THE MAKING OF THE BOOK

TWENTY-THREE years ago Andover was visited by the present compiler, and for the first time the correct family descent was ascertained. The work, however, was abandoned almost as soon as begun, to be resumed only in 1895. In the meantime, Edmond Frank Peters, a descendant of the Tory colonel, as he is commonly called (Colonel John of the Queen's Loyal Rangers), started on his labors, and for six years toiled unceasingly on a Peters history and genealogy, which at his death, in 1893, was practically finished. His papers were left to his relative, the Rev. Thomas McClute Peters, who had been greatly interested in and had given every encouragement to the work, but his death also taking place the same summer, the entire material passed into the hands of the present compiler. For the past eight years she has been correcting, adding to, and perfecting the book. Sections of family history collected by some six or eight different individuals have been studied and copied. At least sixty towns have been visited for the personal inspection of town and parish records, probate, and sometimes deeds, being investigated as well. Between forty and fifty graveyards have been visited, which in nearly every case means the inspection of each stone. The genealogy has been rewritten from end to end, the form and system completely changed, and a number of separate articles on subjects of family interest have been added. Portraits, views, and signatures have been collected, and, although very far from complete, the work is believed to be in sufficient shape to justify its printing in the hope that, by publishing what there is, in time an almost perfect history may be obtained. Far more could have been accomplished had individuals shown more interest in the matter, it being in many cases almost, or quite, impossible to obtain even the common courtesy of a reply, or if information was sent it was often done with so little interest as to be of no value.

To all those who have in any way aided or encouraged the compiler, her heartiest appreciation is due, especially to the Hon. John Andrew Peters, of Bangor, Me., whose active sympathy and generous assistance are most gratefully acknowledged. To Miss Augusta Peters of Blue Hill, Miss Elizabeth Sewall of Medfield, Mrs. Grozelier of North Andover, Mrs. Annis Welles of Hebron, Mr. Jesse S. Reeves of Richmond, Ind., Mr. George Albert Taylor of Albany, and Mr. F. C. Bissell of Hartford; to Miss Charlotte Abbott of Andover, who is a mine of information on all town matters; and to Mrs. Almira Clarke of Woodville, Conn., whose sensible and valuable letters have been of the greatest service, the compiler wishes also to express her thanks, as well as to the Essex Institute for the loan of a copy of Edmond Frank Peters' papers. Town histories have often been quoted and have been found of great value.

Distant members of the family, in many instances total strangers, have loaned valuable papers, autographs, portraits, etc., and have sent information which, in some cases, they procured at the cost of much time and trouble to themselves. It is impossible to name all whom the compiler would thank, in person if possible, but she assures them that their kindness is fully appreciated.

The present compiler has again, in person, gone over much of the ground already carefully studied by Edmond Frank Peters, and can hold herself responsible for the sections entitled Ipswich and Andover, Middleton, Andover, Maine, General Absalom, The Revd. Samuel, Lost Tribes, Andrew in New Hampshire, nearly all of Reading and Wakefield, and portions of other sections. The articles before and after the genealogy and the illustrations and signatures are furnished by the present compiler. Nearly the whole of Medfield, all of Colonel John, most of Seborne, and the greater part of the sections unmentioned are wholly due to Edmond Frank Peters, and the present compiler has everywhere been greatly assisted by his thorough and conscientious labors.

The enormous amount of material he amassed in the six years of his toil would have been remarkable had he devoted his entire time to the work, but when one realizes that it was the result of his leisure hours only, it seems little short of a miracle. His system of collecting matter was most elaborate, painstaking, and complete, and was undoubtedly the principal cause of his remarkable success. Were it not for him this work would doubtless never have been written, certainly not by the present author. Even in the portions more especially her own he has been an ever-present guide, counsellor, and friend, often presenting her with some curious bit of information, or warning her of some rock or shoal. In short, the entire work is founded upon and permeated by Edmond Frank Peters, and as his face is the first one sees upon opening the book, so is his guiding and sustaining spirit the last one leaves upon closing the volume.

TRADITION

A WELL disseminated tradition causes our family history to begin in Boston, in 1634, with one William Peters, a merchant, who was educated at Leyden, was a brother of the Revd. Hugh Peters of Salem, and of the Revd. Thomas Peters of Saybrook, and removed to Andover, where he built a church and was buried under the pulpit.* This attractive fiction emanates from the Revd. Samuel Peters, a gentleman of whom it may be truly said that he was indebted to his imagination for his facts, the facts necessarily changing with the amount of imagination temporarily at his command, and thus producing varied versions of one and the same event. For instance, he in one letter says that William Peters came to Boston in 1634, in another that his great-grandfather went from London, a merchant, in 1640.† Now he supposes his

* "William Peters Esq., of Boston, in 1634, was rich and noble, did good in his day, built a meeting-house in Andover about twenty miles from Boston for the Puritans and ordered his body to be buried under the pulpit and turned his soul to God, to sing Praises with the pious and venerable fathers who settled New England."—(Letter from the Revd. Samuel Peters to Gen. Absalom Peters, dated New York, Oct. 10, 1821.)

† In the rough draft of a letter he is composing in London, November 14, 1775, to Lord Petre of Writtle, the Revd. Samuel says: "My Lord, I lately came from New England to which country my Great-grandfather went from London, in the year 1640, a Merchant, his son bore his name William Peters, his Grandson bore the name of John, his great Grandson bears the name of Samuel who is a clergyman of the church of England. The family have ever lived in Affluence in America and with the Honorable Tradition that William who first went to Boston was a nigh Relation of the then Lord Petre. I had a manuscript copy of my great-grandfather giving an Account of his Pedigree but the Rebels have Seized it and all my Property."

great-grandfather to be William, and always so designates him; but in fact his great-grandfather was Andrew (of whose existence the reverend gentleman apparently had never heard), born in 1634 (we always find some substratum of truth at the bottom of the reverend gentleman's assertions) and of him we have no record before 1659. (Curiously enough there is record of a William Peters in Virginia in 1634.) Nor has any record of any William Peters been found in New England prior to that date, or of any one there who could be Andrew's father. Andrew did remove to Andover (about 1686), but there is no mention of any of the family building a church or being interred in any part of it, and if such an event had occurred it is almost certain there would be some record or recollection of it. As for William (who if he existed would necessarily be the father of Andrew) being educated at Leyden, again there is no record there of any such person being in any way connected with that university.*

* LEIDEN, 1 April, 1896.

MY DEAR PROF. PETERS.

I have gone over our Album Academicum and compared all students of the name of W. or G. Peters, Peter, Petri, Petrijii, Petræus, inscribed between 1614 and 1634, but all of them were either Dutchmen, by the name of Gerardus or Godofredus, or Danes, Swedes, or Germans. Dickwood, Dirkwood or Duykwood, nor anything coming near, is to be found among the students of our University. No Professor, Lector or Master of a College of either name has taught at Leiden. I am sorry that this is only a negative result, and though I have no idea in what other way your forefather could be connected with our University I will ask the Recorder of our Senatus if he can give any light. He is just recovering from a serious illness, so I cannot trouble him for the moment, but I hope to have his advice after a couple of weeks. I don't think there will be any expense; only if we should be so happy as to find some documents relating to Peters or Dirkwood, there might be wanted a small remuneration for copying. I thank you very much for your kind intention to send me an off-print of your last article the subject of which most interests me. Believe me dear Sir, Yours truly,

C. P. TIELS.

(Letter to the Revd. J. P. Peters.)

As to William's being a brother of the Revd. Hugh and of the Revd. Thomas, and simultaneously "a nigh relation of the then Lord Petre," he might have been one or the other, but hardly both, for Hugh and Thomas Peter (not Peters) had parents whose names were, respectively, Thomas Dirkwood and Martha Treffry * the former descending from ancestors who fled from Antwerp on account of religious persecution in 1543. The name of Dirkwood was changed to Peter between 1599 and 1610, for cause unknown, unless it might be from the marriage of Deborah Treffry (sister of Martha, who married Thomas Dirkwood), in 1609, to Henry Peter, M. P. for Fowey, and descendant of a sister of Sir William Peter, who was "secretary and of the Privy Council to four Kings and Queens of this realm and seven times ambassador abroad in foreign lands," said Sir William being also ancestor of the Barons Petre of Writtle, Essex, which seat the Revd. Samuel Peters persistently places in Devonshire. Now if we descend from the Dirkwood family, it is difficult to see how we are closely related to the family of Lord Petre, unless it might be through the female side, several Peters having married Treffrys; but this is not what the reverend gentleman intends.† Even at the present day there are Peters who will insist, unblushingly,—though Hugh Peter left but a daughter—that they derive the name of Peters from the fourth pastor of the First church in Salem. Being closely connected with two families of such consequence as that of Treffry and of Peter, it is not impossible that lands and the coat-of-arms may have been given to the descendants of the Flemish merchant to place them on an equality with their relatives by marriage,—but even here there is little hope for us. There is record of a William,

* Parish records, Fowey.

† "William, fourth son of Sir John Petre, Knt. of Exeter, is said to have been father of Hugh."

(Letter from the Revd. Samuel Peters.)

“son of Thomas Dirkwood,” born in Fowey in 1600, but there is also the burial of William, “son of Thomas Peter,* 17th October, 1609.” It certainly is self-evident that we could not descend from William, brother of Hugh, and yet have the ancestry claimed for us by the Revd. Samuel Peters.† Personally the compiler is of the opinion that we descend from some branch of the Peter family formerly of Devonshire and Cornwall, and that the relationship to the Revd. Hugh Peter—if relationship there be—comes through the Treffrys and not through the Peters. It might be worth the while of some one, with idle pence and hours, to investigate the claim of descent from “the fourth son of Sir John Petre, Knt. of Exeter, in Devon” (this is the usual version), who actually did live and did have four sons, the youngest being named William. In the face of what has here been said it seems unnecessary to make any comment upon the pedigree given in the Revd. Samuel Peters’ Life of Hugh Peters, or to do more than remark that the Revd. Thomas Peter was not the first Englishman to arrive at Saybrook (in fact there is no evidence of his being there

* The names of Peter and of Dirkwood appear to have been used interchangeably.

† In a letter dated New York, Oct. 10, 1821, to his nephew Gen. Absalom, he says: “You are the oldest surviving son of my oldest brother Col. John Peters, the honest man, and son of John Peters the good man, who was the grandson of William Peters Esq. of Boston in A.D. 1634, who was the fourth son of the Right Honorable Lord John Peters, Lord of Writtle in Devonshire, England, and one of the sixteen Peers who educated King Edward VI and governed England during the minority of that good King.‡ By the Herald’s office of London you know now the rock from which you descend, you cannot boast of Royal blood in your veins, but you can boast of Noble Blood running in your veins and arteries.”

‡ (At the period mentioned there was no Lord Petre; this title not existing until 1603, when Sir John Peter was made baron. Our reverend relative means Sir William, father of the first lord. That he is often confused as to his own belief on the subject, these various quotations from his writings sufficiently prove.)

before the summer of 1645; a few months later he was certainly at the Pequot Plantation, now New London, and he returned to England in December, 1646); that he did not found an academy in Saybrook which later became Yale College, nor did he die after the restoration of Charles II; neither did he "bequeath his library"* to that College, all his books being left in his will to his only son, John.

That the Revd. Samuel Peters, while in England, did actively interest himself in the family pedigree is evident from the following letter†: but he did not possess an exact mind, and as years accumulated his impressions, at least upon this subject, became greatly confused, until we finally come upon this astonishing statement: "Therefore King William in 1066, gave Sir John Peters, his secretary of State, this motto in his Coat of Arms, Sans Dieu rien!" (Letter from the Revd. Samuel Peters, dated Harsimus, July 6, 1822.)

Another tradition, emanating from Mary Peters, daughter of Col. John and Lydia Phelps, and wife of † HARLYN, 26th August, 1776.

DEAR SIR:—Your last favor I received and am much obliged to you for your friendly invitation sent. As I find you are not so happy as to enjoy a good state of health perhaps a journey into Cornwall may be of service to you and I will do myself the pleasure of meeting you on any part of the Road to conduct you to my house where you may be sure of meeting with a sincere welcome. I live in the country on my Estate which is situated on a dry healthy spot near the sea. I am a young man and had the misfortune of losing a very good father in January last. My Mother and six sisters live with me and I have a brother at a Latin school. I have made all the inquiries into our ancestors and make not the least doubt but that you and myself came from Padestow as five of the most capital Estates in that Parish were in the possession of the Peters, viz., Treator, Trenarse, Tregewin, Trengho and Trebouza. The latter is my possession and a Mr. William Peters lives at Treator; the three other Estates are not in the family. I see by a deed dated the 2nd year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth [which would be in 1560] wherein Mr. John Peters conveys Trebouza to his father John Peters of Trenara. My father's name was William and I had three uncles named Samuel. There was a family in the Parish (St. Merry) there were four brothers John, Hugh, Walter and William Peters and they are extinct. My mother and sisters join me in best comp'ts to you and am, Dear sir, your most obedient humble servant,

Joseph Hosford of Thetford, Vt., is incorrect from end to end, and is not worth quoting. It is said she left to each of her children a paper entitled "Genealogy of the Ancestors of Molly Gillette by her mother and written by her own hand in the 66th year of her age."

HENRY PETERS.

To the Revd. Mr. Samuel Peters.

A somewhat curious paper in the handwriting of the Revd. Samuel and inscribed "Veritas March 25, 1792, London. Kipha Bar Iona Cedras Libani Galilae" gives his pedigree as follows:

1736 Samuel Peters Hebron. 1696 John Peters, Hebron, Conn.

1640 William Peters, Boston, N. E. 1598 William Peters, Fowey, Cornwall.

1574 William Peters, Fowey, Cornwall. 1550 John Petre, Exitor, Deron.

INFERENCE

HAVING shown in tradition what does not exist in our family history, we now come to what does: this is soon disposed of. We know nothing whatever of the antecedents of Andrew Peeters, barring certain safe inferences. From the date of his death and of a deposition made in Salem, we find him to have been born in 1634 or 1635. He came to this country a young man, well educated, as his will shows,—somewhat remarkably so for those days, in fact; for if, after a life of farming and distilling (some sixteen years of these being largely taken up with fighting Indians), his hand and mind were still so docile to the pen as to write and spell as he does in his will, it seems probable that he possessed a liberal education. It is also evident that he came to this country well provided with money and that he possessed, or acquired, a social position which gave him the title of Mr., a word of meaning in those days. Inferences point to a residence in Holland; some have consequently inferred him to be Dutch. It is safe, flatly, to contradict this theory. If in law a man is judged innocent until he is proved guilty, so among the early settlers of New England it is safe to assert that a man is English until he has been proved a foreigner. Were he the latter he would be referred to as the Dutchman, would not be persona grata among his neighbors, and his spelling and writing—arts which he would be little called upon to exercise after his emigration—would assuredly not be of the character found in his will. His education was certainly all European, whether Continental or British. The spelling of his name, Peeters, is or, was, a recognized one in the west of England. It is by no means impossible, as Miss Charlotte Abbott suggests, that he came to New England from New York, from Virginia, or even from the West Indies, and not directly from Europe. The compiler is of the opinion that, being a distiller by trade, he would probably be a member of that guild in England, and that his ancestry might thereby be traced on the other side of the water. Being unable to contradict the Revd. Samuel Peters' statement that Andrew (or his father) was the fourth son of John Peters, or Peter (Knt., or otherwise), of Devon, this or something approximate may be found to be correct, and those of the family who now yearn for a coat-of-arms may be blessed with satisfied, and, what is more, justified, aspirations. We may be entitled to a coat-of-arms, even to that so long used by some branches of the family, but the compiler has done her best to produce a correct and exact history, based only upon facts known and proved to be such. Some one—probably the Revd. Samuel—is responsible for a number of colored engravings of Peters coat armor, all made at the same time, and which have spread from Maine to California. It will be hard for many of the family to part with these should they be proved to be incorrect; but there is no trace of arms until our reverend relative gave his attention to the subject. Old Andrew's seal is a very different affair, and to the compiler's mind is far more interesting and valuable than any number of European crests. An American heraldry we might surely have; then why not take his seal, which the compiler believes to mean so much, and to tell of that terrific fight in the Narragansett country and of long years of border warfare,* and make that the father of a new heraldry—a heraldry all our own?

* During his residence in Andover Andrew appears to have been certainly once, perhaps twice, burned out by the Indians. (Page 22.) "1692 Mr Andrew Peeters (now an inhabitant in Andover), being lately burnt out by ye Indians." This may have occurred in 1689, or it may have been more recent, but certainly his son Samuel was too young to be his partner at that time, and he says in his will: "whereas I was Burnt out bij ye heathen Enemij hee ye said Samuella Peeters hath been mij Copartner Euer Since." This second burning may have been the one referred to in 1698 (see note at foot of page 28).

EXPLANATION

LARGE Arabic figures to the left of a name give the individual number; smaller figures in parentheses give the order of birth. Roman figures indicate the generation. The first Andrew Peeters being a generation by himself has the Roman, and not the Arabic, numeral. A number repeated, accompanied by an A, indicates discovery of individuals too late for them to receive individual numbers.

Md. Married.

Dau. Daughter.

Ch. Children.

Int. mar. Intention of marriage.

Unk. Unknown.

Enl. Enlisted.

This being a Peters history only, the descendants of female Peters are not given. A name in capitals indicates the ancestor of all those in that subdivision, or section, of the work. Names in italics indicate all the males of the second generation in that particular subdivision or section. Every numbered individual is a Peters by birth. Old style and new style have been avoided as much as possible. Before 1752, March was the first month. Prior to 1752, eleven days should be added to make a date correspond to the new style. There are, however, exceptions to this rule.

Illustrations and Signatures.—The date to the right of the portrait or picture indicates the year when it was taken. The date to the left of the signature gives the year when it was written.

IPSWICH AND ANDOVER

I. ANDREW PEETERS. No record of birth (born probably in England, in 1634-35), died in Andover, Mass., December 14, 1713, in the seventy-ninth year of his age; md. (no record of marriage, probably in Boston, Mass., early in 1659) Mercy, dau. of William Beamsley * and Anne — his wife and widow of Michael Wilbourn, † born in Boston, the ninth day of the tenth month (December), 1637; died in Andover, Mass., November 6, 1726, and had seven children.

Children of Andrew Peeters, "Church and Parish Records of the Town of Ipswich," Mass.:

1 (1). "John, son of Andrew Peeters, borne 28th of February 1659-60."

2 (2). "Elizabeth, daughter of Andrew Peeters, borne 26 of August 1662"

3 (3). Andrew

4 (4). "Mary, ‡ daughter of Andrew Peeters borne the 12 of June, 1668"

5 (5). "Mercy, daughter of Andrew Peeters borne the 27 of January, 1670."

6 (6). "Wry (William) son of Andrew Peeters, borne the 7 of February 1672 "

7 (7). Samuel."

* See article on Beamsley.

† It has been stated that they were md. in Ipswich, April 16, 1658.

‡ This made Mercy, the wife of Andrew, the mother of two living Marys.

No record can be found of the birth of Andrew or of Samuel, but the former is said to have been born in 1664, and Samuel's date must be 1674 or 1675.

Boston Marriages. Michael Wilbourne and Mercy Beamsley, daughter of William Beamsley of Boston, were married the 17th day of the 8th month (Oct.), 1656, by Richard Bellingham, Deputy Governor.

Boston Births. Mary of Michael and Mary Wilborne, born October 30, 1657.

Michael Wilbourne was a carpenter. There is no record of his death, but Mercy appears to have been a widow in September, 1658, when her father's will was made. It will be seen that Mercy and Mary are used interchangeably; probably the old pronunciation, and consequent spelling "Marcy," are responsible for this error.

* The Wilson manuscript gives us the first glimpse of our earliest ancestor in this country. Mercy Beamsley was one day standing at her window to watch the people wading through the trails, which then served as streets, when her attention was attracted by "a young Holland" picking his way through the mud. Andrew Peeters had just arrived, and looking up he saw her watching. He then and there resolved to marry her, it is said. This version calls Andrew a Dutchman. It is certain that he was an Englishman though he probably lived, and possibly was born in Holland. He appears in this country as a young man with sufficient worldly possessions and a good education, especially for those days,—witness his will written by himself and in which the spelling is quite remarkable and the writing that of a man thoroughly used to the pen. For account of the Wilson manuscript see note following the description of the deaths of John and Andrew Peeters in 1689.

Whereas there have been several endeavours to accomodate the Narragansett Soldiers and their Descendants with a suitable Quantity of Land for the Settlement as an Acknowledgement & Reward for their great Service to this Country which have failed hitherto of the desired

* The Rev^d Andrew, who inherited the land from his military ancestor, was son of Samuel, and grandson of Andrew who fought in the Narragansett campaign. The following letter from the Revnd. George Madison Bodge, author of Soldiers in King Philip's War, a most exhaustive work and the authority on the Narragansett campaign, is of great interest and value to us:

WESTWOOD, Feby 26, 1900

DEAR MRS PETERS

I have just come upon a letter of yours dated Sept. 25, 1898, which I fear has never been answered, but got covered up with some other papers and forgotten. In regard to the questions contained I will say that (1) The soldiers who served in the Narragansett Campaign from Dec. 10, 1675, to Feb'y 21 (or thereabouts), 1676 received a grant of Land,—each equal to every other in value.

The seven townships were supposed to be of equal value and were assigned to 840 (about) the number of Claimants either the soldiers themselves or their heirs, then known to be in the country.

The companies of claimants were made up according to the residences of the men at the time of the assignment about 1733-1735. This assignment took in the Plymouth Colony soldiers as Plymouth had then become a part of Massachusetts. An officer who served the whole war had no more than a private who served a week.

As to Andrew Peters. The sum with which he is credited would indicate that he served from Dec. 10 to the end of the campaign. His name in the list of Soldier Grantees is positive proof that he was in the Campaign. My own ancestor John Harmon was in the same Township allotment. (P. 24.)

I do not think the seal had any reference to the capture of the fort.

I have no further information about Andrew Peters, which would assist you and I presume this is all too late to be of interest.

Yours very truly

GEORGE M. BODGE.

