To all Persons

WHO HAVE IN ANY WAY HELPED TO MAKE THE NAME
DIMON OR DIMOND HONORED AND RESPECTED, THIS VOLUME IS SINCERELY INSCRIBED BY THE COMPILER.

P R E F A C E .

As the result of a long and tedious research, this genealogy of the Dimond or Dimon Family, of Fairfield, Connecticut, is presented to the numerous descendants and others interested in the lives of the pioneers of New England.

But little is known of the history of the first Thomas Dimond, and his ancestry is a matter of conjecture; although it is to be hoped that in the future the facts will be discovered by which his lineage may be traced to his native land, and also furnish the links that will connect his family with others of the same or similar names who were contemporaneous neighbors and who were probably akin.

Errors have been carefully guarded against, and an authority has been found for all statements in which accuracy is desirable.

To the many relatives and friends, who have so kindly devoted their time and attention to the furtherance of this work, are due the sincere thanks of

THE COMPILER.

THE DIMON FAMILY OF FAIRFIELD, CONNECTICUT.

FIRST GENERATION.

Thomas' Dimond, d. 1658, in Fairfield, Conn.

CHILDREN.

- 3. I. MOSES.
- 5. II. JOHN.
- 7. III. THOMAS.

Thomas Demont, Demond, or Dimond, settled at Pequonnock, now North Bridgeport, and owned the homestead of James Bennet. He was a mariner, and the owner of a bark of twelve tons in October, 1658. (Sav. Gen. Dict.) His vessel and cargo was destroyed by fire. (F. T. Rec.)

The name was spelled in various ways; but his sons spelled it Dymond, Demon and Dimond. It was vulgarly pronounced Deming and Demmond. No mention was made of his wife. (Hist. of F.)

He was the head of a family in Fairfield between 1639 and 1650. (Hist. of F.) He may possibly have been the same person who, under the name of Deming or Dymont, married Mary Sheaff¹ and settled at East Hampton, Long Island, about 1660. (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

A thorough search of the Fairfield Town Records fails to reveal any trace of his wife's identity. She must have died before him as she is not mentioned in his will.

The following is a copy of the inventory of his estate, made October 19, 1658. It was about this time he died :

SECOND GENERATION.

Moses¹ Dimon, d. 1684, in Fairfield; m. Abigail Ward.

CHILDREN.

9. I. MOSES.
 II. ABIGAIL, b. Aug. 20, 1676, in Fairfield, m. Nov. 30, 1700, to Samuel Smedley.
 III. THOMAS, b. Sept. 15, 1678, d. before his father.
 IV. HESTER.
 V. GRACE.

Settled in Fairfield about 1648, and married Abigail Ward. May 2, 1670, he purchased of John Purdy, son of Francis Purdy of Westchester, the Purdy homestead on Frost Square. (F. T. Rec.) The following is a copy of the deed, dated Jan. 19, 1670: Moses Dimond hath purchased of John Purdy for a valuable consideration, one dwelling house and homelot: In quantity three acres and three quarters: bounded on the S. E. with the highway. S. W. with the land of John Banks; on the N. W. with highway; on the N. E. with Jacob Gray and Thomas Barlow's children: The said John hath given the said Moses a bill of sale dated 19th Dec., 1670. (F. T. Rec.)

Moses Demont or Dimond was among those who did not share in the early land divisions although he was a property-owner (Hist. of F.); but later he acquired that right as his name appears on the following lists of persons sharing in the distribution of land:

"A List of ye Inhabitants proportions of lands in ye Comons granted to ye Inhabitants in ye year 1670-71 and is now Recorded December 1681" Moses Dimon 292 acres.

"Here followeth a list of ye building lots, pasture lots, & long-lots granted to ye inhabitants of ye town Jan. 1670-71 & recorded Dec. 30, 1681."

This time he received 6 acres and 3 quarters of building lots,

SECOND GENERATION.

5 acres, 1 quarter and 24 rods of pasture land and a long lot 10 rods, 1 quarter and 3 feet in breadth.

At Compo on Feb. 28, 1671-2, he received one lot.

In the division of an old Indian field on Feb. 10, 1682-3, he secured 1 quarter, 23 rods and 10 feet.

“A list of ye Lots at Compo neck, both ye Divisions, ye first division is 3 rods per pound ye Second division is 5 Rods pr pound, and is as followeth 1682.”

Moses Dimon's estate was estimated at 90 pounds. In the first division he received 1 acre, 2 quarters and 30 rods, and in the second division 2 acres, 3 quarters and 10 rods. (Hist. of F.)

His will, dated March 21, 1683, is as follows:

“Impr: I give my soul to my merciful creator that gave it: Expecting salvation only by the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ my Lord, and my body to be decently buried; and for my temporal estate I dispose as followeth: My will is that my just debts and dues be first paid. Item: I give my dear wife Abigail the one half of my personal estate: Also her dowry out of my house and lands during her natural life; and the use of the other two thirds of my land until my son be of the age of twenty one years; Except my wife continue a widow longer. She to enjoy it during her widowhood.

“Item: I give my son Moses Dimond my housing and all my lands in Fairfield to enjoy two thirds of it at twenty one years of age: Except his mother continues a widow longer than at the expiration of her widowhood, and the other third part to enjoy at the decease of my wife. He to pay each of my three daughters twenty pounds apiece after he enters upon the two thirds of the land: To be paid within six years after his entry on the land ten pounds a year. Beginning with Abigail and so to the rest of the sisters successively.

“Item: My will is that my three daughters Abigail, Hester & Grace shall have the other half of my personal estate to be equally divided between them:

“To inherit their portions at eighteen years of age, or at marriage if they marry sooner: and if any of my children die before they come to age it is my will that the surviving children inherit their portions.

“I appoint my loving wife to be sole executrix.

“Item: It is my will that my son shall not sell any of the lands that I have given him during his mother’s life.

“I do desire my loving bretheren Mr. John Burr and Samuel Ward be the overseers of this my last will and for confirmation that this shall stand as my last will I have hereunto set to my hand this 21 March 1683.”

The homestead bought of John Purdy, in 1670, remained in the family until after the death of Mrs. Ebenezer Dimon (No. 105) in 1852, when it was sold by her grandson, Arthur Dimon Osborn (No. 283), who now resides in New Haven. “The name was often spelled without the final d, always at Yale College.” (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

Abigail (Ward) Dimon, m. Moses Dimon; m. 2d, 1685, to Edw. Howard.

Daughter of Andrew and Esther Ward of Fairfield. “Andrew Ward was first known of in Watertown, Mass., where he was made a freeman, Mar. 3, 1634, and on Mar. 3, 1636, he was appointed with Roger Ludlow and six others by the General Court of Mass., to govern the Colony of Connecticut for one year. He was one of the judges of the first legislative body held in Connecticut, at Newtown or Hartford on Apr. 26, 1636.

“About 1651 he purchased Simon Hoyt’s lot in Fairfield which he sold in 1653, and the same year purchased Thomas Newton's house and lot on Ludlow square.

"He was one of the most important and influential men in Fairfield.

"He died in 1665, leaving nine children. In his will he left forty pounds to his daughter Abigail at the age of eighteen." (Hist. of F., p. 418.)

"Upon the death of her first husband, Abigail married Edward Howard of Roxbury, Mass., whose wife Mary died in 1643." (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

John¹ Dimond, m. June 17, 1674, Rebecca Bemis.

CHILDREN.

13. I. JOHN.
II. SARAH, b. 1676.
14. III. JONATHAN.

Was apprenticed to Major Nathan Gold until of age, and thus became one of the family. (Hist. of F.) Oct. 19, 1658. "The Court hath put John Dimond, with his consent, unto Lieutenant Gold till he is twenty-one years of age, who is faithfully to serve him, and he must have sufficient meat, drink and clothing, and twelve pounds at the end of his term, and he is not to be to his heirs or assigns.

"WILLIAM HILL, Secretary."
(F. T. Rec.)

He moved to New London, where he settled, and married Rebecca, widow of Thomas Minter, and daughter of James Bemis, of that place. (Sav. Gen. Dict.) Possibly the same person as mentioned in the New England Gen. Reg., vol. 6, as follows:

"Jonathan Dimont, 1672, one of the early settlers of Essex and Old Norfolk." Constable of New London in 1679. (Calkins' Hist. of New London.)

Rebecca (Bemis) Dimon, m. Apr. 1, 1672, Tobias Minter; m. 2d, June 17, 1674, to John Dimond; m. 3d, Aug. 2, 1682, to Benedict Satterlee.

Daughter of James and Sarah Bemis of New London. She was married first to Tobias Minter of New Foundland, and after his death, to John Dimond of Fairfield, and at his decease she married Benedict Satterlee of Killingworth.

After the death of James Bemis, his wife Sarah married Edward Griswold of Killingworth. (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

- V. JOHN, b. July 25, 1686, in New London; d. there next year.

