the Second Precinct in Cambridge, now Arlington, Sept. 12, 1739, and died June 4, 1783, in the seventy-fifth year of his age, and the forty-fourth of his ministry. He was a native of Hadley, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard College in the class of 1735; was distinguished by his good sense and prudence, and for his ardent patriotism. Nov. 12, 1758, he preached a sermon upon the occasion of the return of Capt. Adams and company from the French war, with the loss of only a single man. He preached the "Election Sermon" of 1770—which was printed*—a discourse whose patriotic sentiments "came home to men's business and bosoms." He rebuked tyranny and oppression, and at his suggestion a bill to prevent the importation of slaves from Africa into the province was passed in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, but owing to troublous times it seems to have gone no further. Slavery practically was abolished in this Commonwealth in 1781, ten years afterwards. A sermon of his at the ordination of C. Brown, 1748; of W. Symmes, 1759, and a sermon for a memorial of the Lexington battle, preached in 1777, were published.

At the commencement of the Revolutionary conflict in 1775, when Mr. Cooke was nearly seventy years old, he was a marked man, because he had been so out-spoken in the cause of freedom. The parsonage where he dwelt—the recent residence of his granddaughter, the late Miss Bradshaw—was pierced by British bullets during the retreat from Lexington, and was used as a hospital after the battle. On the day of the action he was ready with his encouragement, and with counsel and comfort for the distressed and afflicted. When the enemy approached Menotomy in full retreat before the arms of the victorious provincials, his spirit was stirred within him, and he longed to bear a part in the fray; but his son Samuel took the old gentleman, much against his will, into a chaise, and carried him away to a place of safety.

In 1778 Mr. Cooke wrote the genealogical and historical account of himself and his family here presented. It was written in a small pocket diary, and reads substantially as follows.

Cambridge, Second Precinct, April 8th, 1778.

Samuel Cooke, born in Hadley January 11th, 1709, was the son of Mr. Samuel and Mrs. Anne Cooke; the grandson on his father's side to Aaron Cooke, Esq., and Sarah Cooke; and the great-grandson of Major Cooke, of Northampton, and of William and Sarah Westwood, of Hadley, who came from Old England. These arrived with their families at Cambridge, N. E., in 1634 or 1635, and removing with others settled at Hartford. About the year 1650, they with others removed up Connecticut river, and began new settlements—Major Cooke at Northampton, and Mr. Westwood at Hadley.† My grand-

* This sermon was preached in Cambridge, in the audience of his "Honor Thomas Hutchinson, Esq., Lieut. Governor and Commander in Chief; the Honorable His Majesty's Council, and the Honorable House of Representatives of the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England, May 30th, 1770.—Being the Anniversary for the Election of His Majesty's Council for the said Province." This sermon has been reprinted, with illustrative notes, &c., in Thornton's Pulpit of the American Revolution, pp. 147-186.

† Sylvester Judd, Esq., the well-known historian of Hadley, in a letter to the late Rev. Samuel Sewall, of Burlington, Mass. (April 6, 1846), says this genealogical account contains some mistakes which show how early and easily tradition runs into error. It may be justly supposed the writer relied entirely on his memory when at a very advanced age he wrote concerning matters, some of which occurred well nigh a century before he was father Aaron Cooke married Sarah, only child of said William and Sarah Westwood, removed to Hadley, lived with his father-in-law, and upon his death, which was not long after, in right of said wife became entitled to the whole of Mr. Westwood's estate—left in England—at Hartford—and in Hadley. The estate in England after some time my grandfather sold, but employing a knave, lost it. The estate at Hartford he gave to his son Aaron. That in Hadley to his sons Westwood and Samuel, and to his son Moses his estate from his own father in Northampton. He died 1716, aged 76. He had eight children: viz., Sarah, married to Daniel Hovey; Joanna, to Samuel Porter; Aaron, at Hartford; Westwood, Samuel and Moses, all married at Hadley; Elizabeth, married to Ichabod Smith, and Bridget, married to John Bernard. These had all large families, and all survived my grandfather, except Joanna, who died in 1712, soon after the birth of her eighteenth living child. My grandmother Sarah Cooke died 1730, aged 87.* My father Samuel Cooke, about the year 1698, married Anne Marsh, daughter of Mr. Jonathan and Mrs. Dorcas Marsh, of Hadley. Besides three which died in infancy, seven of their children had families: viz., Anne, married to Aaron Cooke; Sarah, to Timothy (Emmons?); Hannah, to William Dickinson; Samuel; Mehitable, to Jonathan Smith; Miriam, to Josiah Pierce; and Jonathan. All survived our parents except Hannah. She buried six children in infancy, and her husband in 1741; she was left with two sons—six and two years old,—and returned with her children to my father's house, where she died in 1745, aged 39. My father died September 16, 1746, aged 76. My mother died March, 1758, aged 77.

My father by his will left his homestead at my mother's decease wholly to my brother Jonathan in lieu of my education. The rest of his estate was equally to be divided between my brother and me—we paying legacies to our sisters.

I began to learn Latin in 1720, but being then the only son I was called off to the farm till a brother, born almost out of season, and growing, allowed me to resume my study in the year 1729. I entered Harvard College in 1731—had my first degree, 1735—kept school part of a year at Roxbury—one year and a part was in the College Buttery—Nov. 1737, went to Col. Royall's, Medford, for a year to instruct his son—and in 1738 returned to College. I then preached six months at Marlborough, and six at Roxbury and Menotomy. In May, 1739, born. Mr. Judd asserts, from written authentic sources, that Major Cooke settled first in Dorchester and removed thence to Windsor; whereas William Westwood settled first at Cambridge, and removed thence to Hartford, and was at Cambridge three or four years before 1634-5. He further declares Westwood could not have removed to Hadley and Maj. Cooke to Northampton about 1630, for the settlement of Hadley was not begun until 1659, and Northampton till 1654. Moreover, they removed up the river in 1660-1, and Westwood's wife was Bridget, not Sarah. (Vide Hist. Hadley, 594, and Savage, G. Dict.)

* "Mr. Westwood died in 1669, and his wife in 1676; the will of each is on record in Hadley, with the inventory of his estate; there is no allusion to any property in England, which must have been sold—and lost, perhaps—before his death. He had no estate in Northampton, and Aaron Cooke, of Hadley, had no estate in Northampton 'from his own father.' His father gave him some estate at Windsor, where he married Sarah Westwood in 1661. Mr. Cooke has arranged the children of his grandfather according to their birth. Sarah married, I have supposed, Thomas Hovey, not Daniel. Joanna, who married Samuel Porter, may have had eighteen children, but the Hadley record has noted only 14."—Letter of Mr. Judd.

The able and interesting History of Hadley makes frequent and honorable mention of Westwood and his son-in-law, Cooke, and presents a genealogy of their descendants.

I received a call to settle in the ministry in this place. In July, I gave my answer, and on September 12, 1739, I was ordained the first minister of this Second Precinct in Cambridge.*

The Church was gathered the preceding Sabbath by the Rev. John Hancock, of Lexington, and consisted of eighty-three members—eighty of which were from the Cambridge Church, and three had belonged to other churches. I boarded the first year in the family of Mr. Joseph Adams, at 10s. per week—silver being then 26s. per ounce.

On May 12, 1740, I bought one acre of ground of Mr. Jason Russell for house, which was raised July 17, at the expense of the people.—The frame being given, and the cellar and well dug and stoned gratis, and the boards and shingles carted from Sudbury and Billerica free of charge to me.

I married Oct. 2, 1740, Miss Sarah Porter, daughter of Mr. Samuel and Mrs. Anne Porter, of Hadley, and on Oct. 16, I brought her to my house.† On Aug. 2, 1741, a son was born to us, and on the 9th he was baptized Samuel, and on the 14th inst. Samuel died. On the 22d the mother died, both dying of the throat distemper. My sister Miriam (now Pierce) kindly came and kept my house.

I married September 23, 1742, Anna Cotton, daughter of the Rev. Mr. John and Mrs. Mary Cotton, of Newtown. On the 30th she came home. On July 10, 1743, a daughter was born, and on the same day was baptized Anna.‡ On the 14 July, 1745, twins were born, and baptized the same day Samuel§ and Elizabeth. On May 15, 1747, a daughter born and was baptized the 17th, Mary. On Aug. 9, 1750, another daughter was born, who was baptized the 12th, Sarah.|| A son was born 29 March, 1752, who the same day was baptized Samuel.¶ (N. B. The foregoing in Old Stile.) 1754, April 17, a daughter born, baptized Hannah Gibbs. 1755, Oct. 17, a daughter born, lived one hour. 1756, November 30, a daughter still born. On Dec. 29, 1758, a daughter was born, and was baptized on the 30th, Rebecca.

* In 1732 the inhabitants of the northwesterly part of Cambridge were by an act of the Legislature formed into a distinct and separate precinct.—Holmes, Hist. Cambridge.

Menotomy, or the Northwest Precinct in Cambridge, included a part of the upper part of Charlestown, afterwards annexed to West Cambridge, now Arlington.

† “Cambridge, 27th Sept. 1740. These may certify whom it may concern that the purpose of marriage between the Rev. Mr. Samuel Cooke of Cambridge, and Mrs. Sarah Porter of Hadley has been entered and published in Cambridge as the law directs.

AND^r BORDMAN, jun. Town Clerk.”

“Hadley, Oct. 2, 1740. These may certify that the within certified persons were joined in marriage.

GRINDALL RAWSON, Clerk.”

‡ “1765, Oct. 24, joined in marriage by Rev. Sam^l Cooke, Ezekiel Hall, of Medford, and Anna Cooke, of Cambridge. 1766, July 17, Medford, born Ezekiel Hall.”

§ Died Aug. 21, 1745, after a “distressing sore mouth of 30 days.”

|| Married Rev. Jonathan Burr, July 19, 1787. Died March 9, 1788.

¶ The following acrostic probably refers to him:

Save, Lord, this tender son of ours,
A son whom thou didst give,
May he not die in tender hours,
Unto thy praise still live.
Each day commended to thy care,
Let him thy tender mercies share.

Christ in his arms did infants take,
Of saving grace may this partake.
O earthly blessings needful, shine,
Keep from every hurtful snare,
Ever guided by thy watchful care.

 Married Henry Bradshaw, of Watertown, June 3, 1781.

(N. B. She was heard some weeks before her birth by the whole family and others, distinctly to cry for some minutes without possibility of mistake.) 1761, Jan. 16, a daughter stillborn,—February 12, my wife Anna died, aged 38, after having been mother of eleven children; seven survived her, but must follow.

I married 25 Nov. 1762, Mrs. Lucy, relict of the late Rev. Nicholas Bowes, of Bedford, and daughter of the late Rev. John and Elizabeth Hancock, of Lexington. On Sept. 21, 1768, my wife Lucy died, aged 56, after years of sore distress from the gravel.

My daughter Rebecca died 2 Feb. 1778, aged 19—after eight months distress from the effects of the small pox, which she bore with inimitable patience and even surprising calmness. She seldom from her birth was out of temper, and rarely cried but from tenderness for others.

Few families have met with more and greater change by Death in equal time. But let us not tarry then—it is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed—the father is continued, and lives parted in old age. Seven out of thirteen remain. Let us prepare to follow—be ye also ready.

The remainder is by another hand, as follows :

1783, June 4, 3 o'clock, morn, died the Rev'd Sam'l Cooke of the dropsy, aged 74.

1784, Feb. 13, died Miss Elizabeth Cooke of a consumption, aged 38.

1785, Sept. 22, died Miss Elizabeth Hall, aged 19 yrs.

1787, June 23, died Mrs. Anna Hall, 44.

1788, March 9, died Mrs. Sally Burr.

1789, Sept. 11, died Mr. Ezekiel Hall, aged 48 yrs.

1793, Jan. 24, Monday, $\frac{1}{2}$ past four o'clock, P. M., died Mrs. Hannah G. Bradshaw, aged 38, of consumption.

1795, Jan. 2, Mr. Samuel Cooke died suddenly at Boston, 9 o'clock in the evening. 1796, Aug. 31, at Charleston, S. C., died Mr. John Hall, aged 22 years, son of Mr. Ezekiel and Mrs. Anna Hall.

1793, June 7, Mr. Henry Bradshaw died at Boston, 12 past 3 o'clock in the morn, of an apoplexy.