Success, His Honor have thought it might tend to promote a good understanding & Harmony in this Court to lay before the Hon'ble Board wherefore it is that the Representat'ves have come into the Grant of a Tract of six miles square to each number of one hundred & twenty persons which they have made this Session, in answer to the Petition of Thomas Tileston & others, a Comm'tee in behalf of themselves and the rest of the Soldiers & their Descendants who were in the Narragansett War, And one great Reason is that there was a Proclamation made to the Army in the name of the Govern'm't,—as living evidences very fully testify,—when they were mustered on Dedham Plain where they began their March, that if they playd the Man, took the Fort and Drove the Enemy out of the Narragansett Country, which was their great Seat, that they should have a gratuity in Land beside their Wages; and it is well known that this was done; and as the Conditions have been performed, certainly the Promise, in all Equity and Justice ought to be fulfilled; and if we consider the Difficulties these brave Men went thro' in Storming the Fort in the Depth of Winter and the pinching wants they afterward underwent in pursuing the Indians that escaped, thro' a hideous wilderness, famously known throughout New England to this day by the name of the hungry March; and if we further consider that until the brave tho' small army thus played the Man, the whole Country was filled with Distress & fear & we trembled in the Capital, Boston, itself, and that to the Goodness of God to this Army we owe our Fathers and our Safety & Estates, We cannot but think yt those Instrum'ts of our Deliverance and Safety ought to be not only justly but also gratefully and generously rewarded & even with much more than they prayed for. If we measure w't they receive from us by w't we enjoy & have received from them, we need not mention to ye Hon'ble Board the Wisdom, Justice & Generosity of our Mother Country & ye ancient Romans on such occasions, Triumphs, Oration, Hereditary Honors & Privileges; All the Riches, Lands & Spoils of War & Conquest have not been thought too great for those to whom they have not owed more, if so much as We do to those our Deliverers, & we ought further to observe what greatly adds to their merit that they are not vagabonds & Beggars & Outcasts, of wh'ch Armies are Sometimes considerably made up, who run the Hazards of War to avoid the danger of Starving; so far from this, that these were some of ye best of Our Men, the Fathers and Sons of some of ye greatest & best of Our famil'es and could have no other view but to serve ye Country, & whom God was pleased accordingly in a very remarkable manner to Honor & Succeed Of these things the Hon'ble the General Court of the Late Colony of the Massachusetts in those days was not insensible and accordingly gave to ye Soldiers, being upward of Five Hundred, abt Two Thirds of the Army that went from ye Massachusetts & the Late Colony of Plimouth, a tract of abt forty thousand acres in the Nipmug Country, this or the value of it these Soldiers would be contented with, & take in their Brethren of Plimouth too, tho' that sh'd take away two thirds of w't was granted them and would after that have more in value than w't they now ask for them all, for every one must own that 40,000 acres in the Heart of the Country, as the Nipmug country is, is of more value than five times that quantity in the Borders, & in Danger if there should be a French war, as is & would be the case with all the unappropriated Lands of the Province w'ch they now ask for.

It is hoped that the neglect of these petition'rs so long, or the provinces having disposed of the Nipmug Country to others & so defeated their ancient Grants, will not be thought to wear out any more than it reveals their merit. The Grant seems to be made in acknowledgement both of ye promise & of ye fulfilling ye conditions & being well entitled to it, & there is great Reason to fear that public Guilt w'd ly upon the Country if we should neglect & continue in the Breach of this Promise, after it has been made & omitted for above fifty years.

As to the late Grant of two Townships to Seven or Eight Hundred of these Soldiers, It is so far below the value of the Land they conquered, & the Price the province had for it when it was sold, & the money divided In the Colonies that carried on the War, It is such a Pittance of w't they obtained for us, so exceedingly beneath w't the Province has defeated them of, which was granted to about Two thirds of them in the Nipmug Country, that it is rather mocking and deriding them to offer it. Beyond w't has been offered, it sh'd be considered that to grant the present petition and give such a quantity of Land as may be worth Settling, & upon Conditions of bringing forward Townships, is much more agreeable to Charter & for the publick Good than to Give away Tracts of Land & suffer & even tempt men to let them ly waste & unimproved, for in the way that has been proposed & in which some Progress has been made the Lands will be divided into such scraps that they will not be worth receiving.

† In land laid out to Walter Wright there is mention of “Mr Andrew Peeters” about this period.

‡ This was probably in August of 1692, but no date is given.

We being very sensible of the great sufferings our neighbours have been long under in prison and charitably judging that many of them are clear of that great transgression which hath been laid to their charge, have thought it our duty to endeavour their vindication so far as our testimony for them will avail. The persons, in whose behalf we are desired and concerned to speak something at present, are Mrs. Mary Osgood,* Eunice Frye,† Deliverance Dane,‡ Sarah Wilson§ and Abigail Barker,||, who are women of whom we can truly give this character and commendation, that they have not only lived among us so inoffensively as not to give the least occasion to any that know them to suspect them of witchcraft, but by their sober, godly, and exemplary conversation have obtained a good report in the place, where they have been well esteemed and approved in the church of which they are members.

We are surprised to hear that persons of known integrity and purity were accused of so horrid a crime, not considering, then, that the most innocent were liable to be so misrepresented and abused. When these women were accused by some afflicted persons of the neighbourhood, their relations and others, though they had so good grounds of charity that they should not have thought any evil of them, yet through a misrepresentation of the truth of that evidence that was so much credited and improved against people, took great pains to persuade them to own what they were, by the afflicted, charged with; and indeed did unreasonably urge them to confess themselves guilty, as some of us who were then present can testify. But these good women did very much assert their innocence; yet some of them said they were not without fear lest Satan had some way ensnared them, because there was that evidence against them which then was by many thought to be a certain indication and discovery of witchcraft, yet they seriously professed they knew nothing by themselves of that nature. Nevertheless, by the unwearied sollicitations of those that privately discoursed them, both at home and at Salem, they were at length persuaded publickly to own what they were charged with, and to submit to that guilt which we still hope and believe they are clear of. And it is probable, the fear of what the event might be, and the encouragement that it is said, was suggested to them, that confessing was the only way to obtain favour, might be too powerful a temptation for timorous women to withstand, in the hurry and distraction that we have heard they were in. Had what they said against themselves proceeded from conviction of the fact, we should have had nothing to have said for them, but we are induced to think that it did not, because they did soon privately retract what they had said, as we are informed; and while they were in prison, they declared to such as they had confidence to speak freely and plainly to, that they were not guilty of what they had owned, and that what they had said against themselves was the greatest grief and burden they laboured under. Now, though we cannot but judge it a thing very sinful for innocent persons to own a crime they are not guilty of, yet, considering the well ordered conversation of those women while they lived among us, and what they now seriously and constantly affirm in a more composed frame, we cannot but in charity judge them innocent of the great transgression that hath been imputed to them. As for the rest of our neighbours, who are under the like circumstances with these that have been named, we can truly say of them, that while they lived among us, we have had no cause to judge them such persons as, of late, they have been represented and reported to be, nor do we know that any of their neighbours had any just grounds to suspect them of that evil that they are now charged with.

Andrew’s will can now be seen in the court house in Salem; it is in excellent condition and reads as follows: †

Endorsed in his handwriting “my Will & Testament.”

“I Andrew Peeters of Andover the county of Essex in NEW England Being in Good health & memory (through ye Goodness of God) & willing to settle ye Estate the Lord hath Giuen mee after my Decease doe thus Ordaine my Last will & testamt

To my dear wiffe Mercij Peeters I will & bequeth my whole estate in houses Lands & Cattle, goods, money &c

* Andrew Peters had the misfortune to leave a town which had never been attacked by the Indians for a place which for many years suffered from repeated raids by the “heathen enemy.”

Judge Sewall describes this attack upon Andover:

“Feb. 24—97—98. Feb 22 at Break of day Andover is surprised Lt/Col. Bradstreet’s house, rifled, his kinsman Wade slain, Capt. Chubb and his wife slain and three more. Some houses and Barns burnt and in one a considerable quantity of corn and twenty head of Cattel. Pulpit cushions taken away, fired but not quenched.”

As Andrew Peters lived not far from the church and the Bradstreet house it is probable that he suffered in this raid as well as his neighbours.

† 1900—It is in very bad condition and is no longer shown. 1902—It is still worse.

1 II. John, first child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, born in Ipswich, February 28, 1660; killed by the Indians in Andover, August 14, 1689; married in Ipswich, May 25, 1680, Mary Edwards, daughter of John Edwards, born in Ipswich, October 16, 1661, died in Ipswich, January 11, 1733, and had two children.

of the great event of Andrew's life,—the desperate struggle and victory of the white men over the Indians, and the taking of their stronghold in the Narragansett campaign. The seal is evidently a home-made affair, but it is the more individual and valuable on that account.

"The courage displayed during the action by every part of the army, the invincible heroism of the officers, the firmness and resolution of the soldiers when they saw their captains falling before them, and the hardships endured before and after the engagement are hardly credible, and rarely find a parallel in ancient or modern ages. The cold the day preceding the action was extreme, and in the night the snow fell so deep as to render it extremely difficult for the army to move the day succeeding. Four hundred of the soldiers were so completely frozen as to be unfit for duty!"—History of the Indian Wars, by Henry Trumbull.

(Out of eleven hundred and twenty-seven men two hundred and ninety-nine were killed and five hundred and thirteen wounded. The Massachusetts men were at the head of the army and led the charge against the fort.—E. B. P.)

* Probably written "Marcy."

III. Children of John and Mary Edwards:

- 8 (1). Andrew,* born in Ipswich, December 1, 1682.
 9 (2). Mary.

John lived, according to his grandfather's will, "on ye north side of Merrimack Riuer, aboue Major Dennison's farme." As he lived out of the town it is probable that there were other children whose births were not recorded. Mary must have been one of them, and whether it is her death which is recorded in Ipswich on the 11th of January, 1733, or her mother's, it is impossible to say. Probably the latter. John Peters was killed during the raid on Haverhill of August 13, 1689, when so many in that town lost their lives. There are two records in Ipswich of his marriage to Mary Edwards, the first, April 12, 1680, is, undoubtedly, a publishment.

2 II. Elizabeth, second child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, born in Ipswich, August 26, 1662, died in Andover, October 31, 1703; was married in Ipswich, November 25, 1678, to John Sady, and had two children.

III. Children of Elizabeth Peters and John Sady:

- (1). John, born (probably in Ipswich in 1679) died in Andover August 13, 1702, "aged about twenty-four years."
 (2). Samuel, born (probably in Ipswich, in 1680), married September 25, 1704, Mary Hamden. "Capt. Samuel Sady died Oct. ye 8-1744 aged 64 years."

His gravestone is in Medfield, Mass. The intention of marriage and his marriage are both recorded in Middleton, Mass., town records.

Elizabeth Sady was married (2) to Walter Wright (widower) September 9, 1684, by Mr. Russell (he married, February 26, 1667, Susannah Johnson; "died June 3, 1684, Susannah wife of Walter Wright.")

* See New Hampshire.

III. Children of Elizabeth Peters Sady and Walter Wright:

- (1). Elizabeth, born in Andover, July 20, 1685.
- (2). Dorothy, born in Andover, July 23, 1688.
- (3). Joseph, born in Andover, October 28, 1693.
- (4). Sarah, born in Andover, March 20, 1696.
- (5). Abigail, born in Andover, January 31, 1699.
- (6). Dorothy, born in Andover, 1701.

"1712, October 20 (25?), died Walter Write, aged about seventy."

3 II. Andrew, third child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, no record of birth (probably born in Ipswich, in 1664), killed by the Indians in Andover, August 14, 1689; married in Andover, February 8, 1685, by Major Saltonstall, to Elizabeth Farnham, dau. Thomas Farnham and Elizabeth Sibbons, his wife, born in Andover, February 19, 1661, died in , and had 2 children.

III. Children of Andrew and Elizabeth Farnham:

10 (1). Andrew, born in Andover, December 9, 1686; no further record. Probably died young, as he is not mentioned in his grandfather's will.

11 (2). Sibbons,* born in Andover, February 19, 1688.

He is undoubtedly the one called "Seberence" in his grandfather's will, whence it may be inferred that the name was written according to a careless pronunciation and that it was not "Seaborn," as has been surmised.

Elizabeth Farnham Peters was married (2) by Captain Danforth, April 2, 1692, to James Johnson, son of Thomas Johnson and Mary Holt, his wife, born in Andover, February 4, 1672, died in Andover, October 14, 1748, and had children.

Andrew ¹¹, the second son of Andrew ¹, is curiously enough, his only child not mentioned by name in his will. He was killed at the same time as his elder brother John.

* See New Hampshire.

FROM THE WILSON MANUSCRIPT.*

“The settlers were so much annoyed by the Indians at this time, that they could with difficulty support their families.† Their houses were burned, their crops destroyed and their cattle driven away. During a period of more than thirty years (1686–1725) they were compelled to spend more or less of each year at the garrison. (Blanchard’s was the one at Haggett’s Pond.) When they went out to work in their fields, each man armed himself in readiness to repel an attack. Notwithstanding these precautions, many of the inhabitants were killed; among others the sons of Mr. Peters.

“A couple of Indians had been looking around the settlements and had taken one prisoner and were cautiously retiring when they saw two young men, John and Andrew Peters, approaching. They had been at work in the field and were returning to the garrison. The Indians immediately hid behind a log fence, and told their captive, John Singletary, if he stirred or made any noise they would instantly kill him. They suffered the brothers to pass and then they both fired. One of the young men fell dead from his horse, the other was mortally wounded, the ball passing through his body and through the neck of his horse. The wounded animal dashed off at full speed, carrying the unfortunate rider to a considerable distance from the spot where his brother fell.”

4 II. Mary, fourth child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, born in Ipswich, June 12, 1668, died

* Mrs. Margaret Wilson Mighill, of Danby, near Wallingford, Vt., died in 1820, aged ninety-one. She told the tale of John’s, Andrew’s, and William’s death, to her granddaughter, Sarah Ives Fox, who wrote it down. Mrs. Mighill was the oldest daughter of Abigail Whittemore and Thomas Wilson, son of Margaret Russ Peters (widow of William Peters), and her second husband, James Wilson, of Cambridge. James Wilson removed to Killingly, Conn.

† This was in Andover.

in Andover, July 21, 1753, in the 86th year of her age; was married, May 22, 1686, to Thomas Chandler, son of Capt. Thomas Chandler and Hannah Brewer his wife, born in Andover, October 9, 1664, died in Andover, January 20, 1737, and had nine children.

III. Children of Mary Peters and Thomas Chandler:

- (1). Mary, born in Andover, February 18, 1687.
- (2). Annis, born in Andover, March 21 (24?), 1689.
- (3). Thomas, born in Andover, June 4, 1691.
- (4). Elizabeth, born in Andover, July 13, 1693.
- (5). Timothy, born in Andover, March 29, 1695.
- (6). Ephraim, born in Andover, October 2, 1696.
- (7). David, born in Andover, January 11, 1699.
- (8). Hannah, born in Andover, August 23, 1700.
- (9). Mary, born in Andover, March 8, 1702.

5 II. Mercy, fifth child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, born in Ipswich, January 27, 1670, died in Andover, of the small-pox, December 25, 1690; was married by Mr. Dane, May 22, 1686, to John Allen, son of Andrew Allen and Faith Ingalls his wife, born in Andover, March 16, 1662, died of the small-pox, November 26, 1690, and had three children.

III. Children of Mercy Peters and John Allen.

- (1). John, born April 30, 1687.
- (2). John, born June 12, 1688.
- (3). Hannah, born September 12, 1690.

John Allen and his young wife evidently caught the dread disease from his sister, the unfortunate Martha Allen, wife of Thomas Carrier, who only a few years later was hanged as a witch. The Carrier family came from Billerica to Andover, and in 1690 some of them became ill with small-pox.

“To Samuel Holt, Andrew Allen and John Allen, Neighbors and friends.—We the subscribers of Andover have been informed that your sister Carrier and some of her children are smitten with that contagious disease the small-pox and some have been so inconsiderate as to think that the care of them belongs to the salact men of Andover which does not, for they took care when first they came to towne to warne them out again and have attended the law therein; and shall only take care that they doe not spread the distemper with wicked carelessness which we are afraid they have already done. You had best take what care you can about them, nature and Religion requiring of it. We hope we have done faithfully in this information and are your friends and servants. Oct. 14th, 1690.

A most cold-blooded, selfish document! Samuel Holt was brother-in-law of Martha Carrier, and Andrew Allen was her father. It was the custom, when a new family came to town to warn them out, otherwise, in case of poverty or disease, they might become a charge to the town.

Later, Walter Wright, brother-in-law of John Allen and Mercy Peters Allen (through his marriage to Elizabeth, oldest daughter of Andrew Peeters), received the following warrant.

“To Walter Wright, Constable; Whereas it has pleased God to visit those of the widdowe Allen’s family which she hath taken into her house with that contagious disease the small-pox, it being as we think part of our duty to prevent the spreading of sd distemper we therefore requier you in their Majesties’ names to warn sd family not to goe near any house soe as to endanger them by sd infection nor to come to the public meeting till they may come with safety to others; but what they want let them acquaint you with; which provide for them out of their own estates.”

Dated the 4.9.1690.

6 II. William, sixth child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley his wife, born in Ipswich, February 7, 1672, killed by the Indians in Andover August 13, 1696. (No record of marriage, but is said to have married Margaret Russe in 1694, perhaps daughter of John Russ and Deborah Osgood, born in Andover, April 10, 1673?)

III. Children of William and Margaret Russ:

12 (1). JOHN * born in Andover, October 1, 1695.

Margaret Russ Peters was married (2) April, 1704, to James Wilson of Cambridge.

1696 "One Peters and Hoyt scalp'd at Andover this week; were not shot, but knock'd in the head."

Mass. Hist. Coll. 5th series, vol. ii.

Dunstable, August 14, 1696 (Letter to Captain Lane)
 "from Andover I have advice alsoe of two men being murdered and scalped by ye Indian enemy, living in a forsaken house half a mile from a garrison, whereof Peters his son being one . . . Jonathan Tyng, major."

New Eng. Hist. & Gen. Register.

In the History of Billerica, Massachusetts, by Hazen, there is a letter from Andover relating that William Peters belonging to Samuel Blanchard's garrison, went to his house with one Hoyt to fetch his horse, and not returning, search was made and both men were found killed and scalped. The house was about half a mile from the garrison on the Billerica road in an open plain.

The Revd. John Pike records in his Journal, 1696, that "old John Hoyt of Amesbury and young Peters of Andover were slain upon the road between Andover and Haverhill." The Revd. Samuel Peters, of Connecticut, of Blue Law fame, made out of one man and one horse a captain of cavalry, and out of two white men slain by some Indians a pitched battle. It is evident that the Wilson manuscript is nearly or quite correct in its account of the death of William Peters, the father of John, who was the parent of all the Connecticut Peters.

EXTRACT FROM THE WILSON MANUSCRIPT:

“William Peters and Margaret Russe had been married but two years when William shared the fate of his brothers. It was in the month of August, 1696 and they were living at the garrison (Blanchard’s) according to Hazen the historian of Billerica. Mrs Peters had that morning ventured to go back to the house to gather some vegetables from the garden for dinner. It appears that after her return to the garrison, the Indians came to the house and hid themselves in a neighbouring corn-field. After dinner, Mr Peters concluded to go and take care of a lame horse that was in the pasture near the house. Mrs Peters wished to accompany him, but as it began to rain, he thought it would not be prudent for her to do so. (Their young son John was a babe ten months old.) She felt an uncommon anxiety to go with him, and following him out, said she could go, the rain would not hurt her. Noticing her extreme agitation he turned and in a tender manner replied, ‘No, my dear, it will make you sick; the grass will be very wet, you will wet your feet and take cold.’ He told her he would go to his father’s who lived at the distance of about a mile from there and bring a fat lamb. He would also lead the horse to the fort that she might see it. He then left her and she watched him as long as he remained in sight.

“He went to the pasture, led the horse up to the house, and stood examining his foot, when some Indians rushed upon him, seized and carried him into the house where a man by the name of Hoyt was making ropes. They instantly knocked Hoyt down and scalped him. They then gave Peters a pair of mocassins, told him he must put them on and accompany them. He sat down and began to tie the mocassins, carefully watching an opportunity to make his escape. The Indians were very busy plundering the house, and when Peters saw the doorway clear, he sprang forward, knowing if he could get out, he could out run the Indians, as he had previously had several races with them. Unfortunately the pole on which Hoyt had hung his hemp was so low that he hit his head against it and fell back. The Indians sprang upon him with their hatchets. He made a gallant defense, throwing down three of them, when the fourth struck him over the eye, with the head of his hatchet and broke his skull. They scalped him, gathered their booty and fled. The Indians, from whom an account of this affair was afterwards obtained, said that they washed the scalps in rain water which had caught on the heads of some cider barrels that stood near the door.

“Mrs Peters became uneasy at the length of time that had elapsed since the departure of her husband. As hour after hour passed away, her fears for his safety increased. Unable to control her feelings of apprehension, she spoke to the other women of the fort of her anxiety about him. They only laughed at her fears. About sunset one of the young men at the fort started to bring the cows from pasture. Mrs. Peters could bear the suspense no longer. As the path the young man would have to follow, led him near her house, she said she would go with him. They walked along in silence until they came to the path which would separate them. She told him he must go with her, she durst not go alone. Without saying a word, he stepped into the path before her and walked towards the house. When they came within sight of it, they were surprised to see the hogs (which usually ran in the woods and were very wild) around the house, and one of them appeared to be feeding upon something that lay in the doorway. As they came nearer, the path led them in such a direction that they could not see the front part of the house.

“When the young man, who was a few steps in advance came round the corner of the house, he turned suddenly with an exclamation of terror and fled. Mrs Peters ran with him several rods and then stopped and asked him what he saw, ‘I saw,’ said he, ‘blood on heads of the barrels and the hogs were eating Mr. Hoyt’s head.’ Terrible as this description was, it afforded a gleam of hope. ‘Did you see anything else?’ ‘I thought I saw a heap of cloth within.’ The hope that had sustained her fled, and she sank helpless upon the ground. The young man caught her up and carried her toward the fort. His approach was observed by the inmates of the garrison, who came out to meet him and assist in conveying Mrs Peters into their little fortress. Happily for her, she was not restored to consciousness for any considerable length of time, during that night and for several succeeding days.

