WOMEN'S SUIT,
DAMAGES $10,000

Mrs. Louise Sanborn of 145 E. Westminster st., Lake Forest, yesterday filed a $10,000 damage suit in the Circuit Court at Waukegan against Miss E. J. O'Neil, owner of a beauty shop in Lake Forest.

Mrs. Sanborn, daughter of the late Maj. Joseph Kirkland, of one of Chicago's oldest and most socially prominent families, based her suit on an accident last January 29 in Miss O'Neil's beauty shop.

According to the bill Mrs. Sanborn was receiving a hair-dressing treatment and the electric instrument used was equipped with celluloid combs. Because, she charges, of "careless and negligent" handling the combs became ignited.

This in turn set fire to her hair and she sustained severe burns on her neck, as well as on her face, hands and arms when she attempted to beat out the flames. The accident, she says, resulted in her being in a hospital for some weeks and the loss of her hair. 1920

HISTORICAL PREFACE.

The present volume is, in the truest sense, a joint production, representing as it does the labors of three generations of American Sanborns. I have been unable to ascertain who first collected genealogical data for the family history, but in all probability the title of Father of the Sanborn Genealogy properly belongs to Dr. Nathan Sanborn (521), whose biography appears on page 272, of this volume.

The first concerted effort to compile a family history was the organization, at Manchester, N. H., on October 5, 1853, of the Sanborn Genealogical Association, the proceedings being as follows :

At a meeting of those who bear the name of Sanborn, held at the City Hall, Manchester, N. H., October 5, 1853, 2 o'clock p. m.,

Voted, That Dr. Nathan Sanborn act as chairman, and Dr. Eastman Sanborn as secretary.

Voted, That it is expedient to form an association for the purpose of collecting, preserving and diffusing information respecting those who bear the name of Sanborn.

Voted, A committee of three, appointed by the Chair, shall draft a constitution and nominate officers. This committee, composed of E. D. Sanborn, Eastman Sanborn, and John D. Sanborn, reported a constitution, which was accepted, and nominated for permanent officers :

President—DYER H. SANBORN.

Vice-President—B. W. SANBORN.

Recording Secretary—NATHAN SANBORN.

Corresponding Secretary—EASTMAN SANBORN.

Treasurer—EDWIN D. SANBORN.

These nominations were confirmed.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE 1. This association shall be denominated the Sanborn Genealogical Association.

ART. 2. The object of the association shall be to collect, preserve, and diffuse information respecting every family or individual in this or any other state and who may have borne the name of Sanborn, or may have been connected by consanguinity or affinity with any person who has borne that name.

ART. 3. The officers of the association shall be a president, vice-president, a corresponding and recording secretary, and a treasurer, who shall be ex officio a board of directors to transact the business of the society.

ART. 4. The association shall meet as often as the directors shall deem it expedient, provided only one meeting shall be held in a year, and shall be called together by order of the president, and published in two papers, at least, in New England.

ART. 5. Any person may become a member by subscribing this constitution and paying into the treasury one dollar.

The association soon numbered a hundred and fifty members, and all contributed more or less valuable data for the family history. With these materials, and with the assistance of several well-known genealogists of the time, Dr. Nathan Sanborn compiled and published in the July and October, 1856, numbers of the New England Historic-Genealogical Register a well-arranged and fairly complete tabulation of the family pedigree, in nineteen pages. This, republished in pamphlet form, was one of the earliest American genealogies printed; eliciting much praise for its simplicity and completeness. A copy was sent to every member of the family association, and the indefatigable officers of that body at once began to amplify the printed record. The following year the subjoined circular was sent to all Sanborns whose addresses could be obtained, and it shows the business-like way in which the larger work was begun.

CIRCULAR.

DEAR SIR: We take this method to apprise you, if not already acquainted with the fact, that an association of those who bear the name of SANBORN, or are by blood or affinity connected with those of that name, has been formed for the purpose of collecting and preserving genealogical information of their ancestry, and to solicit whatever aid you may be able to afford us in securing the objects of our association. The conditions of membership are the payment of one dollar toward the necessary expenses of the association, postage, printing, etc., and forwarding to the secretary the record of his own family, and those of his ancestry as far back as he can trace it. In return, he receives a certificate of membership and our genealogies as fast as we are able to print them. The services of the officers are all gratuitous.

We have printed one edition in pamphlet form of twenty-one pages, comprising more than seven hundred names, the matter of which has been at the same time published in the New England Historic and Genealogical Register, Vol. X. We propose to print, as soon as the amount of material and the state of our funds will admit, a second edition, containing at least double the amount of genealogical matter embraced in the first.

The first five generations, it is believed, are nearly complete in our first edition, making all reasonable allowance for mistakes in transcribing and printing. The task, thus far, was rendered comparatively easy by the full and legible records kept by the town and church of Hampton; that is, while the descendants of John and William Sanborn remained within the limits of that town, as then bounded. But when the inhabitants of the older towns, for want of room, began to emigrate to newer settlements, where meagre records mark their course, their footprints are not so readily traced, and we are compelled to rely on the reminiscences of the aged among the living, or detached records of families that have been transmitted from parents to children on a blank leaf in the old time-worn but venerated family Bible. On the interest manifested by the living of our race in this enterprise of rescuing from oblivion a knowledge of their ancestry, and their promptitude in acting on it, will depend its ultimate success.

At a meeting of the association at Concord, October 9, 1856, a large committee was appointed, to be addressed through a circular from the Secretary and solicited to aid him with all the materials within the reach of any reasonable effort, for this second edition. We want names, dates of birth, marriage, and death, and, if practicable, residence and occupation (taking particular care that letters and figures be perfectly legible).

We would like to embellish our book with a few portraits, and offer to any, who will be at the expense of a suitable plate, its insertion in the proper place.

We are anxious this edition should be as perfect as possible, as it will probably be the last issued by the present acting members of the association. If mistakes are noticed in our last (and we know it abounds in them), we shall be happy to have them pointed out, and will cheerfully correct them in our next.

As a member of this committee, you are solicited to render the secretary all the aid in your power, by procuring funds and records. If any to whom this is sent have not received our pamphlet, they may be supplied by application to the secretary. If you know any one of our name whom you would judge a suitable assistant in this work, please address him, or notify the secretary that he may do so.

Yours truly,

NATHAN SANBORN,
Recording Secretary.

Henniker, N. H., April 6, 1857.

In 1858, Dr. Nathan Sanborn died, and his material was put into the hands of Dyer H. Sanborn, president of the Sanborn Association, and as untiring a worker as his predecessor. He sent other circulars to the Sanborn family and instituted a personal correspondence with nearly a thousand of the name. No one who has not gone through the papers which he left can form any idea of the immensity of his work. All his letters were written with his own hand, and after he had obtained the family data from a correspondent, he re-wrote it himself, and forwarded it to the sender to be corrected and returned. From this correspondence he then tabulated a record of the entire family, forming about three hundred pages of closely-written manuscript on foolscap paper.

The completion of this record would have taken many years, and Dyer Sanborn died in 1871, with much uncompleted, and with his courage somewhat dampened by the unending character of his task. His papers were in the possession of the widow of his son until a few years ago, when they were turned over by her to Mr. Thomas L. Sanborn, a son of Dr. Nathan Sanborn. By him they were filed away in neat order, but no further attempt was made to publish the family history.

More than twelve years ago, I turned my attention to the Sanborn genealogy, investigating particularly the English origin of our family, which had never received much attention. In the Genealogical Register for July, 1885, I published a short account of the English Sambornes, correcting the many errors in our American pamphlets and articles. In this article, which was afterwards issued in pamphlet form, I collected the facts which were obtainable from printed records in this country and England, but, of course, was unable to search English records. In 1887, Gen. John B. Sanborn, of St. Paul, reprinted the pamphlet genealogy and my article in book form, adding thereto a most interesting account of his branch and of his own life.

About this time, Rev. Moses Runnels, of Sanbornton, published a very complete and admirable history of that town, and embodied in the genealogies an exhaustive record of the Sanbornton Sanborns, their branches and descents. It is to be regretted that he accepted the erroneous coat-of-arms which Mr. S. G. Drake had engraved for the Register article, and which was also included in the pamphlet genealogy.

Five years ago, I began to think of publishing the family history, and collected and tabulated the genealogies mentioned above, and many more extracted from town histories, etc. At this time, I had not seen the Dr. Nathan Sanborn collections, and while my data were very copious, they were incomplete in the middle generations. My especial interest was still to find the English home of our race, and I had elaborated my records on that subject, when, in the spring of 1895, I had the long-wished-for opportunity to search English records in England. The results of that investigation were very fortunate and completely upset the Samborne lines given in the printed and manuscript pedigrees of the name in England. I was able to trace a connected pedigree from Nicholas Samborne of 1330 to the present day.

By the kindness of the editor of the Granite Monthly, I was able to publish my researches in that magazine, and to reprint them in pamphlet form. A year later, I printed my "Samborne Ancestry" in the English Genealogist, the authority on such subjects on that side of the water. In spite of a protracted search, since pursued by friendly genealogists abroad, I have been unable to find the exact connecting link between the two continents, although my theoretical connection has been accepted as undeniable circumstantial evidence.

From this time, I devoted my attention to the American line, and printed my "First Sambornes of Hampton, N. H.," in the Register for January, 1897. A few months later, I began the great work in earnest, and sent out blanks to two thousand Sanborns in this country. The results have been very favorable. I have traced out several new lines, and am able at last to present as complete a family history, I venture to say, as any such American family has ever possessed.

In announcing this result, I do not claim more than my share of whatever credit is due. Had it not been for the researches of Dr. Nathan Sanborn and Dyer H. Sanborn, whose papers were very kindly placed at my disposal by Mr. Thomas L. Sanborn, this volume would have been decidedly incomplete. The assistance of my father, Mr. F. B. Sanborn, and the researches made in 1856 by my uncle, Dr. Charles H. Sanborn, have been invaluable, and my kinsmen and kinswomen have been very kind in furnishing data. I must particularly acknowledge the kindness of Miss Katherine L. Morrill of Exeter, N. H., who has transcribed many early deeds of great interest.

Let me also take this opportunity of expressing my sincere appreciation of the uniform kindness, courtesy, and liberality of my kinsmen and friends and especially of Gen. John B. Sanborn and Mr. Sherburn Sanborn, who have most substantially aided in obtaining the fruits of English research. And I thank all the friends, on both sides of the Atlantic, who have so generously aided the work with information and good counsel. Especially is an acknowledgment due to Mr. W. P. W. Phillimore of London, and to another English friend, who have edited the English part of this work.