October 19th, 1658. "The Court with the consent of Thomas Dimond hath put the say'd Thomas an apprentice unto William Ward for the space of five years next ensuing; faithfully to serve him. And he is to have sufficient meat, drink and clothing; and eleven pounds to be truly paid him at the end of the term in good merchantable pay: And there shall be indentures drawn between them to that end. He is not to be bound to their heirs or assignes.

"WILLIAM HILL, Sec."
(F. T. Rec.)

He was a mariner and settled at New London, where he married Elizabeth Bradley. (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

Thomas Dymond, aged twenty-eight years, in 1670 was one of the early settlers of Essex and Old Norfolk. (New Eng. Gen. Reg., vol. 6.)

THIRD GENERATION.

15

In Calkins' History of New London, mention is made of him as follows:

Page 146, "In 1670 or near that time we first meet with Thomas Dymond and Benj. Shapley both mariners, the former from Fairfield."

Page 232 informs us that the master of a vessel was generally part owner of craft and cargo, and in small coasters the master or skipper was independent of orders. New London was noted before 1700 for her coasting vessels and skippers, and among the latter is mentioned Thomas Dymond.

Page 236. The barque Providence coming in from sea was lost with her cargo on Fisher's Island Point on the night of Nov. 28, 1679. The master, Thomas Dymond, and two assistants were barely saved.

In minutes of cases chiefly before county court in 1680, Capt. John Nash presiding, is found the case of Thomas Dymond vs. barque Providence — stranded on Fisher's Island — for salvage of goods.

Page 278. Thomas Dymond, brother-in-law of Peter Bradley, died 1687. Thomas was probably brother to John Dymond, constable in 1679. Name and family passed away from New London. House and wharf were purchased by Benjamin Starr in 1702, but the Dymond heirs continued proprietors of inner commons until 1719.

Elizabeth (Bradley) Dimond, b. 1655 ; m. Sept. 22, 1670, Thomas Dimond, II.

Daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Brewster) Bradley of New London. Elizabeth daughter of Jonathan Brewster.

Peter Bradley died in 1662. (Sav. Gen. Dict.)

 VI. DAVID, bap. Nov. 20, 1709; probably died before 1745, as he is not mentioned in his father's will.
 VII. DAMARIS, bap. Aug. 24, 1712; died in infancy.
 27. VIII. DAMARIS.

Married, 2d., Abigail Gilbert; m. 3d, 1738, Jane Hill.

Settled on the homestead in Fairfield and was one of the wealthy and influential citizens of the town.

No record of his first marriage can be found in Fairfield; it is, therefore, presumed that he was married in some other place.

His second and third wives are mentioned in the town records, and the following marriage agreement with Jane Hill, his third wife, may be of some interest:

"Marriage agreement between Moses Dimon and Jane Hill March 7th, 1738.

This indenture made between Moses Dimon of the Town and County of Fairfield in the Colony of Connecticut of the one part: and Jane Hill of said Fairfield, single woman, on the other part, witnesseth: that whereas there is a marriage agreed upon and shortly to be confirmed between the said Moses Dimon and Jane Hill. Now it is agreed by the said parties that after the confirmation of the said marriage of the said Moses Dimon shall have and hold all the money, goods credits and uses of lands that said Jane Hill now stands possessed of: and it is further agreed and consented to that after the marriage of the aforesaid if the said Moses Dimon happen to depart this transitory life before the said Jane then the said Jane shall have out of the estate of the said Moses Dimon (one hundred pounds current money of said

MOSES DIMON. [seal.]

He was evidently an officer of the militia, as he was called Lieutenant in 1709, and Captain in 1712. (F. Par. Rec.) In 1733 he was a deacon in the Fairfield Church. (F. Par. Rec.) The name of Moses Dimon appears on the following lists of those receiving land at the divisions of community property in 1688, and as Moses was the only one of that name living at that time in Fairfield, it is probable he was the person, although he could have been but sixteen years old at the time.

“Here follows a draught of ye Lots for Paul’s neck & ye wolf swamp & reedy ponds, & ye two half mile of Comon, & two miles in length of ye mile of Comon, more fully appearing in an order of ye town dated ye 6th of Apl. 1688, & yt each divider should draw one Lot for his part of said Divisions.” Moses Dimon drew lot number 93.

“Here followeth ye Divisions of Paul’s neck to ye Several Dividers in 1688 with ye order of lying.” Moses Dimon’s share being 7 acres 8 quarters and 10 rods.

On the 25th of February, 1695, Moses Dimon sold a piece of land to John Osborn. Nov. 30, 1705, he bought some land in the common of John Ward. April 23, 1705, he exchanged some land with Thomas Williams. And on Oct. 27, 1707, he bought three acres of land from John Ward. (F. T. Rec.)

His will dated November 4, 1745, and probated August 26, 1748, is as follows :

“In the name of God, amen, the fourth day of November 1745.

“I, Moses Dimon of the Town and County of Fairfield in the Colony of Connecticut being in health of body and of sound mind and memory thanks be given to God therefor, and calling to mind my mortality do make and ordain this my last will and testament and “Firstly and principally I recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it and my body to the earth to be buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named: and as touching such worldly estate whereunto it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life I will, devise and bequeath the same in manner following:

“Imprimis: My will is that all my just debts and funeral expenses be first paid out of my personal estate:

“Item: To my beloved wife Jane I will and bequeath my negro child Sue being about two years old in addition to what I have given her by jointure which my will is shall be punctually paid to her.

“Item: To my beloved and eldest son Moses Dimon I will, devise and bequeath a piece of salt meadow adjoining to the sea beach and it is to run from his own meadow to the said beach taking the breadth of the lot which belonged to my father Moses Dimon of Fairfield dec.: to be to him and his heirs and assigns forever. Also my negro wench named Tamel: also my gun and silver hilted sword.

“Item: To my beloved son John Dimon I will, devise and bequeath a piece of salt meadow lying at the rear end of Lockwood’s lot so called beginning at the Southerly end of his meadow and so to run to the beach taking the whole breadth of said Lockwood’s lot to be to him and his heirs and assigns forever: also my large iron bound chest.

“Item: To my beloved son Ebenezer Dimon and to his heirs and assigns forever I will, devise and bequeath five acres of land in the Town: called Joseph lot opposite to Capt. Hill’s house. Also all my land in Joshua’s lot so called within the Field Gate, in quantity about three acres: also my land at the Field so called; being my pasture lot and Jacob Gray’s &c.: in quantity about fifteen acres: also all my land in the Great pasture, being in quantity about eleven acres be it more or less; bounded northerly by his own land, and southerly my said son John’s land: also all my meadow in the Reed Pond lot so called and all my right in Paul’s neck; also my negro boy named Jeffrey.

“Item: All the rest of my estate both real and personal not before by me disposed of I will and bequeath to two loving daughters, namely, Abigail, the wife of Joseph Hill, and Damaris, the wife of Peter Bradley; to be equally divided between them.

“Finally: I do hereby constitute and appoint my well beloved sons Moses Dimon and Ebenezer Dimon executors of this my last will and testament whereby revoking all former wills by me made: In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year first written above.

“ MOSES DIMON.

His valuable estate was distributed April 28, 1749, by Samuel Burr, James Dennie and Lathrop Lewis.

The property was valued at £15,600, but most of it was deeded to his sons before his death. (F. Pro. Rec.)

His body lies in the old Fairfield burying-ground, and the following is a copy of the epitaph:

He lived in Weston, and upon hearing of the landing of the British forces at Cedar Point, in April, 1777, he took his gun, mounted his horse, and started out to oppose the invaders. On his way he met a company of horsemen who asked him where he was going, and thinking they were friends, he replied that he was going to shoot the British. Whereupon he was immediately seized by them and tied on a horse and his gun was broken over a rock. He was taken to New York and imprisoned in an old sugar-house; where, it is thought, he afterward died of small-pox.

His home was plundered by the British soldiers, who took a high silk hat, a blue broadcloth coat and a pair of silver knee buckles, for which his wife afterward received payment from the British government. The inventory of his estate was dated May 21, 1778.

"Daniel Dimon was a builder. There are certainly three houses standing, built under his supervision; his own, a "Colonial" which stands on the premises of Marvin Hull, Mill Plain, the dwelling of O. W. Jones of Fairfield, and the 'Peter Burr House.' He also built the Fourth Congregational Church in 1785, which was torn down in 1849, to give place for the present structure. Mrs. Sophia Edwards, daughter of O. W. Jones, preserved its memory in verse. During the Revolution Daniel Dimon was commissioned as an officer, and in consequence had to leave his wife, a delicate woman, unprotected, to care the best she could for her family. She too deserves a monument." (The Old Burying Ground of Fairfield, by Kate E. Perry.)

The house built by Daniel was on a lot of about twenty acres, situated in the school district of Millplain on the direct road from Southport to Greenfield Hill, about one mile from the center of the town of Fairfield, and the same distance from Southport. The house was a two-story frame building, standing near the road on a high elevation overlooking Mill river.