“Three men armed themselves and went to the house. They found Mr. Hoyt lying partly out of the door with his head nearly gone. The body of Peters was lying on the floor where he fell. One of the men raised him in his arms and thought he felt the heart beat, but it soon ceased. They laid him down again and, being too few in number to carry the bodies to the fort, placed the remains of Mr Hoyt within the house, closed the door and left them until morning, when they were brought in and buried. Margaret Peters thus early left a widow with one child, had several offers of marriage, but remained single until James Wilson, after the death of his wife, hired Mrs Peters to take care of his family. Her kindness and agreeable manners secured the attachment of father and children. Her second marriage was a happy union for fifty years." *

7 II. SAMUEL, seventh child of Andrew Peeters and Mercy Beamsley, born (no record of birth, probably in Ipswich, Mass., in 1674-75), died in Andover, May 2, 1736; md. in Andover, by Mr. Dane, Dec. 15, 1696, to Phebe Frie, dau. Ensign Samuel Frie and Mary Aslebe, his wife, born in Andover, May 28, 1680, died in Andover, May 14, 1757, in the 77th year of her age, and had nine children.

III. Children of Samuel and Phebe Frie:

- 13 (1). Samuel, born in Andover, Aug. 14, 1697 (md. ch.).
- 14 (2). Phebe, born in Andover, 26 day, 1701 (record very defective), died in Andover, Aug. 10, 1702.†
- 15 (3). Andrew, born in Andover, 1701 ‡ (record defective) (md., no ch.).
- 16 (4). William, born in Andover, Jan. 7, 1704 ‡ (md., ch.).
- 17 (5). John, born in Andover, Nov. 6, 1705 (md., ch.).
- 18 (6). Beamsley, born in Andover, July 3, 1707; died very young.

* Margaret Wilson, the eldest child of Thomas, the second son of James Wilson and Margaret Peters, lived with her grandparents till she was eighteen. In 1819 at the age of ninety, she related the story of her ancestors in detail to her own granddaughter, who wrote it down, and from her manuscript this copy was made. It is referred to as the Wilson manuscript.

† This is the oldest known Peters gravestone. It stands in the old North Andover graveyard close to her grandfather's, and next to the depression in the ground which is said to mark the spot where stood the first church in Andover. The inscription reads: "Phebe ye daughter of Samuel and Phebe Peters aged 3 years died August ye 10th 1702."

‡ The records about this time are very defective. The Rev. Andrew is said to have been born September 26, but it could not have been in 1701 if Phebe was born in that year. The latter was undoubtedly born in 1699, Andrew in 1701, and William January 7, 1703-4, but this last date is taken from Colonel Andrew Peters' family Bible, the date in the Andover records being November, 1703.

19 (7). Beamsley, born in Andover, 1710 (md., one dau.).

20 (8). Phebe, born in Andover, April 16, 1719, died (prob. in Middleton, Mass.) between 1757 and 1760; was md. in April 17, 1744, to Timothy Perkins * of Middleton, son of Perkins and his wife, born in , died in , and had five children.

21 (9). Joseph, born in Andover, May 25, 1723, died in Andover, April 27, 1729.

27 (6). Lydia, born in Andover, March 26, 1737, died in Andover, June 30, 1738.

Samuel Peters* is, March 15, 1742, one of the collectors. In 1754 he is one of a seating committee for the new meeting-house; the committee, in seating, are to be governed by wealth, and are to give the best seats to "persons highest in the taxes, equal and personal estate that they have a due and proper regard to persons advanced in years, to men advanced by posts of honour, or by a liberal education." His will is in Salem, and is dated May 1, 1781. His daughter Hannah, wife of Asa Foster, is to have forty Spanish milled dollars, or £19 lawful money, a pair of small andirons and a small Fire pan and a pair of small Tongs and a great chair; his grandchildren, Benjamin and Samuel Peters, his two grand-daughters Hannah and Elizabeth, and his son Benjamin Peters are mentioned.

* His wife died comparatively young (for those days), undoubtedly from a broken heart, having lost four children within less than three years. This mortality was due to the dreadful "throat distemper" which deprived many families of all their children and which raged at intervals from November, 1735, to 1738. It is estimated that in Essex County alone, during that period, fourteen hundred children died from the disease.

READING AND WAKEFIELD

24. IV. Benjamin, third child of Samuel and Mary Robinson, born in Andover, Aug. 25, 1728, died in South Reading, Mass. THE REV'D. ANDREW OF MIDDLETON.

15. III. Andrew, third child of Samuel, and Phebe Frie, born in Andover, Mass., Sept.,* 1701, died in Middleton. Mass., Oct. 6, 1756; md. Hannah dau. of , born in , died in Woburn, Mass., May 15, 1782, aged seventy-seven. No children.

He graduated from Harvard College, 1723.†

“1723 Sept. 2, “The Selectmen of Andover from the day of the date hereof agreed with Mr Andrew Peters that he should keepe a Grammar School a twelve month in the said Towne, allso that he would Teach boys ‡ to Read, Rite and Cipher and that he would tech and keep School in each precinct according to each Precinct's Pay, for which Service the Selectmen of sd Towne promised to Give the sd Andrew Peters forty-four pounds.”

In 1729 he was ordained as a minister, and in November of that year he removed to Middleton, Mass., being the first pastor of that town. In 1734-35 he was on the list of proprietors of Amherst, New Hampshire, land in that township having been granted to his grandfather, Andrew Peters of Andover, as one of the members of the Narra-

* Sept. 26.

† James Frie, brother of Phebe, who married Samuel Peters, was the father of Jonathan, “good young Frie, who was our English chaplain,” as the old ballad has it, and who was killed at Lovell's fight. Jonathan and Andrew Peters were therefore cousins: moreover they were near neighbors in Andover and classmates in college, being the only ones there that year from Andover, and both became clergymen. It is no great stretch of imagination, therefore, to picture them as close friends, grieving with each other's grief and joying with his joy.

gansett expedition. In 1741 he was present in Amherst, N. H., at the ordination of Mr. Wilkins. He is said to have been a large, muscular man, and a story is told of him as resenting an assault upon his negro servant, and, throwing his cassock aside, exclaiming: "Lie there, Divinity, while I chastise this rascal!" Curiously enough, his grave now lies almost in the shadow of the house of the man who committed the assault.

It is also related that upon a visit to a near-by Indian settlement he was invited to dine. Knowing that the fare for that day was skunk, he declined; but, another time, receiving a similar invitation, he remained to dinner. After the meal was over, the squaw, remembering his former refusal, exclaimed, with much delight, "You no eat skunk, but you eat rattlesnake!"

He appears to have suffered from ill health for some years before his death.*

Hannah Peters Samuel Bradford Francis Peabody,
Juner Elijah Porter

Essex Co May 12, 1757

Mrs Hannah Peters made oath to the truth of this Inventory and yt if more Estate appeared she would cause it to be added Before me

John Choate Jus Probate

The estate was divided between the members of the family of the deceased, the wife first getting one third.*

Samuel, William, and John Peters, and Timothy Perkins for Bemsley Peters "supposed to be out of the province" and also representative of Phebe Perkins and her heirs, and Phebe Peters, mother of the deceased, were the heirs to the estate, each receiving £38—10/ and 1/15 of a farthing

Hannah Peters appears to have lived in Middleton for many years after, as there is a record of her subscription for the relief of the town of Boston, which was suffering under the oppressive Port bill, in 1775. Her subscription was 2£ 5s She died in Woburn.

Middleton graveyard. Stone of the Revd. Andrew Peters.

Peters

Who departed this Life October the 6 1756
Aged 55 Years.

* Some of the minutes of the proceedings are written upon some sheets of paper which have served as a copy-book. Across one end in a beautiful copperplate hand is, "Nothing is more certain than Death the common enemy of all mankind. Andrew Fuller of Middleton Labour continually to improve your hand. Fuller."

Foot stone. The Revd Mr Andrew Peters 1756.

In the graveyard of Burlington, Mass. on the hill, is to be found the gravestone of the Revd. Andrew's wife, which reads as follows:

Redeem your hours My glass is run And so must yours.

Erected in memory of Madam Hannah Peters
the relict of the Revd Mr Andrew Peters late Pastor of the church In Middleton lies here interred
She died in Woburn May xv. MDCCLXXXII in the LXXVIII year of her age. .

The foot stone is inscribed Madam Hannah Peters.

MEDFIELD.

16 III. William, fourth child of Samuel and Phebe Frie, born in Andover, Mass., Jan. 7, 1704,* died in Medfield, Mass., Jan. 19, 1788 †; md. in Medfield, March 18, 1729, Hannah Chenery, dau. and sole heiress of Benjamin Chenery and Mary , widow of Thomas Clap, his wife, born in Dedham, Mass., Feb. 24, 1707, died in Medfield, March 30, 1799, ‡ aged 92, and had ten children.

IV. Children of William and Hannah Chenery:

43 (1). Joseph, born in Dedham, Mass. (now Walpole), Dec. 11, 1729 (md., ch.).

44 (2). Benjamin, born in Dedham (now Walpole), Feb. 8, 1731 (md., ch.).

* From Colonel Andrew Peters's family Bible. Andover records say November, 1703.

† "Mr. William Peters who died Jan. 19, 1788, in ye 85 year of his age." (Gravestone in Medfield graveyard.)

‡ "Mrs. Hannah Peters relict of Mr William Peters who died 30 March 1799 in the 93 year of her age." (Gravestone in Medfield graveyard.)

Hannah, wife of William, for several years before her death, wrote verses on her birthday. She began in 1778; here are some written in 1790, which, if not perfect as to rhyme, are most excellent reason.

And now a thought comes in my head,
To tell the children I have had,
The number is ten and no more,
They are six sons and daughters four.

Joseph and Benjamin were first of the race,
Mary and Adam come next in their place,
Eve and Taphenes spoil my rhyme
Except I leave four to tell the next time.
Andrew and Jethro, I 've told you eight then,
Nathan and Finis they make up the ten.

- 45 (3). Mary, born in Dedham (now Walpole), Nov. 3, 1732, died in _____, May 23, 1813, aged 80; was md. in Medfield, April 7, 1757, by the Revd. Jonathan Townsend, to Hezekiah Allen, son of Hezekiah Allen and Mary _____ his wife, born in Dedham, Mass., April 15, 1724, died in _____, and had ten children.
- 46 (4). Adam, born in Medfield, Oct. 30, 1734 (md., ch.).
- 47 (5). Eve, born in Medfield, Aug. 1, 1737, died in _____, Dec. 1, 1823, aged 86; md. in Medfield, _____, 1759, John Pepalow, son of _____ Pepalow and _____ his wife, born in _____, died in _____, and had _____ children.
- 48 (6). Taphenes, born in Medfield, Jan. 29, 1739-40, died in _____, Nov. 25, 1817, aged 77; md. in Medfield, May 4, 1769, Gershom Dunton, son of Samuel Dunton and _____ his wife, born in Wrentham, Mass., _____, 1735, died in _____, and had five children.
- 49 (7). Andrew, born in Medfield, Jan. 24, 1742 (md., ch.).
- 50 (8). Jethro, born in Medfield, June 13, 1744 (md., ch.).
- 51 (9). Nathan, born in Medfield, Aug. 26, 1747 (md., ch.).
- 52 (10). Finis, born in Medfield, June 4, 1749, died in _____, was md. in Medfield, March 4, 1784, by the Revd. Thomas Prentiss, to Daniel Gookin of Dedham, Mass., son of (perhaps Richard Gookin and Margaret _____ his wife), born in _____, bap. in Dedham, March 28, 1735-6, died in _____, and had _____ children.

William Peters was a cordwainer. In 1757 he removed from Dedham to Medfield. He is said to have been a soldier in the Revolutionary army, but this is doubtful. There is, in the Massachusetts Archives, however, the following record:

"Peters, William. List of men from Medfield drafted to complete continental army according to warrant issued by Lt. Baxter, May 8, 1777. Paid money in lieu of service." William was seventy-four years old at this time. His gravestone and that of his wife are in the Medfield graveyard.*

43 IV. Joseph, first child of William and Hannah Chenery, born in Dedham, Mass. (now Walpole), Dec. 11, 1729, died in Feb. 13, 1800; md. in Abigail Thompson, † dau. of Thompson and his wife, born in died in 1797, and had three children.

V. Children of Joseph and Abigail Thompson:

- 53 (1). Abigail, born in (about 1750), died in Medfield, Mass., Dec. 30, 1829, aged 79. † Unmd.
- 54 (2). Moses, born in Watertown, Mass., April 26, 1752. (md., ch.).

* Extract from the Farmer's Monthly Literary Journal: "An account of the extraordinary longevity of the family of Peters has recently been published in several of the papers. William the father died aged 85, Hannah the mother aged 92, Joseph died 1800, aged 71, Benjamin aged 72, Mary aged 80, Adam 78, Eve 86, Taphenes 77, Andrew 80, Nathan 76, Finis 73, Jethro is still living, 80, and on the day when he completed his 80th year he travelled on foot thirteen miles. The average age of the children and parents is exactly seventy-nine years and two months."

† Perhaps daughter of Jonathan Thompson and Abigail Fowle his wife, born in Medford, or Woburn, Mass., July 16, 1729, probably died in Halifax, N. S.

‡ Gravestone in Medfield graveyard inscribed: "Miss Abigail Peters daughter of Mr. Joseph Peters and Mrs. Abigail Peters who died Dec. 30, 1829 aged 79 years."

- 55 (3). Alexander Abercrombie, born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1764 (md., ch.).

Joseph Peters first settled in Mendon, Mass.; later he removed to Watertown, Mass., then to Halifax, Nova Scotia. He was postmaster-general of Halifax; he was judge of the supreme court; he was a member of St. John's Lodge, Halifax; he was Grand Junior Warden in 1784. From 1784 to 1792 he was Grand Secretary of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia. At the death of his wife he left by will all his property to his daughter Abigail, who lived for about thirty years after her father's death. A codicil gave a silver cup, which had been presented to him by the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, to his son, Joseph Thompson Peters, but his aunt outlived him, and he never received it.

- 54 V. Moses, second child of Joseph and Abigail Thompson, born in Watertown, Mass., April 26, 1752, died in Mendon, Mass., Dec. 29, 1810, aged 58 years and 8 months, md. in (int. Mendon, Mar. 18, 1782) Eleanor Penniman, dau. Penniman and his wife, born in Sept. 9, 1760, died in Mendon, May 15, 1826, and had three children.

VI. Children of Moses and Eleanor Penniman:

- 56 (1). Royal, born in Uxbridge, Mass., Jan. 12, 1783.
57 (2). Alexander, born in Uxbridge, Feb. 4, 1785 (md., ch.).
58 (3). Mary, born in Uxbridge, May 17, 1787, died in Medfield, Mass., Aug. 13, 1876 (unmd.).*

* Possibly she is the Mary whose intention of marriage is recorded in Mendon, Mass., with Marvel Hopkins of Scituate, R. I., June 28, 1826. There seems to be no other possible Mary.

Nathan Peters was on the Lexington Alarm roll, as private, in Col. Wells' regiment, service 21 days, residence, Preston, Conn.

April 26, 1775, he was ensign in the 7th Co., 6th regiment.* June 10th and 17th, 1775, he is in Roxbury, Mass., and signs receipts, as captain, for arms and supplies for his company, which he has received from Aaron Blaney. He was brigade major during the Rhode Island campaign under Gen. Tyler. In 1780 he is credited with service along the western coast, and did some privateering about New London. In 1781 he made himself conspicuous after the taking of Fort Griswold. Gen. Arnold's report of Sept. 6, 1781, says: "A very considerable magazine of powder, and barracks to contain three hundred men were found in fort Griswold, which Capt. Lemoine of the Royal Artillery, had my positive direction to destroy; an attempt was made by him, but unfortunately failed. He had my orders to make a second attempt; the reasons why it was not done, Capt. Lemoine will have the honor to explain to your Excellency." It is supposed that a train of powder was laid from the barracks to the magazine. As soon as the Americans saw the departure of the British, they crossed the river in boats and hastened to the fort. Major Nathan Peters is said to have been the first to enter.

"Perceiving the barracks on fire and the train laid, without a moment's hesitation, he perilled life by entering the gate, and being well acquainted with the interior arrangements, rushed to the pump for water to extinguish the fire: here he found nothing that would hold water but an old cartridge-box; the spout of the pump likewise had been removed; but notwithstanding these disadvantages, he succeeded in interrupting the communications between the burning barracks and the powder." *

Inspection in 1776, and of the Committee of Safety in 1778 and 1779. "1784 June 17, Blue Hill Bay. This is to certify that John Peters of the town afore said this day was chose by the Inhabitants of the Town to represent the true state of the Proprietors and Settlers in said Township to the Committee chosen by the General Court of the Massachusetts State to receive and examine the Claims of land in the County of Lincoln," etc., etc.

In 1788 he was deputy naval officer for the old Penobscot (Castine) district. "He was a noted land surveyor, for many years in the employment of the agents of the Bingham estate and surveyed many townships in the Penobscot purchase, in Hancock and Washington counties. He will be remembered for generations, as his surveys are the foundation for a large majority of the deeds of lands in these counties." He was a ship-builder and a ship-owner, owned one quarter of a grist-mill and one quarter of a saw-mill. He was one of the original trustees of the Blue Hill Academy, and its treasurer, and he was justice of the peace. In 1790 his estate was the largest and the best in town, consisting of 35 acres of mining, 35 acres of pasture, and 1692 acres of wild land; he was half owner of the potash works in Blue Hill. In 1813 he had a vessel seized by the British. "Sale by Nathan Ellis to John Peters, one quarter of schooner Sally, now Ajax, lying in the Penobscot river, April 5, 1813, for $850." "I hereby certify that Samuel Upton has given me security for six hundred dollars as a remuneration to the British captors for the return of the Schooner Sally and sloop Jewel of Blue Hill, to John Peters & Nathan Ellis of that place, and they are therefore not to be molested, but to be admitted to all the privileges of vessels in this district, in a similar situation. Castine, Sept. 20, 1814. L. Owen."

He gave a bell to the Congregational meeting-house in Blue Hill, which was first rung on his eightieth birthday, and was first tolled at his funeral. An old lady in Lowell, Mass., now in her ninety-fourth year, remembers him well. She says: "He was a man of medium height, with brown hair, blue eyes, and fair complexion—a fine-looking man and a man who was much respected for his good judgment and integrity. His wife was a paralytic, and he used to walk into her sitting-room and, offering her his arm, lead her out to the table to her meals. He was made an Esquire* and often served as referee, his judgment being usually accepted as decisive."

Children of John Andrew and Fanny Elizabeth Roberts:

- 373 (2). Fannie Roberts, born in Bangor, Sept. 3, 1860, living in Bangor, 1903. Unmd.
- 374 (3). Annie Charlotte, born in Bangor, Oct. 25, 1865 living in Bangor, 1903; was md. in Bangor, June 2, 1898, to Prescott H. Vose, son George Vose and Abigail Vose Tucker, his wife, born in Milton, Mass., Sept. 3, 1856, living in Bangor, 1903, and had 3 children.

John Andrew attended Gorham Academy. He graduated from Yale in 1842. Studied law at Harvard, 1843-44. Was admitted to the bar in 1844, and settled in Bangor. Member of the Maine Senate in 1862, 1863; Representative, 1864; Attorney-General, 1864-67; Representative to Congress, three terms, 1867 to 1873. Appointed Judge of the Supreme Court of the State of Maine, 1873, and Chief Justice, 1883 to 1900, when he resigned on account of advancing years. He is a member of the Maine Historical Society, the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and of the Colonial Society of Massachusetts; a trustee of Bowdoin College, and LL.D. of Bowdoin and of Colby College, and of Yale University. "As a lawyer he commands profound respect. His knowledge of the law is said to be encyclopedic, and his insight unusually keen. His decisions, and those of the court over which he presides, are quoted in every State in the Union. As a public speaker he ranks high. He has the faculty of winning and holding the attention of his audience from the first word; this is due, in part, to his keen, incisive way of putting things, in part to his commanding presence, and in part to the ever bubbling stream of humor which runs through all he says. In his old stump-speaking days, his political opponents, after being unmercifully roasted by him, used to leave the hall, vowing that they had had a capital time."—(The Cadet.) Judge Peters's successor in the office of Chief Justice of Maine, is his nephew, the son of his sister Sarah, Andrew Peters Wiswell.

The Revd. Thomas McClure Peters studied at the Boston Latin School, and graduated from Yale in 1841, with degree of A.B. He entered the General Theological Seminary in New York the same year and remained there until he sailed for Europe, in June, 1843. He travelled on that continent, made a trip to Egypt, and was attaché to the American Legation in Constantinople, while Mr. Dabney Carr was our minister there. The winter of 1844-45 he spent at Weimar, where he was attaché to the British Legation. At the end of three years he returned home and resumed his studies at the Theological School. He was ordained on Trinity Sunday, 1847. That year he married and became assistant to the Revd. William Richmond, having, during his first stay at the Theological School, been lay reader at Mr. Richmond's church, St. Michael's. In 1853 he became rector of St. Mary's,

RECTOR OF ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH, NEW YORK

at 125th Street, Manhattanville, New York City. In 1858 Mr. Richmond died, and from that time, until his death, he was rector of St. Michael's, being elected Sept. 25, 1858. He founded the Sheltering Arms in October, 1864, and gave up to it, for a number of years, his own home at 101st Street and Broadway. He founded St. Timothy's (now Zion and St. Timothy), St. Matthew's (formerly Bethlehem Chapel, and where, for many years, he held an evening service in German). He was also, practically, chaplain of the Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum, and later of the Leake and Watts Orphan Asylum. He was greatly and actively interested in the House of Mercy, St. Barnabas House, and the New York Infant Asylum, all three of which had been founded by Mrs. William Richmond. He was also connected with the Mission to Public Institutions and the New York City Mission. For several years he was chairman of both, and chief of the work, as well as chairman of St. Barnabas' House. He was prominent in the organization of the Church Congress, and he had much to do with dividing the diocese into Albany, Central New York, Long Island, and New York. He founded St. Michael's Cemetery on Long Island. He was one of the first to preach, and to practise, a free church, and the first to open his church to sisterhoods, that of St. Mary being founded in February, 1864 (1865?), in St. Michael's. He was also one of the first to increase the number of services in his church, and to amplify and beautify the ritual. He practically reorganized the Children's Fold, the Shepherd's Fold, and the House of Rest for Consumptives; he built a new parish church in which was celebrated his jubilee the winter before his death. About this time he was made Archdeacon of New York. Mt. Minturn, an annex to the Sheltering Arms, in the country and for boys only, he left unfinished. He received the degree of S.T.D. from Trinity College.