EXPLANATORY PREFACE.

The different chapters of this volume are arranged, as far as possible, in chronological order. First comes a treatise on the family name and arms. Then, the English pedigree, arranged in the English manner, by branches. Next, the probable connection with the American Sanborns. Next, an account of Rev. Stephen Bachiler, and a chapter illustrative of early Hampton customs. Then follows the history of the American family, and then an index of Revolutionary Sanborns. The last chapter of the book, contributed by Frank B. Sanborn of Concord, Mass., gives the local color, and shows New Hampshire life in this and the last century.

The arrangement of the American Sanborns is intended to be a simple numerical cross-reference. Where the family record is brought down to the present day, each head of a family is given a consecutive number. To trace a line down, then, refer to the number preceding the Christian name. To trace a line back, refer to the number in parentheses after the Christian name. Thus, on page 161, Matthew Nealley Sanborn is number 497; his record is given on page 261. On page 261, we find him described as 497. CAPT. MATTHEW NEALLEY (188) SANBORN. The number (188) here given is the number designating Captain Sanborn's father, whose record we find on page 161.

THE ENGLISH SAMBORNES.

A PREFATORY NOTE BY THE EDITOR.

The delay in publication of the Sanborn Genealogy has resulted in a more complete volume, both as regards the English and American parts. New clues recently found as to the English home of the American Sanborns led me to hope that before the book was issued explicit proof could be discovered. With this idea in mind, I instituted another exhaustive search of English records. Search has now been made through the Registers of the older London parishes, through new files of wills at Somerset House and elsewhere; and a most thorough and minute examination of the Municipal Records of Andover, Hampshire.

It was a disappointment in a sense, and yet not in another, that nothing giving exact proof as to the home of the first Sambornes of America came to light after this effort. Circumstantial evidence leaves no reasonable doubt that the father of John, William, and Stephen Samborne of Hampton was one of the Hampshire Sambornes, descended from Nicholas of Mapledurham. In my opinion his marriage and the baptism of his children were performed by Stephen Bachiler, and the records thereof were destroyed when Bachiler's library was burned, about 1645.

THE FAMILY NAME AND ITS ORIGIN.

The name of SAMBORNE or SANBORN, with its different variations, is not uncommon in America, as the size of this volume shows; it is extremely rare in England, however, and all evidences point to there having been but one distinct family of the name from ancient times.

The earliest mention of the family name in England (A. D. 1194) gives it as DE SANDEBURNE, but as early as 1330 it is spelled SAMBORNE or SAMBOURNE. Since the fourteenth century the last two forms have been the accepted English spelling, and the only two branches now in existence in England use these.

Our first ancestors in America spelled their name SAMBORNE, and, with or without the final "e," so it was spelled for several generations.

Gradually the "m" was changed to "n," until by 1750 the name was spelled as at present, the final "e" being altogether dropped. The original and traditional pronunciation in this country was Sahmbourn, with a marked accent on the first syllable. To-day the Illinois Sanborns and the Michigan Sandborns alone vary the accepted spelling of Sanborn in America.

All American Sanborns are descended from the Hampton settlers of 1639, except a few Germans or Swedes originally named Sandberg, etc., who preferred the American family name.

Competent authorities accept as the most simple and evident derivative, the Anglo-Saxon words, Sand and Burna (a stream), evidently a place name, deriving its meaning from some sandy locality traversed by a stream. Undoubtedly the surname of Samborne is local in its origin, deriving from some place or village of the name. Of surnames of local origin there are two classes: in the first the name was assumed by the bearer because, as lord of the manor or considerable landowner, he was pre-eminently of the place; in the second, men of humbler birth acquired a place name for their surname because it was their place of origin. From the social status of the family in mediæval times it seems probable that Samborne belongs to the former class, and there are indications that it originates from Sambourne in Warminster, Wilts.

There are several places in England from which our family may have derived its name.

1. SAMBOURNE, a division of the parish of Warminster, in Wiltshire. The earliest record of the family name in England is associated with Wiltshire; therefore this is probably the place from which the Sambornes took their name. The historian of Warminster, Rev. J. J. Daniell, writes me that he has never been able to decide from what physical feature Sambourne took its name. It was a small and ancient manor, or at least possessed manorial privileges as early as 1307; and as will be seen under the history of the English family, was probably a manor in 1194-5. It is now a division or hamlet of the parish of Warminster, and on Sambourne Hill is located the Union Workhouse. Warminster itself is a thriving town of Western Wilts, situated almost on the Somerset boundary, twenty-one miles northwest from Salisbury, and directly east of Frome, Somt., where the Sambornes owned property in the seventeenth century. I have found no mention of Samborne as a family name in Warminster.

2. SAMBOURNE BRIDGE, in the northern part of Wiltshire, is over the Derry Brook, in the parish of Cricklade St. Sampson, just on the edge of Minety. As will be seen, the Wiltshire Sambornes were very early connected with North Wilts and with the Cricklade family. I have been unable to ascertain much about this bridge, or how it derived its name. In the "Perambulation of the Forests of Wilts" in 1300, I find mention of the "Bridge of Samborne," apparently between Studley and Lacock.

3. SAMBOURNE, in the parish of Coughton, Warwick. Dugdale, in his "History of Warwickshire," says,—“Of this place, having its originall denomination from that little brook nigh unto which it stands. I find very antient mention, viz: in anno DCCXIV, it being then (inter alia) given to the monks of Evesham by Egwin, Bishop of Worcester, upon the foundation thereof.” It is situated in the southwestern part of Warwickshire, near Stratford-on-Avon, and is mentioned in Domesday, spelled “Sandburne.” I can find no reason for believing that our family had any connection with this place.

4. SANDBOURNE, a tything of Kidderminster, the great carpet-weaving town of England, situated in Worcestershire, northwest from Sambourne in Warwick. This place was originally called “Sandleburne,” and I can find no reason for believing there was any connection with our family.

5. SANDBURN, a hamlet of the parish of Stockton-on-the-Forest in the North Riding of Yorkshire, a few miles north of the city of York. Mr. Gell, the rector of Stockton, writes me,—“I fear I cannot give you much information. I should say it originally derived its name from a sand-hill in the locality, which is now to be seen on Sandburn Farm; and from a little burn or brook, which I understand flows near to it. The whole neighborhood is of a sandy description. In Sandburn Wood is the shaft of an ancient cross seven feet high, which is supposed to be an ancient boundary-mark of the commons belonging to the Freemen of York.” This hamlet is mentioned in Domesday, spelled “Sanburna,” and was at that time held by Ralph Paganel; later it was held by the Boltons. I can trace no connection with the English Sambornes, except that in the somewhat mythical pedigree on pages 50-1 the family name is stated to have been “Sambueren,” and all the matches given are with well-known North Country and Yorkshire families.

6. SOMBOURNE in Hampshire, and STAMBORNE in Essex, may be mentioned here, although I do not think there is any possible connection.

THE HERALDRY OF SAMBORNE.

In many instances, American genealogies have given too little attention to the correct use of heraldry. Too often has it been the aim of the compiler to furnish a coat of arms or a crest, without being careful enough to assure himself that it can be honorably used.

Until the present writer began, in 1885, to investigate the subject of Samborne heraldry, it had received scant attention in this country. In the pamphlet genealogy published in 1856, a coat-of-arms and crest were engraved, apparently by Mr. S. G. Drake, the authority for which was not cited, and for which I have been unable to find the slightest reason. It certainly never was a Samborne coat-of-arms, and it is impossible in heraldry. The crest engraved is that given in most collections of crests as belonging to Samborne, but which I am assured by an English Herald there has never been warrant for believing really belonged to the name. Where its use originated, I cannot say. Mr. Dyer H. Sanborn printed some notes in the Register for 1857, about the English Sambornes and their arms, but they were full of errors.

In fact, there is but one true Samborne coat-of-arms; and an eminent authority, Dr. George W. Marshall, LL. D., Rouge Croix Pursuivant, writes me it was evidently used before the days of grants of arms. A search at the Herald's College results in the following references:

1. SAMBORNE OF SOUTHCOT, BERKS. Quarterly (1) and (4) [SAMBORNE] Argent, a chevron, sable, between three mullets gules, pierced or. (2) [LUSHILL OF WILTS] Argent, a pale fusilly, gules, within a bordure azure, bezantée. (3) [DREW OF WILTS, BERKS, AND DEVON.] Ermine, a lion passant guardant, gules. No crest. This coat in 1566 was allowed and confirmed to Thomas Samborne of Sonning, Berks, grandson of Drew Samborne of Southcot, who bore the quarterings as above.

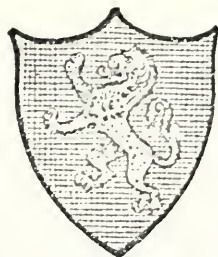

2. SAMBORNE OF TIMSBURY, SOMT. Argent, a chevron, sable, between three mullets gules, pierced or. Crest, a mullet as in the arms. This coat and crest in 1672 were allowed and confirmed to Maudley Samborne of Timsbury, sixth in descent from Drew Samborne's brother, Nicholas of Mapledurham. Although Nicholas Samborne had the same right to the Drew and Lushill quarterings as his brother, his descendants at Timsbury did not use them, but bore the mullet as crest,—which I assume to have been a new crest, since Sir Barnaby Samborne's seal, affixed, in 1590, to a document at Timsbury, shows no crest at all.

3. SAMBOURNE OF MOULSFORD, BERKS. The same arms as (2). Crest, a bull's head erased, sable, armed or, holding in the mouth three wheat-ears of the last. This coat and crest were, in 1665, confirmed and allowed to Richard Sambourne of Cholsey, Berks, a great-grandson of Drew Sambourne, the crest being in allusion to his descent from the Drews.

4. SAMBOURNE (said to be of Moulsoford, Berks, Cos. Hants, and Somt.). The same arms as (2) and (3). Crest, a hand holding a sheaf of arrows, all proper. Although this crest is described in every heraldic dictionary as belonging to Samborne, I can find no authority for it at the Heralds' College. It may have been a late seventeenth century grant, but I doubt its authenticity.

5. SAMBORNE (no location). Sable (another, azure), a lion rampant, or. No crest. This coat is given in Glover's "Ordinary of Arms" as belonging to Sir John Samborne, and is also mentioned by Burke, etc., but I think in error; probably confounded (because of a Samborne inter-marriage in 1490 or thereabouts), with the arms of Brocas of Beaurepaire (Sable, a lion rampant-guardant, or). This, I take it, is the coat which the Pamphlet Genealogy of 1856 still farther confused by adding five mullets to it.

