INTRODUCTION

The origin of the name Huckins, with its variants Huckin, Huckings, Hucking, Huggins, Huggin, Hockins, Hockin, is the English Christian name Hugh in its diminutive form Hughin or Hughon. A current example of such a diminutive is the word violin, that is the little viol, the fiddle with four strings instead of six.* This diminutive termination in in or on must have been enormously popular in France during the period when French was the language of the upper classes in England. The French fashion adopted by them spread rapidly among the English folk.†

The change from Hugh to Hughin, Huggin, Huckin, could hardly be made now by any English-speaking people, but it must be recalled that at the time of the Norman conquest and for several centuries thereafter the consonant g had its full value in the pronunciation of English, very much as in German at the present time. Aided by the prevailing fashion it was easy to convert Hoog, which fairly represents the early pronunciation of Hugh, into Hughin, Huggin, Huckin. The addition of the final s may represent the word son, as in Williams, Roberts, Jones, or may be a mere variation resulting from popular analogy, readily made and adopted at a time when surnames were all more or less in a state of flux and had not yet been fixed by the spread of popular education.

That Robert Huckins came from the southwest of England is a fair inference from two facts. The surname is very common there, especially so in Devonshire and Cornwall. It is known that the early settlers in New Hampshire came chiefly from that region.

The year of Robert Huckins's arrival in New England must be left to conjecture. His name has not been found in any record prior to the Dover combination, dated October 22, 1640. The Hiltons had made a settlement at Dover as early as 1623. Ten years later Lord Saye and Sele and Lord Brook, who with their associates had acquired an interest in the New Hampshire patent, sent out a large company. They sailed from Bristol, and Dr. Quint suggests they were largely recruited in the neighborhood. Robert Huckins may have been one of them. If so he must then have been a young man, perhaps still in his teens.

In August 1632 one George Ludlow receipted‡ to William Hilton for goods of John Hockings. He was probably the man who got into the records in 1634 as John Hockin or Hocking. This circumstance was due to his violent death at the hands of the Plymouth Colony men in that year. John Hockin was then in the Kennebec river, apparently in command of a pinnace belonging to Lord Saye and Sele and Lord Brook. The Kennebec was also claimed by Plymouth Colony as part of its grant, and men from that colony were also in the river trading with the Indians. They resented Hockin's intrusion, and to drive him out proceeded to cut one of the hawsers holding his vessel at anchor. Hockin warned them that if they attempted to cut his other hawser he would shoot the man who did so. They made the attempt and Hockin shot his man. The Plymouth men then shot Hockin.* The similarity of name suggests the possibility that John Hockin or Hockings and Robert Huckins were relatives, and if so they may both have been in New England in 1632.

The only other early settler in New England of the Huckins name mentioned in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary is Thomas Huckins, who was at Barnstable in Plymouth Colony in 1640. The author of Genealogical Notes of Barnstable Families suggests† that the similarity of Christian names in the Huckins families of Dover and Barnstable indicates relationship between them. The name Robert does not occur at all in the Barnstable family. The existence of the common names John, James and Thomas in both families affords a slender basis for the inference of relationship.

The main sources of information as to the early generations of Robert Huckins's descendants are the colony probate records, quarter session records and registrar's records, now all collected in the office of the Secretary of State at Concord, N. H., and town records of births, marriages and deaths, copies of which are now filed in the Bureau of Vital Statistics at Concord. An important further source is of course the Oyster River church records, part of which have been published in the N. E. Historical and Genealogical Register. I have made careful inquiry for old family Bibles and have thus obtained information not otherwise available. These and other sources of less importance are generally noted in the text.

After the earlier part of this compilation was in print the History of Durham, N. H., edited by Dr. Stackpole with the assistance of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Meserve, which I have cited as Stackpole's Durham, was published. Dr. Stackpole has had abundant experience in the preparation of historical and genealogical works. The History of Durham is a scholarly production of the first rank in its kind. It will be read with delight by all those persons who descend from the early Durham families and who have an intelligent interest in the lives of their ancestors.

For the purpose of collecting information of the present and recent generations I have in general resorted to inquiries of all the descendants of Robert Huckins of mature age living during the progress of my compilation whose addresses I could obtain. If on a first application I failed to receive information in part or in whole, I have sent further requests for information, as a rule at least three times, before abandoning the attempt. Readers of my book, therefore, will know that if the information I present about some branch of the family is incomplete, it is not because the living members of that branch have not had repeated opportunity to complete it.