- 423 (6). Joan St. Michael Forman, born in New York, July 30, 1896.
- 424 (7). Lucretia McClure Forman, born in New York, March 15, 1899.

John Punnett graduated from Yale with the degree of A.B. in 1873, received Ph.D. from Yale in 1876, and was at the same time elected tutor in that university. He spent three years there instructing in Greek and Latin. In December, 1876, he was ordained deacon, and in 1877, priest, of the Protestant Episcopal Church. From September, 1879, to May, 1883, he studied the Semitic languages in Berlin and Leipzig, and was chaplain of the American Church in Dresden, from March, 1881, to October, 1882. In September, 1884, he was offered the professorship of the Old Testament languages and literature at the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School in West Philadelphia. In 1886 he became professor of Hebrew at the University of Pennsylvania. In the autumn of 1888 he was director of the Babylonian expedition sent out by that university. He returned to America in November, 1890, and went back to the East the following year. In October, 1891, he was assistant rector of St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal Church, Amsterdam Avenue and 99th Street, New York. In June, 1893, he resigned his professorship at the University of Pennsylvania and became rector of St. Michael's, succeeding his father, who died the year before. In 1898 he published an account of his connection with the Babylonian expedition, entitled Nippur; or, Explorations and Adventures on the Euphrates. He is also the author of several works on the Bible, and on Biblical literature, and philology. He is actively interested in municipal matters, and in various institutions and societies. In 1895 he received the degree of S.C.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, and he is D.D. of Yale.

CONNECTICUT

HEBRON

The founder of the Connecticut line was John, only child of William (II), the son of our earliest ancestor, Andrew (I). He was but ten months old when his father was killed. He is mentioned in his grandfather's will and is left "tenne pounds is pajj." The following account of the death of William is given in a letter which was written Aug. 14, 1696, by Capt. Christopher Osgood, head of the militia in Andover, to express his fear that the men who had been called away to serve in the East should have been left at home, where they were sure to be needed, as the force on hand was insufficient to cope with the enemy should there be an attack; the river, he said, was low, and could easily be crossed by the Indians, and he wished men from the "inmost towns" sent to Andover for their present help. "For we are in expectation every hour of an attack by a great body of the enemy that hath been discovered this day, we are informed, between Exeter and Haverhill upon the march towards Haverhill and Andover. We have therefore no other help under God but to make as speedy application to your honour for present relief which we doubt not but that your fatherly pity towards us will appear in preferring the most humble addresses of him, that is in behalf of our town.

"Your honours most humble petitioner

"Christopher Osgood of Andover."

Another paper pasted upon the first is as follows:

“Our Major being at this instant at Newbury I account it nextly my duty to give your honour of some mischief done upon us by our enemy, which in brief is as follows. Yesterday in the afternoon William Peeters belonging to Samuel Blanchard’s garrison, went from the garrison to his house to fetch up his horse and another man whose name was hoyt was with him and as we conceive by the effect, went both into the house which was about half a mile from the garrison just upon Billerica Road” [he wrote it Bildrecky] “in an open plain place and were both surprised by the enemy and killed without any shooting so that no discovery neither of the enemy nor of the tragedy wrought by them till about sunset which were then discovered by two persons going to the house to look after them because of their tarrying longer than was expected who found them both killed and scalped and lying in their blood within the house and our enemy undiscovered. Sir, I am sorry that I have the occasion to trouble you with reading such news. Your honours most humble and obedient servant “Christopher Osgood. *

467 (12). Bemslee, born in Hebron, Nov. 1, 1743 (md., ch.).

John appears to have removed from Andover, Mass., with his step-father, James Wilson, and to have settled in Leicester, Mass., about 1714. He removed to Hebron about 1717. His marriage and the birth of his first child are both recorded in North Brookfield, Mass., and in Hebron, Conn. His gravestone and that of his wife are still standing in the old Hebron graveyard.‡ It is probable that the old Peters house, now in decay, and standing on the road between Hebron and Gilead, was built by him about 1740. Sept. 5, 1746, he deeded to the Revd. Ebenezer Punderson, of Groton, missionary, and to Samuel Pennock and Thomas Brown of Hebron, and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, 30 acres for a glebe land lying about 3-4 of a mile northerly from the church. This land was leased by the parish for 9999 years, April 6, 1795, for the annual rent of one grain of pure silver or either silver or gold equivalent (if demanded) upon the festival of St. John the Baptist in each year. In 1745 his name was on the tax list of the Church of Engand.

His will is to be seen to-day in Colchester, Conn. He appoints Mary, his wife, and his son Andrew, his executors, and he leaves to his sons John, William, and Joseph all his land lying in Marlboro; Samuel* has one thousand pounds; his daughters, Mary Carrier, Margaret Mann, Phebe Case, and Mercy Buell, receive each five pounds, and Andrew, Jonathan, and Bemslee are to have the rest of the property divided between them. The will is probated Dec. 2, 1754. The signature is a mere scrawl and of no value,—that of a very sick or a very weak man.

Mary Marks' father, Joseph Marks, was from Springfield, Mass., where he had a grant of land, on the west side of the river, Feb. 2, 1685. He was a soldier in Capt. Bull's company, which was sent to Albany and Schenectady in November, 1689, to protect the English settlers there against the French and Indians. In a skirmish, Marks and Samuel Beamen were taken prisoners. Beamen escaped, but Marks was carried to Canada, whence, after a varied experience, he returned in 1692. He was a noted Indian fighter. Marks' Garrison and Mountain were named after him.

He soon after removed to Brookfield, Mass., where he received a grant of 60 acres of upland for a house-lot. He afterward had an additional grant of 180 acres. His was one of the fortified houses named in connection with the Indian wars.

“John Peters to Mr William peters of Medfield if he is alive if not alive then to his children my eage is 66 and number of my children 13 alive 2 dead.”

The Boston Magazine of 1784 contains the following notice:

“An obituary for March 1784 Died on the 15th of February at Hebron Conn., Mrs Lydia Peters, wife of Col. John Peters and second daughter of Joseph Phelps Esq. She was married at the age of fifteen, and lived with her consort three times fifteen years; And had fifteen living children, thirteen now alive, and the youngest fifteen years old; She had three times fifteen grandchildren; She was sick fifteen months, and died on the fifteenth day of the month, aged four times fifteen years.”

In the graveyard at Gilead (Hebron) may be seen the three stones with these inscriptions:

“In memory of Col^o John Peters who died Nov 9, 1804 aged 86 years 10 months and 12 days.

“This modest stone, what few vain mortals can,
May truly say, here lies an honest man!
Calmly he looked on either life, and here
Saw nothing to regret or there to fear.”

* The Rev^d. Samuel Peters and Bemslee, who was a captain in the king's service. Her “datter” is Mercy, wife of Col. Timothy Buell.

"In memory of Mrs Lydia Peters loving consort of Coll^o John Peters and Daught of Joseph Phelps Esq, She Departed this life Feb. 15, 1784, in ye 61st year of her age."

"Here lyes the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth Peters the second wife of Col John Peters Second daughter of Mr Jonathan Phelps of Northampton She departed this life July ye 29 A.D. 1790, 51 years 5 months and 7 days old She was own Cousin to my first wife."

478 V. Samuel, twin of Mercy and eleventh child of Col. John and Lydia Phelps, born in Hebron, Conn., Dec. 9, 1757, died in Hebron, Sept. 1, 1821; md. in Hebron, Sept. 25, 1782, Hannah Trumbull, dau. Deacon Asaph Trumbull and Zilpher _____, his wife, born in Hebron, _____ (1761), died in Hebron, Dec. 28, 1841, aged 80. No children.

He served in the Revolutionary army, 1775, July 12 to Dec. 17, under Capt. Abijah Rowlee, 3d Co., 2d Regiment, and from July 11 to Dec. 17, 1776.

1776 Sept. Samuel Peters is a drummer in Capt. Well's Co., 12th Reg., to West Chester.

1778 Aug. 2, Samuel Peters, drummer, enlisted in Capt. Rudd's Co. to Sept. 12, in Col. Chapman's Regiment, under Brig.-General Tyler, under Gen. Sullivan, engaged in an attempt to dislodge the British at Newport, R. I., Aug. 29, 1778 (Battle of Rhode Island).

1781 Samuel Peters, paid from Jan. 1, to Dec. 31, 1781.

His monument and that of his wife are to be seen in the graveyard in Gilead, Hebron, Conn.*

* "In Memory of Capt. Samuel Peters who died Sept. 1, 1821, in the 64th year of his age. How lovd how valud now avails thee not, To whom related or by whom begot, A heap of dust, alone remains of thee."

"In Memory of Hannah Relict of Capt. Samuel Peters, and daughter of Deacon Asaph Trumbull, who died Dec 28, 1841. Æ 80."

She was on the list of pensioners of the Revolution, as of Hebron, in 1840.

* The Rev. Samuel Peters, in a letter dated New York, March 17, 1821, says that Jonathan died of camp fever on board a British ship, commanded by Lord Howe, between New York and Chesapeake Bay. The Hebron records say "on Long Island." Which is to be believed? The Rev. Samuel always tries to inflate every fact that relates to the Peters family!

was admitted to the bar and was a practising attorney in Hartford, Conn., where he was also major and aide-de-camp in the militia. In 1829 he removed to Cincinnati, O., where he practised law and was commissioner for the state of Connecticut. He was a writer of verses at one time well known and much esteemed. He was a contributor to the New England Review, Cincinnati Chronicle, Illinois Magazine, etc.; and, though but twenty-four when he died, had already entered upon what gave every indication of being a brilliant career. He had no enemies, and was generally admired and esteemed, and his sudden and singular death,* not wholly devoid of mystery, was a loss both to literature and the bar. His volume of Yankee Lyrics is full of wit and humor, and his verses entitled My Native Land, Good Night, were at one time almost as well known as Home, Sweet Home. †

493 (5). Andrew, born in Hebron, July 26, 1809, died in Centerville, Md., Oct. 15, 1829. Unmd.

John Thompson graduated from Yale, 1789. He studied law in the office of Governor Smith, of Sharon. After his admission to the bar he practised in Hebron until 1813, when he was appointed by President Madison collector of Internal Revenue of the First District in Connecticut. He then removed to Hartford. In May, 1818, he was appointed a judge of the Superior Court, which office he held at the time of his death. He held divers local offices, and from 1834 to the time of his death was brigadier general of the 3d Brigade in the State militia.

- 555 (7). Bemslee, born in Hebron, Ap. 28, 1777 (md., ch.).

In 1774 Bemslee removed to Mooretown, Vt., but a year later he returned to Hebron, on account of failing to obtain the title to certain lands for which he was agent, as well as on account of the political troubles of the times. He was a Tory. In 1777 he went to New York, whence he sailed for England where he joined his brother, the Revd. Samuel Peters, and his nephew, Col. John Peters, and lived as a half-pay captain in London until 1794 when he drew a large tract of land near Toronto, and removed to Little York, Canada.

Gravestones to himself and his wife in St. Peter's churchyard, Hebron.

The house built by Bemslee before his departure from America is still standing in Gilead, a fine example of a rare Colonial type and apparently in perfect condition. An outhouse belonging to it is the building in which the Revd. Samuel Peters formerly housed his slaves.

The following letter, from Hannah Peters, daughter of the Revd. Samuel Peters, is written to Clarinda, daughter of Bemslee.

LONDON, August 20, 1784.

DEAR COUSIN.—Your favor by my cousin Mann was delivered in even (?) June it gave me great pleasure to hear from you, after so long a silence; you ask what the reason is that your papa cannot return! Are you, Dear, insensible of the many difficulties that attend his return; first, that he has rendered himself obnoxious to the state, by being what they call a tory, secondly that he has been within the King's lines, and perhaps fighting them, I mean the Americans. thirdly that Congress have never repealed the act against the tories, namely that it should be death to any one that has been aiding or assisting against them, to return to his Native country, these examples I think, my Dear, are sufficient reasons to deter your Papa from returning to America, and I think my Dear, under such circumstances, you would not wish to see him a corpse, which I cannot suppose. And if it was not death for him to return, and he could do it, what has he to return for? his property is confiscated, his stock all gone, and everything else—what better would he be, by his returning—he has no money to buy a farm or fresh stock, and he is growing in years, and would not be able to set about to clear a wild piece of land for the benefit of his family—these considerations put together will in all probability prevent your papa seeing you in Connecticut, what ever he may do, in any other place, yet he must have as great regard for his family as ever, and be as willing to do anything for them, that lay in his power, but he has nothing in his power—therefore cannot assist them. I wish you joy as a married woman, and in having increased your little family, but how came you to call him Andrew, I should have thought that you would have named him after your husband, as his father. My duty to your mama, my love to your sister and compliments to your husband and thank him for his letter. I am Dear Cousin, your sincere friend,

H. PETERS.

.Mrs. Clarinda Welles.

553 V. John Samuel, fifth child of Capt. Bemslee and Annis Shipman, born in Hebron, Conn., Sept. 21, 1772, died in Hebron, March 30, 1858. He was a physician and surgeon of high standing.

1814, Aug. 23 to Sept. 28, he was a surgeon in the Conn. Militia in Col. William Belcher's regiment, stationed at Fort Groton. He was vice-president, and then president, of the Connecticut Medical Society; he was a director of, and of the examining committee for, the Society for the Relief of the Insane. In 1827 he was president of the Society for the Improvement of Connecticut Schools. From 1827 to 1833 he was president of the Connecticut Colonization Society. From 1828 to 1840 he was commissioner for the Connecticut River Company. In 1828 he was a director of the State Prison. From 1830 to 1842 he was president of the General Hospital Society of Connecticut. From 1843 to 1858 he was vice-president of the Connecticut Historical Society. He was of the corporation of Yale College, and from 1831 to 1833 he was medical examiner there.

In 1854 he was vice-president of Trinity College; from 1827 to 1845 he was trustee of Washington College. He held town, county, judicial, and state offices; from 1807 until 1826 he was almost continually representative; in 1808, and from 1819-1825, he was senator; in 1817 clerk of the House of Representatives; in 1818 he was delegate to the convention, in 1819 he was of the governor's council.

ABT. 1845

John S. Peters

1844

GOVERNOR OF CONNECTICUT

From 1827 to 1831 he was lieut.-governor, and from 1831 to 1832 he was governor. He was surgeon of the 2d Regiment, from 1807 to 1816. In 1821 he was lieutenant in the 1st Regiment of the Rifle Brigade; from 1827 to 1831 he was lieutenant-general, and in 1832 he was commander-in-chief, and captain-general. He held several high offices among the Masons. In 1825 he gave five hundred dollars towards a new church in Hebron, and in 1827 he gave three hundred more. In 1846 he gave one thousand dollars towards an endowment fund. At his death he left the church four thousand dollars and land for a parsonage. He is buried in St. Peter's church-yard, Hebron, his own house standing next to the church. He built this house in 1806, and, strangely enough, though there have been weddings and deaths in it, there has never been a birth.

He received the degrees of M.D. and of LL.D.

He has left, in manuscript, an account of himself which, in brief, is as follows. At the age of seven the family finances were so low* that he was obliged to work for a neighbor, Joel Horton, where he was employed to take care of children and to do some light work. He worked on farms in the summer and attended school in the winter until he was eighteen, then, for five winters, he taught a district school. At the age of twenty he began the study of medicine with Dr. Benjamin Peters of Marbletown, N. Y. After reading with him for six months he returned to his school in Hebron. The next summer he read with Dr. Abner Moseley of Glastonbury, Conn. In November, 1796, he went to Philadelphia to attend the anatomical lectures of Drs. Shippen and Wistar, the chemical lectures of Dr. Woodhouse, and the Medical Institute of Dr. Benjamin Rush. In March, 1797, he returned to Hebron, and in May he travelled up the Connecticut River, nearly as far as Canada, looking for a place in which to settle. He then passed through Vermont to Saratoga Co., N. Y., visited friends, and returned to Hebron. He says: "I had thus spent twenty-four years of my life and all my money. I sat down tired and discouraged. In a few days my neighbor called upon me for medical advice and in a short time I had as much professional business as I could do. I continued to practice forty years. In the meantime I was called upon to render my part of service in the social and political societies: school visitor, highway surveyor, selectman, Town clerk, Representative to General Assembly, State senator, Lieut. Governor, Governor of the state. At the age of fifty-nine I retired from public life and left the practice of physic as soon as I could leave my old friends in the care of others." He then spent part of his time on his farm and part in travelling. In 1835, in company with the Revd. William Jarvis, he visited Saybrook, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington. Introduced to the President, he says he found Gen. Jackson the most polite man he had ever seen, but when aroused he was a tiger. A mutual friend, who was of the Senate, brought up an old and favorite bill in which the Senate was opposed. The President's pipe came from his lips, his cane rattled upon the floor, and he roared out, "I can do nothing for this cursed Senate." The subject was changed, so was the President. Afterward the mutual friend said, "I have taken some pains to show you the whole of the President."

William Watson was captain of a British revenue cutter for a number of years.

In 1759, John graduated from Yale and received degree of B.A.; 1765, he removed to Piermont, N. H.; 1765, he was appointed by Gov. Wentworth captain commandant of militia; 1770, he removed to Mooretown,* Vt.; 1770, he was appointed by Gov. Tryon to be colonel of militia, justice of the peace, judge of probate, and registrar of Gloucester County, and judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He was several times mobbed on account of his Tory sentiments, entered the British army (having escaped to Canada) in 1776, and in 1777 was ordered to raise a regiment, of which he was to be lieutenant-colonel, and which was called the Queen's Loyal Rangers. He joined Gen. Burgoyne, and was at every fight except Hubbleston, that took place in the campaign between that general and the American forces. He commanded the Loyalists at Bennington, where he was wounded. At Saratoga he was obliged to flee before the capitulation was concluded, as he had never received a commission and would probably have been hanged, or shot, as a traitor had he been taken. He escaped to Fort George, thence to Ticonderoga, and later to Canada. He was most unjustly treated by the British authorities, and in 1784 removed to Cape Breton with his family, and from thence to England, hoping to receive there the money and justice due him. He died in London, and was buried in St. George's churchyard, Hanover Square. His stone is inscribed:

"Here lies the body of John Peters Esq. Col. Queen's Rangers in Canada born Hebron, Conn. June 30, 1740, died London Jan. 4, 1788, with Gout in his head and loyalty in his heart. His parents the Revd. Hugh Peters, Gen. Thomas Harrison and John Phelps Esq. suffered for want of loyalty in 1648 and he for having loyalty in 1788.

"Success is right [English thus] weakness is wrong
Put not your trust in Kings
Nor in Cromwell's mob
O, ye posterity of Peters
But put your trust in God."

Even at the present day it is believed that he obtained his commission (which he actually never received) by stealing his father's, escaping to Canada with it, and passing himself off as Col. John the elder.*

592 (9) Edmund Fanning, born in Bradford, Vt., Sept. 5, 1822 (md., ch.).

Andrew Barnet was, from his seventeenth to his twentieth year, in the British navy; Sept. 16, 1783, Shank, then at Quebec, gave him an honorable discharge, saying that from the 27th of June, 1780, he had served on His Majesty's ship the Wolf, also on board his Majesty's armed schooner the Mercury, and in the year 1781 was ordered upon Lake Champlain, where he served on several vessels, at times being in command of one, until the 16th of September, 1783, when he was discharged. He was then not quite twenty years of age, but his commander speaks highly of his conduct as an officer and a gentleman, and recommends him to further consideration in his Majesty's service. Receiving, however, no encouragement or hope of promotion, he returned to Bradford and settled there. His uncle, the Revd. Samuel Peters, writes him from London in 1797: "I tried to have you made a lieutenant in the navy, but did not succeed, because you were born in America. The Admiralty treated all American born midshipmen in like manner after the independence of America. Perhaps it is for the best."

He was town clerk of Bradford for forty-six years, and was also Representative to the State Legislature for five years. He was Justice of the Peace, and for half a century occupied various public offices. He died on Sunday, Aug. 10, 1851, aged 87 years 6 months and 12 days. His obituary, in the Vermont Family Gazette of August 12, 1851, represents him as one of the fine, sturdy, energetic, temperate country squires, than whom there are no better men.

In his youth Joseph resided with his mother at Cape Breton; when of age he entered the British army and was sent with the forces under Wellington to Spain, where he was engaged in various battles, and was one of those who assisted in driving the French from the Peninsula. After a long absence from his native land he returned to America and settled in Bradford, Vt., near his brother Andrew, where he engaged in agriculture. But his English wife longed for home, and in or about the year 1843 he went back to England where it is understood the old warrior died soon after.

_____, his wife, born in _____, 1757, died in Lebanon, Ap. 27, 1837. No children.

He had intended studying for a profession, but, his health failing, he varied teaching with fighting (it is said that he was at the battle of East Chester) until he settled down as a farmer in New Hampshire. In 1775, while teaching choirs to sing in Norwich, Conn., it is said he composed the music for the ode, The American Hero, which has been called the war song of the Revolution.*

* The tune is called "Bunker Hill."

He graduated from Dartmouth in 1780. While in college he was captain of a volunteer company composed of the students, who were armed and equipped ready to repel an Indian attack upon the settlement, or to give other needed aid.* The class consisted of ten members, under the first president, the Rev. Dr. Wheelock. They were, Amos Case, E. Longfellow, Noah Miles, William Putten, Absalom Peters, George Peirce, Peter Poloquonnonquet (an Indian chief of the St. Regis tribe), John Ralphe, Joseph Stewart, and Daniel Story. In October, 1780, great alarm was felt at the destruction of Royalton, Vt., by the Indians, and by the report that 4000 Canadian troops under the command of Col. John Peters, elder brother of Absalom, had crossed Lake Champlain and were on the march toward the Connecticut River. The younger Peters immediately started, at the head of six companies, to join Gen. Bailey in Newbury, and was this officer's aide-de-camp until the close of the war. It is said that he sent to his brother a man thoroughly at home in the wilds of Vermont, and who gained the confidence of Col. Peters to such an extent that he was chosen to lead the British troops across the state. This agent at once started them on an endless journey, causing them to cross and to recross their own tracks, until, wearied and bewildered, they lost heart and returned to Canada.* Col. John appears never to have suspected this trick of his younger brother's. In 1781 he was member, for six sessions, of the Vermont Assembly. He was justice of the peace and high sheriff of the county for several years. 1785, May 10, he was commissioned captain of the 6th Co. of the 13th Regiment of the State of New Hampshire. 1793 he was commissioned major of the 1st Battalion in the 30th Regiment of militia. 1794, Sept. 29, he was commissioned "lieutenant colonel commandant" of the 13th Regiment of the New Hampshire Militia.

