John,

Thank you so much for taking my call today.

This is the information I have for George Hall, the son of Jude Hall the Slave that earned freedom fighting in the Revolution.

I worry that it is too many documents, but it is hard to know exactly what you need.

The 'overseer of the county farm' in December 1873 had 'taken in charge' the remains of George Hall.

Though the New Hampshire State Historical Society states that it said he 'died in his home' must mean he was not poor, I sincerely disagree. I could argue that the lack of firewood provided by Gilmanton in the way it had been provided by Exeter may have saved his life. And though he may have made it his home, he had been an illiterate man who at one time was a mason, and then a basket weaver on the Gilmanton county farm.

I suspect he is in a pauper's grave.

Any help locating where he could be buried in a cemetery that existed in 1873, though there is no headstone, would be appreciated. If the graveyards were segregated, he would likely have been buried with the other deceased black people in the cemetery (his mother was mulatto and his father was black).

Thank you again! Aimee Taylor

P.S.

I have been collecting records for the Hall family for about 4 years, and doing extensive research to help get Jude Hall on the Roll of ancestors. Of course we know he collected pension, but he currently does not have a number assigned as a proven ancestor that qualifies for DAR, SAR, or CAR membership. Though the application in CA for a current member is now ready to move forward, it should be soon.

A side note should be that I believe George Washington Hall married secondly the Sophia Cogswell Peters that is 2 lines down from his on the Exeter Alms House records. I have index cards for Exeter or Gilmanton where they had children together, though in some records she is listed as Cogswell and in others she is listed as Hall.

EDITOR EXETER NEWS-LETTER .- As a constant and interested reader of "Rockingham's Rambles," in which there is always some topic discussed that is sure to arouse one's interest, so in the last issure of March 26th, the reference to the holding experience of Rockingham County wakens some recollections connected with that episode of our early history which may be of interest to others of "Rockingham's" readers and possibly to himself. I will note down such old time traditions that as a child I used to listen to and ponder over. Slaves were kept, in pre-Revolution times, on the old Blake homestead where the writer was born in 1840, and the story of one slave in particular is preserved in the family traditions, even after the days of the Revolution. This slave was old Jude Hall, and I remember the feeling of childish awe and wonder when the spot was shown me, in the old garden, behind the "beehives," where the little pickaninnies who had died were buried perhaps a hundred years before. Jude, himself, was sold by my ancestor, Philemon Blake, to a townsman, Nathaniel Healey, before the Revolution. He was not "old" Jude then and resented being sold and ran away from his new master. When the War of the Revolution broke out, he enlisted and fought on the Colonial side. After the war ended and the slaves were automatically freed, he came back to this vicinity, built a cabin in the Exeter woods, settled there and raised a family. I do not of course remember Jude, but I distinctly recall seeing one of his sons, who lived in or near Exeter for years. He was George Hall and I remember the impression made on my youthful mind by his enormous nose, that was so flattened out as to seem to cover half his face. But my most interesting memory of Jude's progeny concerned the next generation. When a school girl, in Exeter, about 1855, I used to walk to school from my boarding place at what is now the corner of Lincoln Street, though Front Street to the "Exeter Fem. Sem." clearly remember walking one winter morning when the mercury registered 28 below. On those winter mornings I often used to see the horse and sleigh of Judge Henry F. French coming out of Pine Street, perhaps crossing at the very spot where now stands the noble group of "Exeter Sends Her Sons to War" that makes us all reverently proud that Daniel of the dim past. Chester French is a som of Exeter, and in-that sleigh were the future sculptor and his brother, William, while a stalwart young colored man filled the part of driver, and I recall now the thrill with which I heard for the first time that after the faithful driver had deposited his small charges, he drove the team home and then walked back and became a fellow pupil of his young masters.

The young Negro, I afterwards learned, was the son of George Hall and the grandson of Jude; no longer a slave but a free man doing a man's work and manfully fitting himself for more important duties. If he is still living he must be ninety years old. I have lost sight of him for years, but have always remembered him as Moses the grandson of Jude. I dimly there was then no Lincoln Street, down recall many ludicrous stories about the darky family that inhabited the Exeter then located on Centre Street, and I woods. One story seems particularly plain of father going with my father's uncle to one of their funerals, and of the heated discussion that ensued before the question of precedence in the funeral procession was settled. But these old time tales fade into indistinctness, as do the clouds at sunset when life's twilight closes in, and black and white mingle into the gray, S. E. CRAM.

NEGRO FROZEN. George Hall, a negro, supposed to be nearly 100 years old, and who lived alone in Gilmanton, was found frozen to death in his house, on Thursday last. It is supposed that he had been dead some time. His remains were taken in charge by the overseer of the county farm, and buried on Friday.

What's Up, Watson!