In some cases, doubtless, information was deliberately withheld. In other cases it may well be assumed, if the persons of whom I have made inquiries were of advanced age, that their memory had failed or that the difficulty of preparing a reply was for them too great. I have reason to suspect however that my failure to get information from younger persons was due to lack of an intelligent interest in family history, to mere sloth and indolence, or perhaps to an unintelligent apprehension that my inquiries were a preliminary to an invitation to buy a "gold brick" from Wall Street. One only of my correspondents was so shameless as to demand money for unimportant family information he possessed. He subsequently repented and was diligent and successful in completing the account of his immediate branch.

As a general rule persons who, as it appeared, had been successful in life, who were in charge of important business interests or had had the advantage of a superior education, replied promptly and fully to my inquiries. While a just family pride and an intelligent interest in family history are by no means confined to the prosperous or to persons of superior education, it is certainly more common among them than among the poor or comparatively ignorant. I conclude that the qualities which tend to make a person prosperous or intelligent find their expression, among other things, in a courteous, prompt and business-like response to the inquiries, even of a stranger, for information about details of family history.

To avoid errors and omissions I have in general submitted the manuscript as I completed it and the printer's proofs when ready to those persons among the living descendants of Robert Huckins who I thought might be able to supply corrections. I assume that in spite of this precaution errors and omissions will still be discovered. I shall be grateful to any person who will point them out or furnish further information.

This book is not complete. Probably no family history ever was or ever will be complete.

It is incomplete in part by design, for I have purposely refrained from including the descendants of children of daughters. This I did in part because it is the usual practice in compilations of this kind, but in part also because I wished to make sure that my compilation was preserved in print. To have completed the lines of descent from children of daughters would, as I find, have more than doubled the work and greatly increased the time required for its completion. I have, however, collected a considerable mass of information about the descendants of children of daughters which, if I never print it, will probably be deposited in safe custody with some society such as the New England Historic Genealogical Society, where the manuscript will be accessible to subsequent investigators. Meantime I will answer all reasonable inquiries for information about such descendants.

This compilation is also incomplete in part because I have been unable after some years of search to find descendants in some lines, or to identify as descendants persons whose lines I have investigated. A considerable amount of material collected in the course of such investigations may be published hereafter in a second volume, or if not will be deposited as above indicated for safe keeping.

A historical note of the political changes involved in this family history will not be out of place here. The first settlement in old Dover was made on Hilton's Point, the extreme southeasterly part of the present city. A new settlement followed on or near Oyster River, which flows into the Great Bay about two miles west of Hilton's Point. In 1651 this settlement became a separate parish under the name Oyster River and in 1732 was incorporated as Durham. The westerly part of Durham was incorporated as Lee in 1766. A wedge-shaped district taken from the southerly part of Dover and the northerly parts of Durham and Lee became a separate parish in 1755 and was incorporated as Madbury in 1768. Meantime, in 1713, Newington, embracing all that part of old Dover east of the Great Bay, had become a separate town.

In 1641 Dover, with the rest of New Hampshire, was annexed to Massachusetts Bay Colony, and formed a part of the old county of Norfolk. It was reconstituted a separate province in 1679.

The subsequent migration of the Huckins family, in common with that of other New Hampshire families living near the sea coast, requires a brief comment. Until the close of the French and Indian war the settlements in New Hampshire were all near the coast. The danger of attacks from Indians, which even the coast towns did not escape, prevented the ingress of settlers into the interior. The cession of Canada removed this danger, but settlers could enter only along a road, and no road had been opened into the wilderness. In 1763 the provincial legislature passed an act providing for the construction of a road to run generally northwest from Durham through Barrington, Barnstead and Gilmanton to the Weirs at Lake Winnepesaukee, thence by way of Holderness to Plymouth, and up the valley of the Baker River and over the divide to the Connecticut River at Haverhill, and thence north along the river to Coös. In 1768 the committee appointed under the act reported that it had laid out a good passable highway from Durham Falls to Coös.* Along this road, then and since called the Province Road, the tide of migration began speedily to flow into the back country, and the Huckins family began to move west. In 1773 Joseph⁴ Huckins and his son Joseph⁵ were at Gilmanton, and James⁶ Huckins at Barnstead. In 1777 Isaac⁵ Huckins was at Barnstead. During the Revolution a new road from Wells River, opposite Haverhill, was constructed north into Canada for military purposes, and over the two roads members of the Huckins family of the sixth generation passed into Canada and over the ice of the St. Lawrence to Kingston, or still further west to Whitby, on the north shore of Lake Ontario, a few miles east of Toronto. Others travelled over the snow or by wagon into the southern peninsula of Ontario, and thence spread into Michigan. All these persons were real pioneers. They all migrated before railroads had been built, and when they came back to the East to see their relatives and friends they walked or came on horseback. I have seen one of them who told me he had walked three times as a young man from London, Ontario, to southern New Hampshire and back. In recent years members of the family have spread into the remotest parts of the United States, and are now to be found in Texas, Southern California and in Washington, as well as in the Middle West.