1801, June 12, he was commissioned brigadier-general of the 6th Brigade of the State of New Hampshire. In 1806 he "begged leave to resign his commission."

From 1832-40 he was postmaster in Lebanon, Conn.

John Rogers began his business career in Groton, Mass., in the same establishment with the late Amos and William Lawrence, of Boston. He went from there to Troy, N. Y., where he was with Silas Covell, whose daughter he eventually married, and in 1814 he removed to New York City. He did much to develop the cotton trade of the South, more especially of Mobile, out of which port, his brother James, in 1816, took the first cotton vessel. He was assistant alderman of the Ninth ward from 1825 to 1829, and alderman from 1828 to 1831. After leaving the Common Council he served as commissioner of the Alms House for several years. These offices were at this time purely honorary and the duties were arduous. He identified himself with many progressive movements, among others in turning Potter's Field into the present Washington Square, in removing the Alms House to the Island during the cholera epidemic, and he originated, or seconded, the idea of a society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. He was a social man, witty and full of anecdote, and knew many prominent persons.

- 866 (2). Harriet Adaline, born in Bennington, Vt., June 13, 1823, died in New York, March 27, 1891; was md. in Williamstown, Mass., Jan. 1, 1845, to the Revd. William Clift, son William Clift and Nancy Denison Avery, his wife, born in Griswold, Conn., Sept. 12, 1817, died in Mystic Bridge, Conn., Dec. 9, 1890, and had three children.
- 867 (3). Horace Hatch, born in Bennington, Vt., Nov. 4, 1825, died in Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 15, 1827.
- 868 (4). Edward Payson, born in New York, Oct. 9, 1828, was killed in Cuba in Garcia's insurrection, in Aug. or Sept., 1871, while fighting for the Cubans. He was a captain of Volunteers in the Civil war.
- 869 (5). Frances Margareta, born in New York, March 6, 1831, died May 4, 1832.
- 870 (6). Mary Elizabeth, born in New York, May 13, 1835, died in New York, Jan. 2, 1864; was md. in Williamstown, Mass., June 1, 1854, to Albert S Ward, son William Ward and Electa Beach, his wife, born in Livingston, N. J., Jan. 16, 1828, died in New York, Oct. 8, 1875, and had three children.
- 871 (7). James Hugh, born in New York, Nov. 13, 1837 (md., ch.).

After ordinary home and school instruction and being, for a few months at a time, a teacher in a district school, Absalom graduated from Dartmouth College in 1816. The same year he entered the Princeton Theological seminary, and leaving it in May, 1819, was licensed by the presbytery of New York. For a few months he was a missionary in northern New York, then pastor of the first church in Bennington, Vt., from July, 1820, to Dec., 1825, when he left the church to become the secretary of the United Domestic Missionary Society, and to aid in the organization of the American Home Mission Society.

May, 1826, he was its first corresponding secretary, and held this office, during successive elections, until 1837, inclusive. During that time he was the principal agent of the society in organizing and forming its system, and he was a member of the executive committee until 1844. He says: "In the twelve years of my agency for the American Home Missionary Society I travelled in nearly all of the United States and Territories, as they then were, a distance of perhaps three times the circumference of the globe, preached in churches of different denominations, at Presbyterian camp-meetings in the West, and on many interesting occasions at the meetings of presbyteries, synods, associations, and other public bodies." As secretary of the American Home Missionary Society he edited the Home Missionary and Pastor's Journal from 1827 to 1837, and then took charge of the American Biblical Repository, beginning January, 1838, and ending in the summer of 1842. In January, 1841, he also began the publication of the American Eclectic which he continued until May, 1842. This year he became agent for the Union Theological Seminary of New York, of which he was one of the original projectors and a director, and was collector for its funds for two years. He was also professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in that institution. In 1844 he resigned and was installed pastor of the first church of Williamstown, Mass. From 1845 until 1869 he served Williams College as trustee, and in 1852 as collector. In 1854 he resigned his pastorate, but this resignation was not accepted until 1857. After this his life was less active, but he continued to preach in divers towns, and to write for sundry papers. At the age of seventy he composed a long poem on Life and Time, and wrote a sketch of his life from which these facts are taken. He had great executive talent, was deeply interested in his work, and was generally beloved.

VIII. Children of George Absalom, and Julia Coghill:

872 (1). Frederick Dennison, born in New York, Nov. 25, 1852, died May 30, 1859.

873 (2). Bertha Borodell, born in New York, Feb. 13, 1855, living in Burlington, Vt., 1903; was md. in

, Oct. 11, 1877, to Horace Hatch Chittenden, son Lucius Eugene Chittenden and Mary Yates Hatch, his wife, born in Burlington, Vt., Jan. 24, 1855, living in 1903, and had two sons.

George Absalom, after the usual preparatory education, entered the class of 1842 at Yale college, but was obliged by circumstances to leave, without completing his course, at the end of the sophomore year. His father, the Rev. Absalom Peters, was at that time in the publishing business, and Dr. Peters, for a limited period, entered that business with him in connection with the Eclectic Magazine. After a time, preferring a professional life, he took up the study of medicine at the college of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, and was graduated from there with honors in 1846. After his graduation he became an interne at the New York Hospital, and after completing the usual course there began a general practice in New York, which he continued until the time of his retirement in the year 1890.

Dr. Peters' active work continued for a period of nearly fifty years, and he attained great success during all that time.

Among the positions occupied by Dr. Peters in professional life, the following may be enumerated:

Attending and consulting surgeon at New York Hospital, from the time of his graduation until 1890.

Attending and consulting surgeon at St. Luke's Hospital from 1859 until 1888.

Attending surgeon at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Consulting surgeon at St. Mary's Hospital.

Attending surgeon at the Hospital for the Blind.

President of the Academy of Medicine.

President of the Physicians' Mutual Aid Society.

Dr. Peters was quite as prominent in social life as he was in professional life. At various times and for varied periods, he was a member of the following clubs: University (being president thereof for three years), Century, Union League, Knickerbocker, and the Medical and Surgical Society. He was also a member of various dining clubs and many other social organizations of minor importance. In his later years Yale University conferred upon him the degree of Master of Arts.

Dr. Peters was distinguished for unfailing energy and industry, and great personal attraction. These characteristics not only inspired general respect, but general affection, and it would be difficult to find, among the men of his time in New York, one whose memory is more fondly cherished by those who knew him. He had a keen and kindly sense of humor and the sunniest of natures, qualities which enabled him to endure the sufferings of a painful and lingering last illness with a fortitude as rare as it was admirable.

Samuel (or Samuel Andrew, as he sometimes wrote himself) was left by his father's will (1754) one thousand pounds. In 1757 he graduated from Yale and in 1758 went to England, where he was ordained deacon by Dr. Shelton, Bishop of Chester, and priest, it is said, by the Bishop of London and the Archbishop of Canterbury. In 1760 he returned to the Colonies and was the first officiating rector of Hebron and Hartford, which office he held until 1774, when his pronounced Tory feelings caused his house to be attacked by the Americans during the months of August and September, and he was obliged to flee from the state and put himself in hiding. On the 27th of October, 1774, he sailed from Portsmouth, N. H., and remained in England thirty-one years. His only daughter, Hannah, was taken to England two years later (so her father says) in the Somerset, British man-of-war.* He received a pension from the British government, as well as a grant of land, but in 1803-04, having quarrelled with Pitt, his name was taken off the pension list. In 1805 he returned to America. He spent several years in Washington, petitioning for confirmation of a grant of land near St. Anthony's Falls, and in October, 1817, then in failing health and eighty-two years of age, he visited that part of the country where he passed over a year and spent the winter at Prairie du Chien. In 1818 he removed to New York and lived in that city and in Jersey City until his death. He suffered from various physical ills during a great part of his life. He was a man of strong character, and of marked individuality. It is probable that he had a violent temper. His nephew, Governor Peters, says that he possessed an iron will in an iron frame. He was impressive in appearance; six feet in height, of powerful build, with light blue eyes, and features strongly marked with the small-pox, of which he nearly died in London in 1758. He was very arbitrary, deeply impressed with a sense of his own importance, and determined to receive full measure of consideration from others. He was sensitive, and unforgiving, as his letters testify, and he greatly admired and bowed to those of high estate; but he possessed sound common-sense, and real affection for, and interest in, his relatives, giving them the best of hard, worldly advice, and helping them out of his own pocket when he could not have had great store for himself. His inflexible and indomitable spirit enabled him to endure many and various ills, afflictions, and losses, with unflinching stoicism. His History of Connecticut, which first appeared in London, in 1781, was signed "by a Gentleman of the Province," and was not acknowledged, for some time, by him. By its unmitigated exposure of the peculiarities of the countryfolk, and by his exaggerated descriptions, he brought upon himself the wrath of his compatriots and earned an unenviable reputation for mendacity. His unreliable history of Hugh Peter, and varied versions of a mythical ancestry are not so well known, but are harder to deal with. In the preface of his History of Connecticut he says: "For three generations my forefathers were careful observers of the proceedings of the Connecticut colonists," when, as a matter of fact, his father had lived less than twenty years in Connecticut when the reverend gentleman was born. He received an A.B. from Yale in 1757, and A.M. from the same college, as well as from King's College (now Columbia) in 1761. It is stated that in 1776 he received an LL.D. from Trinity College, Nova Scotia, and he claimed for himself an LL.D. from Certona, Tuscany. Toward the end of his life he visited Vermont, and, possibly with good reason, styled himself the first bishop of that state though he was never consecrated. He was buried in St. Peter's churchyard, Hebron.*

* The Revd. Samuel owned slaves, some twenty in all, and the following relation seems to be of sufficient interest to quote. Records prove the tale to be correct. Descendants of Cæsar, for many years, dwelt in and about Hebron, and may be found there yet. Governor Peters used to call them his "colored cousins."

"Cæsar Peters was owned as a slave by the Revd. Samuel A. Peters. During the Revolution the Revd. Mr. Peters left Hebron and went to England, leaving Cæsar and his family living upon land near by his own house. Some time after, Nathaniel Mann, a nephew of Mr. Peters, and who lived in Georgia, claimed to have a power of attorney from his uncle to take Cæsar and his family to the South. Mann engaged two Northern men to capture the negroes, and to take them to some convenient shipping point. They chose a day in autumn when all the males had gone to East Haddam for regimental training. The women of the neighborhood, however, learning what was going on at Cæsar's home, went to his house, and did everything in their power to prevent their departure, cutting the harness, and using every means they could devise. At last the poor slaves, eighteen in number, were loaded into a big waggon, but Cæsar himself was compelled to walk at the tail. He was given a certain length of rope, so that in going uphill he picked up stones, and put them into the waggon, to increase the load, and impede their progress. The vessel lay at some point on the river between Norwich and New London. When the men reached home that night, and learned what had happened (not knowing that it was contrary to law to take slaves from the state), they held a council. Near by lived a Mr. Graves, a tailor. He had been making clothes for Cæsar, and as Cæsar had called for the garments and taken them away in the tailor's absence, they resolved, as the only means of saving him, to get out a warrant for his arrest. It was near midnight before Messrs. Phelps, Horton, Graves, Welles, and five others, mounted on their fleetest steeds, and started in pursuit. It was related by one of the party, in after years, that, one of the horses having steel shoes, fire flew from his hoofs at every stride as they galloped down the hills. They must have presented a fine appearance, clad in uniform as they were, with plumes waving in the breeze. Ere long they overtook the party. Thomas Welles, who was constable, read the warrant to Prior: the kidnapper said: 'What, Cæsar, you've been stealing?' 'Dat's none of your business,' was the reply. The poor negroes had cried until their cheeks were wet with tears. They were taken from the waggon, mounted each on a horse behind the rider, and joyfully returned to their quiet homes."

Samuel Jarvis first spent some time in the counting-house of a French firm in New York City. In 1821 he removed to New Orleans and in 1823 established the grocery firm of Peters and Millard, the largest grocery house of that day in the city, and of which firm he was a member until his death. In 1824 he was a member of the New Orleans City Council, and chairman of its finance committee. He was the originator of the Pontchartrain Railroad. In 1836 he was the first president of the Chamber of Commerce, which office he held from its founding until his death. He was president of the City Bank. He was president of the State Bank of Louisiana. In 1849 he was collector of the port, under Gen. Taylor. He was instrumental in introducing the common school system into New Orleans, in connection with which he founded a public lyceum and a library. In 1863 he was the mayor's adviser when the Hon. Mr. Crossman held that office. He was director of many institutions. He was instrumental in building the St. Charles Hotel, the Merchants' and Commercial Exchange, the City Hall, the Masonic Hall, the Commercial Bank, the water works, etc., etc. He was president of the New England Society for many years and until his death. In this connection it is interesting to note in his character, as well as in his personal appearance, several distinctive Peters traits.

Joseph Phelps was a soldier in the Revolution, serving (it is said) the last two years of the war. He drew a pension. After the Revolution he studied medicine with Dr. Hosford in Pittsfield. He resided, in 1793, in Thetford, Vt.; 1794, he resided in Pittston, N. Y.; 1795, in Hoosick, N. Y.; 1796, in Mendon, N. Y.; 1800-03, he resided in Cazenovia, N. Y. From 1805-19 he resided in Mendon, from then until 1825 he dwelt in Murry, N. Y., and then removed to Portland, N. Y. He was a physician and surgeon, and was considered a skilful man. He was five feet ten inches in height and had dark blue eyes and brown hair. He had a remarkable memory and used to teach his grandchildren mathematics, to count in Latin, etc. When a boy he once visited the British army, ostensibly to find his two uncles (Col. John and Capt. Bemslee) who were officers there. He learned the intention of the English to attack the saw-pits, where his brothers, Absalom and Samuel, were stationed with troops to guard the American stores. The attack was to be made the next morning at sunrise. He managed to depart without being ob-

EBER,* child of _____ and _____

_____, born in _____

_____, July 19, 1768, died in Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 14, 1841, aged 73; md. in _____, May 23, 1787, Catherine McCollumn, dau. Daniel McCollumn, † and _____, his wife, born in _____ _____, Scotland, _____, (1764?), died in Litchfield, July 6, 1836, aged 72, and had six (?) ‡ children.

Children of Eber, and Catherine McCollumn:

971 (1). Norman, born in Woodville, § Conn., Feb. 11, 1788 (md., ch.).

* It is at present impossible to place Eber, although it appears more than probable that he was a son of William and Deborah Strong, who figure in The Lost Tribes. Indeed, from the dates, it would be impossible for him to be the son of any one else. Beyond the records of two of the children of this William, we have nothing of this family. Tradition among Eber's descendants makes them members of the Hebron family, and declares Eber to be the son of a William, and to have had a brother Joseph. These are such thoroughly Peters names that this tradition is probably correct, especially as we find the distinctive Hebron name of John Thompson in this line. It is to be hoped that the publication of this volume will clear and straighten out many obscure and uncertain lines.

† Daniel McCallum (or McCollumn), it is said, came to this country, from Scotland, with the avowed purpose of giving his money and his life to the American cause. He landed in New York about the time of the occupation of that city by Sir Henry Clinton (1777), was taken prisoner, and thrown into a prison ship, and his family scattered. (Duncan McCollom of Saybrook, Conn., married Hannah Peters of Preston, 1805; perhaps he was of the same family. See page 99.)

‡ From the records of Sturbridge, Mass.: "Died, 1813, Dec. 28, child of Eber Peters."

Sept. 3, 1783, died in Litchfield, Aug. 18, 1867. No children.

1788, Dec. 23, Eber was a resident of Washington, Litchfield Co., Conn. 1794, he resided in Litchfield. He had an iron foundry, and made tools, ploughs, etc. He was also engaged in hauling iron ore from Salisbury. He owned a good deal of land. In 1827 he built a stone house about seven miles from the village of Litchfield. On a marble slab over the door are inscribed the names and dates of birth of all his children, and below: "Eber Peters built this house in 1827." This house stands on the western side of the Shepaug River, which is the boundary line between Warren and Litchfield.

* (Or Goshen.)

Manly was educated at Yale and graduated from the Pittsfield Medical School, 1826. For ten years he was a physician in Milton, Conn. His father had an iron foundry in Woodville, Conn., and about 1836 Manly engaged in this business, the name of the firm being M. & J. Peters. Later he was inspector of the iron and steel used in building the Collins line of steamers. In 1856 he bought a tract of land near Knoxville, Tenn. Here was discovered that rich vein of iron ore first developed during the Civil war. The war began before the work was finished. Dr. Peters returned to Connecticut in the fall of 1860, having been outspoken in his loyalty to the Union he could not live in the South. But Jefferson Davis needed this ore, and sent a letter to Dr. Peters offering him protection, and promising money to complete the furnaces, and that the property should not be confiscated. This letter was delivered to Dr. Peters in Norwich. He gave it no consideration, though to him it meant wealth. He did not even speak of it, and Gen. Longstreet used the lumber designed to build the hamlet, for Confederate coffins, and Southern mules and horses fed on the farm. Dr. Peters always retained his interest in his profession and kept in touch with the march of science. He resumed his medical practice, ministered to the families of the soldiers, and did many charitable deeds, now but blessed memories to those he cheered with his quaint humor and his kindly ways. 1846-47-48-50, he was justice of the peace in Warren, Conn.

hitable , his wife, born in Litchfield, Dec. 12, 1798, died in Litchfield, Feb. 20, 1885. No children. They adopted one daughter, now Mrs. S. Almira Clarke of Woodville, Conn., to whom the compiler and all those who read this book are indebted for the interest she has taken and the help she has given in genealogical matters. John Thompson was an iron-master.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

SEBORNE (Seberance)

The descent of the New Hampshire Peters is purely inferential, and the only clue—but which, fortunately, is of serious importance—is the unusual name of Seborne. The birth of the second child of Andrew 3 II of Andover is recorded on the Andover records as Sibbons. In his grandfather's will the name is Seberance.* It is evident that this is the real name, and that Sibbons, Seborne, Seaborn (and probably the name of Seaverns) are spellings according to the usual clipping English pronunciation of long family names, like Cholmondeley, which is pronounced Chumley, Beecham for Beauchamp, Sinclair for Saint Clair, etc. The name is, therefore, our only clue, but it is a fairly safe one to follow, especially in view of the fact that Concord, N. H., was largely settled by Andover people, that the dates correspond, and that Sibbons, or Seborne (Seberance), disappears from Andover.

The first mention of Seborne we find in New Hampshire is in 1747, when he is in garrison in Mr. Jonathan Eastman's house at the same time that his son (or brother) James is in garrison in Capt. Henry Lovejoy's house. Jonathan Eastman's house was on the Mill road, opposite the home of Mr. Aaron Shute, in the West parish; "Seaborne" Peters and William Peters are both there. In 1751 Seborne is mentioned as follows: "I Seborn Peters of Rumford in New Hampshire. Miller," and he sells to Benjamin Fifield twenty acres of land by Turkey Pond; the land is bounded "south by land of Barachias Farnum, east and north by common land, and west on Turkey Bogg; also twenty-eight acres by Turkey river near river Bank, bounded south east by Eastman's mill farm," etc. The deed is signed Seborne Peters, 1751, Nov. 5.

In the list of church members Seborne Peters stands No. 16, and Mary Peters No. 17; presumably they were husband and wife, but whether of the first or second New Hampshire generation it is impossible to say. There are dates only at intervals; the date of No. 15 is 1744, but it is possible that there were no admissions for some years after.

In 1757 Seaborn Peters is mentioned: "One head, one house, 0 land, 1 horse, 0 oxen, 2 cows." This gives the impression of a very young man, just beginning life and as yet unmarried. Probably he is of the third generation.

It is inferred that the first child of James and Elizabeth Farnham married Rhoda Taylor,—some James did, and apparently about this time. If his son James is the one who married Susannah Coombs, then Susannah was eight years older than her husband, but this is possible. Among the children of Mary, who married Bigford Spooner, are to be found the names of Comfort, Barnabas, and Rhoda, all uncommon names, and all significant. Mary's first child was born in 1779. There was a James hailing from Douglas, and a Comfort from Worcester Co., and we are told that Susannah Coombs used to live in Douglas, and that in her old age she liked to talk of that town where she may have been born. Comfort has record as follows:

(Massachusetts Archives.) 1777, May 4, to July 4, 1777. Comfort Peters, private. Capt. Isaac Martin's Co., Col. Joseph Whitney's Reg., Service 2 mos, 6 days.

1777, Dec. 1, to Jan. 2, 1778, in Capt. Joseph Sibley's Co., Col. Danforth Keyes' Reg. 1777, Dec. 8, service at North Kingston, dated (Sturbridge, Mass., Aug. 3d, 1783.)

1779, May 17, to July 1, Comfort Peters, private, 19 years of age, 5 ft. 5 in. Dark. Residence, Douglas (Mass.), Capt. Whitney's Co., Col. Tyler's Reg. Marched July 2d, 1779.

1779, July 22, in Capt. Webb's Co., 4th Reg., to Ap. 22, 1780.

1780, July 10, to Dec. 14, 1780. Service in Rhode Island under Gen. Spencer.

Descriptive list of men raised to reinforce the Continental Army for the term of 6 mos. agreeable to resolve June 5, 1780. Comfort Peters, private. Arrival at Springfield, July 12, 1780, 13th Division. Marched to camp July 12, 1780, under command of Ens. Gilbert.

1780, enlisted July 12, for twenty days, Capt. Japheth Daniel's Co.; Col. Thomas Nixon's 6th Reg., Aug., Sept., Oct., Nov., Dec., 1780.

List of men raised for the 6 mos. service and returned by Brig.-Gen. Paterson as having passed muster in a return dated Camp Totoway, Oct. 2, 1780. Comfort Peters, private. Col. Shepherd's 4th Reg. Engaged for 9 mos. Ap. 10, 1780.