Rev. Sam'l Cooke's Abstract of Births, Baptisms, Deaths and Marriages in figures Statistical, 1739-1783.

The admissions to the church during Rev. Samuel Cooke's ministry were 224, besides 121 by covenant and 3 by letter. The dismissals were 13. In addition to the record of these, Mr. Cooke kept a register of the births, baptisms, deaths and marriages in his parish from Sept. 12, 1739, to his death, June 4, 1783. This was continued by his successor, Rev. Thaddeus Fiske, and has been valuable in compiling the foregoing work. The abstract or summary here presented was prepared by Rev. Mr. Cooke.

REV. THADDEUS FISKE, D.D.

REV. THADDEUS FISKE, D.D., graduated at Harvard College in 1785, and died in Charlestown, Nov. 14, 1855, aged 93. He was the son of Jonathan and Abigail Fiske, was born at Weston, June 22, 1762, and was at the time of his death the oldest clergyman in Massachusetts. He was ordained pastor of the Second Parish in Cambridge (Arlington), April 23, 1788, and resigned his charge April 23, 1828. He preached upwards of twelve hundred sermons to his flock during his ministry; attended and officiated at the funerals of six hundred and sixty-six persons; baptized seven hundred and forty-nine; joined in marriage three hundred and eighty-six couples, and admitted two hundred and eighty-eight persons to the church, including those professing religion by owning their covenant. It is remarkable he lived to see five clergymen successively ordained over this society, three of whom passed off the stage before him, viz.: Rev. David Damon, died June 25, 1843, aged 55; Rev. William Ware, Feb. 19, 1852, aged 54; and Rev. James F. Brown, June 14, 1853, aged 32. In 1821, the degree of D.D. was conferred upon Dr. Fiske by Columbia College, New York. A few months before his death he removed from West Cambridge to Charlestown to reside with a relative in the latter place, where he passed the remaining days of his life. A beautiful monument indicates the spot of his burial in the old grave-yard at Arlington.

Dr. Fiske married, June 17, 1789, Lucy, daughter of Rev. Jonas Clark, of Lexington. She died March 9, 1855, aged 88. Their issue:—1. HORATIO HANCOCK, b.

Rev. Dr. Fiske's Resignation.

May 5th, 1828. The Rev. Dr. Fiske having previously signified his wish to the Parish to resign the Pastoral office, he was this day regularly dismissed by vote of the Parish. The Parish, at the same time, gave an affectionate and respectful testimonial of the good character and long and faithful services of their Pastor. For a full account of all the proceedings relative to the resignation of Dr. Fiske, see the Parish Records.

May 14, 1828.—At a meeting of the Church—chose Jeduthan Wellington moderator and Miles Gardner Clerk pro tem. On motion voted unanimously that the following resolve be accepted and a copy of the same given to the Rev. Doct. Fiske—viz. :

To all whom these presents may come. Whereas it has become expedient for reasons stated in a communication made to the church and congregation of West Cambridge, by the Rev. Dr. Fiske, Pastor of said Church, that his pastoral relation be dissolved by mutual consent and that Mr. Miles Gardner, the Parish Clerk, be a committee from the church to express to him the due sense we have of his long and faithful services among us and the deep regret we feel that existing circumstances should dissolve a union which has been so endearing to us by time. And during forty years of his ministry he has maintained a fair character as a man and as a christian in the performance of his various and arduous duties: and has been an example of the believer in word, in conversation, in faith, in benevolence, in humility, in purity and in piety. And it is our ardent and fervent wish that his life may be prolonged to do good; that the infirmities of age may rest upon him with joy and hope, And that many blessings and comforts may attend him in his retirement from his pastoral labours among us.

West Cambridge, May 14, 1828.

1828, May 26. Mr. Miles Gardner chosen Deacon. After the death of Dea. John Adams, Ephraim Cutter assisted Dea. Frost in his duties, and, at some time not recorded, was chosen deacon and served as such till his death March 31, 1841. [Vide Cutter Hist., v. §2, 9.]

Apr. 8, 1841. Voted that Bros. Emerson Parks and Henry Whittemore make provision for the communion and till a deacon or deacons be chosen.

1829, May 20. Frederic H. Hedge ordained minister Church and Parish West Cambridge. Dismissed March 9, 1835.

1835, Mh. 13, David Damon was installed. He died [June 25] 1843.

1845, Jan., 2d Sunday, William Ware commenced his ministry without installation services—resigned 1846.

1835, Ap'l 15. Mr. Damon gives a list of 40 communicants—all that belong to said Church “as far as can be ascertained,” and then follows a list of 7 “become communicants by residence among us.”

1845, Jan'y 29. By Wm. Ware. “A record will be kept of births, marriages and deaths as heretofore, but no sufficient reason appears why a record should be made of church meetings, as during the last ministry (Mr. Damon's), any further than shall be necessary to explain an alteration in the constitution of the Church unanimously adopted by the present members to-day.”

The pastor stated that he wished to meet the members of the Church and see if some change could not be effected in the manner in which Christians are admitted to the Lord's Supper. The proposition was readily agreed to, and they came together twice for the purpose. At these two meetings—the principles on which Christians were at present received to communion, and that on which it was believed they ought to be, were fully discussed, and it was unanimously resolved that hereafter “All persons should be considered members in full communion of the First Church of Christ in West Cambridge who should subscribe their names to a profession of faith in Jesus Christ.”

[1847, Aug. 10. Some have communed with the church on the strength of this resolve, but there is no evidence in the Church records of any subscription as above proposed.—B. CUTTER.]

1848, Nov. 1. James F. Brown ordained. He died at Springfield, Mass., June 14, 1853, aged 32, and in the fifth year of his ministry at West Cambridge.

1854, June 22. Samuel A. Smith ordained. He died in West Cambridge, May 20, 1865, aged 36, and in the eleventh year of his ministry.

1866, June 7. Charles C. Salter ordained. Resigned Jan. 1869.

1870, Jan. 26. George W. Cutter ordained.

WEST CAMBRIDGE IN 1809.

Extract from “A Discourse, delivered April 23, 1809, completing just Twenty one years from the Author's settlement in the work of the ministry, being the Anniversary day of his Ordination. By Thaddeus Fiske, A.M., Pastor of the Congregational Church and Society in West-Cambridge. Published by Request. Cambridge: Printed by Hilliard and Metcalf, 1809.”

Many changes and events have taken place in this church and congregation, and many alterations and improvements been made in this town, within the term of twenty one years, to the review of which I now proceed. The incidents of our own lives, though trivial in themselves and unimportant to others, are often very interesting and important to ourselves. Almost an entire change has appeared on the face of society here. The inhabitants are in a great measure changed.

Twenty one years ago this place was noticeable for aged people. There were then twenty eight persons from about seventy years and upwards. There is now but four men who have arrived to seventy years. There is one woman,* in her eighty seventh year; and five others who have reached the common term of life. "Your fathers, where are they?" They are gathered to the great congregation. The children have risen up in their stead, and occupy the places they have left. "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh." The members of this church also are mostly changed. But ten males and thirteen females, who then were resident members, now remain among us; they are either dead, or removed to other churches. The church then consisted of twenty six males and thirty one females; thirteen have been removed to other churches, eighty eight still remain. One hundred and fifty one couples have been joined in marriage by your pastor, one or both of which belonged to this parish or town. Four hundred and nineteen have been baptized; † of which number thirty one were adult persons. Three hundred and forty three have died; of this number two lived to the great age of one hundred and one years [Anna Winship, d. Feb. 2, 1806, and Thomas Williams, d. Feb. 5, 1809]; four between ninety and one hundred; nineteen between eighty and ninety; and twenty six between seventy and eighty years; hence fifty one reached or survived seventy years. From this statement it appears, that a proportion of about one in six lived to or beyond the common term of life. Though a temperate, regular and simple mode of living, the mode of former days, rather than the present, may contribute to long life, and one place be more friendly to health than another; yet long life and health are the gift of God. "He it is, that sets the bounds of our habitation, which we cannot pass." Among the deaths above enumerated, there are some, that took place, not by the common laws of mortality, through sickness or decay; ‡ but by suicide and casualty. Three put an end to their own lives; three were killed by falling from carts or waggons; one by falling from a tree; and one by drowning. The two deacons, who were in office at the beginning of the term now under review, lived to a good old age; one seventy nine, the other ninety years. They both died the same month of the same year.§ Our brethren, who succeeded them, and are now in office, we hope will long be continued to us.|| The ministers who assisted in the ordination of your pastor, are all, except

* Mrs. Lucy Cutter, widow of the late Mr. John Cutter, a pious and exemplary christian; for more than sixty eight years a member of this church; still retaining a vigor and strength, both of body and mind, uncommon in old age. [Vide Cutter Hist., p. 46.]

† The average number of baptisms yearly has been about twenty. In 1805 uncommon attention to the ordinance was awakened and excited. This year many whole households were baptized, and increased the number to sixty three. Eighteen adult persons, several of whom were heads of families, consecrated themselves and their children unto God, in this holy ordinance.

‡ The average number of deaths yearly is about fourteen. In the close of the summer of 1802, the dysentery and fever prevailed, and carried off many children and young persons. Thirty six were added to the congregation of the dead. Early in the fall of 1805 the same mortal sickness returned, and increased the average number of deaths to thirty four.

§ Deacon Joseph Adams died May 3, 1794, aged seventy nine. Deacon Thomas Hall died May 29, 1794, aged ninety. They were both chosen into office Dec. 5, 1759, in which they continued more than thirty five years. [Vide Cutter Hist., pp. 51, 88.]

one,* gathered to the congregation of the dead. Thus we see what great and affecting changes take place, within a small compass, in the course of a few years. And if we may judge the future by the past, we may view in prospect what changes and events will be brought to pass, "when a few years are come." Time is hastening to finish my course and yours, and to add us to the number of those that are gone; "a few years more" will close our probationary state, and when we part, it will be to meet not again, until the dead, both small and great, shall stand before God. The gospel will be preached here by another pastor, and new professors of religion will here attend on the ordinances of Christ, and unite in these services and exercises of God's holy worship, after we shall sleep in the dust; for the church must and will abide; it is the constant object of the divine care; and "the gates of hell cannot prevail against it." Of the three hundred and forty three deaths that have taken place in the course of twenty one years, there are many whom you dearly loved, and who live in your constant and affectionate remembrance, whose names cannot be mentioned without tears; for some of them were the dearest members of your families, and your nearest connexions; your fathers or your mothers, your brothers or your sisters, your husbands or your wives, or your dearly beloved children. And some also were among the firmest friends of religion, and the most substantial supporters and pillars of the church and society here. You cannot see them again till the heavens be no more. Let it then be your chief concern to be followers of them, wherein they were followers of Christ, and be prepared to meet them at the right hand of God, in the coming world. Such are the changes and events, that have taken place in this church and congregation. Let us now take a view of the alterations and improvements, that make a distinction in our favor, as a society and town.