The account of the Indian Massacre of 1689 I here reprint from Mather's Magnalia. The author was in the Class of 1678 at Harvard College. Rev. John Pike, the clergyman at Dover at the time of the massacre, was of the Class of 1675. To him Mather was doubtless indebted for the account of the massacre.

“On August 28, 1689 . . . the Indians that lay skulking after the Indian fashion in the thick woods took notice how many men belong'd unto Lieut. Hackin's garrison: and seeing 'em all go out unto their daily work, nimbly ran so between them and the garrison as to kill 'em all (about eighteen) but one, who being accidentally gone over the river, escaped them. Then they attack'd the garrison, in which there were now only two boys (and one of them lame), with some women and children: but these two boys very manfully held 'em in play a considerable while and wounded several of them, and kept them off, till the assailants had found a way to set the house on fire over their heads. They then urging 'em to surrender for the sake of the goods, the boys (brave boys truly) would not, until they had solemnly promised 'em their lives. But the perfidious wretches broke their promise, for they presently killed three or four of the children. However, one of the minutius's, the day after, very happily got out of their clutches.”*

The maps of Oyster River Plantation and of Durham are taken respectively from the History of Durham, by permission of the town authorities, and from the U. S. Topographical Survey. On the latter I have indicated the site of the Huckins garrison. Both maps are upon substantially the same scale, one inch to the mile, exactly in the Durham map, approximately in the Oyster River Map.

The abbreviations used in this compilation are with one exception in common use and cannot be misunderstood. The exception is the mark °, which I have used to indicate the names of some persons now dead, from whom in their lifetime I received information used in this book. I have also used the mark ‡ made with a rubber stamp to call attention to the additions and corrections printed at pages 135-8 of the book.

The names of places not followed by further designation are, with the exception of a few large cities, such as Boston, New York and Chicago, in the State of New Hampshire.

HUCKINS FAMILY

ROBERT HUCKINS OF THE DOVER COMBINATION AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS

ROBERT HUCKINS OF THE DOVER COMBINATION AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS

1. ROBERT¹ HUCKINS was born probably in Devonshire or Cornwall about 1620. He is first mentioned in any American record which has come to light as one of the forty-two signers of the Dover Combination, dated 22 Oct. 1640 (REGISTER, vol. 33, p. 93). In 1641 he was in that part of Dover then called Oyster River and now called Durham, and he signed the letter of the inhabitants of Northam, as Dover was then called, of 1641 to the Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony protesting against annexation to that Colony (N. H. State Papers, vol. 1, p. 128). In 1642 he had a grant of a twenty-acre lot, No. 16, on the Back River (REGISTER, vol. 7, p. 156, and vol. 33, p. 96). His name appears in none of the Dover tax lists, and this affords room for the inference that his estate was employed in catching, curing or transporting fish, and was thus exempt from taxation (Hutchinson, vol. 1, p. 90, ed. 3).

"Old Mr. Huckins" was killed by the Indians at Oyster River 18 July 1694, according to Pike's Journal (REGISTER, vol. 33, p. 96; Quint's Dover, pp. 81, 274, 277; Belknap's History, p. 138). The name of his wife has not been found.

Children, born probably at Oyster River :

2. i. JAMES,² b. abt. 1644.
- ii. SARAH, b. 1654 (REGISTER, vol. 7, p. 156).
Probably others of whom no record has been found.

2. LIEUT. JAMES² HUCKINS (*Robert*¹), husbandman, miller, was born probably at Oyster River, Dover, doubtless as early as 1644, for in 1664 he was taxed (REGISTER, vol. 4, p. 249).

He married,* probably about 1671 (ib., vol. 7, p. 121), SARAH² BURNHAM, daughter of Robert¹ and Frances (N. H. Deeds, vol. 107, pp. 357, 359; N. H. Gen. Record, vol. 5, p. 190). She was born at Oyster River about 1654, for she deposed 31 Dec. 1673, "about 19 years of age" (N. H. Court Papers, 1672-3, p. 395). She married secondly, 17 Oct. 1700, Capt. John² Woodman (Lieut. Edward¹) of Oyster River, who had been received as an inhabitant in 1657 (Quint's Dover, p. 33; Hoyt's Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, p. 366), and became successively commissioner, 1658, representative, 1684, delegate, 1690, and judge of Common Pleas, 1702-5 (REGISTER, vol. 9, p. 145). She is not mentioned in his will of 20 Dec. 1705 (N. H. State Papers, vol. 31, p. 545), and was probably then dead.