After Daniel Dimon's death the house was occupied by his son Bradley, who mortgaged it to Alfred Perry, the husband of Ann Dimon. Upon the death of Bradley Dimon, Alfred Perry sold the house to Marvin Hull, and several years later he had the building torn down to make room for a new structure. The records of Daniel and Lois Dimon, and of their children, are taken from Daniel's family Bible, now in the possession of Mary B. Dimond, Marietta, Ohio. The following is one of the entries:

"March the 30th 1798 Daniel Dimon has been in this world 51 years. His wife Lois has been here 47 years September 1798."

Daniel was buried in the old Fairfield burying-ground, and the epitaph is as follows:

The following is copied from the book on the old burying-ground in Fairfield: "Capt. Hezekiah Sturges was the son of Solomon Sturges, who was killed in cold blood by the British, July 9, 1779, and whose body probably lies in these grounds. When he heard the British had landed, he called for his horse, which being brought, he mounted and started for his cattle, which were near the beach, with the hope of rescuing them from plunder.

"The British seeing him, a soldier fired and wounded him so that he was unable to retain his hold upon the horse, so crawling under a tree, another British soldier run him through with a bayonet, thus terminating his existence.

"Solomon, his father, left three sons: Hezekiah, Joseph and Judson; they were grandsons of John Sturges, born about 1624 or 1625 and died in 1700; in all probability he also lies in this ground. Hezekiah was a farmer of goodly estate, his residence was in the rear of the spreading elm on Miss Mary Nichols' premises.

“The enemy met here and had a bountiful repast after the inmates fled for safety; after gratifying their appetites they burnt to the ground all that was left.

“During the following winter Hezekiah drew timber from the distant woods and built anew. In this house was space devised and employed for religious purposes, the Episcopalians being permitted to hold their services here till they could erect a church edifice, which was located a few rods distant.

“He was a man loyal to his country and to his church.”

The following sketch of David Dimon is taken from "Brief Memorials of Ancestry and Kindred," by Arthur Dimon Osborn.

"David Dimon was commissioned Captain of the 4th Company in the 5th Regiment, when the six Connecticut regiments were organized in 1775, by Act of the General Assembly, for service in the revolutionary war. He was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel, and on the death of the Colonel took command of the regiment, and died in the service."

The following narrative was prepared by his son, Ebenezer Dimon, January 13, 1841:

"Col. David Dimon of Fairfield, commenced his Revolutionary services in 1774, by assisting in organizing and preparing his fellow-citizens in the town for that event. In the early part of 1775 he joined a corps of volunteers which took possession of a quantity of the King's military stores in New York.

"The States of Connecticut and New York having determined on raising forces for the invasion of Canada, my father received a commission of Captain in the corps raised for that object. I was with him from May till the end of August in their company near the city of New York and did the duty of waiter to him and of fogleman to the company, till the company broke up and the troops proceeded under the order of General Montgomery on the Canadian expedition.

"When the siege of St. Johns commenced my father was promoted to the rank of Brigade Major and became one of General Montgomery's staff. He assisted in taking Fort Chambly. A part of the select corps was led by Major Brown and the other part by him. At the surrender of St. Johns he was appointed to take possession of the Fort and receive the submission of the garrison. He continued with Montgomery until he took possession of Montreal, at which time circumstances required him to return to Connecticut. In the campaign of 1776 he was promoted to the rank of Major in one of the Connecticut regiments raised for the defense of New York, and I was with him during the whole of this discouraging campaign. In the winter of that year Congress passed an order for raising the regular army, and he was again promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in one of the Connecticut regiments. The chief Colonel (Douglas) soon after his appointment was taken sick and died and the duty of recruiting and preparing the regiment for actual service devolved on my father.

“While this was in progress a detachment of the British army, under General Tryon, landed on the west side of this town on their expedition to destroy a large quantity of military stores at Danbury. As soon as the alarm had reached us here my father assembled and put in motion such of the new recruits as had been enlisted in this part of the State to harass the British on their march. In the battle of Ridgefield which took place in the same expedition, he acted under the immediate orders of General Arnold. Directly after this event the regiment was filled up and prepared for actual service and was posted on the line between this State and New York. The duties at this post became very arduous, requiring constant vigilance and change of position to prevent surprise by the numerous forces of the British then in New York. In a night movement in September the regiment became drenched in rain during nearly the whole night, and my father, the next day, was seized with a bilious fever, which proved fatal in the thirty-sixth year of his age. At this time I was again with him. About two years after this the house which he left was burnt by a detachment of the British army, in the general conflagration of this village. This loss reduced his family nearly to a state of indigence severely felt for ten years after.”

Another account is given in Lossing's Field-Book of the Revolution, vol. I, page 403.

“Colonels Cook and Dimon with a small force of militia attempted to defend Danbury against the British (April 26th, 1777), but their force being too small they retreated to the Americans at Bethel.”

And in vol. I, page 408:

“Col. David Dimon, one of Wooster’s subordinate officers was a native of Fairfield and was a brave and useful soldier. He was one of the volunteers who captured British stores at Turtle Bay, N. Y., and one of Montgomery’s staff in the expedition to Canada in 1775.

“He was active in the capture of St. Johns on the Sorel and Fort Chambly, after which he returned to Connecticut on public business, and was not with the army in its defeat at Quebec. Colonel Dimon continued in active service until after Tryon’s expedition to Danbury.

“He had the command of the barricades in Ridgefield and pursued the British to Compo. A fever produced by exposure in the service caused his death in September following when in the 36th year of his age.”

The inscription on his tombstone in Fairfield reads as follows :

Was a cabinet-maker and lived in Millplain on the road to Greenfield Hill, where he built a house which he afterward sold to Abel Beers.

During the War of 1812 with England, he served as a volunteer and was stationed at Black Rock, Conn., to help prevent the landing of the English at that point.

His business having outgrown the town of Fairfield, he moved with his son Robert to Augusta, Ga., where they both died of fever.

The following anecdote of his life is told by Mrs. Mary A. Thompson of Stamford, Conn. "I must tell you how energetic Jesse was. He had a large shop in Fairfield, being a cabinet-maker and employed many men. An idle man frequently sauntered in, vexing uncle, who said: 'Here! will you turn this grindstone?' The man willingly began to turn, and after a while he looked around and asked who was going to grind; and finding himself an object of mirth he made haste to leave and troubled uncle no more."

He built the house on the Dimon homestead in place of the one burned by the British in Tryon's expedition in 1779, when nearly every building in this then large and prosperous town was destroyed. He was sheriff of Fairfield county from October 20, 1806, to June 1, 1819. He was a gentleman of extensive reading, an interesting talker, speaking French with facility, and his house was the hospitable resort of many French officers remaining in the country after the Revolutionary war. He was one of the founders and chief supporters of the Fairfield Academy and the Public Library connected with it, and gave to all his children a liberal education. He left an estate of about $60,000."

Mary Sherwood (Hinman) Dimon, b. Jan., 1778, in New London; d. May 25, 1852, in Fairfield; m. July 23, 1800, Ebenezer Dimon.

She was a woman of superior character and intellect. Though the mother of a large family, and obliged to contend with ill health and straightened circumstances in the early part of her married life, owing to the death of her husband's father in the army and the burning of their house in the destruction of Fairfield, she never lost her courage or neglected her family duties, and through all kept a lively interest in literature and society. A part of her later years was spent in Boston, where she was a favorite in the most refined society, which she enjoyed in company with her son Oliver, who was devotedly attached to her.

She died at the Fairfield home, which soon after passed out of the family, all the descendants having removed from Fairfield.

She was the daughter of Capt. Elisha Hinman of New London; the following account of whom is taken from Brief Memorials of Ancestry and Kindred:

"Captain Elisha Hinman was one of the most gallant and distinguished of the naval officers in the Revolutionary war. He was born at Woodbury, Conn., March 9, 1732. His cousin, Colonel Benjamin Hinman, was colonel of the —— Regiment of the Connecticut line, in which he served with distinction, and no less than thirteen of the family were commissioned officers during the Revolutionary war. He was the great-grandson of Sergeant Edward Hinman, who came to this country and settled in Stratford, Conn., about 1650, from whom also were descended Colonel Benjamin Hinman and Hon. Joel Hinman, Chief Justice of Connecticut. He married in March, 1777, Abigail Dolbeare, the daughter of George Dolbeare of Montville and Mary Sherwood of Toilsome Hill in Fairfield. Mary Sherwood was a sister of Thomas Sherwood, whose daughter Anna married Jeremiah Osborne, thus connecting the family on both sides with the Sherwoods. George Dolbeare was the son of John Dolbeare, a wealthy merchant of Boston. When nineteen years old Captain Hinman commanded a merchant ship engaging in trade in the West Indies, in which he was quite successful. He was commissioned, by the Continental Congress, captain of the Cabot, 16 guns, August 13, 1776, and captain of the frigate Alfred, 28 guns, October 10, 1776. After the war he engaged in mercantile business at New London." For a full account of the Hinmans, Dolbeares, and Days, see "Hinman's Catalogue of the First Puritan Settlers, No. 5," and "Ancestral Tablets." Miss Caulkins, in her History of New London says, page 537:

"Captain Elisha Hinman was one of three brothers who came from Woodbury and settled in New London about 1760. He was a veteran of the sea before the Revolution and took an early part in the contest. Commanded the brig Cabot in the squadron of Commodore Hopkins, and succeeded Paul Jones in the ship Alfred, which he was compelled to surrender to the Ariadne and the Ceres, on a return voyage from France, March 9, 1778. Being carried a prisoner to England, he escaped to France, and returning home engaged for a while in private adventures. In 1779 he went out in the privateer Hancock and had a run of brilliant success. The taking of the Lady Erskine of 10 guns, within sight of the harbor of New London, by the Hancock and Beaver, Captains Hinman and Havens, by cutting her off from a British fleet of 21 sail, under convoy of the frigate Thames, of 36 guns, added another laurel to his fame."