ARMS OF SIR JOHN SAMBORNES.
From Glover's Ordinary.

Under the rules of British heraldry, coat-armour can be borne only by those who deduce a straight line from some ancestor of their name who bore it of right. If the exact connecting link between the American and English families shall prove to be, as I incline to believe, through the descendants of the Hampshire Sambornes of the sixteenth century, then we shall be entitled to bear the ancient Samborne arms.

It may be observed here that the arms of the noble Belgian family of SANDBERG are very similar to the English Samborne arms in device, though different in tincture. The noble English family of CRETING bore the chevron and mullets; this family became extinct in the male line during the fourteenth century, and it may be the Sambornes descend from them in a female line.

PEDIGREE OF THE ENGLISH SAMBORNES.

The Samborne ancestry has, through the writer's researches, been traced to a NICHOLAS SAMBORNE of Wiltshire, born, about 1320. The pedigree and its proofs are given in the following pages in extenso, because all previously compiled Samborne descents have contained errors which are here disproved.

In thus attempting a detailed English pedigree, the writer hesitated to depend too much upon his own authority, and he gratefully acknowledges the kindness and care of Mr. W. P. W. Phillimore, the well-known London genealogist, and of another English friend thoroughly versed in the subject, who have edited this part of the work.

SOME EARLY REFERENCES.

A few scattered notes of very early date should be given before beginning the connected pedigree, as they show the existence of the family name in Wiltshire and Somersetshire during the twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth centuries.

Wiltshire.—The most ancient mention is in Wiltshire, and occurs in the earliest "Eyre-Roll" of the Norman kings in England,—dated in 1194, and published by the Pipe Roll Society. On this roll occurs the name of JULIANA DE SANDEBURNE, defendant in a case of novel disseisin, the Latin wording being as follows :

"Assisa venit recognitura, si Juliana De Sandeburne, invitos et sine iudicio disseisit Hawisiam et Sarram de libero tenemento suo in Sandeburne, post primam coronationem domini Regis. Et Hawisia et Sarra non venientibus. Juliana teneat in pace, et Hawisia et Sarra in misericordia Regis quia non persequuntur."

The case was heard in October, 1194, before the five justices for Wiltshire, sitting at Wilton; their names were, William of St. Mary's Church, the Abbot of Malmsbury, Richard of Heriet, Ralph of Harden, and Thomas of Husseburne. Briefly put in English the case is a complaint that Juliana, lady of the Wiltshire manor of Sandeburne or Samborne, had dispossessed two tenants of hers, who failed to appear to prosecute, so that she was allowed to hold in the King's peace. This would seem to show the existence of a manor and lord thereof at Sambourne Wilts in 1194.

A thorough search of the Lay Subsidy Rolls for Wilts reveals the following :

12th 1 Edw. III (1327) Trowbrigge. D. RICO. SAMBORN. xijd.

12th 7 Edw. III (1333) " D. RICO. SAUMBURN. xijd.

This Richard Samborne I take to have been the father of Nicholas, who begins the pedigree.

On July 10, 1415, a commission issued to Joan, widow of Richard Samborne, late of Lacock, to administer the goods of the latter. This Richard I take to have been a son of the first Nicholas.

Somersetshire.—An early reference shows a family of De Sambourne in Yeovil, Somt., in the fourteenth century. As there is some evidence that Robert de Sambourne was connected with the Bishop of Gloucester, this was very likely a branch of the North Wiltshire Sambornes.

A. D 1334. "Before John de Middleton, commissary of the lord bishop, Jchanna de Samborne de Jevele (Yeovil), pro incontinentia cum domino Galfrido, rectore de Kyngston juxta Jevele. Ipsa personaliter et venit et ponitur se legitime". (What this last phrase signifies, I don't know, perhaps, "puts herself on trial.")—Register of Bishop Ralph of Shrewsbury.

Robert Sambourne or Robert de Sambourne (sometimes spelled without the "u"), was a rich and prominent churchman of Somerset, probably a brother of Joan of Yeovil mentioned above. His birthplace and the date of his birth are unknown; but he became priest of Merriot, Somt., in 1333, and priest of Kingston, near Ilminster, Somt., in 1349. He gave up these churches in 1362, when he became priest of the flourishing town of Yeovil, on the river Yeo, in the southernmost part of Somerset. He remained priest of this parish until his death, but was early connected with the Cathedral of Wells; and in 1369 he was elected Seneschal of Wells Cathedral, being already Canon of Bath and Wells. His will, dated 1382, and filed at Lambeth (201A, Courtenay) is in Latin, and briefly is as follows:

“Body to be buried in Wells Cathedral if I happen to die in Wells; if not, then in my parish church of Yeovil. For my funeral I leave £20. For my executors £40. Remainder for the work of the church in Yeovil. Executors. Walter Wincalton, Canon of Bath and Wells; John Tyntennull, vicar of said church; Stephen Blancombe, capellanus; Hugh King, my valet.”

Probate granted at Maghtfeldt, Sept. 12, 1382. Acquittance of executors given at Lambeth, November, 1382, when he is called Canon of Bath and Wells, and Rector of Iveie. The Public Records during the reign of Edward III contain frequent reference to Robert de Sambourne, who received for his church many lands and bequests.

THE SAMBORNES OF WILTSHIRE.

I. NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, born about 1320. Probably held the fourth part of a knight's fee in Biddestone St. Nicholas, Wilts, since we find there in 1358 a “Nicholas de Biddestone.” See a more detailed account of this fee under Nicholas (II). With Hugo de la Lynde, Nicholaus Sambourne represented Bath City at the Parliament held at Westminster, Nov. 3, 1391. An obit was held annually on October 16th at the Priory of Kington St. Mary, Wilts, for the memory of Nicholas Samborne and Nicholas his son, benefactors of the Priory.

The son and heir of Nicholas Samborne was Nicholas II, of whom next.

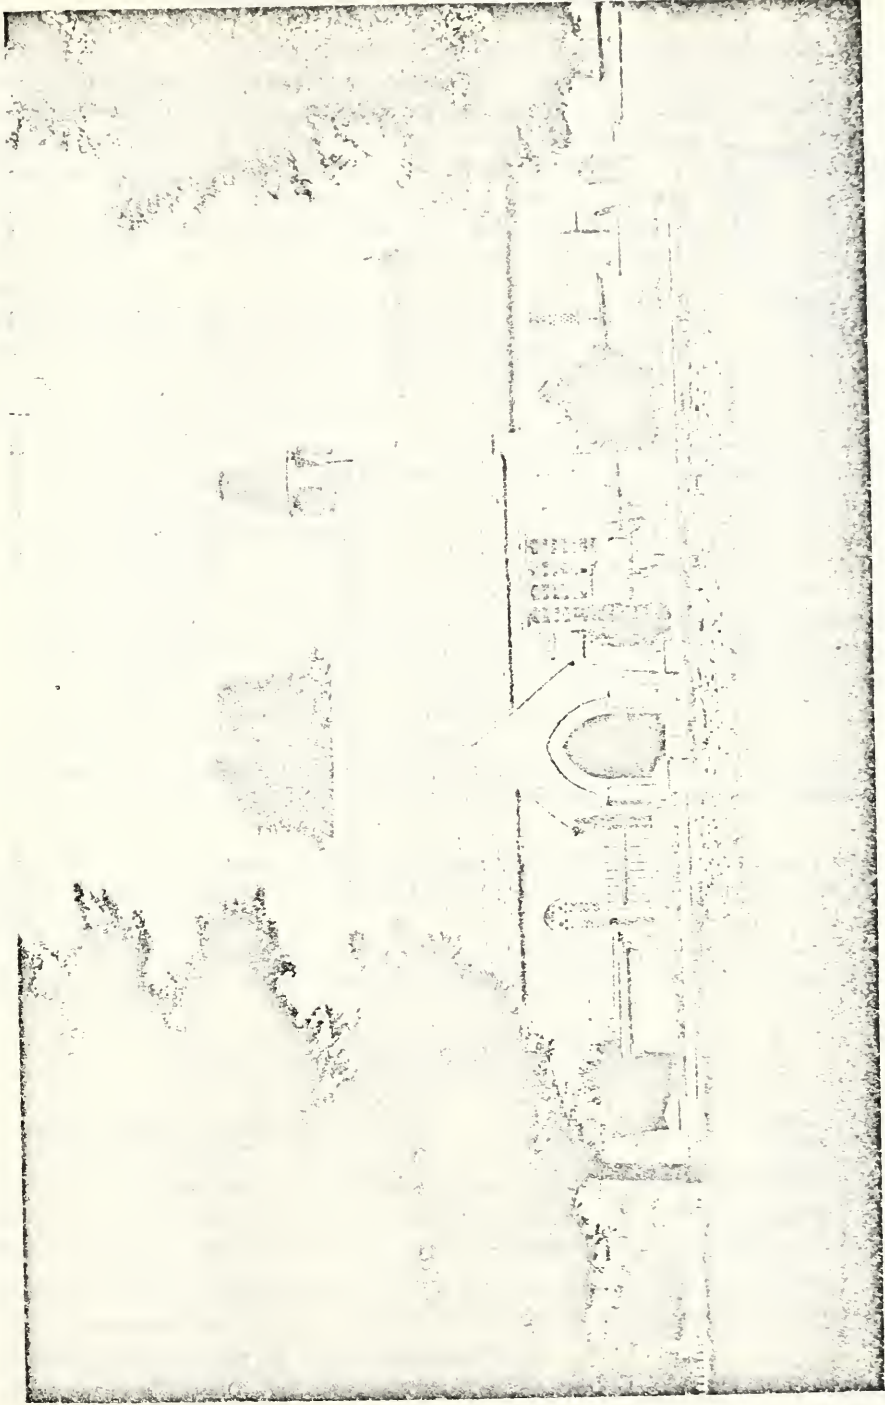

II. NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, born about 1350. From 1390 to 1404, says Mr. Poulett-Scrope in his “History of Castle Combe,” Nicholas Samborne held a part of the manor of Biddestone St. Nicholas, Wilts, the fourth part of a knight's fee. This fee, a part of the manor of Castle Combe, was in 1309 bought by Lord Badlesmere, and descended to his daughter, Margaret, wife of Sir John Tiptoft. Their son, Sir Robert Tiptoft, dying without heir male, in 1372, the premises were divided among four coheireses, the Biddestone lands probably passing to Millicent, wife of Sir John Fastolf, with the manor of Castle Combe. Fastolf, the “Sir John Falstaffe” of Shakespeare, was a renowned Captain in the French wars, and is buried in Castle Combe Church. Nicholas Samborne held Biddestone under the Lords of Castle Combe, and, as we have seen, his father probably did before him. Biddestone, whose location will be seen on the map, is a small village of two parishes, both now under the charge of Rev. Mr. Johnson, who sent the view of St. Nicholas Church which is here engraved.