Compare your situation now, to what it was twenty one years ago. Then you had troublesome times. You had been destitute of a minister almost five years, without stated preaching on the sabbath, and without the regular administration of the ordinances of the gospel. As sheep without a shepherd, you were scattered, and exposed to "grievous wolves." There were divisions among you, and discord, and alienation of affection. A new society under a new denomination had been set up; not to introduce a new religion, nor to preach any other gospel, than what was already preached; but merely to change one denomination of christians to another, unhappily dividing a society already small, and when united not more than competent to a decent support of a minister, with ease to yourselves; a division occasioned by a distinction in the form of godliness, rather than its power; assumed to designate a party, distinct and separate from the body of the christian church; for you were not in the state of those unchristianized and unchristened Jews and Gentiles to whom the gospel was first preached, who had never before heard of Christ or the way of salvation through him; but you were born of christian parents, were baptized into the name of Christ, from children had known the holy scriptures, had been instructed in the doctrines and duties, and lived in the peaceable enjoyment of the ordinances of the gospel salvation. While in this situation, you were broken in upon, and "soon became as an house or kingdom divided against itself." Some, who were members of this church, "went back, and walked no more with Christ." The walls of partition were set up. The number of regular religious professors diminished. For more than five years no additions were made to the church. The spirit of Christ and the gospel, and the true interests of religion seemed to be lost in zeal for party notions, and in contention for victory. The consequence was, the actual declension of real religion. Doubts were created in the minds of some; "halting between two opinions;" indifference in those of others; and a total neglect of public worship in many. And you appeared to decline also, in your worldly substance and welfare. Debts were accumulating,* and nothing seemed to prosper in the work of your hands; and total subversion of the true interests of religion and of society here was seriously apprehended. You were reduced to a situation exceedingly unfriendly both to your spiritual and temporal welfare; and very discouraging to the settlement of a minister. Your situation now is just the reverse of all this. You enjoy the regular and stated means of religion in a preached gospel, and the administration of the ordinances of Christ. The church is built up and enlarged, and additions are made, we trust, of such as shall be saved. You are free from strife and contention about the different modes and persuasions of religion, for the support of the gospel. And if all are not perfectly joined in the same mind, and in the same judgment; yet a disposition prevails, to permit every one freely to enjoy the right of religious opinion and practice, provided he does no violence to the rights of others. You now experience "how good and pleasant it is to dwell together in unity." And keeping the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace, your state is friendly to the interests of religion, to the success of the gospel, and to the practice of godliness; and you are enabled to increase and prosper in the labor and work of your hands. Instead of being embarrassed in your circumstances, or burdened with debts, you have become independent and easy in your worldly and temporal affairs, and have made progress in wealth. You are without fear that the creditor will come; you sit under your own vines and fig-trees without molestation; and there are evident marks and signatures of a kind providence that has blessed you, and caused you to prosper. From a parish connected with, and in some measure dependent on another, you have become an incorporated town, and transact all your public concerns, with convenience and advantage to yourselves. A small and inconvenient house of worship is now exchanged for this spacious, elegant, and commodious temple, whose tower is adorned and enriched with an excellent and beautiful clock.†

* Rev. Dr. Osgood, of Medford, who made the concluding prayer. * * * The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Fiske, of Brookfield [Uncle to Rev. T. Fiske.], from these words in Luke xii. 32:—"Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." The sermon is printed and published with other sermons of his, in an octavo volume. * * *

* An arrearage of salary to a considerable amount was then due to the heirs of the former minister, which had been accumulating for more than six years. This, together with the constant expense necessarily arising from hiring candidates to supply the pulpit, had thrown a heavy burden on the parish.

† The first meeting house was built in 1734, and opened and consecrated on the first day of Feb. 1735. The area of the building was 50 by 40 feet, and stood just seventy years. The present house of worship was built during the year 1804, on the ground where the for-

Many dwelling houses have been built, and many others repaired and enlarged. Many families have been added to you, from abroad, and the growth of population among yourselves has greatly increased. A respectable and flourishing manufactory has been introduced and established, which has brought much wealth into the place, afforded employment and means of subsistence to many among you, and augmented the property of the town, and enhanced the value of real estate of many descriptions.* A society for social intercourse, friendship, and mutual improvement is formed in the midst of us, as a bond of union.† An establishment of a social library‡ affords advantages not heretofore enjoyed. An increase of stores has added to the increase of business. By the increased cultivation of the soil your farms have become better, and more productive; and many improvements have been made, tending to convenience and utility, to the promotion of knowledge and the increase of wealth. Few villages can be named, that have risen faster, or bid fairer to grow and flourish. God grant it may abound more and more, in every thing virtuous and praiseworthy; in every thing that shall promote its essential interests and welfare. "Hitherto the Lord hath helped us." And ye, also, my brethren, have been fellow-helpers to these things, by the labors you have bestowed, "by giving of your own proper goods," by the encouragement and assistance you have afforded, and by "being at peace among yourselves." In every important transaction, a spirit of candor, mutual forbearance and accommodation has been diffused among you; and a disposition to maintain peace and harmony, so essential to the interests of true religion, and the welfare of society. This praiseworthy disposition and conduct were manifested, when a change was made of the version of psalms and hymns formerly sung, for those now mer house stood, and was dedicated March 19, 1805. The building is 70 feet long and 65 feet wide, with a tower projecting in front, and extending above, is terminated by a handsome vane 100 feet from the foundation. The house cost $12,175. It contains 106 pews; 92 on the floor, and 14 in the galleries. The sale of the pews, sold, amounted to 14,167 dollars. The first pew sold for 264 dollars. On the tower is a handsome and first rate clock, with three dials, constructed and erected by Mr. G. Parker of Westborough, in Aug. 1808, which cost $796.80. This expense was defrayed by donations from individuals, to the amount of $161, and by an appropriation of money raised on sale of the pews.

[The first meeting-house was sold to Ammi Cutter, of West Cambridge (son of Ammi—vide v. §2, 3), who removed it to the site of the late Abel G. Peck's residence and occupied it as a dwelling. It is now the dwelling-house of Mr. Charles Gage, on Pleasant Street, near Belmont line. The edifice described above was torn down in 1840. The succeeding structure, built on the same site, was burnt Jan. 1, 1856, and the present house is its successor.]

* A card manufactory, set up by William Whittemore and Co. in 1799. The cards are made by machines, an ingenious invention of Mr. Amos Whittemore, one of said company. Of these machines, which give to the manufactory its advantages, there are fifty five in number, which may stick 80 dozen pair of cards in a day. The cards annually made amount to about $60,000. Between 40 and 50 persons are employed, whose wages are from 9 to 10,000 dollars a year. The buildings erected, and property purchased in the town, by the company and persons employed, have been to the amount of at least 30,000 dollars. The purchase of pews by them, in the new meeting house, paid one eighth part of the expense in building it.

† A society principally of middle aged and young men, instituted Jan. 31, 1803, by the name of the Middlesex Union Society, who meet quarterly for the purposes of mutual friendship and improvement.

‡ West-Cambridge Social Library, established Jan. 1, 1808. There are thirty one proprietors; it contains now in its infancy 106 volumes, judiciously selected, and is to increase by a certain sum to be furnished by the proprietors annually.

used in public worship.* And especially in building this sacred temple, for the service and worship of our God. Without contention about the spot where it should stand, the place on which it should be built, or the manner in which it should be finished; but with union and harmony in every measure, and joining heart and hand, your highest expectations were gratified, in the building of an house for the service and honour of God, to whom you owe all that you have. This sacred temple, I trust, will long remain, a monument of your piety and liberality. Here may you and your children, as your fathers were, "be built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone. May many sons and daughters here be born unto glory; and when you shall be gathered to the dust of your fathers, may your children rise up, and call you blessed."

THE MEETING-HOUSE BELOW THE LEDGE.

THE following description is taken from a story by Mrs. E. Oakes Smith, entitled "The Defeated Life, or the Times of the Old Meeting-House," published in the May Flower for 1847.

"Upon the shores of Casco Bay, about ten miles from the city of Portland, is a long hilly range, of perhaps three quarters of a mile in length—a barren rocky spot partially covered with stunted pines. In one part, where the gray granite 'crops' out from the thin soil, may be seen a weather-beaten vane, which a few inhabitants of the district have elevated upon a rude frame and soldered into the rock, in the pious hope of thus preserving this only relic of the 'Meeting-house below the ledge.' Rarely might be found a more attractive spot for the worship of a new people than the site of this old church, standing as it did at the base of the ledge before named, upon a green esplanade, flanked upon every side by the forest, through the openings of which arose the 'Block House' [the residence of Rev. A. R. Cutter?], the place of refuge of the colonists in periods of peril, fast by the altar of God, with here and there the humble dwellings of the worshippers, each in fact a citadel, built for strength and armed for defence. In front was the Bay, a most lovely expanse of water, with island and cove, sloping hill, and rude promontory, all wearing the aspect of newness and beauty, to awaken the freshest impulses of the heart.

"Though little can be said in defence of the architectural perfections of the 'old Meeting-House,' yet in the proud days thereof it might have been regarded as a model of excellence. * * * After standing more than a hundred years, it was pulled down in 1830, if I mistake not, having been long deserted as a place of prayer. Yet it was in excellent preservation up to the time of its fall, having been built of white oak. I cannot even now think of this desecration without a pang. I remember the awe with which I once trod alone its deserted aisles. The quaint pulpit, with its antique oaken carvings; the communion table, folded in its place, and covered with dust, from which the elements had been distributed to the pious and believing, now no more; the crypt beneath the pulpit in which had been kept the rude 'communion service'—then the doors ajar, or slipped from their hinges—the seats once pressed by the young and the beautiful—the solemn galleries—the place for singers, the slender balustrade surmounting each pew, which left their tracery where the light fell through the small glass. I remember the sparrow and the swallow which found there a peaceful habitation—the whispered murmur of the pines, as the wind swept adown the ledge and stole through the lone church—and the bleat of the sheep sheltered beneath its eaves.

"Truly, I know not how human hands could have been raised against it. I know not what heart would not have been awed into remorse and grief, as the venerable rafters, so long audible to prayer and praise, were crushed to the earth. We have no ruins, and it may be never shall have, for the spirit of our people is opposed to associations of the kind—they reject the past, whether in experience, in sentiment, or architecture. A cobweb is monstrous to them—a cornice honored by dust and made sacred by the swallow, is an offence—the grey beautiful tintings of time are unseemly, and they long for the tidy, painted wall, and the brisk whitewash.

"Oh, had they but spared the 'old Meeting-House below the ledge!' Thither they might have brought their children and have told them tales of blood and peril—have taught them there the sublime lessons of human freedom, and the more sublime lessons of order and good citizenship. Reverently pacing those old aisles, how impressive might have become the teachings of wisdom! How the by-gone age had lived again! What though the bird sang above the sounding board, was it not a sweet harmony? What though the fox might pat upon the stairs and look forth from the windows; would it not send solemn and earnest thoughts home to the heart? What though the vestibule became a fold for the sheep—is not Jesus called the lamb of God, and would not their meek innocent natures appeal for the like in our own? What though the green moss lay in tufts upon the roof, the grass nodded from the eaves, and the turf rolled itself like a fold about the tilted steps; yet most pleasantly had come down the sabbath sun, to light each with a smile, and old men too infirm for church-going, or it may be yearning too much over the past, would have loitered about the doorway, or leaning heavily upon their crutch, have walked along the aisles, with ears too deaf to be startled by the sepulchral echoes. Oh, what a plea might be heard for the old meeting-houses in which our fathers worshipped, in times when each went armed to the house of God, lest the savage should find them unprepared for defence, when worship was a great human need, to be sought through peril and death, and not as now a luxury, and an appendage to respectability.

"The site of the Old Meeting-House is now a smooth green turf, and only the grasshopper and the cricket pipe a Sabbath-day song to God."

JOURNAL OF COL. JOHN STORER, OF WELLS.

This document, cited on the page mentioned above, was published in the Portsmouth Journal for May 6, 1854. Its author, Col. Storer, was an officer in Gen. Pepperell's regiment at Louisburg, and his journal is a sketch of incidents in that expedition from March 8, to April 30, 1745, when the journal abruptly ends at the opening of the contest before the place. Many of the incidents relate to the previous stay of the forces at Canso. Several items referring particularly to the erection of the block house are here presented.

Friday morning, April 5 [1745].—I waited on y^e General on board the Commodore, whom I found with the rest of our friends in good health. Ten o'clock the General with the field officers went on shore on Canso Island and took affairs under consideration, and dined on Canso Island in a house newly erected by Col. Moore. Also a plan drawn for erecting a block house in the place of the former block house on the hill on said Canso Island. * * * A council of war on Canso Island.

Saturday, April 6.—A great number of men mustered on shore, I myself very ill with a cold.

Sabbath-day, April 7.—The army mustered on Canso Island, where two sermons were preached—one by Mr. Landon, in Jer. 23: 24; in the afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Sam'l Moody, from Psalms 110: 3; "Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power."

Monday, April 8.—A general muster on shore at Canso, and received a standard in the General's regiment. * * * The army is cheerfully working and levelling the ground for the block house.

Tuesday, April 9.—The army mustering on shore, exercising and working about the block house—being cold, wet weather.

Wednesday, April 10.—The General's regiment on Canso Island with several other regiments exercising, being snowy uncomfortable weather. Several companies working and laying the foundation for the block house being — feet square, and two stories high, the square for the fort, the sides being — feet.

Thursday, April 11.—The whole army on shore on Canso Island, being a general review, and several detachments made in the regiments. The General's regiment all worked on Canso Island four hours between the time of review; and at sunset—"Officers and soldiers, on board your respective transports." * * *

Friday, April 12.—The stores were landed from on board Captⁿ Morton, viz: eight field pieces, 9 pounders, with carriages and iron wheels, with other warlike stores; also the block house landed from Capt. Jacob Parker on said Canso Island, with a great number of men working.