On page 640, volume I, of Lossing's Field-Book of the Revolution, there is a picture of the monument erected to his memory at Stonington, Conn., and a copy of the inscription which gives an account of his life.

- IV. JAMES CROCKER, b. Feb. 7, 1850, in Detroit, Mich.; d. Mar. 8, 1851, in Dimondale, Mich.
224. V. HENRY CIPPERLY.

Baptized June 4, 1804. (F. Par. Rec.) Restored the final "d" to the name. He attended the academy at Fairfield, where he prepared himself for Yale College. Upon the death of his father — after having been burned out in an enterprise he had undertaken in the South — he went to New York city, where he was apprenticed to a silversmith, who did every thing in his power to prevent Isaac from learning the trade, being jealous of his (Isaac's) uncle Isaac Marquand's influence. Mr. Marquand at that time controlled the largest retail jewelry trade in the city.

Having finished his apprenticeship without any particular knowledge of the business, owing to the peculiar situation in which he had been placed, Isaac made arrangements to remain one year as a journeyman, with wages and the privilege of using the tools after the day's work was done and gathering the dust from the floors of the work-rooms, from which he procured enough silver to complete a set of spoons for his mother.

At the end of the year he had $1,000 in bank and, what was more, a knowledge of his trade.

He succeeded in obtaining better terms from his employer for the next two years, during which time, by strict economy and the proceeds from the invention of some labor-saving machinery — the first used in the silver trade — he had saved enough to lease the establishment for a year, and at the end of that time he bought it outright and hired his old employer as a workman.

His success as a manufacturing jeweler and silversmith was phenomenal. After some years he retired from active business and transferred his capital into real estate, and was then considered one of the wealthiest men in the city.

But, unfortunately, having indorsed largely for some young men who speculated in real estate, and to save himself from their large obligations, during the financial crisis of 1840 and 1841, he took advantage of the Bankrupt Act, and gave up all he possessed. The following is from one of the New York papers of that time.

“UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—In Bankruptcy.—Before Judge Betts.

“Isaac M. Dimond, among the many and bitter reverses of fortune, exhibited by the applications in the Bankrupt court, none stands more conspicuous than that of this gentleman. A silversmith by profession, he rose, by his own energies, to be master, some ten or twelve years since, of what was supposed to be an almost princely fortune, the whole of which has been lost in the storm that has wrecked so many of our most energetic, though, perhaps, in many instances, too adventurous citizens.

“Mr. Dimond commenced, a long time previous to the speculating mania, successful operations in real estate — he erected the immense pile of buildings which stand on Little Green street, in a part of which were his own works — he also purchased the Thorburne estate, in Liberty street — (his bonds and mortgages for which, in the sum of $50,000, to Grant Thorburne and Geo. C. Thorburne, form a part of his schedule) — and other buildings in the street and vicinity, and erected nearly, if not quite, all the stores on the northerly side of Liberty street, from Nassau street to Broadway, thus employing a vast number of men. He also operated successfully in other parts of the city, and, although still quite a young man, his future prospects seemed brilliant and unclouded.

“But what was object of still stronger attraction in the character of Mr. Dimond, was his proverbial charity in relation to the poor, and his ever open hand and heart in the cause of religion and benevolence — none contributed, compared with his means, more liberally than he did to the many enterprises having for their object the improvement in condition and the happiness of his fellow beings — the Bible Society, the missionary institutions, the Temperance cause, and such found in him, not only in word but in deed, a most active supporter. The subject of free churches early occupied a portion of his attention, and to him we owe the celebrated edifice known as the Broadway Tabernacle, he having in connection with a gentleman named Greene, projected and built it. Notwithstanding, however, that it was an ornament and great source of benefit to our city, he lost an immense sum of money in its erection and support, and was finally obliged to dispose of it.

“ Mr. Dimond, however, has lost all, and the mind cannot but deeply regret that one so apparently deserving should have been borne upon so heavily by the calamities which have visited the active business portion of the land. We have extended this remark further than we had intended to do, but the case of Mr. D. is one so replete with considerations as to ‘the events of the times, that we thought it worthy of a passing notice.’

“ His wild lands in Michigan were then thought to be of little value and were given back to him. It was there that he moved after his financial embarrassment and settled down in mercantile business in Jackson, Mich. He spent a large portion of his time and energy for the next twelve years in developing the town of Dimondale (named for him) in Eaton county, Michigan, where he owned much land. After getting a flour and saw-mill and many other improvements under way, he and his wife returned to Brooklyn to live. Two years later he died of a congestive chill, after an illness of two days.

“ Some of his property in New York has since become very valuable. One lot on Wall street that he gave up for $15,000, was afterward sold for more than one million dollars.

“ He owned that time what is now the best part of Murray Hill in New York city. His motto was to 'do right' even if it brought disaster to him and his.

"As requested by him, he was buried at Fairfield by the side of his mother."

Sarah C. (Capen) Dimond, b. June 8, 1818, in Salisbury, Vt.; m. Apr. 18, 1839, Isaac M. Dimond; m. 2d, Jan. 24, 1867, Douglass Putnam.

Eldest daughter of Theophilus and Miranda (Colton) Capen. He was a graduate of Harvard College and a bright and eloquent lawyer. He practiced law at Salisbury, Vt., at Warsaw, N. Y., and for a few months at Gainesville, N. Y., where he died September, 1824, in his thirty-fourth year, leaving four daughters, the oldest six years and the youngest — who afterward became Mrs. Gray, mother of Mrs. W. H. Dimond of San Francisco — but six months old. Miranda, born April, 1795, died April 28, 1860, was a daughter of Deacon Ruben Colton of Enfield, Mass. Twelve years after the death of her husband, Theophilus Capen, she married (Aug. 5, 1835) Leonard Woods of Enfield, Mass., by whom she had two daughters.

Theophilus Capen, Sr., father of the above, was a graduate of Harvard College, where he had fitted himself for the ministry; but from diffidence and fear of public speaking spent most of his life on a farm. He married Rachel Lambert of Kennebec, Me. They both died in Fairhaven, Vt., about 1838 or 1839.

The subject of this sketch was educated in New England until fifteen years of age, when she moved to Oberlin, Ohio, at the invitation of her uncle, Mr. Stewart, who, with the Rev. J. J. Shipperd, had undertaken to found Oberlin College, which she attended for the next four years.

From there she removed to Newark, N. J., where she taught for a year or more.

It was there she met Isaac M. Dimond, and after an acquaintance and correspondence of a few months, she married him at Enfield, Mass.

After his death in 1862 she resided in Brooklyn, N. Y., until her marriage with Douglass Putnam (Jan. 24, 1867) of Marietta, Ohio, where she has since resided.

Elias P. Benham, b. July 4, 1805, in —, Conn.; d. May 27, 1863, at Fairfax Court House; m. Sept. 16, 1835, Rachel M. Dimond.

For a number of years he was engaged with William Lloyd Garrison, Garrett Smith and Wendell Phillips in the anti-slavery movement, in which he took a great interest, and spent much time in aiding runaway slaves. His wife occupied herself for nearly a year in raising money to give the refugees schools in Canada. When the news came of the firing on Fort Sumter he was jubilant and said: "This is the end of slavery, we will all go." He enlisted in the Seventh Michigan Cavalry, on the non-commissioned staff. He died at Fairfax Court House May 27, 1864, greatly mourned by the entire regiment. They had his body embalmed and sent home at their expense. His widow moved to Olivet, Mich., where she died. Four of their sons served in the Union army.

 VII. CAROLINE SOPHIA, b. Feb. 19, 1849, in Honolulu;
 d. there Feb. 16, 1850.

Added the final "d" to the name. Attended the village school at Fairfield, where he received a good common school education. Moved to New York at the age of fourteen and learned the trade of book-binding, at which he worked until twenty-one years of age. Then he attended school at Rochester, N. Y., for two years, and from there went to Andover, Mass., to study at Phillips Academy for one year, after which he returned to New York and studied for the ministry at the University of New York.