At the Parliament held at Westminster, January 27, 1393-4, "Nicholaus Samborn, junior," with Hugo de la Lynde, represented Chippenham Borough; and a year later we find "Nicholaus Samborn junior" representing Malmesbury Borough with Thomas Froud. In 1395 "Nicholas Samborne junior" bought from Walter Hertland and John Perham land in Worton, Potterne, Hurst, Merston, Fydington, and Bishop's Lavington. These hamlets and villages are a mile or so from Biddestone. In 1401, still called junior, he bought from Thomas Bonde and Alice his wife, lands in Malmesbury, Burton, and Thornhill. In 1403 he bought from his nephew, William Sybille, one third of the manor of Lusteshull, Wilts, and Sir Thomas Phillipps quotes a license of 1409 to Nicholas Sambury (sic) Jr., and Katherine his wife, of Fernham and Lusteshull, to erect an oratory.

Katherine, the wife of Nicholas Samborne, was the youngest daughter and co-heir of Sir John Lushill or De Lusteshull; a detailed account of her ancestry is given on the next page. This intermarriage with the Lushills, who were connected with or dependent upon the House of Lancaster, was probably the means of advancing the Sambornes into a better position. We find that in the first years of the reign of Henry IV the Samborne possessions included the manors of Fernham, Berks, and Lushill, Wilts. FERNHAM is a parish near Faringdon, Berks, in the Vale of White Horse, which the late Thomas Hughes has made so familiar. I have found nothing of note concerning it, and my friend, Rev. P. H. Ditchfield, editor of the Berks Archaeological Magazine, writes me there are no ancient buildings there. How Nicholas Samborne obtained Fernham manor, I cannot say. LUSHILL manor was inherited by his wife in part, and the other part purchased from her sister's son in 1403. Lushill is now a tything of Castle Eaton, and the present owner, Mr. John Archer, has not been able to give me any historical data about it.

The next Samborne, son and heir of Nicholas, I have not been able to locate by Christian name. He is — Samborne III, of whom on page 9.

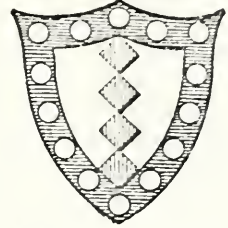

ST. NICHOLAS CHURCH, BIDDESTON, WILTS.

The family of De Lusteshull or Lushill was of considerable antiquity, long seated at Lushill in Wilts. Their arms, as shown in the margin, are entered on several old Heraldic Rolls, but the origin of the family I have not found. A line extinct in 1410, little is known of them, and my notes on them, as well as on the family of Crekelade, are owing in large part to the kindness of my friend, Mr. Story-Maskelyne.

NICHOLAS DE LUSTESHULL, who in 1240 witnessed a charter of Henry III, was sheriff of Wilts. 1246-9, and again in 1267. He is mentioned in the Testa de Nevill as holding one and one half knight's fees in Lusteshull.

JOHN DE LUSTESHULL and Joan his wife, in 1333, bought from Walter and Peter de Worthe land in Lusteshull, Hanyngdon and Widhill. In 1341 the same John and Joan took from feoffees the manor of Lusteshull. They were the parents of:

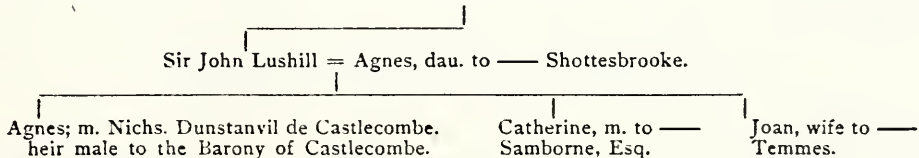

ARMS OF LUSTESHULL
LUSHILL OR LEWCELL.

1. Agnes De Lusteshull, b. 1355; m. (1) John Temmes of Rood Ashton, Wilts; (2) Nicholas Dunstanvill de Castle Combe, ancestor of the Earls of Southampton. She survived both husbands, held Lusteshull in 1414, and died in 1442. John Temys was her heir and paid 100s. for relief.
2. Joan De Lusteshull, b. about 1357; m. John Sibylle or Sibell. Chanc. I. P. M. 18 Ric. II, No. 38. "Feb. 24, 1395, John Sibylle held 1-3 of the manor of Lusteshull after the death of Joan his wife, dau. and heir of the sometime John de Lusteshull, lord of said manor. John Sibylle d. Oct. 13, 1393. William Sibylle, son of aisd. John & Joan, is his heir, aged 16 & more." In 1403 this William Sibylle sold his share of Lushill manor to his uncle, Nicholas Samborne.
3. Catherine, b. 1360; m. Nicholas Samborne II.
4. Thomas, b. 1365, alive in 1377, when the manor was seized into the King's custody by reason of the minority of Thomas Lusteshull, son and heir. He must have died before 1400.

There are several pedigrees showing Lushill descents,—the most ancient being a Wriothesly pedigree drawn up by Robert Glover, the famous Somerset Herald, about 1550, and preserved in Harl. Ms. 807, fo. 27.

SIR EDMOND LUSHILL=LADY COLSHILL.

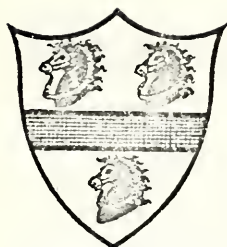

Called also "Sir Simon Lushill, Steward of the Household to King Henry IV, when Earl of Derby."

III. — SAMBORNE, born about 1390. No record of his Christian name has been found, nor any mention of him other than as the husband of Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Thomas Crekelade or Cricklade, lord of the manors of Leigh, Studley, and Ford, Wilts, and Langridge, Somt.

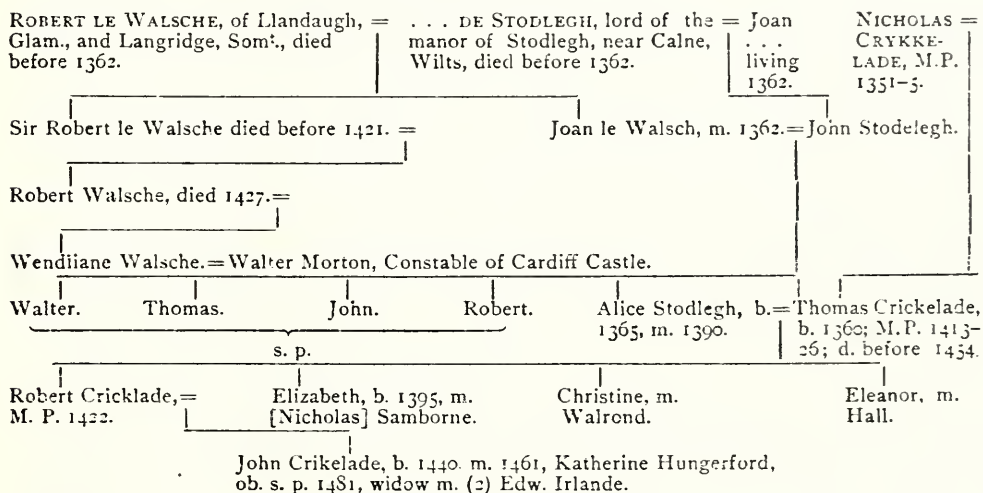

This intermarriage with Cricklade has been heretofore wrongly ascribed as having been made by Drew Sambourne.

The son and heir of this Samborne was Walter (IV), of whom see page 11.

ARMS OF CREKELADE.
From Glover's Ordinary
Harl. MSS.

The family of CREKELADE or CRICKLADE is a genealogical conundrum; that they took their name from the ancient parliamentary borough at the head-waters of the Thames is probable, but whence they derived, and who they were, is hard to decide. "Glover's Ordinary" gives for Crekeiade, the arms shown on the margin; but I have been unable to find any other authority for it. They were a family of distinction, and represented Gloucester, Calne, and Cricklade boroughs in Parliament almost continuously from 1351 to 1426. My friend, Mr. Story-Maskelyne, suggests that they may have been a branch of the Dunstanvilles, that Wiltshire family of many aliases. The sketch-pedigree page shows the allied lines:

The family of WALEYS or WALSCH is of Glamorganshire descent, and was long seated at Llandaugh Castle, near St. Mary Church; on early charters their arms are shown as "Ermine, a bend sable."

The following notes of records prove the sketch-pedigree given above. Notice, however, that the I. P. M. (E.), taken 36 years after the death of John Cricklade, omits a generation and inaccurately styles the coheirresses sisters, instead of aunts of the deceased.

A. Clark's Glamorgan MS., iv. 1456. "Release of Llandaugh and S. Mary Church, Glamorganshire, to Wm. Herbert by Alice, late wife of Thos. Crecklade, cousin and heir to Robert le Walsche, Esq., viz.: daughter of Joan, late wife of John Stodleigh, daughter of Robert le Walsche, the elder, father of Sir Robert le Walsche, father of the said Robert."

B. Weaver's Somerset Incumbents. "Aug. 4, 1458. Richard Hampton over-lord of Langridge, Som^{ts}, presents to living, account minority of John, son and heir to Thos. Cricklade."

C. Court of Wards, Deeds, Box 146 x 2, and Box 11a, 2 and 3. "1461. Grant of Langridge to and from feoffees by John, son and heir of Robert Crickeiade, on his marriage with Katherine Hungerford."

D. Wilts Fines, File 59, 99, and 100. "1412-13. John Thornbury, parson of Crudweli, Walter White, Vicar of Hilmerton, and Valentine Pompe, Vicar of Calne, Q (i) Walter Stodleghe and Dionisia, his wife, Def. (ii) Thomas Cricklade and Alice, his wife, Def. Manor of Stodleghe, near Calne."