Great News and much progress!! The 3-inch diameter steel pipes are in!! The first attempt at installing them using a do-it-yourself jackhammer did not go well. Coastal Basement Systems was the only company of many we called that could/would drive the piles through the dried mud and rocks on short notice. Bill and Kevin are experts with their heavy commercial jackhammers! They had to add a lot of water to get them in, but all three pipes now rest on ledge approximately 5½ feet down and were installed within three hours. This was the toughest part of the restoration work so far and they were fantastic!

Charlie and Selectman Tom Dwyer spent a lot of time balancing the amount of lift of the main girder and adjacent floor joists to get the floors level. It was a huge balancing act. Then, they installed joist hangers on each joist along that main girder to reinforce the first floor framing. Tom spent a lot of time at Watson and his help is greatly appreciated. Lastly, during these last two months, the second floor doorframes were adjusted so they now open and close freely.

With this hard work completed, the next step is to cut off the tops of the pipes to a few inches above the basement floor level and cast a concrete pad over them to form a footing to support the new replacement column. Then this single supporting column will be installed and the framing restoration will be complete. We are sure to meet the deadline to claim the insurance reimbursement for the restoration work. The first floor will get new carpet: removing the wall there left a fair amount of bare floor exposed. The wall around the furnace in the basement must be rebuilt, the basement ceiling repaired and new basement lights installed. The existing first and second floor walls will be cleaned up and painted, the electrical lines repaired and the building can then be used again. We are waiting on bids for the final work before setting an opening date; we will post it on the town website as soon as it's finalized.

event, the Highnote festival in September, was a huge success. This year we introduced a pie in the face raffle, and everyone had a lot of fun. We also sold popcorn, coffee and 50/50 raffle tickets. Thank you to the McPhee family for continuing to support us at this event!

Our next project is a return of our popular Gas Card Raffle. We will sell a maximum of 300 tickets at $5 each. First prize is $300 at the gas station of the winner's choice. There will also be three $50 winners. Tickets are available from your local Epping Lion, or come to our next meeting and check us out! Winners will be drawn at our holiday party just after Christmas, so this would make a fabulous stocking stuffer!

The Lions continue to support the eyeglass boxes, located at several locations around town, including the Epping Walmart and J&C Optical. Drop off your old eyeglasses to help others who need them.

If you're interested in learning more please visit our website: www.epping.nhlions.org or join us at our next meeting. We generally meet on the 4th Tuesday of the month at 6:30 pm at the Harvey-Mitchell Memorial Library. We are always looking for new members interested in fellowship and serving your community. New ideas always welcome!

TALES FROM EPPING'S PAST Trailing a Name on an Old Stone:

Moses U. Hall of Epping

There's an old stone in the Prospect Cemetery engraved with the curious name of "Moses U. Hall." Other than that he was born in 1835 and died in 1926, little else was known about this man. So, it was decided to try digging up some more information, so to speak. The search revealed some very unexpected things about this Moses U. Hall.

His full name was Moses Uriah Hall and he was the grandson of the legendary Jude Hall, New Hampshire's famous Revolutionary War soldier of color, some of whose own story is worth the telling here.

Jude Hall was born into slavery in 1747. He ran away from his owner, joined the Continental Army, and faithfully served our country for eight solid years to the end of the Revolutionary War. His first battle was at Bunker Hill, where he incredibly survived being thrown headlong by a cannon ball striking near him. Because of his endurance and great strength, Jude Hall was known all over New Hampshire as "Old Rock." The man stood almost six feet tall and was strong enough to lift up a barrel of cider and drink from it.

After the war, Jude Hall was given his freedom and a bit of land by Drinkwater Road in Exeter that's still known as "Jude's Pond." There he built a small one story house of two rooms and settled with his family. Most tragically, over the years, three of his four sons were kidnapped and cruelly enslaved. The one remaining son was George, who was a stonemason.

When Jude Hall died, there was nothing for George to inherit. Already himself a man of little means, George and his family were granted aid by the town of Exeter and the children helped with their education. One of his sons was Moses Uriah Hall, a young man eager to learn, and who was allowed to study alongside his employer's sons at Phillip's Exeter Academy. After a time, Moses Hall became a Civil War soldier. He came to Epping with his family after the War and lived here for many years, working hard into his old age.

Like his father before him, Moses U. Hall was a skilled stonemason and apparently had inherited some of his grandfather's fabled strength and stamina. In 1915, when he was about eighty years old, Mr. Hall paved the sidewalks on Pleasant Street. Before that, he had built a wall on Prescott Road and set the foundation for a large shoe factory in Raymond, as well as for a new one here in town. He bricked up buildings, and set walkways, stairs, fireplaces and chimneys all over town. The present Hogarth School and Murphy home on Water Street is but one example of his work.

In 1917, as our town's oldest citizen, Moses Uriah Hall became the fifth recipient of our Boston Post Cane and the first African-American to be so honored by Epping.

Mr. Hall died at well over ninety years of age. No doubt buried with military honors, this old Civil War veteran rests from a life well lived that would have made his father and his grandfather very proud indeed.