Our James (or Jameses) of Worcester Co. and of Douglas have records as follows:

(Massachusetts Archives.) James Peters, Douglas, for one year in Capt. Turtelot's Co., Col. Carey's* Reg., Service at Rhode Island, dated June 4, 1778. 1778, Jan. 1 to 1782, Dec. 31, clothing acct. James Peters, 6th Reg. private.

William removed from Hopkinton, N. H., to Henniker, N. H., and settled in the eastern part of the town, upon the farm now known as the Jacob Peters farm. He and his family passed the first night in town under a rock, near which he built his cabin. He was a prominent man in the town. He often assisted the committee of proprietors in laying out roads and in other improvements. 1767, July 18, he was voted to be one of the surveyors (surveyors ?) by four of the proprietors. 1768, Nov. 10, he was one of the incorporators of the town. In 1775, July 5, he was killed by the falling of a tree while at work for, and with, Lieut. Samuel Wadsworth, upon the farm now owned and occupied by Franklin Goss, and a little east of his present residence.

1729, Feb. 25, the first meeting of settlers to locate at Contoocook, N. H., was held in Andover, Mass. 1732, the second meeting was held in Newbury, Mass. 1733, William was one of the settlers. 1734 (spring), he was living in Contoocook (now Boscawen), N. H. 1734, he was one of the first grantees of Contoocook. 1743, Nov. 29, he was a soldier at Contoocook, N. H. 1747-48, Jan. 2, he was a petitioner for a grist-mill at Contoocook.

A muster roll of the company (near Manchester, N. H.)

in His Majesty's service, under command of John Goffe, Capt., employed in scouting on the frontiers of the Province of New Hampshire, Anno Domini, 1748. William Peters, Sergt. Time of discharge, Oct. 3, 18 weeks, 3 days service, whole wages, 13-16-5.

1752, July 13, his name appears on the proprietors' grant of Henniker. 1753, July 18, the proprietors went to Portsmouth and drew their lots. His lot was numbered No. 76. 1753, July 18, the petitioners of Henniker, being mostly from Londonderry, etc., met in Portsmouth, N. H. Hopkinton, or No. 5, as it was called, was settled mostly from Hopkinton, Mass.

This William is unplaced, but the mention of Andover is most significant. He was probably the William who, in Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 16, 1742, married Ruth Standley. In that case Hannah would be a second wife. This would account for the names of Elizabeth, Ruth, and Mary. A William was in garrison with Seborne in Jonathan Eastman's house in the West Parish, Concord, N. H., and was probably Seborne's son, or brother of Seborne of the next generation.

1138 IV. Obadiah, (probably youngest) child of Seborne, and Mary (?), born in (1725 ?), died at Pennacook, N. H., Aug. 11, 1746, being killed by the Indians. Was probably unmarried.

1744-45, he was in the expedition against Louisburg, in a company commanded by Capt. Eastman.

1746, Aug. 11, Monday, he, with others, set out from Rumford (now Concord), for Hopkinton, N. H. He at the time was a member of Capt. Melville's Co. of Massachusetts, enrolled in the Rumford company under command of Capt. Nathaniel Abbott; his name is thus mentioned on the muster roll, and his death is so recorded. His father and family lived near Eastman's fort, to which the party were going when they were attacked by the Indians. They, knowing that there were Indians in the vicinity, were using all due care; two were on horses, the others on foot, all armed, but, not at all expecting an attack, they marched on leisurely.

Obadiah was one of those on foot, and had gone some distance beyond the others, into a hollow about one and one half miles from Concord; here he set down his gun and awaited the approach of the others. The Indians, thinking themselves discovered, rose from their hiding-place, fired, and killed him, shooting him through the head. At this moment the rest of the party, with Jonathan Bradley at their head, came over the hill, and, seeing the fate of their comrade and their own danger, Bradley cried out, "Fire, and follow on!" and then rushed down upon them. But the savages were too strong for them, being twelve to one. Samuel Bradley was shot down in the road. To Jonathan Bradley they offered quarter, having known him, but he refused, his heroic spirit thirsting to avenge his comrades. They then despatched him with their tomahawks; two others, John Bean and John Lufkin, were fired upon, ran four or five rods, fell, and expired. The rest were captured and carried to Canada as prisoners.

The following is a report of one of the company who escaped: "Daniel Gilman says that Lieut. Bradley, with six men, was going about two and a half miles from Rumford to a garrison, on August 11, 1746, when they had gone about one and one half miles they were shot upon by about thirty or forty Indians if not more, as it was supposed, and killed down dead Lieut. John Bradley, Samuel Bradley, John Lufkin, John Bean, and Obadiah Peters. These were killed dead on the spot, and the most of them were stripped, two of whom were stabbed, cut and disfigured, it was supposed that there was an Indian killed when they had the fight for the said Gilman who made his escape, saith that he was about sixty rods before those men, when they were shot upon, and he says the Indians shot three guns first, and as he thought that the party had shot at a deer, he ran back up a hill about forty rods, so that he could see over upon the other hill where the Indians lie and shot upon the men, and when he came upon the hill so as to see over upon the other hill he heard Lieut. Jonathan Bradley speak and say, 'Lord have mercy upon us, fight!' In a moment his gun went off and there was more of the party also who fired, then the Indians rose up and shot a volley and ran out on to the path making all sorts of howling and yelling, and he did not stay long to see it, he said it was supposed that John Lufkin was upon the front and Obadiah Peters in the rear, and they were shot down the first shot, and they were in the path about twelve or fourteen rods apart, and Samuel Bradley was about twelve feet from Obadiah Peters." This account is attested to as a true copy by the clerk of the county. The General Assembly passed, November 19, 1747, the following resolution: "Voted that there be paid out of the money in the public treasury £75 to those that were killed, heirs or legal representatives." The heirs of Obadiah Peters received £7 10s. The initials of those massacred were inscribed on a large tree standing near the spot, which remained for a number of years, until some person cut it down. In 1836, August 22, a monument was erected at the place of the massacre, and bears the following inscription:

"This monument is in memory of Bradley Jonathan Bradley Samuel
 Peters John Bean and John Lufkin who were massacred Aug. 11, 1746, by the Indians. Erected 1837 by Richard Bradley, son of the Hon. John Bradley, and grandson of Samuel Bradley."

The New Hampshire section entitled Andrew is extremely short and fragmentary. That the first Andrew therein is the son of John, oldest son of our earliest ancestor Andrew there can be no doubt. But beyond this, and a few glimpses of him later, all is darkness. The name of John would naturally go down in this line, but there is a confusion of Johns. In the Gloucester, Mass., records is the marriage of John Peters, sojourner, to Mary Sweet of Ipswich, Jan. 5, 1770. This is probably a descendant of our Andrew and, presumably, the John whose record is as follows:

1. John Peters, private, Capt. Nathaniel Wade, Col. John Barker, date Ap. 17, 1775, Co. of Volunteers, 3d Essex County Reg. Took the place of Benjamin Averill. Lexington Alarm Roll, John Peters, Ap. 19, 1775, Capt. Wade's Co. marched from Ipswich to Mystic, 21 days. Ap. 20, ordered to Salem, Ap. 21, to Ipswich, then to Cambridge. Remained in service to May 10, 1775.

John Peters, private, Capt. Wade, Col. Little, from Ipswich, age 30; rep. enlisted May 10, 1775. In service, June 5, 1775, company of Provincials marched to Cambridge. 1775, Dec. 21, dated in camp, Capt. Wade, Col. Little, bounty coat due for 8 months service. 1776, March 22, Prospect Hill, pay for arms, clothing, etc. John Peters, Capt. Wade, Col. Little, enlisted May 10, 1775, service 11 months, 5 days. From Ipswich. Mary Peters, receipt dated Ipswich, Feb. 24, 1777, for wages and travel allowance. Capt. Wade, Col. M. Little (Mass. Archives).

It seems possible that the first John was son of the second:

2. Pay roll, Col. Thos. Stickney's Reg. com'd by Lt. Col. Henry Gerrish, raised in town of Concord & Towns adjacent which Co. marched July 5, 1777, for the relief of the garrison at Ticonderoga on the Alarm, & marched seventy miles when we had the news of the evacuation of the fort. John Peters, private. Entry July 5. Discharge July 12. Time in service 8 days. Rate per mo. £4-10. Amt. wages 1-4. Travel amt. at 2d per mile and home at 2d £2-7-8.

Capt. Peter Kimball's Co. in Col. Thos. Stickney's Reg. in Gen. Stark's Brigade, raised out the 13th Reg. N. H. Militia, July 20, 1777, which Co. joined the Northern Continental Army at Bennington and Stillwater. John Peters, private. Time discharge, Sept. 20. Time service, 2 mos. 1 day. Rate £4-10. Amt. wages £9-3. Travel to Charlestown, No. 4, at 2d per mile 60-15. Travel home from Stillwater and Bennington at 2d per mile 130. £1-1-8. Amt. wages & travel £10-19-8. Wages rec. £4-10. Balance due £6-9-8.

Pay roll, Capt. Joshua Abbot's Co., Col. Henry Gerrish's Reg. N. H. Volunteers, which Co. marched from Concord and towns adjacent, Sept. 1777, and joined the Northern Continental Army at Saratoga. John Peters. Entry Sept. 28, 1777, discharge, Oct. 26, 1777. Time in service, 29 days. Rate £4-10. Amt. wages, £4-7-0. Travel to Bennington, 128 miles at 3d per mile, £1-12. Travel home from Saratoga, 155 miles, at 2d, £1-5-10. (State Papers, New Hampshire—Hammond, vol. xiv.; Revolutionary Rolls, I.)

In the Miscellaneous Papers in the department of the secretary of state, Concord, N. H., vol. i.: "Aug. 18, 1778, John Peters of Concord, bill for £4-6-6 for nursing Timothy Johnson, in the state service in July, 1777, son-in-law of John Peters." Johnson was in Capt. Peter Kimball's Co. Col. Stickney's Reg., in Stark's Brigade, marched to Bennington, was taken sick, and was cared for by John Peters who was in the same company. The paper is addressed "To The Hon'ble the Council and the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire convened at Exeter, Aug. 18, 1778." Thus it is evident that the second John is considerably older than the first John, who was born in 1745.

3. Massachusetts Archives. 1777, John Peters, prizemaster of the officers and crew of the ship Essex, privateer. Capt. John Cathcart; age 32 (consequently born in 1745), 5 ft. 6 in. From Boston.

4. 1780, Aug. 2, John Peters, seaman, of the ship Pilgrim. Capt. Joseph Robinson. Age 26, 5 ft. 6 in., dark. From the Kennebec. 1779, May 24 to Aug. 31, service 3 months, 8 days. John Peters, seaman, brigantine Active. Capt. Allen Hallett, Esq. (sic).

5. John Peters, who served in Capt. Burnham's Co., Col. Michael Jackson's regiment, and who engaged for the war, was reported deserted Feb. 27, 1778, and Sep. 25, 1780; was from Sturbridge, Mass., and is in one place called a Frenchman. We therefore need not concern ourselves about him.

6. John Peters, from Hampshire Co., Mass. 1779, age 17. 5 ft. 8½ in., complexion Indian, residence Southwick, Mass., under Ens. E. White. Served only to Jan. 1, 1780. Men enlisted for Continental army for 9 months, Springfield, Mass. Oct. 19, 1779, enlisted for town of Southwick.

7. 1778, Ap. 25, to Dec. 31, 1779, John Peters, private in Capt. Hunt's Co., Col. Vose. Roll dated Providence, R. I., May 6, 1779, John Peters, private, Capt. Hunt's Co., Col. Vose's Reg., March and April, 1770; enl. Dec. 2, 1776, for war. He is mentioned, in camp, on or before Aug. 15, 1777; as receiving a gratuity, Providence, Feb. 13, 1779; also Aug. 15, 1777, and Dec. 9, 1778. He is on the depreciation roll, Sept. 21, 1787.

8. John Peters, private, Capt. Amasa Soper, Col. Marshall. Enlisted Dec. 28, 1776, dis. Feb. 10, 1777; marched to Bennington.

9. John Peters, private, Col. Marshall, Jan. 1, 1777, to Jan. 1, 1778. Residence Dighton (Mass.). Reported dead on or before Aug. 15, 1777. Reported dead Jan. 1, 1778.

Baptisms. First Church, Boston.

1635, Grace, ye daughter of or Brother Willyam Beamsley, 20th of 7th mo.

* Error corrected in the baptisms. The old spelling of the name Mercy as "Marcy," and the old writing of the "e" like an open "o," have repeatedly caused it to be written Mary.

† She md. in Ipswich, Mass., Oct. 16, 1661, Cornet Abraham Perkins, of that town.

1637, 10th of 10th mo. Mercie, ye daughter of or Brother Willyam Beamsley.

1643, 17th day of 10th mo. Hannah, ye daughter of or Brother Willyam Beamsley.

1645, 8th day of 12th mo. Abigail, being about two dayes old.

There was evidently a son William as later baptisms read:

1659, Sept. 5, Mary of William, and Mary Beamsley, died 15th of 1st mo. 1662.

1661, Nov. 22, Hannah, dau. of William, and Mary Beamsley, died March 1663.

1663, May 15th, (born) Sarah,

1665, April 25, (born) Mary.

Ensign William Beamsley (Senior) deceased Sept. 29, 1658-9. 1638. William Beamsley was admitted freeman.

William Beamsley md. (2) Martha , who survived him.

In the Suffolk Deeds (5 volumes), there is frequent mention of William Beamsley and in 1643, 16-12, of George Beamsley "his lot, near Cedar Swamp and Muddy river."

A house is bought by William Wenbourne of Christopher Lawson, next to the lott of William Beamsley.

1652, Aug. 17, mention of upland of William Beamsley.

1652, Feb. 2, Boundary of William Beamsley.

1652-12-11 Boundary of William Beamslie.

1651-Oct. Boundary of William Beamsley.

Sale to William Beamesley by Mary Hawkins of Boston, land 100 feet towards the street, bounded east with the street, north with William Phillips, south with William Beamsley and "part of William Phillips' land and part of my owne westward."

1656, April, mention of William Beamsley's land.

1650-6-5. Said William Phillips sold to William Beamsley land in Boston "in the Mill field being 238 feet in length, or thereabouts, and in breadth at the South East front fower score foote, and at the Reare Sixty foote more or lesse as it is now staked out being bounded with the lands of Mrs Mary Haukins wch I purchased of hir as aboue exprest South East, the land of Richard Bennet South West and my owne land North West and North."

William Beamsley sells for £30 land to Henry Shin.

There are several other allusions to William Beamsley and to Martha Beamsley. In 1657 he is called a Yeoman. The word "laborer" as applied to him in the church admissions is probably used in a religious sense, as he was a large owner of real estate in Boston, and it was only persons of some consideration who had military titles conferred on them.

MY NATIVE LAND, GOOD-NIGHT *

THE boat swings from the pebbled shore,
And proudly drives her prow;
The crested waves roll up before,
Yon dark gray land I see no more,
How sweet thou seemest now!
Thou dark gray land, my native land,
Thou land of rock and pine,
I'm speeding from thy golden sand,
But can I wave a farewell hand
To such a shore as thine?

I've gazed upon the golden cloud
Which shades thine emerald sod;
Thy hills which freedom's share hath ploughed
Which nurse a race that have not bowed
The knee to aught but God.
Thy mountain floods, which proudly fling
Their waters to the fall,
The birds which cut with rushing wing
The sky that greets the coming spring,—
And thought thy glories small.

But now ye've shrunk to yon blue line
Between the sky and sea,
I feel, sweet home, that thou art mine,
I feel my bosom cling to thine,
That I am part of thee.
I see thee blended with the wave
As children see the earth
Close up a sainted mother's grave;
They weep for her they cannot save,
And feel her holy worth.

* See page 163, (492 VI.).

Thou mountain land, thou land of rock,
 I'm proud to call thee free;
 Thy sons are of the pilgrim stock,
 And served like those who stood the shock
 At old Thermopylæ.
 The laurel wreaths their fathers won
 The children wear them still!
 Proud deeds these iron men have done,
 They fought and won at Bennington,
 And bled at Bunker Hill.

There's grandeur in the lightning stroke,
 That rives thy mountain ash;
 There's glory in thy giant oak,
 And rainbow beauty in the smoke
 Where crystal waters dash.
 There's music in thy winter's blast
 That sweeps the hollow glen;
 Less sturdy sons would shrink aghast
 From piercing winds like those thou hast
 To nurse thine iron men.

And thou hast gems—aye, living pearls,
 And flowers of Eden hue;
 Thy loveliest are thy bright-eyed girls,
 Of airy forms and elfin curls,
 And smiles like Hermon's dew.
 They've hearts like those they're born to wed,
 Too proud to nurse a slave;
 They'd scorn to share a monarch's bed,
 And sooner lay their angel head
 Deep in their humble grave.

And I have left thee, home, alone,
 A pilgrim from thy shore;
 The wind goes by with hollow moan,
 I hear it sigh a warning tone,
 "You see your home no more!"

I'm cast upon the world's wide sea,
Torn like an ocean weed;
I'm cast away, far, far from thee,
I feel a thing I cannot be,
A bruised and broken reed.

Farewell, my native land, farewell!
That wave has hid thee now;
My heart is bowed as with a spell,
That rending pang! would I could tell
What ails my throbbing brow!
One look upon that fading streak
Which bounds yon eastern sky,
One tear to cool my burning cheek,
And then a word I cannot speak,—
My native land, good-bye!

Their bark is out upon the sea,
She leaps across the tide,—
The flashing waves dash joyously
Their spray upon her side;
As if a bird, before the breeze
She spreads her snowy wings,
And, breaking through the crested seas,
How beautiful she springs!

The deep blue sky above her path
So cloudless, and the air
That pure and spicy fragrance hath
Which Ceylon's breezes bear;
And though she seems a shadowless
And phantom thing in sport,
Her freight, I ween, is happiness,
And heaven her far-off port.

Mild, tearful eyes are gazing now
Upon that fleeting ship,

My Native Land, Good-Night

And here, perhaps, an ashy brow,
And there a trembling lip,
Are tokens of the agony,—
The pangs it costs to sever
The mother from her first-born child,
To say farewell for ever.

And they who sail yon fading bark
Have turned a yearning eye
To that far land which seems a line
Between the sea and sky.
And as that land blends with the sea,
Like clouds in sunset light,
A soft, low voice breathes in the wind:
“ My native land, good-night! ”

And they who stood upon the shore,
And bend them o'er the sea
To catch the last faint shadow of
The shrouds' dim tracery,—
I ween, if one could hear the sigh,
Could catch the mother's tone,
He'd hear it say: “ Good-night, good-night,
My beautiful, my own. ”

That ship is gone—lost to the eye,—
But still a freshing breeze
Is e'er awake and drives her on
Through smooth and pleasant seas.
Right onward then she will dash on
Though tempests shake the air,
For hearts that fear not Ocean's wrath
I ween will aye be there.

That sea is Life; that bark is but
The hopes of wedded love;
The wind which fills its swelling sails
I trust is from above;

And ever may its progress be
Through summer seas right on,
Till blended with eternity's
Broad ocean horizon.

HUGH PETERS.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF JOHN PETERS, LIEUT.-COL.
OF THE QUEEN'S LOYAL RANGERS, IN CANADA,
DRAWN BY HIMSELF IN A LETTER TO A FRIEND IN LONDON *

At the time of the breaking out of the revolution which ended in the formation and establishment of the American Republic, certain resident colonists, to the number of more than twenty thousand, remained true to the royal cause. These gallant patriots are known to history by the name of United Empire Loyalists; in consequence of the stand taken by them, they were proscribed by their fellow-colonists, and compelled to fly from their homes and seek protection under the British flag. Most of them fought valiantly on the royal side during the struggle, and, after its close, the various State Legislatures adopted severe and highly penal enactments in order to prevent the return of "The Tories," as the United Empire Loyalists were called, to their homes in the new Republic. More than ten thousand of them eventually settled in Canada, and their energy contributed not a little to the prosperity of the country. Others found their way to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, others to Great Britain, and a few to the West Indies. Conspicuous among these gallant men who stood fast allies of the royal cause, was Lieut.-Col. John Peters, an officer in the Queen's Loyal Rangers. A few years after the close of the war he went to England, where he remained until his death, in the year 1786; he wrote a narrative giving an account of his life during the course of the rebellion.

The original manuscript of this narrative is in the possession of Mr. S. P. Bell of New York City, and the contents, we understand, have never before appeared in print. Through the kindness of a correspondent, Mr. Samuel James McCormick of New Rochelle, Westchester Co., N. Y., we are enabled to lay a copy of this narrative before our readers. It will be noticed that the writer reflects somewhat severely upon the conduct of certain high officials whose names are familiar to persons acquainted with the history of Canada. These reflections may perhaps be to some extent colored by the writer's prejudices; at the same time the narrative is written in a spirit of evident fairness, and freedom from deliberate bias. Similar charges, moreover, have been made by other writers, and it is by no means probable that they are wholly groundless. The narrative contains some little information that is new, and upon the whole it is not without value as a contribution to Canadian history.

SIR, I do not mean to take any pride from family, as you will conceive, nor to boast of my exploits, but to relate my story in simplicity.

* The Story of a United Empire Loyalist. (Copy of a newspaper cutting obtained from Nova Scotia.)

I was born in Hebron, in Connecticut, in the year 1740. My father was a wealthy farmer, and colonel of the militia. He descended by his father from William Peters, a brother of Hugh Peters, Oliver Cromwell's chaplain, and of an ancient family in Cornwall, Old England, and by his mother from Major General Thomas Harrison, the Regicide.

My mother was a descendant of John Phelps, a considerable man in Cromwell's Party. I had a liberal education at Yale College, in Connecticut, and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1759; in 1761, I married Ann, daughter of Robert Barnett, a merchant at Windsor, in Connecticut; she was born in the year 1740, and is now the mother of eight sons and one daughter.