E. Esch. I. P. M., 2nd Series, File 969.7. At Salisbury, Mar. 5, 1516-7, on death of John Cricklade.

"Thos. Cricklade and Alice, his wife, dau. and heir to John Stodleghe, were seized in her right of the manor of Heydon and Heydon's Wick. Wilts, with lands, &c., in Rodbourne, Mordon, and Pyrton, Wilts. They had issue, John Cricklade, aforesaid, son and heir, and Elizabeth, Christine, and Eleanor, his sisters. Thomas and Alice died, and premises descended to said John. He died at Calne, Mar. 20, 1481, and premises descended to Margaret Sambourne, Wm. Walrond, and John Hall, as cousins and heirs of the said John, viz. :—

"I. Margaret Sambourne is daughter of William, son of Drew, son of Walter, son of Elizabeth, one of the sisters and heirs of the said John. Margaret is under age and in the King's custody.

"II. William Walrond is son of Robert, son of Christine, another of the sisters of John. He is aged 30 and more.

"III. John Hall is son of Thomas, son of Eleanor, another of the sisters of John. He is aged 50 and more.

"The manor of Heydon and Heydon's Wick is held of Christopher Wroughton, Kt., and is worth 100s.

"Agnes Pocolchurch, widow, has taken the issues of the above premises since the death of John Cricklade, title unknown."

The manor of Langridge, Somerset, passed to the Samborne, Walrond, and Hall heirs in 1486 on the death of Katharine Irland, widow.

IV. WALTER SAMBORNE, born about ¹⁴²⁵1420. Held Fernham and Lushill manors, but probably lived at Southcot House, near Reading, Berks. This latter manor, with the adjoining one of Pynson's (now Pincen's Farm), he held in right of his wife, Margaret, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Drew of Seagry, Wilts.

The only record of Walter Samborne is that in 1461-2 he, John Cricklade, Robert Baynard, and John Lane sold to Thomas Puckelchurch and wife Agnes, lands in Stokeley, Chittleworth and Blakelowe, Wilts.

Walter Samborne died before his wife, who died in 1494; her will and I. P. M. are fortunately both extant.

A. Chanc. I. P. M., 10 Hen. VII, 155. "Margaret Sambourne, widow, was seized of the manors of Southcot and Pynsons, land in Shinfield, and a tenement in Okyngham. So seized she enfeofed thereof Christopher Urswick, clk., John Langford, Wm. Browning, Thomas Restwold, and Nicholas Sambourne. Southcot manor is held of Hugh Kenep by fealty only. Pynson's manor is held of the Abbot of Redyng by yearly rent of 18s. Margaret died 14 February last. Drugo Sambourne is her son and heir, aged 45 and more."

B. Will of Margaret Sambourne, widow, of Redyng, Berks. Dated Feby. 20, 1494. Proved at Lambeth Feby. 22, 1494. Filed 19 Vox, P. C. C. "Body to be buried in church of Fratres Minorum of Redyng, under the same stone as Walter Samborne. To mother church of Sarum xiid. Residue to Nicholas Sambourne, who with Edw. Bartelott is to act as executor." Witnesses, Richard and Thomas Carpenter, Nich. Legge, Thos. Clerke, &c.

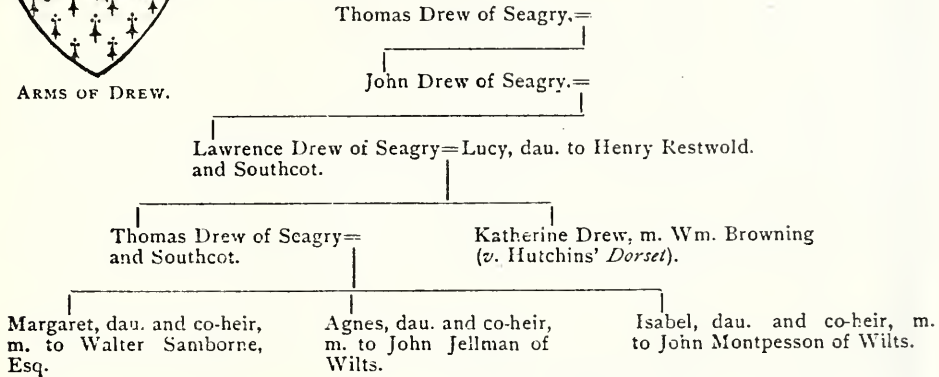

ARMS OF DREW.

The children of Walter and Margaret Samborne were :

V. 1. Drew, born about 1445, of whom next.

VI. 2. Nicholas, born about 1450; see "The Sambornes of Somerset."

The family of Drew is of great antiquity. At the Domesday Survey Drogo fitz Ponz held Seagry and other Wilts estates. From a Windsor pedigree in Harl. MS. 1154, fo. 17 and 17b, I obtained the following Drew pedigree :

Seagry and other Wiltshire churches have many old Drew monuments, some of Crusaders of the family.

THE SAMBOURNES OF BERKSHIRE.

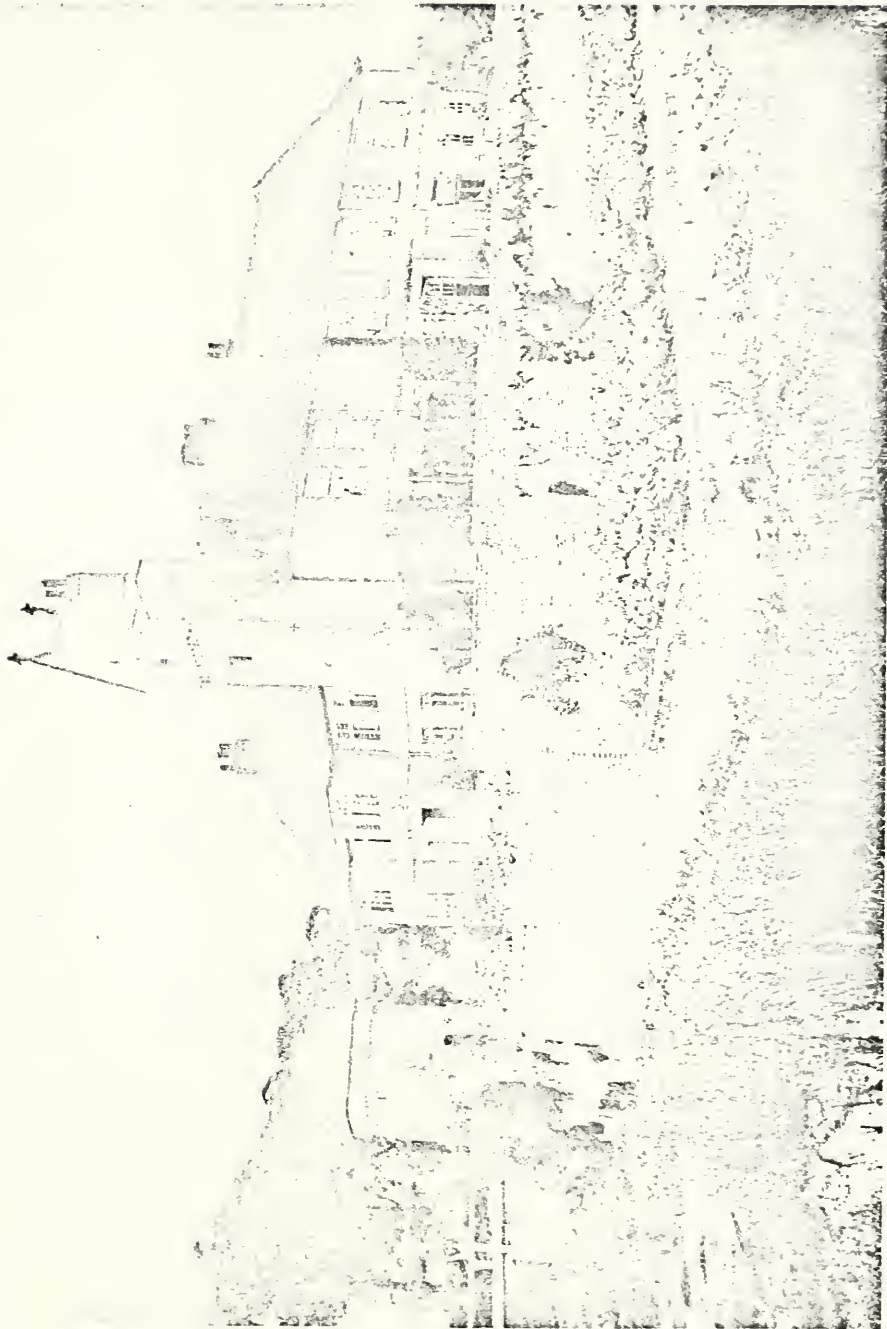

V. DREW SAMBOURNE, born about 1450. Lived at Southcot, Berks. A large landed proprietor. His wife's name was Joan, and she survived him. Drew Sambourne died in 1507, and his will and Inq. P. M. are extant.

A. Inq. P. M., 24 Hen. VII, Nos. 22, 23, and 24.

Berks.—Taken at Estillsley, Aug. 1508. "Drugo Sambourne, Esq^{re}, was seized of the manors of Sowthecot, near Redyng, and Buckehurst, near Ockingham, in Berks. So seized, he enfeoffed thereof Christopher Urswick, clerk, then Dean of Windsor, John Langforde, kt., and Nicholas Sambourne. The said Drugo was likewise seized of the manor of Farneham, near Faryngton, in Berks, and enfeoffed thereof the said Chr. Ursewyk, Thos. Fynes, Thos. Oxenbrige, Richard Carew, and others. Afterwards they enfeoffed thereof William Sambourne, son and heir apparent of the said Drugo, and Anne, his wife. Wm. Sambourne died Oct. 20, 1503, and Anne survived him.

"The said Drugo was likewise seized of one capital message, in Tyldhurst, called Pynsons; 7 acres of wood called Dru's Copys; 2 tenements in Birfield, and 3 tenements &c. in Schynfield.

"The said manor of Farneham is held of the King in chief by knight's service. The manor of Sowthecot is held of the Abbot of Redyng, as of his manor of Canape, by fealty only. The manor of Buckehurst is held of the Bishop of Sarum by fealty and yearly rent of 30s. The premises in Tyldhurst are held of the said Abbot by fealty and yearly rent of 19s. The premises in Byrfield are held of John Polhampton by fealty and rent of 4s. Those in Shynfield, of Gilbert Talbot, kt., by fealty and rent of 12d.

SOUTHCOT MANOR HOUSE.

“The said Drugo died Jany. 3, 1507. Margaret Sambourne is his next heir, viz., daughter and heir of William Sambourne, son and heir of the said Drugo; and is now aged 5 years and more. The said Joan, wife of the said Drugo, survived him.”