Saturday, April 13.—Rained, thundered and lightened very much. Block house carried by men from the landing place up to the parade.
* * *

Sabbath-day, April 14th.—Capt. Cutter Commandant for Canso Island, with one company, and Capt. Marshal, a second company to keep possession of Canso Island; the eight great guns were hauled up to the fort, and the block house raised. * * *

Tuesday, April 23.—A council of war held on Canso Island "in the block house chamber."

GLEANINGS FROM DR. AMMI RUHAMAH CUTTER'S

*Three Letters of Sir John Wentworth, 1754, then a Student in Harvard College.*To M^r Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, in Portsmouth 4^l Post 3 s.Cambridge February 28th 1754.

Dear Sir

I with pleasure received your kind favour by M^r Warner, who arrived here last Wednesday night. I do assure you Sir it is with the sincerest pleasure that I see a Prospect of renewing my literary correspondence with my agreeable friend Doctor Cutter, Qui semper mihi charissimus fuit & semper erit. The observation you make of the great Variety of pleasing scenes we pass thro' is unjust, as it is now entirely chang'd from what it yⁿ was when your presence bless'd us, and if we had as pleasant living as ever yet without you it wou'd be imperfect to me. The College now is filled up (almost) of Boys from 11 to 14 Years old and them seem to be quite void of y^e Spirit & life which is a general concomitant of Youth, so you may Judge what kind of life I now live, who was won't to live in the gayest and most Jovial manner, when I was first admitted one of this Society which I then thought was a Compound of Mirth and Gaiety as it is now of Gravity. Should you go into a Company of Schollars now, you'd hear disputes of Original Sin, actual Transgression & such like instead of the sprightly turns of Wit & Gay repartees which the former Companys used to have, which makes me cry out (& with reason) with a certain Author Oh Alma mater, how hast thou degenerated from thy Pristine Glory! So that you might have spar'd the Complim^{ts} of my Good nature as I cannot pleasure myself more than in writing you. Pray don't let that Opinion of my likeing Brevity prevail as I assure you the other is my Choice as you may see by y^e length of this Epistle which I hope you'll excuse as it is a pleasure to S^r Your assur'd Friend

Dear Sir.—I some time since had a pleasing hope that our Correspondence was to be again renewed, which hope does now but faintly glimmer, tho' I do not yet despair, & hope you'll hinder me from Despair^g by letting me hear from you when at leasure wh^{ch} 'do now assure you wou'd be a great and sincere pleasure to me. I hear that we are like to have Treadwell as schoolmaster at Portsm^o which I shou'd be very glad of as he is a young Gentleman that I have a great regard for & believe it will be for his advantage; Treadwell tells me there is as great Scarcity of Pedagogues with you ab^t Portsm^o which 'hope will be supplied by some of your & my Cantabridgian acquaintance: both for your sake & mine as we shall then have a set of Companions that we can make merry with. Cambridge is barren of news at Present, so I hasten to subscribe myself your sincere friend & hble serv^t

Dr. Cutter S^r I with great pleasure received your favour, which you intended by the young Colonel, who is since arriv'd here safe; I am greatly oblig'd to you for the Compliments you have so liberally bestowed upon me, and wou'd now in my Turn return them, but it is impossible to make any Upon Doctor Cutter, as let one say what they please they can't say more than the Truth of you, so hope all things consider'd you'll excuse the deficiency of this letter in Compliment. As to Cambridge it is as barren of News as Portsm^o for their is none stirring here except that Commencement is to be new stile this year, at which time shall be glad to see you here to Celebrate my entrance upon the last year of my Pilgrimage among the Heathen. Several Letters of Samuel Moody, 1772-1773.—Gift to President Wheelock, of Dartmouth College.

To Dr. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter In Portsmouth.
P^r Master Billy Traill.

Dear Sir

The Motion of a Present to the worthy Head of Dartmouth College, as a Testimony of our Gratitude for the Civilities received, and our good Wishes to that young Institution was I think kind and generous; and as this Proposal, if I mistake not, was made by the Governor, whose liberal Soul always devises liberal Things, it might betray a Want of a proper Regard to him not to take a proper Notice of it. It has been thought a handsome Piece of Plate, a Tankerd, or what should be judged most expedient would be very acceptable with his Excellencies Coat of Arms, the President's Coat of Arms, or the College Seal; which of these three would be most suitable others can better judge than I; with these or some such Words, Given to D. E.

W. P. of D. C. by his Excellency John Wentworth Esq. & Train (Friends) upon their visiting Dartmouth College the first Commencement 1771. This may be perhaps better now than when the Company were together, as we may now only propose it to such as we think might be called to give upon such an Occasion, and free our other Friends from that Pain which it would have given generous Minds, not to have joined in so benevolent a Design. I am very free to contribute from two Dollars to a Guinea as shall be judged Congruous, and our Treasurer (I am afraid I am too ambiguous, I mean you Sir, if I must be explicit) will be very free if invited to obtain a Subscription, collect the Money, and carry into Effect this good Purpose; which his Heart was so much upon in our Journey. I shall write Col. Gilman & Col. Folsom on the Subject; and you will want no Motive I know to forward it with the Gentlemen in your Vicinity, with whom you have so near a Connection, and intimate Access.

I am after Compliments to M^{rs} Cutter & other Friends, with great Esteem & Respect,

Sir, your assured Friend & humble Ser^{vt}

SAMUEL MOODY.

P. S. I hope the poor amphibious Animals, who bounded from Element to Element with so much Alertness, and were so officious in their Assiduities, to serve and saue us amid all the Perils of Scylla & Charybdis, will not be entirely forgot. Poor Souls they have elevated Hopes and Expectations of some Lands for themselves and Families from his Excellencies Beneficence; and I cannot bear they should be baulked and disappointed. As it was one of the last Things the Governor proposed to me that some of you Gentlemen should move in this Affair, I hope you will keep it in View, and give him the Pleasure & Satisfaction of obliging so many that Esteem and Honour him. If you should want Names to fill the List which I think must be sixty, I can furnish you with some worthy Clergymen to whom I owe particular Obligations, and whose Widows and Families in some future Periods may be made to Sing for Joy on this Account & thank you for your kind Interposition. The Ministers I mean are the Rev^d M^r Parsons of Byfield, Lyman & Lankton of York. The first my present Minister, the last two, you well know my former. They are all valuable Men, are training up large Families for Church and State; and I am pretty sure It would suggest no more agreeable Service to so benevolent a Mind than providing for such. I am very free, for I would not be a Monopolist for myself or Friends, that any you Gentlemen should nominate any of the Clergy or Faculty, for I would have it a respectable Township, and we have you know good Names.

P. S. My Minister coming in just as I had finished the Letter I consulted him in the Case and he tully satisfied me that there was the utmost Propriety in placing the Governors Coat of Arms on the Tankard.

P. S. You will forgive these wild Scrawls, the poorness & Scantiness of the Paper as it is the close of our Term, and all our Stores exhausted.

A Copy [the rest Mr. Moody's handwriting] by my young Friend and Pupil Fenton; and I must confess Sir I was very loath to wait upon you in the rude Characters of the Original least the Scurviness of the Dress should predudice the Cause it meant to promote. I would by no Means be understood by any Thing said above to mean to direct and dictate but only hint and suggest for my Friends of better Taste and Discernment to correct and improve upon, but I must acknowledge an extreme fond the good President should receive so endearing a Specimen of our Good Will and that executed in the most generous and elegant Manner.

Your sincere Friend & humble Servant

SAMUEL MOODY.

I was so lucky as to find Paper for this Inscription.

To Doctor Ammi Ruhamah Cutter In Portsmouth.

Newbury 13 April 1772.

Dear Sir.—I have only to thank you my good Friends for your generous Compliance with all my Proposals and have no other Favor to solicit except it should be deemed such that my young Friend Penhalow in whom you may confide may take a Copy of the Charter of Dummer and Doctor Wheelock's Letter. If this or any Thing or any Thing else I should move would be inconvenient or inexpedient I shall esteem the Obligation greater to deny than gratify me. I wish you Prosperity in every relation respecting our new Township, and am ever ready to contribute my Quota to every thing which shall be for the general Emolument.

To Doctor A. Ruhamah Cutter In Portsmouth.

To be left at M^r Calders Newbury-Port and M^r Fisher will be so obliging as to take the Charge of it.

Newbury 13th August 1772.

Dear Sir

Yours of the 2^d Instant received last Saturday Evening. Monday Forenoon waited on M^r Fishers friend. The Business you wrote me on completed, & Col. Gilmans, Col. Folsoms Money there. Paid my Guinea toward the Bowl which closed the Collection. Found M^r Fisher had the Inscription finished and with the Goldsmith; and it will with his Improvements have I presume all your Approbation, and will stand the Test and bear the most severe Examin I hope of all future Critics in the conspicuous Situation it may be in Centuries yet to come. It gives me a particular Pleasure that this benevolent Proposal is like to be so agreeably terminated, and it must I think as a Specimen of our Regard and Friendship be highly acceptable to the Good President and he should I think have every Testimony of Respect to support and Comfort him under all his Toils and Fatigues in founding, conducting, and establishing that important infant Institution.

The Governors Invitation is highly obliging and I should have a very great Ambition through this agreeable Tour (should my Affairs permit) of being his most devoted humble Servant. My best Duty and Thanks to his Excellency, and I do not know whether I shall yet be able to resist the Temptation of so enduring an Invitation and so delightful an Occasion. I have given the Governor no trouble about the intended Present to the Doctor, and think it is upon a Principle of Congruity and Politeness that Gentlemen of the first Rank and Importance and exercised with such a multiplicity of interesting objects of Attention should be held as much as possible from all Care and Solitude and have every Thing prepared to their Hands and no mark but that of their Approbation. In a Word that all their transactions should by previous Attention of their friends be rendered as easy and expeditious for them as might be. You will have an Opportunity this Interview it may be also to complete the Affair of the Township and receive the Blessing of them poor amphibious penurious Animals whose painful laborious zealous Efforts I believe made a pretty deep Impression on the Whol Party, and we are extremely obliged to his Excellency for his ready Grant of a Warrant to Survey, and I hope Col. Folsom and others will be patient of Investigation till they have discovered a fine Tract of Land, and I hope it will be planned in the most striking Manner and be a truly respectable Town. As the Worthy President, the Officers of the College, the young Gentlemen that were to have commenced, besides so many of Superiour Rank are included, I think it justly merits your Attention. I have an Ambition it should in its Locality, Land-skaps Disposition &c. be distinguished and approach as near as may be the Elysian Fields. You will give me leave to close with a Regale of M^r Josiah Quinceys Attorney at Law in Boston which he prepared to be placed under the Inscription. But it came too late and was judged by some not calculated for the Meridian of that College, and in which you have a Specimen of the Fine Sublimity and Enthusiasm of his Genius.

Crown high the Goblet!

Haste inspired Spirits to this blest Abode!

Here drink deep of Knowledge, TRUTH and VIRTUE;

And while the circling Cup of Science

Passes around; in Draught Pierian, Quaff Wisdom, Immortality and Joy.

Hark!

'Tis the enlivening Voice of Heaven!

Attend the solemn sound, while grateful Strains

Re-eccho the eternal Benizon

“Peace to the Muses—to the Wise & Good

Joy and fair Time, Health & good Wishes.”

With Sentiments of Esteem & Friendship

Your obedient humble Servant

SAMUEL MOODY.

P. S. I would be very glad you would know of M^r President & the Officers how my Son with the Teacher of Hebrew has done for himself and the College. Doctor Wheelock is full of Business, it might be too great an Interruption to write him, nor could he spare time for to answ^r.

Dear Sir.—As I am uncertain whether you received an Answer to your last letter I now inform you that I wrote Col. Bayley of Cohoss [Coos] for a List of the Amphibious Animals you speak of, but have not yet heard from him, but shall forward it as soon as it arrives. As you were so obliging as to compliment me with naming the Town for Reasons I specified in my last, I thought of none that would be more agreeable than *Dummer—In Honour to Governor Dummer, the Founder of this School,† which has been as open to New Hampshire as this Province, a great Number from there now.—So great a Friend and Benefactor to the Republic of Letters I would be glad should be had in everlasting Remembrance. I should be very glad to know the Situation of our Town, &c. &c.