He remained there until early in 1834, when he received an appointment from the American Board of Foreign Missions, to take charge of the bindery department of the Mission at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands. About this time he met Ann Maria Anner of New York, to whom he was soon engaged.

Several days after their wedding, in November, they sailed for Honolulu, where he was connected with the mission for fifteen years. It was said that he was the only man from Maine to Louisiana, who could be found by the Board of Missions, and who could preach and bind books.

After his retirement from the mission he entered into the hardware business with his brother-in-law, under the firm name of W. S. Anner & Co., and soon after, he and Mr. E. O. Hall — who was the printer of the mission — bought out the business of W. S.

Anner & Co., which they carried on for many years under the name of Hall & Dimond. When well advanced in years he retired from business, and is now living in Honolulu. The records of Henry Dimond and his family are taken from his family Bible.

The following is from the New York Tribune of September 2, 1890:

"The death of Charles Dimon, vice-president of the Kings County Bank, took place on August 27 at his home, No. 81 Remsen street, Brooklyn. Mr. Dimon was sixty-four years old. He was born in Southport, Conn., and came to New York city about 1843, entering as a clerk the shipping-house of Dunham & Dimon, No. 68 South street, in which his brother, Frederick Dimon, was the junior partner. After remaining some time with his brother, Mr. Dimon became one of the firm of Wakeman, Gookin & Co., a large shipping-house. For the last ten years Mr. Dimon was vice-president of the Kings County Bank. He was also a director of the St. Nicholas Bank, a member of the Produce and Maritime Exchanges, and a vestryman of St. Ann's Protestant Episcopal Church in Brooklyn. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. John W. Chapman of Brooklyn, and a sister. The funeral took place on Saturday morning, the remains being conveyed to Southport for burial."

189.

David¹⁰⁴ Dimon, b. Jan. 7, 1809, in Fairfield; d. Oct. 13, 1890, in Auburn, N. Y.

He fitted for college at the Fairfield Academy, entered the class of 1828, in Yale College, but did not graduate. Studied medicine at Philadelphia, and elsewhere, and settled in Auburn, N. Y., where he has spent the greater part of his life in the practice of his profession, and giving his medical advice and aid freely and generously to numbers of people. He has been an extensive reader and given to speculation on philosophic and scientific problems. In 1884 he published a book on The Philosophy of Motion.

The following is taken from the Bridgeport Republican Standard of Oct. 24th, 1890:

"Dr. David Dimon, who died at Auburn, N. Y., October 13, last, was born at Fairfield January 7, 1809. He was the son of Ebenezer Dimon of Fairfield, for many years sheriff of the county, and Mary Sherwood Hinman, daughter of Capt. Elisha Hinman of New London, a naval officer of distinction during the Revolution. His grandfather, Col. David Dimon, commanded the Fifth Connecticut Regiment of the line, and died in the service. The Dimon family became the owners of the lot on the Main street, opposite the Academy, in Fairfield in 1670, and resided there in successive generations until 1853, when, all the descendants having removed, the property was sold. Mr. Dimon was the last survivor of his generation, his brother, Dr. Theodore Dimon, having died at Auburn in July, 1889. He entered Yale College with the class of 1828, but did not graduate. He afterward studied medicine and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1838. He settled in Auburn, N. Y., and has ever since resided there. He was fond of reading and scientific study, a man of ability and learning in his profession, and a just, conscientious, kind-hearted gentleman. For many years he had given his professional services to the poor and needy without pecuniary reward, and many to whom he so ministered remember him with gratitude and affection. He never married. His burial in the family lot in the Fairfield cemetery was attended by his nephews, George D. Dimon and family of Utica, and Arthur D. Osborne and family of New Haven, and ex-Governor Harrison, who married his niece, the daughter of the late Judge Osborne."

George Dolbeare¹⁰⁴ Dimon, b. 1811, in Fairfield; d. Sept. 16, 1834, in Fort Crawford, Michigan.

Entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, in 1828, and graduated in 1832. He was commissioned lieutenant in the First United States Infantry, and stationed at Fort Crawford, near Prairie du Chien, Michigan Territory.

The following letter was written by Colonel Zachary Taylor, afterward President of the United States, at the time of Lieutenant Dimon's death:

FORT CRAWFORD, September 18th, 1834.

It has become my painful duty, my dear Sir, to announce to you the distressing intelligence of the death of your worthy son,

Lieutenant George D. Dimon, of the First Regiment, United States Infantry, caused by bilious fever. He was attacked by that disease on the 30th August, and died on the 16th inst., and was interred on the following day with every military honor usual on such occasions, attended by a Presbyterian Clergyman, the whole command, and the respectable inhabitants of the village, all of whom testified their deep sympathy on the occasion. From the first moment he was taken, he appeared to have a presentiment that he would not recover, from which melancholy reflection his friends could not divert him, though every effort was made to do so. During illness, let me assure you that he received every attention, not only from the medical gentlemen attached to the Post, Doctors Wood and McLaren, but from every officer stationed here, all of whom were sincerely attached to him, and I trust it will be a source of much consolation to his afflicted and bereaved parents, as well as his other relatives, to know that since my acquaintance with him, he has been uniformly moral, correct and gentlemanly on all and every occasion, nor have I in a single instance ever known him to indulge in any thing like vice or impropriety. His friend, Captain Hitchcock, to whose company he was attached, has an inventory as well as taken possession of his effects, and will correspond with you as to your wishes in relation to their disposition. Accept, my dear Sir, for yourself and family, my sincere sympathies in your trying bereavement, for most truly do I feel for you and them in this severe visitation.

Z. TAYLOR, Colonel U. S. Army.

Theodore¹⁰⁴ Dimon, b. Sept. 19, 1816, in Fairfield; d. July 22, 1889, in Auburn, N. Y.; m. Sept. 9, 1841, Sarah W. Williams.

CHILDREN.

287. I. THEODORE WILLIAMS.
 288. II. GEORGE DOLBIER.
 290. III. JAMES WATSON WILLIAMS.

He fitted for college at Lenox, Mass., and graduated at Yale College in 1835. He took the degree of M. D. at the University of Pennsylvania in 1838, and began the practice of medicine in Stockbridge, Mass., where he remained one year. In 1839 he settled in Utica, and from there he removed to Auburn, where he spent the greater part of his life in the practice of his profession. In February, 1849, he went to California as surgeon of the first company of volunteers which went to the gold fields, making the passage around the Cape Horn. Was first president of the first medical society in that State. He returned to Auburn in 1852, and on the breaking out of the war volunteered as surgeon in the Nineteenth New York Regiment, which was afterward converted into the Third New York Artillery. Dr. Dimon accompanied the Third Artillery to Newbern, N. C., and while there was detached as surgeon of the Second Maryland and remained with that regiment during the campaign of 1862.

While in that service he was in the ten days' battle of the second Bull Run. He was also at the battles of Chantilly, South Mountains and Antietam. In October, 1862, Doctor Dimon was ordered back to his regiment in North Carolina, and accompanied the batteries of the regiment at the battles of Kingston, Whitehall and Goldsboro, being the senior medical officer of that expedition. He was mustered out of the service in May, 1863, at the expiration of the two years' service. He was at home when the battle of Gettysburgh took place, and volunteered to assist in taking care of the wounded. He was then appointed State agent by Governor Seymour, and served as such during the remainder of the war, at Gettysburgh, Fortress Monroe and Norfolk, Va., caring for the sick and wounded New York soldiers in the government hospitals.

Returning to Auburn in 1865 he resumed the practice of his profession, and in 1869 was reappointed surgeon of the State prison. From 1879 to 1882 he was superintendent of the State Asylum for Insane Criminals. Since that date he has been in the practice of his profession in Auburn. He has also been one of the United States pension examiners, until failing health compelled him to relinquish all active efforts.

Oliver¹⁰⁴ Dimon, b. Sept. 16, 1818, in Fairfield; d. Aug. 23, 1855, in New London, Conn.

“Fitted for college at Fairfield and graduated at Williams College in 1840. He studied law and settled in Boston. Was chosen a deacon in the Old South Church, and soon acquired a position which opened to him great social and professional advantages. His religious sentiments, however, became so strong that in 1851 he went to Andover, where, after studying theology for two years, he was licensed to preach, and soon after settled in Keosauqua, Iowa, as a home missionary. Here, in addition to his labors as a pastor, he contributed to the erection and maintenance of the church. In the autumn of 1854, he was attacked with severe malarial fever, which impaired his constitution, so that he became a helpless invalid, and in this condition he was removed to the home of his brother Theodore, in Auburn, and afterward to New London, Conn., where he died. He was a man of most attractive manners, generous and self-sacrificing to the last degree.” (Brief Memorials of Ancestry and Kindred.)

 there Feb. 5, 1876; m. Jan. 24, 1856, Mary A. Howes.