In 1763 I settled in Piermont, in the province of New Hampshire, on the east bank of the Connecticut river, where I had a Tract of land, and had built a house, a saw-mill and barn. I was, by Governor Wentworth, appointed Captain Commandant of the Militia, and Deputy Surveyor of the King's woods. In 1770 I removed to Mooretown, on the west side of the Connecticut river, where I had a large parcel of land, and I built an house, barn, saw and grist mills, and carried on husbandry. Being now in the province of New York, I was appointed by Governor Tryon to be Colonel of the Militia, Justice of the Peace, Judge of Probates, Registrar of the County, Clerk of the Court, and Judge of the Court of common pleas. Here I was in easy circumstances, and as independent as my mind ever wished. In 1774 the spirit of discord and rebellion so far prevailed as to occasion me much trouble, a congress was forming through the Colonies. The counties of Cumberland and Gloucester, (since called Vermont) desired me to attend the congress to meet at Philadelphia in 1774 which appointment I accepted of, and passing through Hebron on my way to Philadelphia, I was mobbed with my Uncles the Rev. Samuel Peters, Mr. Jonathan and Mr. Bemslee Peters, by Governor Trumbull's Liberty Boys, because we were accused of Loyalty. I was liberated after suffering much ill language from the mob. The Rev. Samuel Peters suffered more than I did. He and I agreed in opinion that the teachers, bankrupts, dissenting teachers, and smugglers meant to have a serious rebellion and a civil and religious separation from the mother country. My Uncle advised me to meet the congress, to find out what their aim was. I did so, and being certainly convinced that nothing short of independence would satisfy them, I refused to take the oath of secrecy in Congress, and wrote to my uncle who had been forced to fly to England, telling him what to expect, and I returned to my family at Verdmont*; but on my way home I was seized by three mobs, ill treated and dismissed at Weathersfield, Hartford, and Springfield. In April, 1775, I arrived in Mooretown, when another mob seized me and threatened to execute me as an enemy to Congress.

Then they carried me to the committee, Deacon Bailey being president (but since a rebel general) who ordered me the same evening to gaol, and discharged me the same evening at 12 o'clock because they had not found proof of my corresponding with General Carleton, on pretense of which I had been committed to prison.

Soon after another mob seized me, and insisted that I should sign their Covenant, which was to oppose the King and British army with my life and property, which Covenant I did not sign and begged time for consideration, under bonds, which was granted.

In the meantime news arrived that the British troop had marched out of Boston and were murdering the inhabitants, both young and old. Whereupon the committee required me to give orders to the militia to be ready at an hour's notice to march against the royalists. I gave them orders. This gained me much favor for a few days with the mob. However, as the report of the massacre near Boston by the King's troops diminished away, the mob renewed their attack upon me, searched my house for letters of secret correspondence with General Carleton, with whom in fact I never had corresponded.

They took all papers found in my house, insulted me, and required me to sign deeds of some lands I had bought, confined me to the limits of the town, and threatened me with death if I transgressed their Orders. The mob again and again visited me, and ate and drank, and finally plundered me of most of my moveable effects. Added to this my Father, Col. Peters of Hebron, wrote against me, and urged on the mob, assigning for reason "that his Uncle, Peters, the clergyman, who had taught him bad principles, was driven out of the country, and that he would soon become a friend to America if severity was used."

By January, 1776, vexation had hurt my health, and the madness of the people daily growing worse, I thought of a mode to make my escape to Canada, and I applied to the rebel Col. Beadle, who had been my old and steady friend, and was going against Canada. He consented to take me along with him as a companion, and obtained the consent of the Committee.

March, 1776, we left Mooretown and Col. Beadle used me kindly and honourably, and never requested me to bear arms, which he had agreed to before we left home.

We arrived at the Cedars, when I prevailed upon Col. Beadle not to burn the town which he was ordered to do.

I sent off to Captain (now Lieut. Col.) Foster of the 8th Regiment at Catarague, all the proper information in my power and his answer was "he would attack the Cedars a certain day" and advised me to keep out of the way. I applied to Col. Beadle to be sent to Montreal to procure provisions for the rebels; whilst I was there, Captain Foster took the rebel fort at the Cedars; but I had got Col. Beadle away.

Having received news of Capt. Foster's success, and that a rebel party was going to attack him, I sent him information which enabled him to form an ambuscade whereby he took and killed near 150 rebels; the Indians were enraged with the rebels because some of their friends had been killed in the skirmish, and they killed several captives and to stop their outrage Capt. Foster gave them eight yoke of oxen and several cows. At Montreal I met Dr. Franklin and the other Commissioners from Congress, also Gen. Wooster and Col. Arnold, and we dined together, when Arnold said: "Nothing but independence would settle these matters, and he wished to God it was now done."

Dr. Franklin and Gen. Wooster wrote a letter to Col. Gazzen to let him know that Col. De Haws was going around the mountains with 700 men to attack Capt. Foster, and Col. Arnold with the main Body, was to meet Foster at Lachine with four field pieces. I obtained that information and sent it over the mountains by Mr. Ferguson (clerk to Mr. Doby of Montreal) to Capt. Foster, by which means he escaped over the river.

Arnold on his return to Montreal found Dr. Franklin and Wooster had gone toward Albany, and he gave private order to plunder and burn the city of Montreal. I discovered this by Mr. Wheatly of Norwich, in Connecticut, who, with Arnold, was to share the profit; and Mr. Wheatly offered me part if I would join with him. I thanked Mr. Wheatly for his friendship, desired a few hours to consider of it, and went and informed the inhabitants of the design and they set a watch over the city till Arnold left the town.

I went next to Sorel, where Gen. Sullivan commanded. He took me a prisoner on suspicion that I had given Capt. Foster and the Indians of Conisidoga information of their intentions, and sent me to St. Johns; the rebels burnt Chamblie and St. Johns on their way to Isle-la-Motte where we rested six days, and where I was set at liberty because they had no proof against me, except what arose from a letter that Deacon Bailey wrote to Gen. Sullivan, "to take care of Col. Peters, who was an enemy to America and would escape to Gen. Carleton the first opportunity."

Gen. Sullivan and army set off for Crown Point, and I had retired to the woods on the Isle la Motte and returning in the evening of June 28th to the deserted camp, where I found a canoe, which Dr. Skinner (who had also escaped) and I seized and paddled off in to St. Johns, nearly forty miles, where we met General Frazer on the 29th of June. The General received me kindly and conducted me to General Carleton at Chamblie, who being satisfied with my conduct, gave me a pass to Montreal, where on my arrival the inhabitants treated me with much friendship and thanks for the assistance given in preserving their town and property.

August 14, I met with Mr. Peter Levines, the present Chief-Justice of Canada, to whom I was known many years before. Mr. Levine showed me every kind of attention that friendship and generosity could dictate, and carried me to Chamblie, and introduced me to General Carleton as a person he knew might be depended upon.

October, 1776, I went as a volunteer with General Carleton on Lake Champlain as one of the pilots to General Frazer in the van of the army. After the defeat of the rebel fleet and army, on the third of November, the royal army returned from Crown Point to St. Johns.

March, 1777. Two deserters from the rebel country arrived at Montreal and informed me that my property had been seized, confiscated, and myself outlawed, and that Mrs. Peters and the children had been turned out of my house in the month of January, 1777; that she and her children had been sent off in a sleigh with one bed, by Deacon Bailey, to Ticonderoga, one hundred and forty miles through the woods, snow-storms and bad roads; that Mrs. Peters, a small and delicate woman, had been compelled to travel with her young children in her arms, in deep snow and rain, and were almost dead when they arrived at Ticonderoga, where the rebel general Wayne received them with humanity and used them kindly, till April, when he sent her and her children thirty miles on their way to Canada, and left them with three weeks' provisions in a deserted house near fifty miles from any inhabitants between them and Canada; here she stayed eighteen days with her children only (the oldest being fourteen years), her servant having been detained by Deacon Bailey (for which General Wayne said he ought to be damned). At length a British boat discovered and carried them to a vessel and thence to St. Johns, where they all arrived on the 4th May, 1777, well, but naked and dirty.

May 6th, 1777, I met my wife and children at St. Johns (having been advised of their arrival there) with clothing and other necessaries, and carried them to Montreal. In May, 1777, I was ordered by Sir Guy Carleton to raise a regiment of which I was to be the Lt.-Colonel Commandant.

June 14th, I was ordered by General Burgoyne to join his Army with what men I had raised, and he gave my regiment the name of the Queen's Loyal Rangers.

July 23rd, 1777, my corps, for the first time, was mustered at Skeensborough by Alexander Campbell, Deputy Commissary of Musters. I had mustered 262 men only, but I had raised in all 643, though, as my situation was generally in the advance party, my men were killed off not quite so fast as I enlisted them, but prevented them being mustered as regularly as they should have been. I was in every skirmish which happened between the army under Gen. Burgoyne and the rebels that campaign, except at Hublenston.

August 16th, 1777, I commanded the Loyalists at Bennington, when I had 291 men of my regiment with me, and I lost above half of them in that engagement. The action commenced about nine o'clock in the morning and continued until near four o'clock in the afternoon, when we retired in much confusion.

A little before the Royalists gave way the rebels pushed with a strong party on the front of the Loyalists which I commanded; as they were coming up I observed a man fire at me, which I returned. He loaded again as he came up, and discharged again at me, crying out: "Peters, you damned Tory, I have got you!" He rushed on with his bayonet which entered just below my left breast, but was turned by the bone. By this time I was loaded and I saw that it was a rebel captain, Jeremiah Post by name, an old playmate and school-fellow, and a cousin of my wife. Though his bayonet was in my body I felt regret to destroy him.

We retreated from Bennington to the reinforcement that was coming up, which was soon attacked and obliged to retreat to the bridge at the mills in Cambridge, which I broke up after the troops had retreated over it.

And the same evening we retreated towards the camp which we reached the next day. General Frazer received me very kindly, and as I was wounded in the breast and was also lame with a hurt I had received in a skirmish the day before the action by a ball grazing my foot, and was much fatigued, and for some time had been harassed with fever and ague, he generously gave me up his bed for the night, and he laid himself in his cloak on a bench. I received his and Gen. Burgoyne's approbation for my conduct in this action. The report of the defeat of the royal troops at Bennington reaching Montreal, Gen. McLean, Col. of the 84th Regiment, went to Mrs. Peters and told her that news had come from Gen. Burgoyne's camp, and she must expect to hear of many being killed and wounded, but if Col. Peters or her son were among them she must hold up with good courage and not despond, as he would see to care being taken of her and her family, that they should never want.

After some conversation in like manner, Gen. McLean thought proper to let her know that there was a report that Col. Peters and his son were both wounded and since dead. Mrs. Peters said: "My calamities are very great, but thank God, they died doing their duty to their King and Country. I have six sons left, who, as soon as they shall be able to bear arms, I will send against the rebels, while I and my daughter will mourn for the dead and pray for the living."

September 7th, the rebels made an attack upon the British army marching from Saratoga towards Albany. They were repulsed with great loss of killed, and the royal army suffered much. The royal army kept their ground at Stillwater till September 19, when the rebels attacked our ranks in the morning and the attack continued till dark.

The royal army having suffered much and Gen. Frazer being mortally wounded, we retreated to Saratoga.

Sept. 27th, we burnt some of our tents, and the 28th did the same. Here we remained until October 8th, hoping every day the Royal army would attempt to force their way to Fort George. Cessation of hostilities took place and treaties went on between the Royal army and rebel commanders.

On the 14th of October, in the morning, when it was expected the capitulation was nearly concluded, as I was in great anxiety and distress of mind, knowing how impossible it was that any capitulation could provide for my security, I met Gen. Phillipps, who asked me why I remained there, as I had told him before that no articles would protect me.

I answered that whatever might be the event I would not go without orders in writing, for that no one should be able to say that I had deserted them in the hour of distress. He said he would get me orders. In the afternoon he met me again, and seemed surprised at seeing me still there.

I reminded him of what he had said, on which he carried me with him to the general's tent, and he brought me out a written permission to take as many of my officers and men as I thought could not be protected and were willing to go. I accordingly got together as many as I could meet with in that condition who chose to make the attempt.

While I was preparing for our departure a person who had left the rebel colonies for having counterfeited their paper money came to me and begged to be of the party. I did not much like his company, but I saw the poor creature in such a trembling situation from the certainty of being hanged that I could not but consent. As soon as it was dark enough we set out, being thirty-five in number, and each carrying two days' provisions. I ordered Lieut. Holiburt, of my regiment to lead, as he knew the woods in the dark better than I did. I followed next, and ordered all of the rest to follow in single file, and in perfect silence, my son and Major Wright in the rear. We steered at first south westward. We had not got far when the money maker began to be very troublesome with his fears. I ordered him placed between Major Wright and my son, and ordered the major if he made any noise to put his bayonet into him, and leave him dead; notwithstanding this he was very troublesome. When we had travelled two or three miles from the Royal camp we were challenged by a party of rebels. I replied: "From Gen. Gates and we were in pursuit of some Tories who have fled from Burgoyne's camp." The rebels demanded the countersign and who commanded. The answer was: "Col. Peters with 1800 men, and they might fire as soon as they pleased," was the countersign. The darkness and the surprise caused the rebels to take prudent care of themselves for that night, but next day they pursued us with about 100 men whom we saw at a distance from a hill, but whether they saw us or not I cannot say. When we thought we could do it safely we turned more north westerly and then northerly. On the 16th, at the beginning of the night, we found ourselves on the western bank of the Hudson river. The moon was just risen, and close under us on the same side, at the mouth of a brook, was a man in a canoe, going to fish. We called to him, and by the fear of our firearms obliged him to come to us; but as three only could go at once in the canoe, and one was obliged always to come back to fetch two more, and as we were obliged to paddle for fear of being heard, in case any scouts of the rebels were at hand, it was midnight before we all got over.

Tedious as this was it was much better than the noise we should have made, and the time we should have consumed in felling and making a raft of trees to pass over upon. Whilst this was transacting, such of us as first went over detained the man, which we told him was only to prevent his discovering us. He seemed surprised at this, having taken us for rebels, and informed us that he and his father were sincere Loyalists and on his mentioning his name one of our party recognised him. After we had all got over he carried us to his father's who received us very kindly, and offered us all he had, some bear's flesh, some dried moose and some Indian corn, and informed us that there were two parties lying on the two ways we were expected to pass and that perhaps in the morning they might visit his house, as they frequently did; therefore it would be necessary for us to be away very early, but that he would accompany and lead us directly over the mountain, so as to avoid these two parties, and go between them.

He accordingly called us very early in the morning, and though the mountain seemed impracticable yet he led us over and clear of the two parties and then took leave of us. The 17th, in the woods, we heard the firing of cannon at Saratoga which I knew to be in consequence of the surrender of the British army to the rebels. It went to my heart to hear it, though I knew it was to be the case. We then kept northerly so as to avoid any path. On the 18th we thought we were sufficiently north, and stood east in order to strike Lake George, but to our surprise we suddenly came in sight of houses, which obliged us to stand west again and then northerly, and we stood on so until we were quite out of danger. Then we stood east, and on the 19th of October, near sunset, when we were almost famished, we struck Lake George, where Major Irwin, of the 47th, commanded. He received us very uncivilly till I produced my written order. He then treated us with great kindness and humanity, giving us food and ordered boats to carry us to Diamond Island, about five miles, where Major Aubery of the 47th commanded and had done good service. He treated us with all possible goodness, and as I was in a fever and ague, with which I had been troubled for some time before I had quitted the camp, and much fatigued, he was so good as to make me sleep in his bed while he went somewhere else for the night. Next day he gave us boats which carried us across the lake, from whence we marched to Ticonderoga, where we remained under the command of General Powel, till the fort was evacuated, when we returned to Montreal, and soon after to Quebec, where Gen. Carleton received me with approbation, but could not pay me till he had official accounts from Gen. Burgoyne. Hitherto I had received no pay from the King for my services. Gen. Carleton had put me on the subsistence list at 30£ per muster, and had behaved with great attention and humanity to my family.

In 1778, Gen. Haldimand took the command in Canada, to whom I was introduced by Gen. Carleton. His Excellency ordered me to command a party of 200 white men and 100 Indians, and to march to Cobos, on Connecticut river, and destroy the settlement there. Having arrived at Lake Champlain, on my way to Cobos, Gen. Haldimand's letter overtook me, which gave leave to all my party to return that chose to do so, but permitted me to pay a visit to Onion river. He also directed me to leave my orders. We all went on by water one day and landed at the river La Mile, and marched up by that river when some got discouraged and returned with all the Indians and all the white men except thirty-four with whom I had proceeded to the head of Onion river; and following it down we destroyed the Block house and all the buildings on it, for about thirty miles, as I was ordered, after which I returned with my thirty-four men to St. Johns, on the 23rd of August, 1778.

In 1779, I again requested General Haldimand to pay me for my services under Gen. Burgoyne in 1777. His Excellency said that matter had been transacted before he took command, and he could do nothing in it till he should have official returns, but he continued me on the subsistence list where Gen. Carleton had placed me. I wrote to the Rev. Mr. Peters in London, who applied to Lord George Germaine in my behalf, and his lordship wrote to Gen. Haldimand to settle my accounts and others in a like situation. Gen. Haldimand seemed to be offended, and accused me of complaining home against him, which in truth I had not done, or thought of, nor hitherto had any reason. He appointed a board of officers to examine my claims, but ordered the commissioners not to allow pay for any men that were killed or taken in the year 1777, or bat or forage, or for any money advanced by me or my officers to the men in the campaign of 1777 who had not returned to Canada.

The commissioners obeyed his orders, although I produced Gen. Burgoyne's orders, given out at Battlehill, August 26th, 1777, that all the provincial troops should be paid the same as the British troops. By this injustice I lost what was due me on British pay from the first of August to the 24th of December, 1783, when we were disbanded.

November 12th, 1781, Gen. Haldimand draughted the provincial corps and out of them formed corps which he named "Loyal Rangers," and appointed Edward Jessop to be major of it, and at the same time gave out in general orders that he appointed "Lieutenant-Colonel John Peters, of the Queen's Loyal Rangers, as captain of Invalids." This cruel, degrading change was worked while I was at Skeensborough, where I had been sent by

Gen. Haldimand with a flag and rebel prisoners with a view to gain intelligence from the southern army, which I performed and reported to him. On my return to Quebec I complained to the general of the hard measures he had dealt out to me by degrading me below those who had been under my command in 1777, nor did I understand why I was invalided. Mr. Mathews, secretary to Gen. Haldimand, gave me for answer that I had a wife and eight children and I might starve if I refused captain's pay, beside I should not be allowed rations if I refused. My subsistence money being stopped I was obliged to accept the pay of a captain till December 24th, 1783, or perish with my family.

1784, Gen. Haldimand owning land at the bay of Chaleurs urged the Loyalists to settle on it, or at Cataraqui, and threatened to withhold provisions from them in case of a refusal. Some of the Loyalists, however, wanted to settle near Maisqui Bay in Canada, where they built some houses and cleared some land, but Gen. Haldimand sent Lieut. Buckley of the 29th to burn their houses and to bring off the settlers. The Loyalists then petitioned the governor for leave to settle in Cape Breton, and not at the Bay of Chaleur.* The governor having heard that I had drawn up the petition sent for me and told me that I was the supposed author of it, and in a passion treated me with great indignity. I told him that no man but the commander-in-chief should treat me so; he added: "I will allow the Loyalists nothing, they shall settle on those lands I have allotted for them, or I will send them back to the rebels." His threatening terrified some, and they settled on such lands as he chose, but I and my family left Canada, October 17th, with many others to get rid of such a petty tyrant, and we arrived at Cape Breton. Here I left my wife and children in a fisherman's home, under the protection of Peter, the Indian king of Cape Breton (who had more honour than two Swiss governors), and I went to Halifax.

August, 1785, Sir Charles Douglas, who knew me in Canada, generously brought me with him to England. I first borrowed 100£ for my family in Halifax, and drew on a friend in London for it.

On my arrival in London I applied to the Lords of the treasury for subsistence, and they gave me temporary support of 100£ per annum, notwithstanding Gen. Haldimand refusing a certificate of my loyalty and services though they had been so conspicuous for ten years past.

One thing I omitted respecting my sons, who had served his Majesty against the American rebellion. My son John, the oldest ensign in the Queen's Loyal Rangers, was neglected by Gen. Haldimand when he drafted the provincial corps in Canada, and a son of Major Jessop's, quite a boy, who had never done any service, was appointed a lieutenant over my son and all the ensigns who had served during the whole of the war.

Andrew, my second son, was a midshipman during the war on the Lakes, under Commodore Chambers, and has no subsistence. Samuel, my third son, has been a volunteer ever since 1779, and all the reward given me and my sons by Gen. Haldimand is, he returned me to the war office in these remarkable words "as captain of Invalids," and my son John as ensign in the Loyal Rangers, under the command of Major Edward Jessop, whom as Lieutenant-Colonel, I had commanded in 1777, and afterwards, till he was put over me in this astonishing manner. I cannot say I look back with regret at the part I took, from motives of loyalty and from a foresight of the horror and miseries of independence, though I never imagined they would be so great as they now are, yet I thought the part I took right, and I certainly think so still, from love to my country as well as duty to my sovereign and notwithstanding my sufferings and services, and scandalous treatment by Gen. Haldimand, I would do it again if there was occasion. It is true I see persons who were notorious on the rebel side who are now here, and taken notice of and advanced, while I am neglected and deprived even of what is justly due me; but with the consciousness of having done right I can look with disdain at the triumph of successful villains.

Should you desire any further information, I shall willingly attend to your commands, either viva voce vel scriptis.

I have the honour to be, sir, your faithful friend and obliged servant,

J. PETERS.

Duke's Row, No. 3.

Pimlico, June 5th, 1786.

I have also had an occasion to overlook the original from which this was printed and find it to be comparably the same; headed that it was written by Col. John Peters by request. It was to have been used by Dr. Peters in his application for Col. John Peters' relief to the British government.

I have since ascertained that this clipping was from the Toronto Gazette.

Col. Peters' anxiety and distress of mind and desire to get away from Burgoyne's army at the time of its capitulation arose from the fact that he had not as yet received his commission from the British government, although he was recognized by the government and his men had been mustered into the service of the King, just previous to that in July, but his commission was deferred as the office which he would be commissioned to depended on the number of men which he should have mustered into service, and the commission which he was fighting under, was his acknowledgment by the British government, and his orders from Gen. Governor Tryon of New York under his old commission of colonel of militia, and the general governor's proclamation to raise troops for the British government, as will be partially seen from the following abstracts from Hadden's Journal:

“Though the provincials and Canadians with Burgoyne, like the volunteers in our late Civil war, received but slender praise from the regulars, yet there were some able officers among them, like the brothers Jessup, Lieut. Col. John Peters, and Captain Justin Sherwood.