Dear Sir

We have had the same flying Report here, you mention, but give no Credit to it. Sho^d any interesting intelligence arrive here, you may depend on have^g it as soon as possible. I am very sorry to hear Col. Fenton has left the Town.* I think it cannot be in Consequence of the message he received from the Congress. I am sure it was not their intention either to hurt or frighten him; but if it's his choice to leave the province I hope every body will acquiesce in it, least any reports sho^d be spread to the disadvantage of the Congress. I inclose you a Cobby of the letter sent him in which I think there is nothing terrifying. With my best Respects to the Committee

Dear Sir

Boston July 10, 1777.

I received your favour of the 3^d Inst. am much obliged to you for your Care and Attention, and hope it will not be long before I shall be able to join you. Two loads of Medicine set off this Day for Danbury, amongst them are a Cask of Brimstone and another of litharge they are directed to the Care of Capt. Berrien and will be delivered out to either you or Doctor Burnets order. I much wish I could hear from Dr. Jackson; an Apothecary is wanted immediately. A Gentleman I met with from Portsmouth says he is well assured he will not accept. If I do not hear by Saturday night I shall be under the necessity of appointing another. There is a Gentleman here well recommended who would accept and join the Hospital immediately. I cannot learn that there are any regimental surgeons about here, what few I found I sent on. I have heard nothing from either Doctor Wolcott or Doctor Senter, nor do I expect to before I return to Danbury. If we do not by then, I shall consider their not having signified their Acceptance as declining the service, and request that Others may be appointed in their places. Altho' I shall not be able to procure every Article we wanted, I am like to succeed much better than I expected, and shall leave an Agent here to purchase medicines from time to time as they may be wanted, also another to purchase other Stores as Capt. Berrien may order. I should take it as a favour if you would quicken M^r Bailey about the instruments, I wrote Doctor Turner on that subject but have heard nothing from him. You may depend upon seeing me as soon as the Business I came upon is in any degree accomplished. Until when I am with much respect

Peeks Kill. Return of Express.

Dear Sir

I rec^d your Letter Ψ Stephen—shall send the Med^{ca} you Ordered—Can get no Sheets from M^{rs} Weeks; shall go to M^{rs} Brinkerhoof this afternoon on the same business.

Gen^l Sullivan is fast on the Recovery; is troubled with nothing at present but Lasitude from sudden depletion.—Maj^r Courtland is not so well as when you went away; he commonly has two paroxisms Ψ Day, one in the middle of the forenoon, & one towards Evening.—The Division left a great many sick behind them when they went away.

One who was shot (by accident) thro. the hand I believe will require Amputation.—Snow is dead & old Graves followed him without much ceremony.—The deaf Man is just gone also & Denison died this Morning.—If I should go on much farther with my dead List I believe you will think I am about clearing the Hospital, but I do assure you they would not obey my Orders to live, so I was obliged to give them a Furlow.

I have a great deal of business now. If you send any sick from Peeks Kill please to let me know timely that I may engage more Buildings, for we are full & running over.

If you see my Cousin Lieut. Seymour of the Light Dragoon, I should think it a particular favour if you would tell him that as his Cap^t is ordered to the Northward, I think it an ill time to exchange Companies on acc^t of Dissatisfaction. I do not know how he can leave the Comp^y with honour.—His Cap^t will now be glad to treat him as becomes a gentleman. I wish he would consider the matter disinterestedly & coolly; he is the best judge in his own situation, please to give my love to him.

I promise myself the happiness of seeing you tomorrow by Evening in the meanwhile

Answer to Doc. Turner's, July, 1777.

Fish Kill, 29th July 1777.

Dr Sir

I receiv'd yours of 21d Inst. two Days ago, & am very much surpris'd at many Passages in it. I can account for it in no other way, than your egregiously misapprehending mine from Peekskill. I only meant a friendly letter, and to make up of such Freedom as I should not have taken amiss from you or any Gentleman in the Department of equal standing. Doc. Burnet had wrote me to desire my coming to Peekskill. I did not think it derogatory to comply with his Request, & found more than 150 sick in the General Hospital there and the number encreasing fast, the Doctor wanted much to be absent a few Days and urged my tarrying till he returned. I had left Gen. Sullivan and Maj. Courtlandt his Aid de Camp very sick at Fish Kill with more than 160 sick in the Hospital, it was therefore very inconvenient for me to tarry at that time. I proposed making you a Visit with him but his business was so urgent as to oblige him to set over that Afternoon in consequence of which I agreed to tarry three Days and to desire you by letter to spend the remaining few Days till his return.—these were my Reasons for writing a few lines in a Hurry, just as Dr. Belcher was setting out to bring Medicines.—Your Answer is full of Asperity, the first I ever receiv'd from you, and as I was unacquainted with your method of writing your sincere friends appear'd to me very unusual.—'twould take up too much time & paper to write all I have to say on the Subject & as we must meet soon on the Business of filling the Vacancys in our department shall impend the matter till then—when I came to this post I found Doc. Holmes, am much pleas'd with him as a Surgeon & Physician, and as he is fully employed here, can't think of parting with him at present. have sent Doc. Blanchard who has been in ye Hospital from the first of the War doubt not he'll suit you. You may perhaps think Dr. Belchers Removal was at my Instigation, it was not. Dr. Curtis suppos'd his motion the more difficult & desired the choice of his mate which was granted.
Have sent a Memo. of Medicine much wanted here, which you'll please to give Doc.
Foster if arriv'd; if not order them by Conveyance.

GERSHOM CUTTER'S MEMORANDUM.

[Vide pages 31 and 84.]

THIS memorandum, discovered since the above pages were printed, is comprised in a small pocket book with sheepskin covers, secured by a brass clasp, and embracing seventy-four leaves, mostly blank—two of which only are missing. The paper, yellow with age, is well preserved. On the outside is the signature, "Gershom Cutter." The memorandum, though devoted to the affairs of Gershom Cutter, Senior, is in the handwriting of Gershom Cutter, Junior, his son. The items are meagre, and are entered evidently at widely different periods and several at a time. On the first leaf is the inscription—

THE following is received through the courtesy of Mr. Charles Ammi Cutter, of the Boston Athenæum.

Bernard and Thomas Lombard, or Lombart, men of Kent, probably of Mr. Lothrop's Society of Tenterden, Kent County, England, about fifty miles from London, as one of the family returned to Tenterden, were in Scituate, 1633; made freemen 1635, in Barnstable, with Mr. Lothrop's people, who went there in 1640. Brother Thomas Lombard kept the public house there, and was a very prominent member of the church, and noted for his piety. He was probably the elder brother, because the whole family ate their Thanksgiving dinner at his house.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Middlesex ss. The Hon. Sam'l P. P. Fay, Esqr., Judge of the Court of Probate in and for the County of Middlesex.

To James Brown of Watertown, bookseller, and Artemas Locke and Luke Wyman, both of West Cambridge, Yeomen :

Whereas Benjamin Cutter, late of Charlestown, in the County of Middlesex, Yeoman, deceased, testate, in and by his last will and testament, gave and devised all his real estate to his wife Anna during her natural life; and in and by said will directed that at her decease, his said real estate should be divided into two equal parts, and that one moiety of said parts should be distributed according to the laws of this Commonwealth among his own heirs at law; and the other moiety should be distributed among the heirs at law of his said wife Anna; and whereas the said Anna is now deceased; and whereas on the petition of Jacob Wyeth, one of the heirs of said Anna, and on the petition of Jonas Cutter, one of the heirs of said Benjamin, due notice having been given on said petitions to all persons interested, it was decreed at a court of Probate holden at Cambridge in and for said County, on the fifteenth day of November A.D. 1842, that the real estate of the said Benj. Cutter should be divided into two equal parts, and that the respective parts should be divided among the heirs at law of the said Benjamin Cutter and the heirs at law of the said Anna Cutter, agreeably to the terms of said will; You are therefore authorized and empowered, being under oath, First, to appraise all the real estate whereof the said testator died seized in fee in this Commonwealth that remains undisposed of, at the present value thereof; and then sever and divide the same into two equal parts, according to said will; And you will assign and set off to each person interested a just and equal share in the respective moieties or halves of said real estate according to his share or right therein agreeably to said will, unless two or more of the parties shall consent to hold their shares together and undivided, describing each tract and parcel, composing a share or shares, separately by metes and bounds, first giving due notice to all persons known to be interested in said estates within this Commonwealth, that they may be present, if they see fit, at the making of such partitions and divisions. And if the respective moieties or shares of said real estate cannot be divided without great damage to the owners, or if any messuage, piece of land, or other part of the premises is of greater value than either party's share, and cannot be divided without great inconvenience to the owners, you may set off and assign the whole or any such part of said real estate, as the case may be, to any one or more of the parties, who will accept thereof, he or they paying to any one or more of the others such sum or sums of money as shall make the partition just and equal; preferring males to females among the children of the respective parties, and elder to younger sons in the assignment of the whole or any part of the premises. And if any advancement shall have been made by said deceased in part of portion of said Devisees, you will take the same into consideration in making said partition. And you will cause all persons who are satisfied with your doings in the premises to certify the same on your report. Of the warrant with your doings thereon make return as soon as may be unto said court of Probate.

Given under my hand and seal this fifteenth day of Nov. A.D. 1842.

S. P. P. FAY, J. Probate.

[The homestead was offered for sale at public auction on April 7, 1843, and again on Oct. 26th. The property was advertised "as one of the pleasantest locations in the vicinity of Boston for a gentleman's country seat, a hotel, a farm school; or it will furnish any number of beautiful building lots, within five minutes' walk of the Medford Gates on the Lowell Railroad, and in the limits of a town noted for good public and private schools, and for low taxes. It presents to the cultivator a fine chance for a vegetable farm, the land being early, of good quality, some very superior, with fruit trees." The house was described as "large, three stories high, brick ends, four rooms on a floor, with an excellent cellar under the whole." There was also a "good well of water, a barn and other out buildings."]

Conditions of Sale of B. Cutter's Homestead, Oct. 1843.

The property offered for sale at this time, consists of thirty acres of land contained in two pieces, with the buildings thereon, and all the rights and privileges in any way appertaining to them, with the exception of the tomb.*

The title which will be given the purchaser will be a quit-claim deed from Messrs. Jonas Wyeth and Benjamin Cutter, of all the right, title and interest which they have acquired by virtue of a report of commissioners of appraisal and assignment of this property to them, with the approval and consent of all the heirs—which report has received the sanction and confirmation of the Judge of Probate of Middlesex County, and is legally established.

The property will be sold to the highest bidder, who will be required to sign an acknowledgment of his purchase, with a guarantee, if desired.

The conditions of sale will be, twenty per cent. of the purchase money shall be paid in ten days, and the balance in four months.

West Cambridge, Oct. 26th, 1843.

This day bought at public auction the homestead farm of the late Benj. Cutter, containing thirty acres of land with the buildings thereon, of Messrs. Jonas Wyeth and Benjamin Cutter, for the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars, which sum we agree to pay and take the property agreeably to the terms and conditions of sale.

AN Address, delivered at the Funeral of Dr. BENJAMIN CUTTER, Monday, March 14, 1864, at the First Congregational Church, Woburn, Mass. By Rev. J. C. BODWELL, Pastor.

“ After life’s fitful fever, he sleeps well.” He saved others, himself he could not save. The strong man bowed to the still stronger decree, “ Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.”

Two weeks ago this morning he rose and dressed as usual, and when breakfast was finished, and family worship, always to him a season of peculiar enjoyment, had followed in due course, he gave himself to professional duty. A surgical case of some difficulty required his attention at a distance. Severe exertion was necessary, exciting perspiration. In this condition he drove to his house in a chilling atmosphere. Cold ensued, fastening on the lungs. He read his own case only too surely from the first, and calmly predicted the result. In just nine days after that last professional engagement, and in consequence of it, he went to his rest: too soon, alas, for his weeping household; too soon for this Church of God, of which he was so long a member and an ornament, and too soon for the general community, as this large and sorrowing assembly bears witness.