Had no children. In 1849 he went to California to hunt for gold, and after one year's work returned to Brooklyn with $1,800 in gold-dust. He and his brother John H. commenced business as produce commission merchants, in 1854, and from which they both received a competency. About that time he dropped the final "d" from his name, which his father had restored. While still in active business he died suddenly of heart disease.

 Now living in Brooklyn, N. Y.

John Henry¹³² Dimon, b. July 14, 1829, in Brooklyn.

Dropped the final "d" in 1854, for the following reason: John Dimon, who died in Brooklyn, about 1874, informed him that "early in the Seventeenth century a French Huguenot family, by name of Dimon, left France, owing to religious persecutions, and settled in West Hampton, Long Island. Some of the family moved across Long Island Sound to Fairfield and Southport, where descendants have lived ever since."

When quite young he went to sea for three years, serving before the mast. In 1854, he and his brother, Joseph C., started in the produce commission business on a capital of $1,700, and without the slightest knowledge of the business. In 1868, he retired with a competency, and is now living in Brooklyn, N. Y., unmarried.

The following account of his life is taken from the San Francisco Chronicle of June 22, 1890:

William H. Dimond is one of the best known and most popular men in California. In every line of life in which he has engaged he has attained distinction, and his name is written among the foremost on the roll of the prominent men of the State. He was born in Honolulu nearly fifty years ago, his father being an American missionary stationed at that place. He had received a high school education and entered mercantile life in his eighteenth year. At the outbreak of the rebellion he assisted in raising a company of cavalry in Honolulu for the purpose of tendering its service to the Union, but it was found that it could not be accepted by the United States on account of foreign relations. President Lincoln, however, recognized this action, and appointed him captain and assistant adjutant-general of United States volunteers, and he was assigned to the staff of Major-General Rufus Sexton, in which position he served very creditably in the department of the South until the war was over. Hostilities having ceased, Captain Dimond refused a commission in the regular army, and after touring Europe returned to Honolulu and resumed his business. King Kalakaua appointed him captain of Company B, Hawaiian Lancers. He came to California in 1867, and after being engaged with the Russell & Erwin Manufacturing Company, became connected with Williams, Blanchard & Co. In 1880 he became a member of the firm, which then changed its name to Williams, Dimond & Co. It now does the largest steamship, shipping, banking and general commercial business on the coast. General Dimond is prominently identified with a number of the city's enterprises. He has held a high place in the National Guard of the State since his appointment as lieutenant-colonel and aide-de-camp on the staff of Governor Perkins on January 26, 1880. On December 14, 1881, he was appointed brigadier-general of the Second Brigade, and was reappointed on January 30, 1883, by Governor Stoneman, and on February 7, 1887, by Governor Bartlett. Governor Waterman appointed him major-general of the division on September 28, 1887. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and was Chairman of the Finance Committee during the National Encampment held in San Francisco in 1886. He has also been the department commander of the military order of the Loyal Legion. In 1886 he was a prominent candidate before the Republican State Convention for the nomination for Governor. He is now Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and in recognition of his services to the party, President Harrison appointed him Superintendent of the Branch of the United States Mint in this city. He was a delegate to the Chicago Convention which nominated Harrison. For three years he was a Commissioner of the Golden Gate Park. In business, in society, and in his associations with veterans and National Guardsmen, his cordiality, ability and uprightness have gained him the esteem and admiration of all with whom he has come in contact."

Ellen Dickenson (Waterhouse) Dimond, b. Apr. 14, 1839, in Hobart Town, Tasmania; d. May 6, 1864, in Honolulu; m. Sept. 12, 1861, to William H. Dimond.

Daughter of John Thomas and Eleanor (Dickenson) Waterhouse. She was born February 14, 1813, in Birmingham, England.

John Thomas Waterhouse was born May 16, 1816, in Berkshire, England, and attended school at Wood House Grove in 1825. In April, 1883, he started for America with the intention of going into the fur business. Some years later his father secured a position in Australia, and moved there with his family of ten children. John Thomas Waterhouse soon afterward settled in Hobart Town, Tasmania, where for ten years he carried on an extensive business, owning a large number of vessels. His health requiring a change of climate, he removed to Honolulu, in one of his own vessels, in 1851, and there purchased the property upon which he now lives. His success in business has been phenomenal, and his interests have extended into California and Iowa. Wherever he is known his influence is felt in the cause of the righteous, especially so in the Hawaiian Islands, where he and his family have long been identified with the history of the country.

Ellen Woods (Gray) Dimond, b. Sept. 9, 1844, in Enfield, Mass.; d. Jan. 15, 1890, in San Francisco; m. Jan. 10, 1866, to William H. Dimond.

Daughter of James Harrison (b. Feb. 15, 1819) and Rachel (Capen) Gray of Enfield, Mass. He was a physician, living in Enfield, who, in 1845, sold out an extensive practice and moved to Springfield, where he became one of the leading members of his profession. On his return from a medical convention in New York, May 6, 1853, he was killed in the railroad accident at Norwalk, Conn., in which so many physicians lost their lives. He was the son of Harrison Gray (b. 1794; d. Aug., 1846), a graduate of Harvard College and a member of the publishing firm of Hilliard Gray & Co. of Boston. He was married April 26, 1818, to Clarissa Eastham (b. Aug. 3, 1793; d. May, 1868). Harrison Gray was a son of James Gray and Bethia Curtis, m. 1785. James Gray was a son of William Gray and Abigail Perry, m. 1753. William was a son of Thomas Gray.

Rachel Capen is a daughter of Theophilus Capen (d. Sept., 1824) and Miranda Colton (dau. of Reuben Colton), b. April, 1795, m. 1817, d. April 28, 1860. Son of Theophilus Capen (d. 1838-9) and Rachel Lambert, d. 1838-9.

Clarissa Eastham was a daughter of Francis B. Eastham (b. Aug. 18, 1763; d. Dec. 17, 1812) and Lovey M. Tuck (b. June 11, 1764; d. Sept. 13, 1848; m. 1785). Son of Edward Eastham.

Lovey M. Tuck was a daughter of Samuel Tuck (b. Mar. 20, 1731) and Martha Blake; m. 1754. Son of Jonathan Tuck.

After the death of her father, Ellen Gray visited her mother's sister, Mrs. Isaac M. Dimond, in Michigan. There she was joined by her mother and the remainder of the family. They lived at Dimondale for four years, and from there moved to Olivet, Mich., where they had the advantages of an excellent school.

In 1860 Mrs. Gray married Charles Merriam, of the firm of G. & C. Merriam, publishers of Webster's Dictionary, and with her family removed again to Springfield.

Soon after Ellen Gray attended Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn., and later on taught school at New Britain, Conn., for one winter, to please her stepfather, who promised to double all she might earn in that way.

In 1864 she became acquainted with Wm. H. Dimond, who came from the Hawaiian Islands to serve as a volunteer in the war; and a year later they were engaged. Soon after their marriage they sailed for the Hawaiian Islands, where he was engaged in business.

The climate there not agreeing with her she returned to Springfield, and after a visit, returned to San Francisco, where her husband had entered into business during her absence.

For the remainder of her life most of her time was spent in that city, and it was there she died.

During the last ten years of her life she was quite an invalid; but through all her suffering she maintained the same beautiful disposition which had characterized her life and which had endeared her to a large number of friends.

The following is condensed from the Bridgeport Republican Standard of July 11, 1890:

"Dr. Charles Taylor, a wealthy and highly-respected citizen, and a life-long resident of this town, died July 4, aged sixty-one years. He had been ill for several months with spinal meningitis, which was developed by a severe attack of la grippe last winter. The deceased was a son of Dr. Charles Taylor, and like his father, practiced medicine all his life in this village. He was elected to the State Legislature by the Democrats in '78, '79, '83, and '89, and he was a director of the First National Bank. He was a man of genial manners and sunny temperament, and one who will be much missed by all. He bore his long and painful illness with much patience and fortitude. He was very charitable in his views, and it was hard for him to see any thing but the best side of the character of every man. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Miss Margaret, and Mrs. T. J. Lee."

328. II. ARTHUR SHERWOOD.

He fitted for college at the Fairfield Academy, and entered the sophomore class at Yale College in 1845, graduating in 1848. Studied law with his father, Judge Osborne, with three of his classmates, and was admitted to the bar in 1850. In 1854 he was elected a member of the Connecticut House of Representatives, from Fairfield, and the same year moved to New Haven and opened an office for the practice of law. Shortly before this he sold the old family homestead, which had been in the family since Moses Dimon bought it of Francis Purdy, in 1670.

Was alderman of the second ward of New Haven from 1858 to 1860, and was appointed clerk of the Supreme and Superior Courts for New Haven county in July, 1860, and held that office until June, 1882, when he resigned, having been elected President of the Second National Bank of New Haven, which position he still holds. He was a member of the Board of Education in New Haven, and chairman of the committee on schools from 1878 to 1881.