“Of irregular troops there were two provincial battalions commanded respectively by Lieut. Col. John Peters of Hampshire grants, and Lieut. Col. Ebenezer Jessup, of New York. The number of companies in each battalion is unknown, but there were not sufficient to constitute a regiment, and Peters' corps was sent on the expedition to Bennington in the hope of swelling its ranks by the accession of recruits in the neighborhood. Burgoyne in writing to Lord George Germaine from Skeensborough, July 11, 1777, when everything had gone well with him says: ‘Mr. Peters and Mr. Jessup who came over to Canada, last autumn and proposed to raise battalions, one from the neighborhood of Albany, the other from Charlotte County, are confident of success as the army advance. Their battalions are now embryo, but very promising! they have fought and with spirit. Sir Guy Carleton has given me blank commissions for the officers, to fill up occasionally, and the agreement with them is, that the Commissions are not to be so effective till two thirds of the battalions are raised.’

“Peters' battalion at the battle of Bennington occupied a prominent position in the fight and at one time bore the brunt of the battle at the side of a stream and the Americans pressed up the hill in their rear where they had the whole field of action in their view. In that battle the British loss was 934; of that number Peters' battalion alone lost 157.

"The Loyalist corps that served under Burgoyne seem to have led a precarious existence after their return to Canada, as we find a warrant antedated July 19, 1779, issued by order of Gen. Haldimand for payment of £1634. 8s. 10d. sterling, being the allowance made for the present relief of several corps of Loyalists belonging to Gen. Burgoyne's army and sundry other persons who have taken refuge in this province from the rebellious colonies between 25th June and 24th August, 1779, inclusive.

"The subsistence returns for Royalists commanded by Capt. McAlpine from which the above warrant was issued show the money was for the following parties as the returns denominated:

"Capt. McAlpin's.....	78
Mr. Jessup.....	98
Mr. Peters.....	61
Part of Capt. Leak's.....	30
Part of Mr. Adams'.....	34
Those not attached to parties.....	36

John Peters received £30.

"Later on, in 1779, Gen. Haldimand determined to reorganize these Loyalist corps, if possible, as shown by his letter to Lord George Germaine dated Quebec, November 1, 1779, and which is as follows:

"My lord, I have the honor to present to your Lordship that several Gentlemen amongst whom are Capt. McAlpin, Mr. Leake, Messrs Peters and Jessup, having in consequence of Governor Tryon's Proclamation raised corps, with whom they joined Gen. Burgoyne's army, but having been by his misfortune dispersed, they took refuge in this province with part of their men and made application to me to have their corps re-established and put upon the same footing with the provincial corps that has joined the southern army, but the difficulty that I found in procuring men for the royal emigrants and Sir John Johnson's corps, and fearing that raising others might interfere with their success, I from time to time put them off. Finding these regiments have not been benefited by my design and seeing that the trial may be made without much expense to our government, these gentlemen with a number of other refugee Loyalists being indispensably supported at the public expense and that such corps once raised would be useful particularly as they will be recruited upon the frontiers of Hampshire, and give an influence towards Vermont and that neighborhood, I have thought it expedient to make the attempt and shall begin with two battalions. I shall not give the officers commissions until their men are raised, and in proportion to their success I shall enlarge the plan, trusting to obtain the King's approbation of what I do for the best, and that I shall be enabled to fulfill the expectations of those gentlemen by putting them upon the same footing with the other provincials serving with the army. As soon as the winter sets in I shall permit them to send out people and to employ their friends upon the frontiers in raising men and shall give them every assistance in my power to effect their purpose. I shall at the same time set about raising some companies of Canadians and shall need arms for the purpose."

Gen. Burgoyne's private instructions to Lt.-Col. Baume were as follows:

"The object of your expedition is to try the affections of the country, to disconcert the councils of the enemy, to mount Reidesils Dragoons, to complete Peters' corps, and obtain large supplies of cattle, horses, and carriages. You will send in cattle from Arlington with a proper detachment from Peters' corps. Also as you will return with the regiment of dragoons mounted, you must always have a detachment of Capt. Frazer's or Peters' corps in front of the regiment of dragoons, in order to prevent your falling in with ambuscade when you are marching through the woods."

I* will insert here a short sketch of Col. John Peters' emigration to Cape Breton.

"As soon as it was known that a lieutenant-colonel governor was to be sent to Cape Breton and that grants of land would be issued the same as in the other provinces, heretofore denied, many persons directed their attention there. One of the first was Abraham Cuyler Esq. formerly mayor of Albany, then residing in London, who laid before the King a memorial dated February 21, 1784, in which he stated that he himself and many other persons, who had been deprived of their property on occasion of their loyalty, had moved to Canada in 1782, and were desirous of obtaining grants of lands at Cape Breton with the intention of settling there. This memorial having been favorably received, a number of persons styling themselves the Associated Loyalists, sailed in their vessels for Cape Breton under the charge of Col. Peters, Capt. Jonathan Jones, and Mr. Robertson, late officers in the corps of Royal Rangers, and associates of Mr. Cuyler, where they arrived about October 25. About one hundred and forty persons came out in the vessel furnished with clothing and provisions by the British government. Some settled near St. Peters, others at Baddeck, and the rest at Louisberg."

PETERS TRAITS

“The more one studies histories, and races, and families, the more one must be convinced of the marked and permanent influence of blood despite all the crossings by intermarriages. Every genealogist has noted and marvelled at the continuance, from generation to generation, of some particular type of character visible in the earliest ancestor. . . . To read aright the lessons of human history, to reach wise and safe generalizations, one must not forget the law of descent and the power there is in blood of race.” The present compiler finds these words among the papers of the earlier one, and they form an excellent introduction to the next pages. So distinct and unvaried are the Peters characteristics that it is more than safe to testify to the appearance and traits of our earlier ancestors.

As were, and are, their descendants, in Massachusetts, in Connecticut, in Maine, so undoubtedly was Andrew Peeters and his sons. Fair, even to excess, with blue eyes and brown or light hair, with regular features, and the long, straight Peters nose. Hands and feet, usually small, always shapely, the former with long fingers, the latter narrow. The details vary to a certain extent, but the likeness is there, and becomes not only evident, but pronounced, after they have reached the age of forty, even in cases where there had seemed to be no resemblance at all. In stature probably our ancestors exceeded most of the Peters men of the present day, and were probably of larger mould and heavier build. This one point, the frame and height, is the only instance in which the Peters of the three States named have been found to vary. Testimony from Hebron, Connecticut, and from Andover, Massachusetts, shows the Peters men of present and earlier days to have been tall, many or most of them of six feet in height, and in this respect only, different from their cousins of Boston, and of Maine, who are noticeable for their small bones and medium stature. But tall or short the one true stamp is the bullet head: This is the Peters hall-mark, and is found everywhere accompanied—whatever the other traits—by a sound and practical mind, a great sense of humor, and real wit. The most striking resemblance existed between the late Revd. Charles Russell Treat,* and the sons of Edward Dyer Peters, Senior, of Boston: to reach a common ancestor it was necessary to return to Andrew Peeters, born in 1635, yet Mr. Treat might easily pass—and actually did, even to an immediate member of the family,—for one of his Massachusetts relatives already mentioned.†

“The Peters of our branch have large blue eyes, fair complexion, light brown hair; it is not natural to them to be bald or grey young. My father looked as you see the picture when he died at sixty-eight ‡; a large man of six feet,—walking around the farm with hands clasped behind, which gave him a slight stoop forward; shoulders too narrow for a man of his height. I think the old Andrew must have been fair, as I know grandfather §

* Son of Abigail Thompson (490 VI.) and Selah Burr Treat.

† A singular case is the remarkable likeness existing between the members of the family just mentioned and Mr. William Henry Peters of Norfolk, Va. So far as is known there is no relationship, Mr. W. H. Peters' grandfather being a native of Denmark, but so many of the Peters traits appear, even to the handwriting, and peculiar ways of forming letters, that there is little doubt a tie of blood exists, however remote it may be.

was, fair and blue-eyed, as also Lazy John's* other children, and all of Uncle Joe's † children who succeeded him on the old place. I was the only dark-skinned Peters I ever saw." ‡

"The members of the Peters branch that I have known § were fair with regular features, cared little for display, honest in their dealings with others, systematic, took good care of their belongings. My Aunt Mary, the Governor's sister, ¶ was very systematic. Dinner at twelve, noon, whatever might occur; the clock was always wound at that time. A place for everything and everything in its place." [How often have I heard my father speak those words!] "You could go in the dark and get what you went for in the pantry. A day for each household work. She made no show in dress, but always found time to read notwithstanding her many household duties, and frequent calls. A strong and retentive memory was a marked trait of the Peters. The Governor ¶¶ had a pleasant address, was good company, had much ready wit and humor, but could make very cutting remarks if occasion required. Aunt Mary had much the same traits in a less degree. It was themselves, not what they possessed, that drew people to them, but they were set in opinion; when once they had made their mind it was hard to change them. Those I knew in the past were good men and women. I think ¶¶ John Samuel (553 V.).

Uncle John * was six feet in height, he was well-proportioned. He had a very large head with a bright blue eye. Aunt Mary had blue eyes too. I never saw their brother † but once, but as I remember him they looked much alike. I think I told you when here about Judge Peters of Colchester ‡ starting to go to his farm. He had on an old coat, rubber shoe on one foot, an old boot or shoe on the other. A man gave him a tract and asked him if he could read. His reply was 'I can get some one to read for me.' His son's wife said he did not go out with the old coat again. He had a basket and hoe at the time." [This is deliciously Peters, both as to the garb, and the joke on himself. A Peters will enjoy a joke on himself more than anything else, will tell of it as long as he lives, and will never, never let the other persons concerned know of it. A Peters has a real talent for holding his tongue.] "As a rule the Peters family were a law-abiding people. There were three lawyers out of four sons in one family." [This was the Otis blood.] "The Governor was fond of story-telling" [every Peters is]; "he told them in a very pleasant way, but he could be stern. I have mentioned him more because I knew him better. I was in the habit of coming here from childhood. I heard father tell about Judge John Thompson Peters § buying a prayer-book; it had a plain binding; some one remarked on his selection. His reply was, 'I bought it for use.' "

A member of the family writes of John Peters of Blue Hill ||: "Grandfather Peters was a very jovial man, full of jokes, and also very kind and benevolent to the poor, so I have heard my mother ¶ say, and a very kind man in his family. Mother said she lived there two years before she was married and a year after, and grandfather treated her always like an own child. He was a church-going man and, I judge, of a good disposition from his many kind deeds. I* am quite sure he had blue eyes and light hair. Grandmother had very black eyes and dark complexion."

"I † wrote to a cousin of mine in Lowell, Mass. I think she was ninety-three years old last summer, and her daughter writes in reply: 'Your letter to mother was received. I read it to her, and asked her if she remembered Mr. John Peters.' " [He has been dead nearly eighty-two years.] "'Of course I do,' she said, 'and his wife too. He was a man of medium height, with brown hair, blue eyes, and fair complexion, a fine-looking man and a man who was much respected for his good judgment and integrity. He was a courteous gentleman.' "

"I ‡ was aware that Grandmother Peters § had married a Cushing. You must remember Uncle Cushing, her son; father || was as much attached to him as to any of his own brothers. I remember Grandmother Peters very well. She had a stroke of paralysis some years before she died, which affected her speech and locomotion. She was said to be the handsomest woman in the county, and Grandfather was fond of her, always took her to the table and prepared her food for her. She had sharp black eyes, and was a woman who would weigh probably 175 pounds. Edward Dyer Peters ¶ and Aunt Dodge  resembled her, so did Uncle Daniel ††; the other members of the family resembled Grandfather. I used to enjoy going with father and mother. I can run my mind back to those days and enjoy thinking of the good times I used to have there. The first thing to do after we arrived in the winter trips was for Father and Grandfather to take a little brandy with some nice white loaf sugar, and father would have a little in his tumbler for me to take out with a spoon and drink it. After the brandy began to take a little effect the next thing in order was to go and see his big hogs, then to go to the barn to see the cattle and the hay-mows, and in the evening Pearl Peters * would parch corn. Grandfather was full of fun, and a great joker, always in good spirits, cheerful, and wide-awake. I remember a sleigh he had painted red, with the initials of his name J. P. on the back of it. No Buffalo skins in those days, they used heavy bed-quilts."

From Medfield, Mass., Miss Sewall † writes of an old Bible containing three locks of light brown hair as fresh as if cut yesterday, though the owners were born in 1783, 1760, and 1752, respectively.

A little more of Governor Peters. "Miss Mary Peters, told me ‡ of Uncle John when he was Governor. At that time stage-coach and mail-wagon were the only public conveyances. He was in Hartford, and was coming home (to Hebron) by stage. A colored woman asked for a passage too. 'I cannot take you, I have got to take the Governor,' said the driver. 'Let me see the Governor,' said the woman. 'Get right in, Liddie, get in,' said the Governor. She knew very well she had only to see him. Her husband was Henry Peters, one of the Revd. Samuel Peters' slaves." (So they were of those the Governor used to call his "colored cousins.")

* Pearl Spofford (282 VI.).

† Daughter of the Revd. Charles Sewall, and Amy Peters (109 VI.).

‡ Mrs. Annis Welles, of Hebron.

A letter from Governor Peters, dated Hebron, Dec. 16, 1844, and written to Edward Dyer Peters of Boston, is worth quoting.

“MY DEAR SIR: I recd. a letter from Mr. Ellicott dated Hartford, Ct., Nov. 18th, requesting information on the subject of the Heraldry of our family. I have sought assiduously, but found nothing,—except what I found in the history of Hugh Peters, by Saml. Peters, L.L.D., and what was no more than Mr. Ellicott had obtained before,—to wit Sans Dieu Rien, I have no expectation of making interesting discoveries on the subject, as relates to antiquity,—but from my own observation, give the coat of Arms of that limb of the family that descended from John Peters, who settled in Hebron in 1717, and whose progeny has scattered in all directions,—most indifferent to the varying Costumes of the day, and frivolous fashions that chase each other in ridiculous haste, down the current of time to the Ocean of oblivion,—they have embraced all creeds, all religions, all tenets, in politics, and take great latitude in adopting or rejecting the customs and manners of this or that our lower world—but have abounded in the grace of obstinacy, and an abiding confidence in their own taste and judgment and a Republican determination to serve God,—their Country,—and themselves, in the way and manner that comports with their consciences, their Patriotism,—and their sense of personal convenience; say then, the coat of arms of the family, worn and gloried in is, in plain English,—a slouched hat, tattered coat, and patched pants,—In short they care little for any antiquity or their pedigree anterior to 1620.”

DIVERS FAMILIES

To avoid confusion it is desirable to place families which are not of our blood. Chief among these, from their proximity, are the Peters of Salem, who must have transplanted themselves to Essex County about the same time as did Andrew Peeters of Ipswich. Apparently they were never numerous and now seem to have disappeared altogether, at any rate in the vicinity of their old home. Only a small number can be noted and few of these can be definitely placed.

SALEM

I. Gilbert Peters, born in (abt. 1645), died in (before Aug. 13, 1697); md. in Salem, Mass., Sept. 14, 1669, Elizabeth Hellyard (Hilliard), dau. Edward Hilliard, and , his wife, born in , died in and had five (or more) children.

LONG ISLAND.—This family descends from Dr. Charles Peters, who came to this country early in the 18th century, and who was living in Hempstead, Long Island, in 1720.

At the present day, many interesting old family grave-stones may be found there. The family has been well known in New York City and in New York State, especially in Dutchess County. Some branches settled in Nova Scotia (1793) and in St. John's, N. B. The principal Christian names are Charles, William, James, Richard, Abel, Valentine. A history of this family, entitled A Peters Lineage, compiled by Mrs. Martha Bockée Flint, can be purchased of Alfred Peters, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Price, $2.00.

PHILADELPHIA.—This family descends from the Revd. Richard Peters (1704–1776), who came to this country from England and was settled in Philadelphia as assistant-rector of Christ Church in 1735. Later he was rector of Christ Church and of St. Peter's in Philadelphia. 1737 he was Proprietary Secretary in charge of the Land Office. 1762 to 1775 he was Provincial Secretary and clerk of the Council. Mrs. N. P. Black, of Atlanta, Ga., is compiling a history of this family. See Dorr's History of Christ Church, and Sharpless' Genealogy.

VIRGINIA.—It is almost impossible to place this family or these families. A William Peters first appears in this State in 1635. (See Virginia Magazine, VIII., p. 60.)

1645, Aug. 15, Simon Peter has land granted to him in Virginia, and in 1652 he has fifty acres more for the transportation of Alice Springwell. Vol. II., p. 129, quotes the will of Nathaniel Bacon, March 5, 1691, in which he leaves to Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Peters, "if she live to the age of 21, or be married, a negro girl named Moll, now about 10 years of age and living on the Plantation belonging to the said Peters." There is mention of Peters as an old family in Mead's Old Churches of Virginia, in Surry Co., about Cabin Point church, and this family is said to have been a leading one in the eastern part of the State in Colonial times. There was a General Thomas Peters in Revolutionary days. In Virginia genealogies there is mention of Martha Custis Peters in Leesburg, 1855; of Major Peters of Naletown; of Col. John Peters of Farquhar Co., who removed to Kentucky, probably prior to the 19th century, and whose grandson Belvard John Peters was judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, and Chief Justice of that State from 1874 to 1876.

BETHLEHEM, PA., and PHILADELPHIA.—See Bartow Genealogy for Peters said to descend from George, 1795, a merchant and a Moravian.

DELAWARE and PENNSYLVANIA.—See Sharpless Genealogy.

KENTUCKY.—See McDonald Genealogy. A family said to have settled there from Wales about the middle of the 18th century.

MARYLAND.—There is a family which writes its name Peter, and which has been well known in Washington and in Georgetown. Mr. William Henry Peters of Norfolk, Va., already mentioned on account of his remarkable likeness to some of the Boston members of the Peters of New England, is the son of a Danish sea-captain who settled in Newburyport, Mass., either late in the 18th century or early in the 19th.

Thomas Peters of Plymouth, Mass., early in 1700 was probably ancestor of the family settled in Plympton, Mass., one of whose descendants undoubtedly was sergeant Amos Peters, a Revolutionary soldier, who died at Mount Airy, N. J., aged 90, Jan. 14, 1849. Some of this family removed to Berwick, Maine. There are colored Peters in Hanover, Mass., and many of their descendants in Warren, Maine, a whole school district being composed of them. It was usual in former times for slaves to take their master's family name. One man testified that, whereas his name was Francis, his brother was Peters, having, since he belonged to the Revd. Andrew Peters of Middleton, assumed that name.

There are isolated Peters who may be of great interest to us. Who was Arthur of Wethersfield, Conn., who died unmarried in 1690, and left his estate to Ephraim Goodrich of the same town?

Who was Dr. John Peters, residing in Woburn, Mass., and who in April, 1719, had a suit against Samuel Moulton, for his services as a physician? He says he comes from Rhode Island and is going to Boston. There is also a mention of his being in Windsor, Conn.

Who is Capt. Peter, aged 40, in 1657, a Dutchman, trading to the Eastward, in Oct., 1656?

Who is John Petts, or Pettis, or Pittis, of Ipswich, Mass., in 1642, later of Hatfield, Mass., where he is killed by the Indians in 1675?

Who is John Peters of Gravesend, Long Island, in 1652 (or 1642)?

Who is Ann Peters of the 1st church in Boston, 1632?

Who is David Senior, in Capt. Joseph Robertson's Co., Dec. to Feb. 18, 1710-1711, at Annapolis Royal?

David, Jr., is killed there Jan. (or June 10), 1711.

1711, "Major Paul Mascarene's Co of New England troops, during its being at Annapolis Royal in Her Majesties' Service from the 10th of October, 1710, to the 10th of October, 1711: James Petties, Dec to Mar. 3."

Who is Jonathan Peters "Centinel," and Ebenr Petter, of Springfield, 1722?

And Josiah, John, Elisha, and Thomas "Peter," in Capt. Richard Bourne's Co. in 1725? Samuel Peters in Capt. Richard Kimball's Co. 1725?

Capt. Peters in Falmouth in 1725?

Josiah and Ephraim in the expedition to the West Indies in 1740?

John and Sarah of Newport, Rhode Island, in 1713?

And the Peters of Richmond, N. H., formerly from Cumberland, R. I., late in 1700, and giving freely of their men to Col. Doolittle's regiment at the battle of Bunker Hill? The names of Richard, Ebenezer, Israel, and Ephraim do not appear to belong to us, but may be of the Salem family.

Among the early settlers of Londonderry, N. H., is to be found a John Peters, whose widow was Lydia Peters, apparently living in Andover, Mass., in 1777, when, she receives a letter from her brother, Jonathan Stevens? (See Miss Bailey's History of Andover.)

Mrs. Betsey Peters, who married Isaac Cousens of Brooklin, Maine, was daughter of Maurice Peters, and sister of James who married in Ellsworth, Maine, in 1861, Mrs. Mary Beal; they are not of the Peters of New England. (See page 122.)

It is possible that this Maurice descends from Maurice Peters who, with wife and child, was among the Loyalists mustered in Digby, Nova Scotia, in 1784, and who may be of the Long Island family.

¹ Names of those only who served in the regular army, or of those who were in militia companies in time of war, and were, or were likely to be, called upon for active service, are included in this list. The name of John Hamilton, who died while trying to save others from drowning, should, however, be mentioned here (p. 116). Divisions are appended in which the names of individuals are to be found.

² "Having in mind the new demand for critical accuracy imposed by the growing interest in American genealogy and biography, and especially in the patriotic societies like the Society of Colonial Wars, I have spared no pains to make my book absolutely correct. I have tested the lists of names, the dates, and other matter, from Hull's accounts, and am confident that they are entirely accurate. I have realized the importance of absolute accuracy here, since any one who can trace descent from one of these who are credited with military service, has an indisputable claim to membership in the above named society." (Italics compiler's.)—Soldiers in King Philip's War, by George Madison Bodge, A.B., Member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, and Chaplain of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars.

¹ Names of all families in any way related to Peters descendants are included. A widow is indexed under her maiden name, followed by her former husband's in parentheses. Family names have been left as found, even where spellings conflict. A second mention of one name on the same page when referring to a different individual, causes the name to be repeated in the index.