Thus his valuable life was at last laid a sacrifice on the altar of that service to which his best energies had been consecrated. But more than this: the ultimate cause of his death was not the acute attack, induced by fatigue and cold, of which we have spoken, but chronic affection of the heart, under which he had suffered for years, and to be attributed, beyond a doubt, to his arduous and anxious labors in his profession. In this our friend was an instance of a not at all uncommon case, in this most honorable and most useful vocation. It is not because of inevitable exposure to every kind of weather, by day and by night, and deprivation of sleep, and meals out of season or lost altogether, and labors excessive, that so many members of this noble profession pass away prematurely, from disease of the heart. It is, that so much more than medical science, and mechanical skill, and labors out of season and exhaustive, is given to the community. I mean, an intense anxiety for the result of their faithful ministries, far more fatal than all the rest.

Yet herein we may note a most beneficent law of the Divine Providence. The beloved friend, whose remains lie before us, may have passed away ten, fifteen, twenty years earlier than he otherwise would, in consequence of his labors in the medical profession. But can you compute how large an aggregate of years was added to other lives as the result of this sacrifice? How many first saw the light under his skillful ministry! How often, when fond parents looked with anguish on the pale face of the sick child, did he rescue the little one from the jaws of danger, and give it back to their embrace! Or, when death seemed just about to lay his icy hand on the fair form of the young wife and mother, did he not, in instances innumerable, avert the stroke by his skill, and restore her to the arms of her husband, filling the sorrowful home with thanksgiving and the voice of melody? How many are there in this large assembly, who owe it to his keen discernment and watchful care, under the blessing of God, that they are here to-day?

Thus we recognize the beneficent arrangement, by which, under the Providence of God, the shortening of one life is the lengthening of a great multitude. May we not fitly pause here to acknowledge with profound gratitude the peculiar advantages to the community in which we live, of a well-trained and competent medical profession? not pretenders, but men to whom we can safely commit ourselves, as the guardians of our health and our lives? To such a profession belonged our departed friend, of whose beautiful and most useful life and character it seems needless that I, a stranger comparatively, should speak to you, who knew him so well.

Our sister town, Arlington, formerly West Cambridge, claims the honor of having been the birth-place of Dr. Benjamin Cutter, and there his earlier years were passed. A graduate of Harvard College and Cambridge Medical School, the studies of his professional course were prosecuted under the direction of Dr. Kittredge, of Woburn. When those studies were completed, he became associated at once with his instructor, in medical practice. In six months Dr. Kittredge died, and Dr. Cutter found himself suddenly brought into a position of no small importance and responsibility. His talents and training made him equal to the emergency. He gained rapidly on the confidence of the community, as an intelligent, upright, honorable man, and a skilful medical practitioner, and, for the lengthened period of nearly forty years, his influence and usefulness, in the town and neighborhood, constantly increased. Of his own chosen profession he entertained large and generous views, and contributed much to maintain its dignity in the wide circle of his influence. He was a student of medicine to the end of his days, and would have been, doubtless, had he lived twenty years longer. His library was well selected and large. Nor was he satisfied with being well read in the best records of past research. The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal and the American Journal of Medical Sciences were always on his table fresh from the publishers, and amid the most urgent demands of his professional life he found time to acquaint himself with the most recent discoveries in medical science. Entertaining the highest respect for his vocation, he believed that the intercourse of its members should be characterized by a mutual courtesy and respect. It was in part with a view to secure this valuable end, among those with whom he was brought into most frequent intercourse, that he exerted his influence in the formation of the Middlesex East District Medical Society, an institution whose character and utility are too well known to require more than a passing reference. To the deliberations and discussions of the Society he brought a sound judgment, a broad intelligence, and a scrupulous accuracy, together with the results of a careful observation and a skilful diagnosis. It was a thing of course that his opinions were listened to with close attention, and regarded with profound deference.

Considered alone with reference to his particular calling, the life of Dr. Cutter was singularly lofty and beautiful, and his death is a calamity. But, while no man surpassed him in his estimate of the duties demanded of the medical profession, his soul was too large to be circumscribed by its limits. In the structure of his mind, and in his tastes, he was a many-sided man. Music, literature, science and art, all had charms for him, and in them he found diversion and rest from the severer labors of his daily life. But his deeply religious nature led him to regard all these mainly in their relation to the intellectual and moral improvement of the community. Thus he was the teacher of a class in vocal music in the earlier period of his residence in Woburn. He was also an active and efficient member of the "Young Men's Literary Association." Its admirable library was selected very much under his direction. In that selection he exhibited a fine literary taste, and a sound moral sense. The best works in poetry, history, science, biography, travels, were comprehended, while all works of fiction were excluded. It is a sufficient reply to any charge of narrow views in that matter, to say, that this library had very much to do with the training of the young men of that day who are now the fathers of our town, and foremost in intelligence, enterprise, moral worth, and general influence and usefulness.

There was one fine passage in the life of our friend which deserves more than a passing allusion on a day and an occasion like this. In the great moral regeneration of thirty years ago, by which the fiery tide of intemperance was rolled back, and a great multitude of young men were rescued from a threatened destruction, Dr. Benjamin Cutter deliberately took his position in the forefront of the battle. When the cause was still unpopular, and opposition was wide-spread and fierce, and our good men hesitated and stood aloof, and reputation, and ease, and personal interest would have suggested to a prudent man to wait, at least till the reflux of the tide, he scanned the whole matter with his calm, keen intellect and his honest conscience. His decision was soon taken. In the open face of opposition, and obloquy, and persecution, and pecuniary loss, he threw himself, with all his well-earned influence, into the great movement for reform in the drinking habits of the day. Side by side with Jewett and Edwards and Lyman Beecher, he fought in that grand crusade. The devouring flood was arrested and turned back; a whole generation of men were saved from fast-coming ruin.

Can it be necessary to say, that the large heart of our lamented friend was the seat of a true sympathy with all the most important institutions and associations of the age—philanthropic, literary, religious? To those in his own immediate neighborhood his time and his efforts were cheerfully and generously given, as occasion demanded. He was especially interested, as you know, in that Seminary in our town whose advantages in the years past have been worthy of the noble name it bears, and which is destined, we feel well assured, to accomplish still greater things in the future, in the promotion of a high intellectual and moral culture. WARREN ACADEMY had in Dr. Cutter one of the most efficient and honored members of its Board of Trustees for thirty years; and it is little to say, that his coöperation will be greatly missed, and his absence long and deeply deplored, by those with whom he has been associated in that trust.

It remains only to say, what you all very well know, that the beautiful and well-balanced character of our brother was developed largely under the influence of sincere religious principle. He was a Christian, and his lofty religious faith was easily traced, as a golden thread, through the whole tissue of his life. How manifold and how exhausting were his professional labors, I need not say. How weary, and how greatly needing rest, he found himself when the Sabbath came; yet how difficult was it for him, even on the day beneficently appointed for repose, to procure a respite from the duties which wasted his life. In spite of all this, very few men have been more constant in their attendance on the public worship of the house of God on the Sabbath than he.

This is the third instance in which it has happened to me, in this County of Middlesex, to officiate, by sermon or oration, at the funerals of medical men of extensive practice. Two were in Framingham, in churches densely crowded. The first was a young man, a member of my own congregation. The second was Dr. Simon Whitney, of another religious persuasion. In each instance the remains were brought into the house of worship where, while living, the party had constantly attended. The widow of Dr. Whitney informed me, after his death, that it had always been a matter of conscience with her husband, whose practice had been very extensive and laborious, to attend church regularly on the Sabbath; and that, in an address delivered before his District Medical Society, he had specially commended the habit to the younger members, and insisted on the practicability of the thing, even in the busiest professional career.

Such testimony, from such men, is of the highest value, as expressing their own deep conviction of the paramount importance of Christian institutions, and the obligation resting on individuals of high social position and influence to sustain them by their example.

You do not need to be reminded that while our friend was never wanting in a true self-respect and a dignified presence, a beautiful modesty imparted a pleasant lustre to his broad and well-balanced character, winning golden opinions from all, awakening admiration without jealousy, and making him a power without assumption.

It seems strange that I, a stranger comparatively, to him and to you, should stand here to pay this last sorrowful tribute to our departed friend. If, in so brief a period, he exhibited qualities which excited in my breast a high admiration and a sincere and warm affection, how much more among those who have known him so long and so intimately! Will you pardon the imperfection of my eulogy?

It is sad to look, as we do now for the last time, on that noble form and that familiar countenance, so still and fixed in the long, long sleep. Dear brother, physician skilful, self-sacrificing and true; faithful, tender-hearted friend, farewell! We will hope to meet thee again, where the ministry of the physician is no longer needed, because the inhabitant shall no more say, I am sick, and where never shall be demanded the sacrifice of health or life in the service of others, because the one great Sacrifice shall have perfected all.

We will bear the precious remains to their silent bed, committing them earth to earth and dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to everlasting life.

“Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb;
Take this new treasure to thy trust,
And give these sacred relics room
To slumber in the silent dust.

Nor pain, nor grief, nor anxious fear
Invade thy bounds; no mortal woes
Can reach the peaceful sleeper here,
While angels watch the soft repose.

So Jesus slept; God's dying Son
Passed through the grave, and blest the bed:
Rest here, blest saint, till from his throne
The morning break and pierce the shade.

Break from his throne, illustrious morn!
Attend, O earth! his sovereign word:
Restore thy trust: a glorious form
Shall then ascend to meet the Lord!”

AMOS WHITEMORE,

INVENTOR OF THE CARD MACHINE.

THE following memoir, from the pen of John Langdon Sibley, A.M., appeared some thirty years since in Howe's Lives of Eminent Mechanics.

“AMOS WHITEMORE, who by his extraordinary invention for making cotton and wool cards, merits a prominent place among the first mechanics of the age, was the second of five brothers, and was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, April 19th, 1759. His father was an agriculturist of but moderate means, whose industry enabled him to rear a large family, and give to his children the mere rudiments of an English education. Of the five brothers, it is unnecessary to allude to either than the two next in age, William and Samuel, who, as will appear in the sequel, became interested in business with that brother whose ingenuity laid the foundation of their fortunes.

“The youthful days of Whittemore were passed in the usual manner of lads in the country, chiefly in assisting his parent in the cultivation of the farm. At an early age he manifested a remarkable talent for mechanical pursuits, together with a mind disposed to the contemplation of philosophical and abstruse science.

“Aware that he must depend almost entirely upon his own resources, not only for his maintenance, but for his future advancement, it was obvious that he must soon choose a profession which would promote these ends. Free to make his own choice, he selected the trade of a gunsmith, as one which, while it presented a field for the cultivation of mechanical taste, offered the prospects of a fruitful harvest.

“On becoming an apprentice, he not only zealously applied himself to the interests of his master, but devoted his leisure to voluntary employment. At this period he invented many ingenious and useful implements; and such was his proficiency, that long ere the expiration of his term of service, his employer confessed himself unable to give further instruction, and advised him to commence business for himself.

“Among the many instances of his skill, may be noticed that of an excellent clock, made without a model, which remained many years in the family, proving a useful as well as gratifying memento of his early ingenuity. This was among the first of the kind, although now there is scarcely a cottage in our wide-spread country that does not boast of at least one of these indispensable as well as ornamental pieces of furniture.¹ He also invented a machine constructed with dial hands and figures, to be placed in the water at a vessel's stern, for the purpose of accurately measuring its progress. At the suggestion of a medical friend, a Dr. Putnam of Charlestown, he invented a self-acting loom for weaving duck, which, from the best information we possess, is believed to be the same in principle as the celebrated power loom now so universally used. Owing to the unsettled state of business at this period and the want of encouragement in the useful arts, these productions, notwithstanding their value, were suffered to lay neglected and forgotten.

“For years succeeding the expiration of his apprenticeship, Whittemore was variously, though to himself, in a pecuniary point, unprofitably employed. At length he became interested with his brother William, and five others, in the manufacture of cotton and wool cards, conducting their business in Boston under the firm of Giles, Richards & Co., and supplying nearly all the cards then used in the country. Amos devoted himself to the mechanical department, as being the most agreeable and useful.