Wills.—Taken at Devizes, Aug. 8, 1508. “Drugo Samborne, Esq^{re}, was seized of the manor of Lushill, in Wilts, which is held of the King as of his Honour of Troubrige, parcel of the Duchy of Lancaster.” &c., &c.

Somerset.—Taken at Wells, Aug. 16, 1508. “Drugo Sambourne, Esq^{re}, was seized of one capital messuage, 200 acres of arable land, 300 acres of pasture and 8 acres of meadow in Langrugge, Somt, which are held of the Bishop of Bath by fealty only.” &c., &c.

B. Will of Drugo Samborne, Esq^{re}, of Redyng, dated Dec. 12, 1505; proved Jan. 25, 1506. Filed 17 a’Deane, P. C. C.

“Body to be buried in church of Our Ladye at Redyng, where my ancestors lie. To said church iijs. ijd., and an image of St. Michael in alabaster. To mother church of Sarum iijs. ijd. Residue to wife Johan, sole executrix. Brother Nicholas Samborne, trustee; gives him xs. for his trouble. To his wife Johan, manor of Sothecote with appurtenances, for one year.”

The feoffees named above were distinguished men. Christopher Urswick was that priest, a confidant of Henry VII, who, as Dean of Windsor, built the Urswick chapel there; he refused two Bishoprics, and is buried in Hackney (where Stephen Bachiler is said to have died) under a famous monument. Sir Thomas Fynes was of the Say and Sele family. Thomas Oxenbrige was Serjeant-at-Law.

The children of Drew and Joan Sambourne were:

1. William Sambourne, born about 1470. Lived at Fernham, Berks. Married Anne, daughter of Sir Roger Copley, and granddaughter of the Lord Hoo (great-grandfather, by Anne Boleyn, of Queen Elizabeth). William Sambourne died Oct. 20, 1503. His I. P. M. (Berks, 20 Hen. VII, 96) declares Drugo Sambourne seized of the manor of Fernham, who Jany. 20, 1496, enfeoffed thereof Chr. Ursewyk, clerk. Thos. Fenys, clerk, Thos. Oxenbrige, Richard Carew, Thos. Bradbury, of London, mercer, John Rote, and John Hestwest, to the use of Wm. Sambourne and Anne, his wife. Doubtless this was a marriage settlement. The only child of Wm. Sambourne and Anne Copley was Margaret Sambourne, a considerable heiress; she married the second Lord Windsor, who built the house at Bradenham, Bucks, where his son entertained Queen Elizabeth. Ann (Copley) Sambourne survived her husband and married (2) Wm. Lusher of the well-known Sussex family.

2. Thomas Sambourne, shown in Visitation pedigree as 2nd son; no further record.

3. Henry Sambourne, shown as 3rd son. Born about 1478, of whom next. VII.

4. Walter Sambourne, whom from his will I assume to have been a son of Drew, which, dated Nov. 17, 1529, is filed with Berks. wills at Somerset House. “Will of Walter Samborne of New Windsor, Berks. To church of New Windsor xxd. To Henry Samborne a gowne as his wife shall choose; to Henry’s wife a black furred gown. To Thos. Howgrove a feather bed, &c. Residue to wife Johan, sole executrix. Richard Sidnor ‘of the aforesaid college,’ overseer.” Witnesses, Simon Todd, priest, Gilbert Holton, priest, Antony Wilsett.

SOUTHCOT HOUSE, the ancient seat of the Sambournes, is but a few miles from Reading, Berks, and the drive from Reading through the beautiful Berkshire lanes to the old “moated grange” of Southcot is something to be remembered. The country was in the height of summer beauty when we took the drive, in June, 1895. The manor house of which a view is given is probably only partly the older one where the Sambournes and Drews lived; for about 1600 Lord Windsor sold the entire manor of Southcot to John Blagrove, the celebrated mathematician of Reading, who built or rebuilt the present house. Southcot still belongs to the Blagraves, but has until lately been rented to a Mr. Wastell Brisco, upon whose death the magnificent old furniture was sold at auction,—an event which brought there all the antiquaries in that part of England.

On June 7, 1895, the place was undergoing some repairs, and all the gates were closed and locked, so that we could not get into the old house. It is surrounded by a moat still in water, and we drove slowly around it, getting charming glimpses from different points.

VII. HENRY SAMBOURNE, of Sonning, Cos. Berks and Oxon. A lessee of the bishop, holding the farms of Eye and Bishop's Lands. Married Elizabeth, daughter of — Richards of Burfield (Burghfield) in Berks. His will, dated January 31, 1549, is given in the "Memorials of Sonning," p. 203, filed in Dean Vannes's Visitation, and contains this.

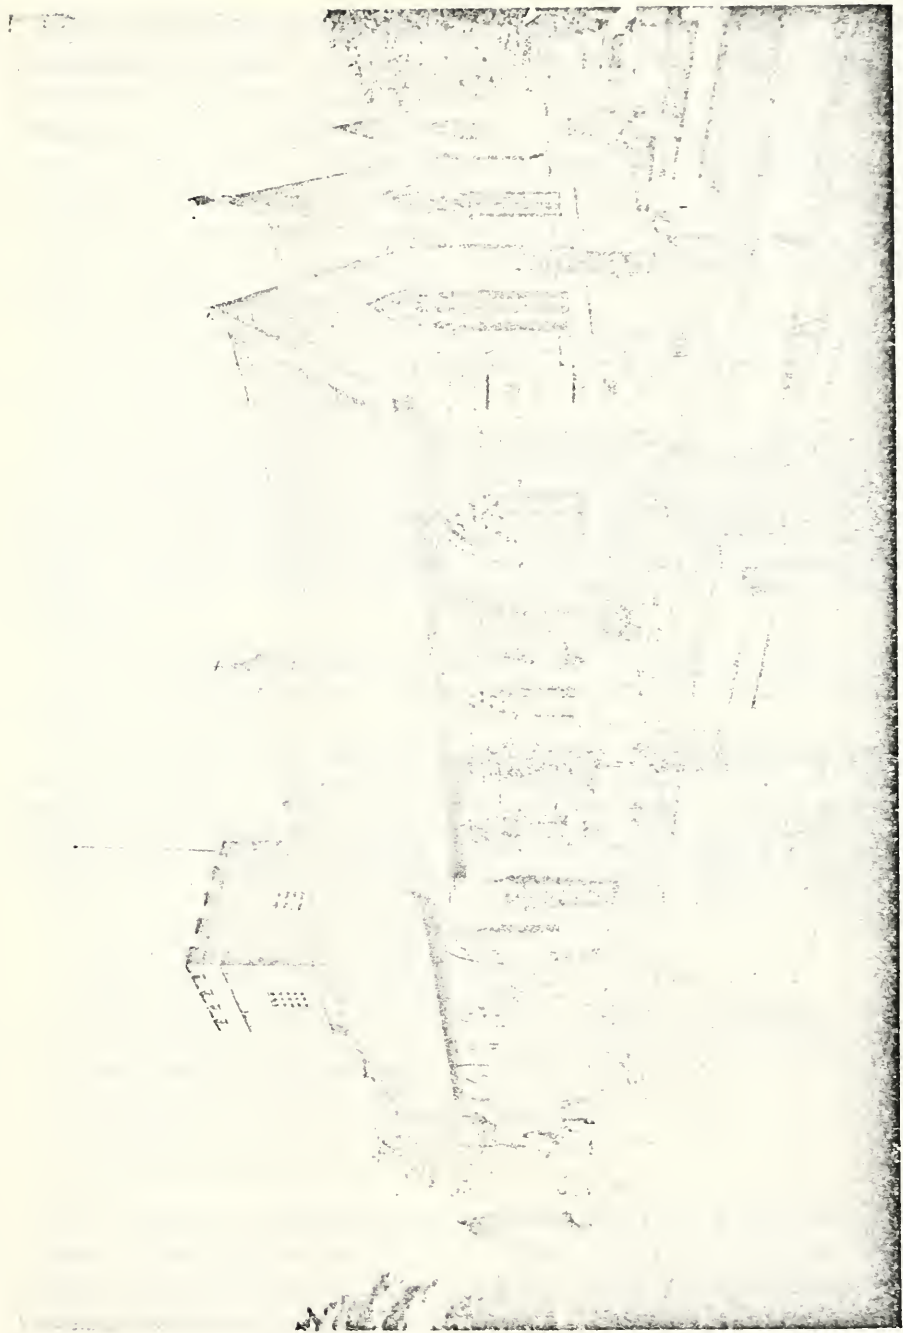

"Body to be buried in S. Andrew's Church at Sonning before Our Lady's Altar. 4s. 4d. to the High Altar; 12d. to poor men's coffer. Wife Elizabeth to enjoy farms of Eye and Bishop's Lands so long as she is a widow. Son Thomas and his children, Harry, Jean, Anneys, and Frances. Daughter Elizabeth, wife of Walter Syngleton, and her children, Thomas, John, Christopher, and Elizabeth. To son Edmund, my house in Reading and my part of the Parsonage barn in Oxfordshire. To 40 poor householders at my funeral one ell of Holland cloth to make them vayles. $\frac{1}{4}$ Qr. wheat to be baked for the poor, and at my month's mind and 12 months' mind, as much. My son Thomas to mind his farming; £40 to be given him by his mother, and she not to meddle therein."

The children of Henry Sambourne were:

1. Thomas, of whom next, VIII.
2. Elizabeth; m. Walter Singleton.
3. Edmund, of whom see after, IX.

SONNING we visited the same day we drove to Southcot, returning through Reading. It is but a short drive, and through very pleasant country. Sonning is an ideal English village, situated on the Thames, and frequented by artists and anglers. The ancient church of St. Andrew is rich in memories of the Barkers, but I could find none of the Sambornes, who had moved away from there before the Registers began. We had intended to dine at the old-fashioned White Hart Inn in Sonning, but Ven. Archdeacon Pott, a type of the old style English clergyman, and a gentleman of a sweet courtesy, insisted that we should lunch with him, in what is now the parsonage, but was originally the Bishop's residence. Our day in Sonning is among the pleasantest memories of our English visit,—the friendly courtesy and kindness of the Archdeacon and his family, the impressiveness of the church and parsonage, and the quaint old streets of Sonning, with their rose-clad houses and irregular buildings, all form a picture not easily to be forgotten.