He is a son of "Thomas Burr Osborne, born July 8, 1878, in Weston, Conn. He was fitted for college at Staples' Academy in that town, and graduated at Yale College in 1817. He studied law under the instruction of Hon. Seth P. Staples, and was admitted to the bar at New Haven, in 1820. In the same year he commenced the practice of law in Fairfield, Conn. He held the office of Clerk of the Superior and County Courts from 1826 to 1839, practicing law at the same time. In 1839 was elected a Representative in Congress, and re-elected in 1841, and in 1844 was elected to the Senate of Connecticut, and the same year appointed Judge of Fairfield County Court, which office he held several years. In 1836, and in 1850, represented the town of Fairfield in the Legislature, and was one year Judge of Probate for Fairfield district. In 1854 he removed to New Haven, and in 1855 was appointed Professor of Law in Yale College, which professorship he held until 1865, when he resigned. He married September 6, 1826, Elizabeth Huntington, daughter of Ebenezer Dimon of Fairfield, and died September 2, 1869, at New Haven."

Thomas Burr Osborne was a son of "Jeremiah Osborne, fifth child of Daniel and Sarah Osborne; was born at Ridgefield, Conn., December 8, 1753. He enlisted in a New York regiment early in the Revolutionary war, and served until its close. He was at Fort Stanwix at the time of the battle of Oriskany, at Valley Forge, and Yorktown. For a considerable period he served as paymaster. After the war he remained a year in Philadelphia and then went to New York, where he engaged in the dry goods business with Captain Isaac Hubbell, and at the end of a year he opened a store, in connection with the New York business, in that part of the town of Weston, which is now Easton, Conn., in which he was quite successful until his health required him to give up the business and engage in farming. He was a public-spirited citizen, taking an active part in the affairs of the town, which he represented in the Legislature in 1813 and 1815."

"In the ancient cemetery at Ridgefield, two stones, one a free-stone and the other granite, are still to be seen: one marks the grave of Sarah, wife of Richard Osborne, and is the oldest stone now standing in town." (Teller's History of Ridgefield, p. 41.)

Frances Louisa (Blake) Osborne, b. Jan. 15, 1835; m. Aug. 2, 1858, Arthur D. Osborne.

Daughter of Eli Whitney and Eliza Maria (O'Brien) Blake. He was born at Westborough, Mass., January 27, 1795, graduated from Yale College in 1818. Was a son of Elihu and Elizabeth Fay (Whitney) Blake.

"Eliza Maria O'Brien, wife of Eli Whitney Blake, was the daughter of Edward J. O'Brien and Mary Pierrepont, the great-granddaughter of Rev. James Pierrepont, through whom the family are related to the Hookers, Edwardses, Woolseys, Terrys, and Fosters. Her mother, soon after the death of Mr. O'Brien, married Eleazer Foster of New Haven. They had three sons and four daughters. For a full account of the Pierrepont and Foster families, see "Ancestral Tablets," "Pierrepont Genealogy," and "Centennial Celebration, 1867." Mr. Blake died August 18, 1886. Mrs. Blake died April 15, 1876."

She was born June 12, 1840, and died August 3, 1878. They had four children, all born in Brooklyn."

He was the son of "William Newton, born in Colchester, Conn., October 15, 1786.

"When twenty years of age he left his boyhood's home and went to New Berlin, N. Y., where he worked at his trade, that of a puddler. Later that year he purchased the farm in the woods, in Hamilton, where he built a log-house, and sent for the family. They arrived the next year, 1807.

"After the family were settled in their new home, William started out again, going to Camden, Oneida county, N. Y., where he worked at his trade quite successfully for three years. During this time, probably in one of his visits home, he met Lois Butler (born December 12, 1790), who captured his heart, and they were married August 22, 1810. She had come to Hamilton from Wethersfield, Conn., when four years of age.

"They moved to Sherburne, Chenango county, N. Y., where William built a woolen mill on Handsome brook, in the north-western part of the quarter. He worked the mill for sixteen years, but when it burned down the second time he ceased the business of manufacturing. This, however, was not their only means of subsistence. He was also engaged on two contracts for excavating the Erie canal, one at Utica, and the other at Verona. He then went to Pennsylvania and engaged for two years in the Delaware and Hudson canal, and on a railroad near Bethany. Subsequently he had large contracts on the Chenango, and on the Black River canals. While thus engaged, he also bought a farm at Sherburne, and carried on large farming interests there until about 1860, when he passed its title and charge over to his son Lucius, and he and Lois, his wife, lived there quietly and peacefully, resting from the labors of a long and busy life until they were called up higher.

"The children of William and Lois Newton were eleven in number, all of whom were born in Sherburne, N. Y. He died Aug. 3, 1879, aged 93 years, and his wife died Feb. 6, 1885, aged 95 years."

He was the son of Asahel Newton, born in Colchester, Conn., June 1, 1758, the first of whom any authentic record is had. The earliest history which can be obtained concerning the Newton family is, that they were prominent in Colchester, Conn., from its first settlement in the early part of the eighteenth century. It is said that they were descended from Thomas Newton, at one time of Fairfield, Conn.

"Asahel Newton was a soldier of the Revolution, and among other traditions remembered by his descendants, it is said that at the storming of Stony Point by Mad Anthony Wayne, he was one of the forlorn hope of picked men who led the way to make openings in the palisades surrounding the place, to give entrance to the storming parties. He was also one of Washington's bodyguard, and was present at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

“On February 19, 1784, he married Versalle, a daughter of William and Hannah Booth. She was born in New London, Conn., March 28, 1763. Mr. Booth came from England a short time before his marriage to Hannah, a daughter of Benjamin Chamberlain and Hannah Wyatt.

“They were living in New London at the time of its destruction by fire at the hands of the English, in September, 1781. They had ten children, all of whom were born in Colchester, Conn. Asahel died May 30, 1834, at East Hamilton, N. Y., and his wife died March 28, 1843, at the same place.” (Genealogical Record of the Newton and Hatch Families.)

THE DYMONT OR DIMON FAMILY OF EAST HAMPTON, LONG ISLAND.

The Dymont family was among the first settlers at East Hampton, Long Island, one of the first English settlements in the State of New York.

It was made in 1649, by a Puritan ancestry, a greater part of whom came as a colony, after remaining but a short time in Lynn, Mass.

The name Dymont appears in the early records of the town, but not among the original nine. The original spelling of the name, as found in signatures affixed to ancient family papers, as wills, deeds, etc., is Dymont, although later, all the various possible ways are used by others. Through a will bearing the date 1682, is obtained the earliest private record of the first progenitor of the Dimon family. (David Foster Dimon.)

FIRST GENERATION.

“Ezekiel Dimon, the common ancestor of the families of that name now resident in Concord, came hither with his wife (Miriam Fowler) about 1750. Both were natives of South Hampton in this State. They had ten children, seven sons and three daughters, two of whom died in infancy. All the sons except one lived to be over 70 years of age, and two were between 80 and 90. Mr. Dimond’s ancestors emigrated from Devonshire, England, to this country. He was the first settler on the farm now owned by Mr. Joseph S. Abbot, on what is called Dimond’s Hill, and lived in a log house on the brow of the hill.

“He became an extensive land-owner, and had a proprietor’s right. In their log house the family was often alarmed by the Indians, and moved back and forth from their farm to the fort.

“Once, when alarmed by the Indians, Mrs. Dimond had a web in her loom. She took out the yarn beam, wound the reed and harness about it, carried it to the fort, and wove it out there.” (History of Concord, N. H., by Rev. N. Bouton.)

APPENDIX.

METHOD OF DIVIDING COMMUNITY LAND IN FAIRFIELD.

All persons who had been freemen, and contributed toward the purchase of Indian lands, were allowed to be dividend holders. The purchase of a large tract of land did not result in its full division at any one time; but as many acres were staked out from time to time as the planters found themselves capable of improving. The dividends were by lottery, each head of a family, his wife and children, drawing as many acres, half acres, quarter acres, and roods, as fell to his or their proportion, at their town or county rates.

Vol. I, page 74. Hill, Hull. From hill came ‘At the hill,’ whence Thill. So, also, ‘Nill,’ from Atten-hill, which, lest they should appear to be nonentities, some who bear it have changed to Knill. From the corresponding French term “Dumont” came our Dymond.

Vol. I, page 186. From minerals came Diamond and Dymond.