“Hitherto the manufacture of cotton and wool cards, which had already become an article of great demand, was attended with much expense, owing to the imperfection of the machinery and the amount of manual labor required. But two machines and those of simple construction, were as yet known; one for cutting and bending the wire into staples, and another for piercing the sheets of leather with holes, into which the staples were placed, one by one, with the hand. This last operation gave employment to hundreds of the younger members of families in New England; and it was not unamusing to witness groups of children of both sexes, engaged in this easy

labor, their tiny fingers rapidly placing staple after staple into its appropriate place, as eager to perform their allotted task as they were to count the few pence earned at the dear expense of a temporary deprivation of their youthful sports. This, the only method then known, combined both the disadvantage of great expense and the impossibility of making the cards sufficiently perfect to properly prepare the raw material.¹

“Whittemore, ever bent upon improvements in machinery, at once saw the importance, and of course the immense value of a machine so constructed as to be enabled, by its own independent action, to hold the sheet of leather, pierce the holes, draw the wire from the reel and shape and stick it into its proper place; thus, by the combination of a series of successive independent operations, complete the card. After that mature reflection which always characterized him, he imparted to his brother William the conception of that idea which he so ardently desired to execute. Encouraged by the advice and assistance of this brother, he engaged in the apparently insurmountable task; and convinced of the rich reward awaiting him if he could but embody in a machine the picture of his imagination, with ardor and unremitting zeal he prosecuted his labors, devoting his whole mental and physical energies to the undertaking. Such was his diligence, and so incessantly did it occupy his time, that he not only impaired his health, but frequently neglected the demands of nature, to the extent that food and sleep seemed to him of but secondary consequence. Slowly, but steadily he progressed; and while his bodily strength daily diminished, the fire of his mind seemed to burn with increased enthusiasm. Like the discoverer of our western world, he had staked, as it were, his reputation upon this effort, and, though storms of discouragement buffeted him at every point, and a boundless sea of toil appeared between him and his uncertain haven, yet he undauntedly persevered almost against hope.

“Baffled as was his skill to the utmost, he at length so far completed his machine as to cause it to draw the wire from the reel, cut and shape it, pierce the holes in the leather, and even place the staples firmly in the sheet; but it was yet necessary to bend the wire after it was placed; without this, all was in vain; time and health had been valuelessly sacrificed, and that ambition that ever animates to action the inventive mind seemed in him about to receive a fatal check. Notwithstanding the encouragement of his friends—who, believing that he could finally succeed, were, if possible, more zealous than himself—he gradually became irresolute, and frequently declared his inability to make any farther progress.

“The labor of nearly three months lay before him, an unfinished, yet wonderfully ingenious structure; but, like the famed ivory balls of the Chinese, while it was admirable for the skill displayed in its workmanship, was valueless. Fortunately he was not long doomed to look upon his work as a mere monument of labor lost. While the ingenuity of his mind had in vain been taxed to the utmost, it was, as it would seem, to miraculous interposition that he owed his ultimate success. Extraordinary as it may appear, and doubted as it may be by some, it is nevertheless a fact, that during a night succeeding a day of despondency and gloom, and at an hour when his faculties were wrapped in slumber, in a vision was disclosed to him the complete accomplishment of his hopes. Scarcely had the following day dawned, when with a heart swelling with emotions of eagerness and joy, he once more revisited the chamber where he had so earnestly toiled, and, ere he broke his fast on that morning, he was enabled to announce to his brother and friends his entire success.

“ Thus, within the short space of three months, he had, by untiring industry, commenced and completed an invention which at once revolutionized the manufacture of cards, and which for ingenuity of construction, precision of movement, rapidity of performance, and perfection of execution, may challenge comparison with any mechanical effort of the human mind. It must be studiously examined to be justly appreciated; and with a distinguished man (Edward Everett) of our day—one alike eminent for his scientific attainments as for his accomplishments as a statesman—we may say, that those who examine its complicated performance can compare it with nothing more nearly than the machinery of the human system.

“ This anecdote, so intimately connected with the invention, was one which Whittemore frequently related, and it was gratifying to observe with what ardor he told the story of his toil; upon no part of which would he dwell with more enthusiastic delight than this singular dream.

“ The brothers, fully aware, if successful, of the value of such a machine, had, in a measure, kept secret the fact of Whittemore’s being engaged in its construction. When therefore completed, steps were immediately taken to secure to the fortunate inventor, and his associates, the pecuniary advantages to be derived; and on the second of June, 1797, a patent right was granted for a term of fourteen years. The importance of securing a patent right in England, as well as in the United States, was not lost sight of. At this time, during the administration of the elder Adams, but few years had elapsed since the establishment of our national independence, and the relations of our country with England were unsettled, while with France we were engaged in naval hostilities. To undertake a voyage across the Atlantic under such circumstances, and at this early period, was considered of almost as much importance as in our time to circumnavigate the globe. To many of the habits of Whittemore, the project of visiting England and there to wade through the difficulties of securing a patent, would have been thought too great an enterprise; at most, that the advantages to accrue would not be commensurate with the risk and expenditure. Not so thought the brothers; and the requisite arrangements being made, it became the duty as well as pleasure of Whittemore to visit that country. At this period but two ships traded regularly between Boston and London—the Galen and the Minerva—in the latter of which he embarked in the spring of 1799, accompanied by an English gentleman named Sharpe, who evinced great interest in the machine, and is believed to have been largely benefited by it in England.

“ Being unacquainted with the circumstances connected with this visit, it is out of our power to give a detail of its events; it is sufficient, however, to know that the invention soon became fully appreciated, and though numerous offers were made, either to purchase the right or become interested in its profits, nothing of consequence was done to remunerate the inventor. Anxious to return, he left his business in the hands of those in whom he reposed confidence, and in the spring of 1800 sailed for Boston, where he arrived in safety after a passage of fifty-nine days and a year’s absence from home. Either on his outward or homeward voyage, the vessel which he was in was captured by the French, but the passengers were released without serious inconvenience.

“ Justly entitled as he was to a rich reward in that country, which has since been so largely benefited by this invention, he was despoiled of his rights, and realized little else than expense and labor.

“No sooner was the machine generally understood in England than it was perceived how fatal its successful operation would become to the working classes engaged in the manufacture of cards. The greatest caution and secrecy were therefore observed, lest the threats of the people to mob those engaged in making the machinery would be carried into execution. The only safe method was to have parts of the machine made in different places, and put together when finished.

“The most extensive, if not the only establishment now [1835?] in operation in England for manufacturing machine cards is that of Mr. Dyer, in Manchester, who has conducted the business with great success; through whose agency the machinery has been carried into France and the other parts of the continent, and is even supposed by many to be his invention, though he himself acknowledges its proper source.¹

“The copartnership of Giles, Richards & Co. having expired some time, Whittemore, with his brother, had been engaged in the manufacture of cards upon the old plan.² On his return from England they formed a connection with their friend, Mr. Robert Williams, of Boston, who possessed the requisite means for carrying on the business with the improved machinery, though on a limited scale.

“Until the year 1809, little had been done beside constructing expensive machines and making the necessary preparations for the manufacture of cards. The patent was at this time within two years of its expiration, and their treasury nearly exhausted. Serious apprehensions were therefore entertained that, when about to realize a remuneration for their time and expense, others, by successful competition, would step in and wrest from them the fruits of all their toils.

“During the session of the Congress of 1808–09, Whittemore, with his brother William, visited Washington, carrying with them a complete machine of full size, as a model for exhibition, which was shown to the members and other men of distinction. It not only elicited universal admiration, but of such advantage was it considered to the country, especially to the cotton and wool growing interest, that many members, among them Matthew Lyon, of Vermont, a gentleman distinguished for his abilities, were disposed to grant a perpetual patent to the inventor and his heirs. The result however was, that on the third of March, 1809, an act received the unanimous vote of Congress, granting a renewal of the patent for fourteen years from the expiration of the first term.

“The city of New York had long since given evidence of its peculiar advantages for trade and commerce; and as early as the year 1803 a branch of the business was established in that city, under the management of a younger brother, Mr. Samuel Whittemore, who became a partner with the brothers. As may be readily supposed, the importance of the machine attracted no little attention among the enterprising

² “Previously the Whittemores had established a third considerable card factory in Boston, in which the old machinery was employed. The three factories at this time manufactured annually about 12,000 dozen of cotton and wool cards, consuming in their construction 200 casks of wire, averaging $130 per cask; 35,000 tanned sheep and calf skins, at $0.37½ each; and employing nearly 2,000 children and 60 men.”—Bishop's American Manufactures, I., 497.

Dr. Holmes, in his History of Cambridge (1801), speaking of a card factory “which does great honor to American ingenuity,” in the Northwest Parish of the town, says: “On the first of September, 1799, William Whittemore and company commenced business. Twenty-three machines, now in operation, stick two hundred dozen pairs of cards, on an average, every week. Forty persons, male and female, employed in this manufactory, complete the above mentioned number weekly, for sale. The building in which the whole work is done is 46 feet square; and the average price of the cards is 7 dollars per dozen pairs.”

of this metropolis ; and soon after the renewal of the patent efforts were made to establish a company with a capital of sufficient magnitude to carry on an extensive business, and thus obtain the certain profit that a monopoly such as this seemed to ensure.

“ Men of fortune and energy gave it their support ; and during the session of the New York Legislature of 1812, an act was passed incorporating the ‘ New York Manufacturing Company,’ with a capital of about $800,000, of which $300,000 was directed to be employed in manufacturing cotton and wool cards, and building the necessary machinery and factories, while the balance was to be employed in banking.

“ One of the first acts of this company was to purchase of the Messrs. Whittemore their patent right and entire stock of machinery ; which was effected on the 20th of July, 1812, for the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The company having purchased a site on New York Island, commenced the erection of extensive works ; and the usual custom in public buildings of laying the corner stone was here observed with much ceremony. And now, for the first time, it may be said that the business had commenced under favorable auspices, so far as capital and an intelligent direction was a guarantee of success.

“ Our country being at this time engaged in an active, and to our commerce a destructive warfare with England, a country that had always supplied us with cotton and woolen, as well as other goods, a check, if not a total suspension, was thus placed upon farther importations, and the manufacture of these fabrics was thrown upon ourselves. Cotton and woolen factories were erected as if by the magic of Aladdin’s lamp, and they, with the demand from all parts of the country for hand cards, gave such an impetus to the business that the company were most actively and profitably engaged.

“ But the peace of 1815, an event so much and so devoutly wished for by our suffering country, proved injurious to the association. Sudden and immense importations of foreign goods followed this event, and such was the insufficient protection then afforded to domestic industry, and so great was the demand for the raw material abroad, that our infant manufactories were compelled to stop, and scarcely a pound of cotton or wool remained at home. The company thus found themselves with a large stock of machinery and cards, and no market. In the year 1818, after waiting in vain for a reaction, and the business being doubtless shackled by the unwieldy management of a corporation, the company proposed and effected a sale of its entire manufacturing property to Messrs. Samuel and Timothy Whittemore, the former a brother, the latter a son of the inventor. Mr. Timothy Whittemore almost immediately thereafter relinquished his interest to his uncle, who became the sole proprietor, and conducted the business with varied success until within a few years. The New York manufacturing company, after this sale, with an increased capital, changed its title to that of the ‘ Phoenix Bank,’ and continues to this day a popular banking institution.

“ At the expiration of the patent in 1825, Mr. Samuel Whittemore sold several of his machines in anticipation of a rapid decline in the business, since the monopoly could no longer be retained ; and from that time the manufacture of cards by machinery has become so general as to make it a business of comparatively small amount to any but a few old established firms. By a singular though interesting chain of circumstances, the identical machines which the inventor himself assisted in building, after being out of his family for more than twenty-five years, have now become the property of his sons, and are used by them in West Cambridge, a small town near that which gave him birth.) Their cards are well known for their uniform excellence, the stamp being to the consumer a sufficient guarantee of their quality.²

"Although more than forty years have elapsed since the invention, such was the perfection with which it came from the mind of the inventor, that no essential improvements have ever been suggested. Attempts were frequently made to defraud him of his well-earned fame, by claiming it as the production of others, but they have proved as abortive as the attempts to infringe upon the patent.³

"After the sale of his interest, Whittemore retired from active life, and having purchased a pleasant estate in the town of West Cambridge, found that quiet and freedom from the many cares of business life so agreeable to his nature. Since the invention he never seriously exerted his mechanical ingenuity, feeling, doubtless, content with the laurels already acquired. Having, however, in early life entertained a deep interest in the science of astronomy, in later years he conceived the plan of a complete orrery, representing the whole planetary system, each planet to describe its own orbit, and the combination acting like nature's own. Enfeebled by an impaired health, and the infirmities of age, he never matured this project, and at length he died in the year 1828, at the age of sixty-nine, at his residence in West Cambridge, leaving a widow to lament the loss of a kind husband, his children an indulgent father, and his associates an amiable and devoted friend. To his family he was an example of one who lived a pure and blameless life; and though he left but an inconsiderable fortune, they inherited a far brighter treasure in an unsullied reputation. Whittemore was of a bland and conciliating disposition, even in temper, and in manners strikingly meditative, conversing but little, and often seen in profound mental study.