VIII. THOMAS SAMBOURNE, of Sonning, in Berks and Oxon, born about 1505; a rich squire, leasing from the Bishop of Oxford several large manors in Sonning, Eye, and Dunsdon. In the "Memorials of Sonning" is some account of his difficulties with under-tenants.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, SONNING, BERKS AND OXON.

Thomas Sambourne registered his pedigree in the Heralds' Visitation of Oxfordshire in 1566. He married (1) probably about 1540, Margaret Venour, who died about 1549; (2) about 1550, Jane, daughter of Lawrence Stoughton, of Stoughton Hall, Surrey, who died about 1552; (3) about 1553, Joan, widow of Hugh Beke, of Reading, and daughter of Henry Polstede, of Albury in Surrey, who died 1561; (4) Blanche Burdett, m. at Englefield, Berks, 1562; buried at St. Giles, Reading, 1570; (5) Clemence, widow of Richard Stampe, of Cholsey, and daughter of Roger Harbord, of Sefton, County Hereford.

Thomas Sambourne had no issue by his last two wives. He died in 1584, and his will, filed 12 Watson P. C. C., dated April 21, 1584, proved 19 June, 1584, is as follows:

Body to be buried in Church of S. Andrew at Sonning, as near as possible to the body of my father Henry Samborne. To Clemence, my wife, 100 marks &c. To Mary Chander, dau. of my brother Edmund, 33s. 8d. To Elizabeth & Margaret Stampe, wife's daughters, gold rings. To Thomas Garnett, eldest son of my daughter Frances, £6, 13s., 4d., to be used towards his education in learning. To Richard Garnett, second son of dau. Frances, one bullock. Residue to Lawrence and Richard Samborne, my sons, and Katherine Samborne, my daughter, joint exrs. Richard Garnett, gent., my son-in-law, and Henry Samborne my son, Supervisors.

Will of Clemence Samborne, widow, of Wallingford, Berks, who died June 7, 1621, filed in Berks. wills at Somerset House, and dated June 5, 1618, is as follows:

To Richard Samborne my daughter's sonne, 20s. &c. To John Samborne his brother 50s. To Anne Samborne, their sister, 20s. To Elizabeth Samborne, their sister £10. &c. To son Thomas Stampe, goods &c. To his eldest son John Stampe. To his daughter Frances Stampe my first wedding-ring. To all his other children. Residue to Richard & John Samborne aforesaid, joint exrs. Overseers, my son-in-law Henry Samborne & his son Sir Henry Samborne, Kt. Witnesses, Thos. Stampe, Thos. Russell, Edward Byrte, John Sambourne.

The children of Thomas Sambourne were:

1. Henry, born about 1540, of whom see after, X.
2. Grace, married Henry Peckham of Surrey.
3. Frances, married Richard Garnett, and had: (1) Thomas; (2) Richard.
4. Jean, probably died young.
5. Lawrence, born about 1551, of whom see after, XI.
6. Thomas, probably died young.
7. Richard, born about 1557, of whom see after, XII.
8. Katharine.
9. Walter, probably died young.

IX. EDMUND SAMBOURNE, born about 1507, inherited from his father a house in Reading, in parish of St. Giles, where he lived and died. His will, dated November 13, 1577, proved in 1578, is filed in Somerset House among Berkshire wills (Archd. G 122). He left a legacy to St. Giles Church and to the Cathedral. "To daughter Mary my house and tenement which I live in; for default of her heirs, to brother Thomas Sambourne. My wife shall enjoy same during her life." Inventory amounted to eight pounds, eight shillings. The will of Margaret Sambourne, his widow, dated February 8, 1584, filed in Berkshire wills at Somerset House, desired to be buried in the churchyard of St. Giles, and leaves a certain legacy to Clemence and John Chandler, children of her daughter Marie; the rest of her estate, after small legacies to her own relatives, goes to John and Mary Chaundler, executors. Witnesses: Agnes Jennyns, alias Marchaunt, Morris Symes, Richard Bennett, Thomas Simpson, Scrivener. From these wills it will be seen that Edmund had but one daughter, Mary, who married John Chandler in 1580 at St. Giles', Reading, and had: (i) Clemence; (ii) John.

X. HENRY SAMBOURNE, born about 1540, spent his early life at Sonning, where he is called, in 1575. "Mr. Harry Sambourne, Gentleman." He married, about 1565, Anne, daughter of William Barker, of Holme Park, in Sonning. This fine estate, now belonging to Mr. Golding-Palmer, is the principal residence in Sonning, and belonged to the Barkers over three hundred years. The Barker family is descended from William Barker, steward to Henry VIII.

Henry Sambourne later moved to Moulsoford, Berkshire, a beautiful village on the Thames above Reading, where we spent a night in the quaint riverside tavern, the "Beetle and Wedge." At Moulsoford we saw the church and manor-house. The old residence of the Sambournes, however, has been destroyed. Henry Sambourne died intestate, November 17, 1631. A commission is filed in Berkshire wills authorizing his son Henry to make inventory of goods. The children of Henry Sambourne were:

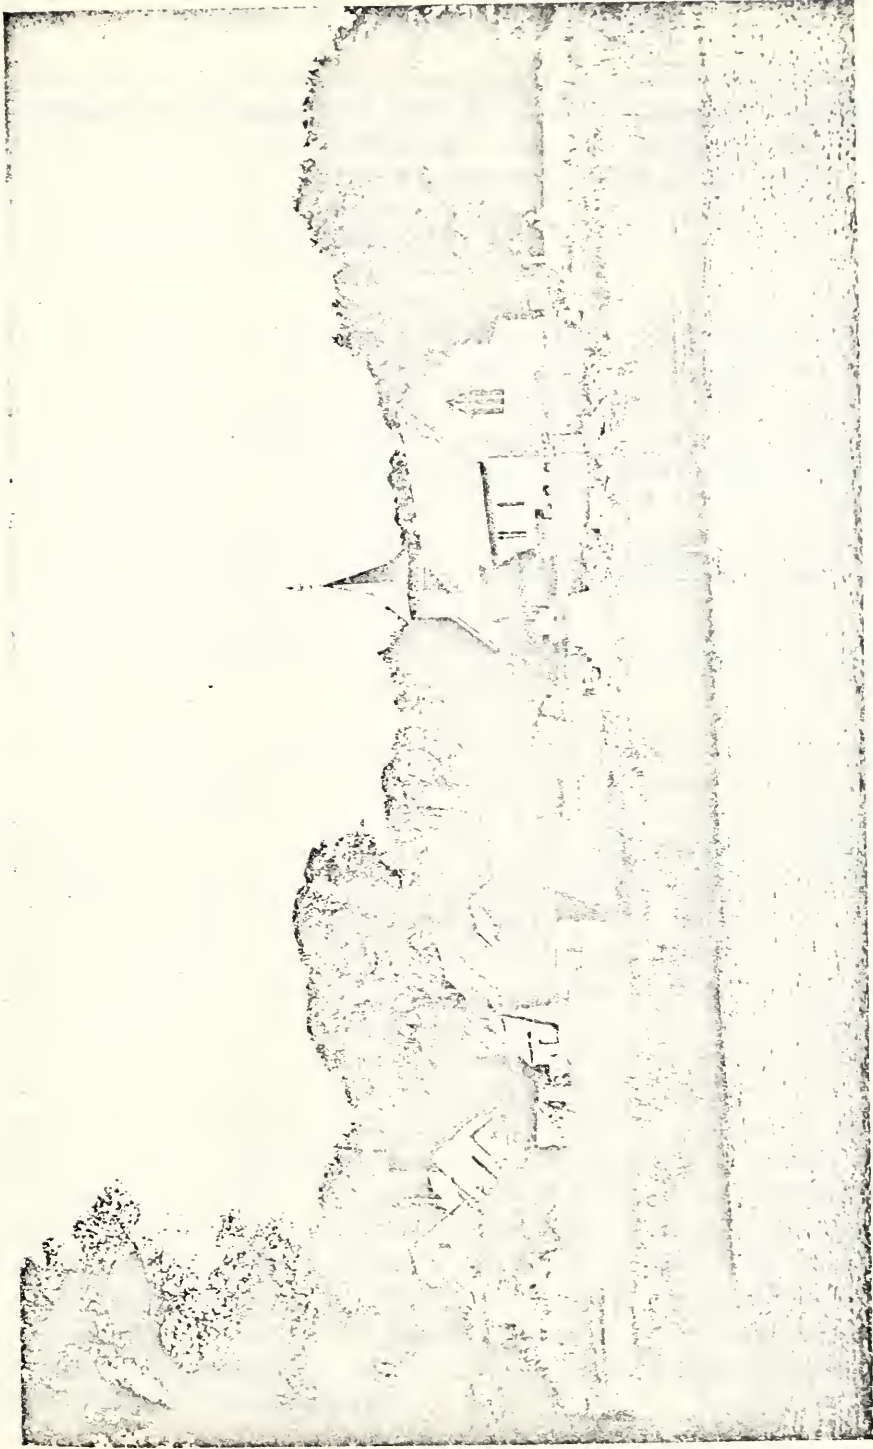

1. Henry, born about 1570, of whom see after, XIII.
2. Katharine, married Thomas Tipping, of Woolley, Berkshire.
3. Mary, married Wm. Howe, of South Okenden, Essex.
4. Anne, married Thomas Holmes, of Berkshire.

XI. LAWRENCE SAMBOURNE, born about 1551, married Mary, widow of Richard Sandys. Lawrence Sambourne received by deed of gift in 1587, from Thomas Vachell, a considerable estate in Ipsden and Checkenden, Oxon. He died in 1617, leaving two daughters:

1. Margaret.
2. Jane.

Mary, his widow, died July 31, 1625.

XII. RICHARD SAMBOURNE, born about 1557; said in the "Berkshire Visitation" of 1665, to have lived at Stokes Farm, near Wokingham, Berks. Probably this is an error for South Stoke in Oxfordshire, just across the Thames from Moulsoford. He seems to have lived near enough to Ipsden to have taken part in the proceedings which Sir Henry took in the distribution of Mary Sambourne's estate. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Stampe of Cholsey, whose mother was Clemence Harbord, who afterwards married the father of Richard Sambourne. His children were :

1. Richard, born about 1589, of whom see after, XIV
2. John, born about 1591, of whom see after, XV
3. Anne, baptized at St. Marys, Reading, 1597.
4. Elizabeth.