In 1676 Lieut. James Huckins was constable (Quint's Dover, p. 14), and in 1687 he was one of the two selectmen for Oyster River Parish (ib., p. 3).

* A deed of 19 Apr. 1675 of gift "gratisly & freely" by William Beard and Elizabeth uz. to James Huckins "wthout any entail" suggests the possibility of a former marriage to a daughter of William and Elizabeth Beard (N. H. Deeds, vol. 3, p. 127a).

He had a garrison-house, which stood in the outskirts of the Oyster River settlement, a few rods south of the house owned in 1910 by Andrew E. Meserve, east of the railroad and on the north side of the second road crossed by the railroad as it runs from Durham station to Dover. In Aug. 1689 the Indians ambushed and slew him and seventeen men belonging to the garrison while they were at work in the field which belonged in 1910 to the widow of Joseph W. Coe, and lay south-east of the garrison beyond Huckins Brook. There they were all buried under a mound which in 1910 still existed in the south-east corner of the field. The Indians then attacked the garrison-house, which was defended by two boys only and some women and children. They managed to set fire to the roof of the garrison, but the boys — "brave boys truly," says Mather — held out till the Indians promised to spare the lives of all. Yet they killed three or four of the children and carried away the rest of the inmates, except one of the boys, doubtless Robert⁸ Huckins, who escaped the next day (Mather's Magnalia, App. Art. vi.; Belknap's History of New Hampshire, vol. 1, p. 205; REGISTER, vol. 7, p. 156; N. H. Gen. Record, vol. 3, p. 80). The garrison-house was destroyed (Thompson's Landmarks, p. 173, note 2). Lieut. Huckins's widow was recovered at Fort Androscoggin* after a year of captivity.

Children, born at Oyster River (REGISTER, vol. 7, p. 121):

3. i. ROBERT,⁹ born probably 12 Dec. 1672, although the record, if correctly transcribed, says "Sarah."
 - ii. SARAH, b. 12 Dec. 1674; d. s. p. (?) 14 Oct. 1705 (N. H. Gen. Record, vol. 3, p. 145); m. JAMES³ CHESLEY, son of Philip² (Philip¹) and Sarah of Oyster River, b. at Oyster River 1672(?), d. 15 Sept. 1707.
 - iii. JAMES, b. 16 July 1675; d. s. p. bef. 1699.
Probably others†, none of whom survived the massacre of 1689.
3. ROBERT⁸ HUCKINS (James,² *Robert*¹), yeoman, miller, born in Oyster River Parish, Dover, about 1672, married about 1692 WELTHEN² THOMAS, daughter of James¹ and Martha² (Goddard) (N. H. Deeds, vol. 17, pp. 53, 55; N. H. State Papers, vol. 31, pp. 101, 138; N. H. Court Papers, 1692-3, pp. 149, 191, 243, 247-8, 353; N. H. Gen. Record, vol. 5, p. 190). She was born at Dover and married secondly, before 1 Apr. 1727, John Gray (REGISTER, vol. 33, p. 346).

Robert Huckins doubtless rebuilt the garrison-house on or near the old site. In 1701 he had a mill on Huckins Brook, east of the house (Thompson's Landmarks, p. 109). In 1698, as "eldest son and heir of James Huckins, the only son and successor of Robert Huckins, deceased," he conveyed 6 acres on Cocheco Marsh which had been granted to Robert¹ Huckins in 1648 (N. H. Deeds, vol. 6, p. 206). In 1705 he had administration upon the estate of "Robert Huckins, his grandfather" (N. H. State Papers, vol. 31, p. 545). He was successively selectman, assessor and constable at Dover.

He was baptized 17 Jan. 1719/20, in his last sickness (REGISTER,

He had 30 acres in Oyster River woods under his father's will. In 1745 he was living "at the cross-roads" at Madbury (N. H. Deeds, vol. 30, p. 241). He removed with his son John to Barrington and settled on lands overlooking Bow Lake, about 1773. The part of the Mallego River in Barrington is called Huckins Brook (Thompson's Landmarks, p. 137).

In 1740 he was a soldier in Captain Millet's company at Dover (N. H. State Papers, vol. 9, p. 173). In 1745 he was captain of scouts (ib., vol. 5, pp. 365, 384, 766, 768, vol. 16, p. 906). In 1758 he was selectman at Madbury (town records).

In 1734 apparently but 3 acres of this remained, and he sold the northerly half to his brother Thomas,⁴ reserving the house and the mill. He acquired enough more land adjoining to make up 50 acres, and sold it all in 1757 to Dr. Joseph Atkinson, and bought at once 50 acres in Nottingham (N. H.