"The value that the card machine has been, and still is, not to this country alone, but to the whole manufacturing world, it is believed even few now justly appreciate. With Whitney's cotton-gin it forms an important and necessary link in the chain of machinery which by their operation furnish to the world one of the most useful as well as beautiful fabrics. How far it may have contributed not only to perfect in quality, but to reduce it in cost, cannot be difficult to estimate. We may add, however, in conclusion, that not a cotton or woollen factory is reared that does not rely upon the card machine to complete its own machinery, and the use of the hand card in the southern states has become as general as the culture of cotton itself."

NOTE.—Amos Whittemore, grandson of Amos, of card-machine notoriety, at the age of eighteen invented the pegging machine, an important adjunct to the shoe manufacturing interest in this country. His plan also embraced machines for cutting the uppers and soles, for buffing and pairing the soles and heels, and using wire nails for fastening the heels. The slanting of the pegs in shoes is his idea. His invention was exhibited at West Cambridge in December, 1833, but meeting with discouragement and bitter opposition, was not patented. The machine was sold for forty-five dollars, and others reaped the advantages. Its true source is now recognized, and its utility generally acknowledged. Mr. Whittemore has conceived many other mechanical contrivances of decided merit. He resides in Cambridgeport.

² About 1827, Gershom and Henry Whittemore, sons of the inventor, commenced business in West Cambridge, having purchased machines of their uncle Samuel Whittemore, of New York. Their factory was destroyed by fire in 1862.

³ "In 1827, orders were received from England and France for some card machines of the invention of Whittemore. The English machinists are said to have been unable to put them up after their arrival, and thus were obliged to procure men for that purpose from Boston."—Bishop's Hist. of American Manufactures.

GEORGE W. CUTTER, of Covington, Ky., most favorably known as the Western Poet; the author of the "Song of Steam," and other productions of high poetic merit. A zealous consistent whig, and a Captain in the Second Kentucky Regiment in the war with Mexico. Was near the lamented Col. Clay during the engagement at Buena Vista, and with him at the hour of his death. Was the gentleman who brought Col. Clay's pistols home from the battlefield, and delivered them to Col. Clay's father, at his residence in Ashland. When Col. Clay fell, Capt. Cutter was the only commissioned officer of the regiment on the field. He fought bravely with a musket, and helped carry Col. Clay away from the effects of the enemy's fire. Three of the men who assisted in this office were shot, and the others desisting, Capt. Cutter alone remained. To Capt. Cutter were addressed Col. Clay's last words.

"And oh! what language can impart
The sorrow of that day—
The grief that wrung each manly heart,
For thee, young Henry Clay:
The memory of that glorious strife
Will live in future years,
To us the darkest page of life—
The deepest source of tears.

Capt. Cutter married Miss Drake, an actress, of Cincinnati. He published Buena Vista and other Poems, Cincinnati, 1848. The "Song of Steam" is considered his best poem. He d. in Washington, D. C., Dec. 26, 1865.*

THE SONG OF STEAM.

BY G. W. CUTTER.

Harness me down with your iron bands,
Be sure of your curb and rein;
For I scorn the power of your puny hands,
As the tempest scorns a chain.
How I laughed as I lay concealed from sight,
For many a countless hour,
At the childish boast of human might,
And the pride of human power.

* Vide Boston Semi-Weekly Advertiser, Oct. 27, 1847; N. E. Hist. and General Register, April, 1856, &c.

When I saw an army upon the land,
 A navy upon the seas,
 Creeping along, a snail-like band,
 Or waiting the wayward breeze;
 When I marked the peasant faintly reel
 With the toil which he daily bore,
 As he feebly turned the tardy wheel,
 Or tugged at the weary oar;—

When I measured the panting courser's speed,
 The flight of the courier dove—
 As they bore the law a king decreed,
 Or the lines of impatient love—
 I could not but think how the world would feel,
 As these were outstripp'd afar,
 When I should be bound to the rushing keel,
 Or chained to the flying car.

Ha! ha! ha! they found me at last,
 They invited me forth at length,
 And I rushed to my throne with a thunder-blast,
 And laughed in my iron strength.
 Oh! then ye saw a wondrous change
 On the earth and the ocean wide,
 Where now my fiery armies range,
 Nor wait for wind or tide.

Hurrah! Hurrah! the waters o'er,
 The mountains steep decline,
 Time—space—have yielded to my power—
 The world! the world is mine!
 The rivers, the sun hath earliest blest,
 Or those where his beams decline;
 The giant streams of the queenly west,
 Or the orient floods divine:

The ocean pales where'er I sweep,
 To hear my strength rejoice,
 And the monsters of the briny deep
 Cower, trembling, at my voice.
 I carry the wealth and the lord of earth,
 The thoughts of his god-like mind,
 The wind lags after my flying forth,
 The lightning is left behind.

In the darksome depths of the fathomless mine,
 My tireless arm doth play,
 Where the rocks never saw the sun decline,
 Or the dawn of the glorious day.
 I bring earth's glittering jewels up
 From the hidden cave below,
 And I make the fountain's granite cup
 With a crystal gush o'erflow.

I blow the bellows, I forge the steel,
 In all the shops of trade;
 I hammer the ore and turn the wheel,
 Where my arms of strength are made;
 I manage the furnace, the mill, the mint;
 I carry, I spin, I weave;
 And all my doings I put into print,
 On every Saturday eve.

I've no muscle to weary, no breast to decay,
 No bones to be "laid on the shelf,"
 And soon I intend you may "go and play,"
 While I manage this world myself.
 But harness me down with your iron bands,
 Be sure of your curb and rein;
 For I scorn the strength of your puny hands,
 As the tempest scorns a chain.

And the mountain gorge through which they go

Our eyes gazed o'er the Holy Land.
On the North, Mizpah and Bethoren lay,
And Neby Samuel the same way.

Where th' Romans lay too thick to count;

To show how powerful they were.

AMOS FRANKLIN⁷ CUTTER, b. at Charlestown, Mass., 3 Jan. 1812; attended the public schools of that place until fourteen years of age, when he entered the store of Mr. Isaac Center, in Charlestown, where he remained until the year 1826, when he became an apprentice to William G. Cutter, harness and carriage maker in Boston. [Vide xiii. §1, 2.] In 1833 he went West, via New Orleans, and in 1834 started a coach-trimming and harness-making establishment in Louisville, Ky. In 1838 he sold out and settled in Madison Co., Ill., and in 1841 removed East and located in Lexington, Mass. He then established himself in Chicago, Ill., and in Dec. 1844 took up his residence in Rock Island, Ill., where he now resides. In 1849 he made a trip across the Plains to California, where he mined a few months, after which he carried on the baking business at Sacramento, until the destructive flood of 1849-50. Having lost heavily by that catastrophe, he soon afterwards returned to his home at Rock Island. In 1852 he engaged in the grocery business, and in 1854 sold his saddle, harness and trunk manufactory, and started a steam saw-mill and the lumber business. In 1859, going to Colorado, he became interested in a meat and vegetable market in Denver City, with which he was connected fifteen months. In 1861 he returned home, and again engaged in saddle and harness making. Since 1864 he has been a real-estate agent and notary public.

Mr. Cutter has filled the offices of school director, county school commissioner, alderman and county commissioner. He is the inventor of what is known as "Cutter's Terre-Cotta Casing," for building purposes, and has put himself up a residence the walls of which are entirely of that material, filled with concrete or grout. *ISAAC*⁵ CUTTER. A ledger inscribed "Isaac Cutter's Book of Accompts, 1784," was recently found in a garret at Arlington. The entries extend from 1784 to 1818, the year preceding the accountant's death. The book, embracing eighty-two folios, bound in sheepskin covers, contains accounts with nearly fifty individuals of Cambridge, Charlestown and Melford, a number of whom were Cutters. Want of space forbids an extended notice of this interesting memento of an active and thrifty life.

* Ezekiel Cutter, son of William [vii. 2], perhaps.

RECENT DEATHS.

The following persons have died since the foregoing sheets went to press :

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN⁶ CUTTER (p. 120), d. Aug. 14, 1870.

BETSEY DYER⁶ CUTTER (p. 148), wife of Capt. Henry P. Hill, and daughter of the late Col. Simon Cutter, of Westbrook, died in Calais, Me., Nov. 5, 1870.

HELEN ELIZABETH TUFTS (p. 178), daughter of Rev. Joseph B. and Deborah B. (Cutter) Tufts, d. in Yarmouth, Me., Nov. 27, 1870.

[From the Lowell Daily Courier, Aug. 24, 1870.]

Mr. B. F. CUTTER died in Pelham, N. H., August 14. Mr. Cutter was born August 27, 1802. His father, Mr. John Cutter, was a highly respectable and successful farmer. His mother was a sister of the late Hon. Caleb Butler, of Groton, Mass. His earlier years were spent in working on his father's farm and attending school in his native school district. He also attended Bradford Academy some two or three terms, and was often engaged as a teacher of winter schools, and attained quite a celebrity for his management of refractory scholars. After attaining his majority, he, with other young men from Pelham, was engaged in the construction of the "Mill-Dam" in Boston. While at work there, by his exhibition of energy, decision of character, and good sound judgment, he attracted the attention of the late Hon. David Sears, of Boston, who employed him as superintendent of his farm in Brookline. There Mr. Cutter had ample means at his disposal to make such agricultural and horticultural experiments as commended themselves to his good judgment, and there he acquired much of his skill and good taste in farming, gardening and pomology, for which he has been so distinguished these late years. In 1835 he bought his father's farm and returned to Pelham, where he has lived ever since, up to the time of his death. He soon made great improvements in buildings and otherwise on his farm, and devoted a large portion of it to the cultivation of garden vegetables for market, at first, but soon added the nursery business to his other enterprises. In all this department of rural life he was remarkably successful. He brought the good common sense, sound judgment, energetic action, indomitable will and practical experience with which nature had endowed him, or education afforded, all into action, and success was certain.

As a citizen, he was regarded as one of the most influential and public spirited in the town, ever ready to promote anything tending to elevate the character of the town, by his voice, vote or purse. Our schools owe much of their high character to his efforts for their improvement. He was ever ready to give any advice, or directions, in regard to farming matters, to any one who asked for such, and delighted to do it. And in this one thing alone he will be greatly missed, for his opinions have been regarded as authority in all such matters. He was free, frank and open hearted, and sometimes a little blunt in forms of expression, but every one that knew him, well knew that he always said just what he honestly believed. No one ever accused him of duplicity or hypocrisy. In his domestic relations he was a kind husband and father. A good useful education he has ever considered as of the greatest importance to his children, and such he has ever given them.

Mr. Cutter abhorred all cant, hypocrisy or humbug. No new-fangled theory would receive a moment's consideration unless it commended itself to his judgment. In his writings for the agricultural press, he never gave anything but the result of his own practices, experience or observation. He was a great lover and student of Nature and its works. No animal, reptile, or even the minutest insect, but that he knew something of its nature or habits. Noticing in the woods a strawberry vine of a peculiar appearance, he transfers it to his garden; the well-known standard variety, "Cutter's Seedling," was the result. He was a great reader, but mostly of works of a scientific character. As a writer for agricultural and other publications, his articles were characteristic of the man, and will speak for themselves.

For the last few years he has been troubled with lameness, which somewhat prevented him from taking so active a participation in out-door matters as formerly, and confined to the house most of the time for some months, he had kept himself busy in giving the public his views and experience on rural matters through the agricultural papers of the vicinity.

This is a just but imperfect tribute to the kind husband and father, the public-spirited citizen, the obliging neighbor, the generous friend, and above all, the honest man.

This he requests to be forwarded to him when occasion requires. In accordance with a plan for the extension of the present volume, the information thus accumulated will be published when the amount justifies the procedure, and sufficient pecuniary inducement is offered.