“History of Antrim, N. H.” Cochrane:

Ephraim Dimond was born in Vershire, Vt., Aug. 19, 1797, married Sophia Wells, Apr. 19, 1824, and came here from Goffstown, the same year. In 1825, he built a shop under the bank above Moors Mill (all now gone) had a trip-hammer, and was a smart blacksmith, having excellent skill in making edge-tools. He bought what is now the Day house (built by John Dunlap in 1806) where he lived much of his late years alone, until shortly before his death, which occurred in Windsor, May 26, 1872. His wife died at Wentworth, Oct. 10, 1861, aged 64. They had five children, all born in Antrim. Alonzo F., b. Sept. 8, 1825, married Roansa Swain of Antrim, Nov. 13, 1851, who died here in 1854, married 2d, Sarah M. Alwell. He died in Wentworth, June 10, 1868, where the widow still resides. Alanson, born Jan. 6, 1828, died in this town, Jan. 12, 1860, unmarried.

Sylvia L., b. Oct. 30, 1832, died here Aug. 3, 1858, unmarried.

Celia B., b. Jan. 15, 1834, married Albert S. Hammond of Wentworth, Nov. 12, 1856, and lived there till 1871, when they moved to Concord, where he is now a prominent merchant, and deacon in South Congregational Church. They have one son, the only grandchild of Ephraim Dimond, Harry D. Dimond, b. at Wentworth, Jan. 4, 1862.

Abby S., b. July 11, 1840.

“History of Concord, N. H.” Bouton:

Ezekiel Dimond, the common ancestor of the families of that name, now resident in Concord, came hither with his wife about 1750. Both were natives of South Hampton in this State. They had ten children, seven sons and three daughters, two of whom died in infancy. Mr. Dimond's ancestors emigrated from England, Devonshire, to this country. In addition to the foregoing the following names are found on the town records: Ezekiel, son of Ezekiel and Miriam Dimond, b. Sept. 11, 1749. Isaac, b. Aug. 24, 1759. Reuben Dimond, married Molly Currier. Their children were: Sally, b. July 23, 1781. Esther, b. Nov. 19, 1782. William, b. Aug. 9, 1784. Daniel, b. March 22, 1786. Hannah, b. Oct. 19, 1787. Jacob, b. Sept. 5, 1789. Molly, b. July 29, 1791. Isaac Dimond married Hannah Sleeper. Their child, Origen, was born, Aug., 1799. John Dimond, who died Jan. 14, 1830, aged 66, had a large family.

There was a John Diamond in Lynn, 1647.

“History and Description of New England.” A. J. Coolidge and J. B. Mansfield:

Page 350. The town of Wells, Maine, was attacked by Indians on June 10, 1692, and the same day they captured John Diamond, who was a passenger on one of the sloops. Several of the Indians were shot, and to avenge their death they tortured John Diamond. “They stripped, scalped, and maimed him; slit his hands and feet between the fingers and toes; cut deep gashes in the fleshy parts of his body, and then stuck the wounds full of lighted torches, leaving him to die by piecemeal in the agonies of consuming fire.”

“History of New London.” Calkins:

John Morgan, married Nov. 16, 1665, to Rachel Dymond, by whom he had seven children. By his second wife, daughter of ——— Jones of New Haven, and granddaughter of Gov. Eaton, he had six children. Lieutenant Morgan died at Groton, in 1712.

“History of Peterborough, N. H.” Smith:

William Diamond was born in Boston, July 11, 1755, where he served his time as apprentice to the wheelwright trade. He removed to Lexington in 1775, where he continued to reside till he came to Peterborough in 1795. He married Rebecca Symons of Lexington, b. Sept. 1, 1762. (Here follows a long and interesting account of his being a drummer of the minute-men at the Lexington fight, and at Bunker Hill.)

Rebecca, b. Lexington, Sept. 10, 1783, married Joseph Mace. William, b. Lexington, Nov. 30, 1785, married Lucinda Haggete, Nov. 18, 1824. Mary, b. Lexington, Apr. 5, 1788, married Joseph Johnson, Greenfield, died 1857, aged 71 years. John S., b. Lexington, Aug. 9, 1790, married Octavia Davis of Concord, Mass. Elizabeth, b. Lexington, Mar. 4, 1792, married James Barker, removed to Wisconsin. Lydia, b. Peterborough, May 6, 1797, married Aaron Avery, removed to Wisconsin. William Diamond, married Lucinda Haggete, Nov. 12, 1824, d. Jan. 25, 1872. Mary Louisa, married Frank Cendy, one child, Ida. Caroline, married Joseph Fifield, Roxbury, Mass. Elizabeth, married Gorham Hall, Manchester.

John G. Diamond, married Octavia Davis of Concord, Mass., Dec. 23, 1819, b. Oct. 12, 1800. John Davis, b. Aug. 6, 1821, married Laura Ann Farwell. Octavia Lavinia, b. Aug. 18, 1825, married Daniel Edes, Jr., Mar. 29, 1853.

John Davis Diamond, married Laura Ann Farwell, b. June 23, 1834. Laura Ada, b. July 21, 1854. George F., b. July 26, 1856. John C., b. Oct. 23, 1863. Nettie Helen, b. July 12, 1870.

"The Elizabeth and Ann," Roger Coop, Master, carried 23 passengers. Among them was Jane Damand, 9 yrs.

"Savage's Genealogical Dictionary":

Vol. II, page 50. Diman, Dymond, Diamond, Dyamont or Dimond. John, Lynn, 1647, perhaps removed to Kittery before 1652. There called rope-maker. John, New London, married 17 June, 1674, Rebecca, widow of Tobias Minter, daughter of James Bemis. Moses, Fairfield, 1670, son of Thomas, had large estate, wife Abigail, son Moses, and daughters Abigail, Esther and Grace. His will was dated 21st Mar., 1684, and the inventory is a few weeks later. This name is often written without final "d" always at Yale. His widow married, 1685, Ed. Howard. Robert, Roxbury, his wife, Mary, died 1643.

Thomas, Fairfield, lost a vessel and cargo by fire in 1656, and died 1658. He had Thomas, Moses, before mentioned, and John. It may be that he is the same person under Deming, but not likely. Thomas, Fairfield, probably son of the preceding, a mariner, married Sept. 22, 1670, Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Bradley. Removed to New London. Had Elizabeth, b. Aug. 14th, 1672, Thomas, b. July 22d, 1675, Moses, b. May 14th, 1677, Ruth, b. Sept. 12th, 1680, and John, b. July 25th, 1686, and died 1687.

William, Kittery, perhaps son of John, of the same, in 1679, widow Joan, and children John, Margaret and Grace.

Vol. II, page 35. Deming, Demon, or Dement. John, Wethersfield, 1635, one of the chief settlers, representative very often from 1649 to 1661, named in the charter of 1662. Married Honour, daughter of Richard Treat, had John, b. Sept. 9th, 1638, and others. His will of June 26th, 1690, with pro., 1705, names son John, Jonathan, 1639, Samuel, 1646, David, Ebenezer, and five daughters, wives of John Morgan (Rachel), Richard Beckley, of Thos. Hurlburt (Mary), of Thos. Wright and Samuel Moody (Sarah).

Thomas, Wethersfield, perhaps brother of 1st John, married July 24th, 1645, to Mary Sheaffe, was of Farmington, and removed again to Southampton, L. I., and thence to East Hampton, where posterity is still living. Sometimes in the records the name is Demon or Dement, and the affinity is exceedingly difficult to be traced with exactness. Eight of this name had, in 1823, been graduated at New England colleges.

Page 87. Dyamont, Andrew. Maine, perhaps Kittery, authorized in 1680 to hold courts at Isle of Shoals, where he lived in 1671. John, Kittery, in 1658. The name thus, spelled in records, may be the same as Diman.

“The Making of New England.” S. A. Drake:

Mentions De Monts, Pierre du Guast, from Saintonge, France. Officer of the King's household. He was a Huguenot, and attempted to plant a colony. Henry IV granted him a charter in 1604 to all the country, now New England, and, also, the monopoly of the fur trade. He took one hundred followers, among them Champlain, and landed at Passamaquoddy bay at St. Croix (named Mount Desert), on his first trip, and being unable to stand the winter, broke up in 1605, and went to Port Royal, Nova Scotia.

“The Slocums, Slocumbs and Slocombs, of America”:

Page 23. The report of the Herald's visitation of the county of Devon, in 1620, as published by the Harleian Society of London, 1872, informs us that Roger Dimond, 2d, of Tiverton, married Elizabeth, daughter of — Slocum, of Devon.

Page 107. Richard Slocum, born in Dutchess Co., N. Y., married there Emeline, daughter of Henry Diamond, of that place.

The following was clipped from an English newspaper of recent date:

“The late John Cadbury, of Cocoa fame, was for many years a familiar figure in Birmingham streets. He was a Quaker, and dressed like a Quaker, with a broad-brimmed hat and plain black attire. Born in the first year of the century, and the son of a nonogenarian, he had eighty-eight years of life. Ending with Cocoa, he began with tea and coffee, and now the great works at Fournerville cover a large acreage, and give employment to more than twelve hundred work-people. By marriage, Mr. Cadbury was connected with one of the most famous Quaker families. His wife was Priscilla Dymond, sister to the famous Jonathan Dymond, the author of ‘The Principles of Morality,’ which John Bright edited.”