XIII. SIR HENRY SAMBOURNE, born about 1570. A large land owner and a prominent man; lived at Moulsoford, Berkshire; knighted by King James in 1608; High Sheriff of Berks and licensed to hold court leet at Moulsoford in 1616. Married Dorothy, daughter and heir to John Stampe of Aston Tirrold, Berks. Sir Henry Sambourne held important patents from the Crown, for the manufacture of saltpetre, having the counties of Oxford, Warwick, Berks., Middlesex, and Sussex. In 1634, he was summoned by the King, the cause of complaint being that he had taken all the best earth for saltpetre. so that no one else could make it. In default of his appearance, he was confined in the Marshalsea, but a few days afterwards was released upon payment of the usual fees. (State Papers, 1634.)

Sir Henry lived to an old age and became lord of the manors of Moulsoford, Cholsey, Streatley, and Aston Tirrold. He seems to have been a grasping and litigious man, and got into trouble with Cromwell's committees for advancing money. In 1645 (Com. for Advancing Money 1643-7) his case was heard and he declared in December, 1646, that he had borrowed £6,000 of the Bishop, on a mortgage on Streatley manor. He had paid £1,000 and the manor was seized into the committee's hands. He declared his willingness to sell the manor, but could not find a purchaser, because it lies near Wallingford, which the enemy held. He begged assistance, because he and his lady were aged and had six children to provide for. He claimed to have lost £8,000 by the King's armies.

The Committee in rebuttal said that Sir Henry was very penurious. never spending more than £300 per annum, and had an estate of £1,600 with stock valued at £3,000, of which he pretends to be plundered; that he had debts of £11,000, and never paid principal nor interest nor provided for his children; that he had tried to bribe Col. Forbes to withdraw the prosecution. The Committee ended by saying, that "money can be raised by the sale of wood on his land, but Sir Henry is not to be trusted, for he never dealt honestly with anybody." In 1647, he paid a fine of £429 and all proceedings against him were forborne.

(Chan. Pro. Temp. Chas. I. Bdle AA. 50, n. 140.)—4 Feb. 1652. Christopher Alnewicke of Aston Tirrold in Co. Berks, gent, complains that whereas John Alnewicke late of Clements Inn in Co. Midd. gent plt's brother an attorney at law being solicitor for Sir Henry Samborne of Moulsoford in Co. Berks, Knt., asked the sd. Sir Henry for £50 to be paid out upon his various suits, but he refused unless plt. said brother would give him security, so plt. & his said brother became bound together as sureties on condition that as soon as the said John should have used up the said money for the said Sir Henry the bond of £100 should be cancelled by Henry Samborne, Esq., son of the said Sir Henry. About the 22nd Oct. 1647 the said John Alnewicke paid £30 out of the said £50 to the said Sir Henry. Afterwards the said John laid out £5 in a suit between the said Sir Hen. & M^r Haddon, £2 in a suit with M^r Creswell Skinner, £4 in a suit against M^r Clarke, £10 in a suit against M^r Holmes, £5 in a suit against M^r Rawley, M^r Weston and others, & £5 for attending to avoid a sequestration of Sir Henry's estate to Capt. Carmanoe which discharged the said bond by more than £40. Before the said John Alnewicke could send an account to the said Sir Hen. he died—about last August, & the said defts. have put the said bond in suit against plt. & threaten to obtain judgment thereupon although it has been fully paid.

Sir Henry Sambourne died about 1660. His children were :

1. Henry, born about 1610, of whom see after, XVI
2. William, born about 1612, of whom see after, XVII
3. Dorothy, married Toby Sadler of Faringdon, Berks.
4. Anne, married William Hatton of Aston Tirrold, Berks.; he is said to have been "an ill husband."
5. Mary, married Jeremiah Hand, April 12, 1664.
6. Martha, married ——— White of Streatley, Berks.; a widow, in 1699.

XIV. RICHARD SAMBOURNE, born about 1589, lived and died in Cholsey, Berkshire; married Dorothy, daughter of Richard Comyns of Cholsey. His children were :

1. Henry, born 1622, married Mary, dau. of ——— Tery of Avington, Hants, and had (i.) Richard, (ii.) Henry.
2. Joseph.
3. Benjamin.

XV. JOHN SAMBOURNE, born about 1591, of whom we have no record. It is not impossible that he was the Sambourne who married Anne Bachiler, but proof is not found.

XVI. HENRY SAMBOURNE, born about 1610, lived at Moulsoford in 1666, when he had a law-suit about the disposition of his father's estate. We have no record of his marriage or subsequent life, but presume that he died without issue before 1697, since in that year his brother William was lord of the manor of Streatley.

XVII. WILLIAM SAMBOURNE, born about 1612, apparently succeeded to the Berkshire estates on the death of his brother Henry; died in 1697, leaving to the poor of Moulsoford, certain lands in Streatley, a tablet of which charity is still in Moulsoford Church. Married Mary ———, and had :

1. William, born about 1650; with his mother was sued in 1700 for the disposition of Sir Henry Sambourne's estate

THE SAMBORNES OF SOMERSETSHIRE.

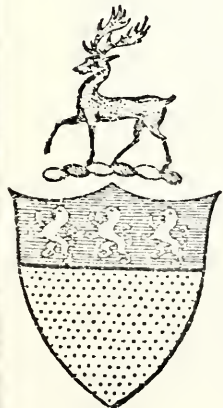

VI. NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, born about 1450. He inherited from his mother all her personal property, and had received from his father certain lands in Wiltshire. Apparently, he made his home at Mapledurham, Oxfordshire where his friends, (and perhaps relatives,) the Blounts resided. This famous family owned Mapledurham House, whose deer park is renowned. The Blounts were Romanists, and later members were friends of the poet Pope.

Nicholas Samborne married Elizabeth, daughter of John Brocas of Beaurepaire, Hants, who is said to have survived him, and married (2) William Yong. By this marriage, the Sambornes were connected with the oldest families of Hampshire. The Brocas family trace their pedigree to the XI Century; a Sieur de Brocas of France came to England in the XII Century, and from that time, the Barons Brocas of Hampshire have ranked almost with royalty. John Brocas, the father of Elizabeth Samborne, was Sheriff of Hants in 1482, and died in 1492. He was fourth in descent from Sir Bernard Brocas, the Chamberlain of Richard II who remained faithful to his ruined master, and was beheaded in 1399: his beautiful tomb is in S. Edmund's Chapel, Westminster Abbey.

The mother of Elizabeth Samborne was the second wife of John Brocas; she was Ann, daughter of John Rogers, Esq^r, of Freefolke, Hants. John Rogers was of a good Hampshire family, and his wife was Margery, daughter of Sir John Lisle of Wooditon, I. W. and Thruxton, Hants. The Lisles were perhaps the proudest family in Hampshire, and traced their descent to the XI Century. The direct line of the Lisles died out in 1542, and their estates were divided among the heirs. Wooditon, the ancient seat of the family, went to a Cadet branch of the Lisles, whose descendant was that Sir Thomas Lisle, the Regicide, whose daughter married the ancestor of the American Hoar family.

TIMSBURY MANOR HOUSE.
Residence of the Somersetshire Sambornes for three centuries.

The said Anne died 26 February, 8 Hen. 8 [1517]; Margery wife of Michael Denys, Esq., Anne wife of —— Waffer, gent., & Elizabeth wife of William Yong, gent., are the daughters & heirs of the said Anne Seynt Marten, but their ages are not known.

The children of Nicholas Samborne were :

1. Anne, born about 1488.

3. Nicholas, born about 1495, of whom see after, XXI

TIMSBURY HOUSE, the most ancient Samborne residence in England, is celebrated, even in Somersetshire, that county of fine seats, for the beauty and interest of its Tudor architecture. We drove from Wells, up over the high Mendip hills, and had glimpses of entrancing English scenery all the way. Timsbury lies off the direct road from Wells to Bath, and is about a morning's ride from either place. The country abounds in beautiful estates; and several times we thought we saw the House, but it was farther along. As we swept to the left through Timsbury village, with steep streets and marks of the colliery, we came suddenly upon a magnificent and very old house with mullioned windows and stained glass. The engraving gives a fair idea of the place, which is of very large extent, and to which an avenue leads past the porter's lodge and by the church. We entered a fine old hall, wainscoted with oak and with an enormous fire-place; and were ushered into a spacious drawing-room filled with flowers. The family were all kindness and hospitality: they are directly connected with America, for one daughter married Mr. Alfred D. Foster of Boston, Vice-President of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. The house is practically unchanged since 1542, except for an alteration, which Maudley Samborne made, cutting down the height of the rooms (which are still very high and spacious) to add a story between the ground floor and the second story. One large wing was destroyed by fire in the last century. The roof was originally of stone, but the late Mr. Samborne feared the enormous weight would injure the house, so he removed the stone, and I believe built his porter's lodge out of it. A few of the magnificent XVI century oak doors, exquisitely carved, are still left.

The muniment chest at Timsbury is rich in old deeds, etc., and would well repay a careful search; Mr. John Samborne has gone over many of the old papers, and is much interested in the family history.

XX. JOHN SAMBORNE, born about 1490. Where he spent his early life is not known; perhaps in Berkshire. By his mother's family, he was connected with the Hampshire gentry, and may have lived in that county. He had already inherited from his father some Wiltshire property, and at his mother's death, one third of the manor of Bury Blunsdon, Wilts, came to him.

ARMS OF TICHBORNE.

He married about 1525, Dorothy, daughter of Nicholas Tichborne of Tichborne in Hants. This Hampshire family frequently held the office of High Sheriff, and is familiar to all in connection with the famous Tichborne Claimant Case. Nicholas Tichborne, the father of Dorothy Samborne, was the son of John Tichborne, Sheriff of Hants in 1487.

Dorothy d. April 21, 1572, at Timsbury.

In the Probate Registry at Wells are filed the wills of John Samborne (dated February 26, 1571), and Dorothy, his widow (dated April 20, 1572), which are as follows:

Will of John Samborne of Tymsboro, Esq.

TIMSBURY.

(Photographed by Mrs. Foster.)

Horsington's wife one cow. Residue to Son in Law. Anthony Gattonby, sole Ex'r. Witnesses, Anne Gattonby (als. Samborne) and Robt. Paves of Beiston.

In Volume I of the English "Genealogist" is a pedigree of Samborne, reprinted with additions from the "Visitation of London in 1687." In this pedigree are given the dates of the births of the children of this John Samborne (said to be "taken from an old book in the possession of Wm. Samborne, who hath subscribed this descent") as follows :

1. John, born May 31, 1528, of whom see after, XXII
2. Nicholas, born June 1, 1529, probably died young.
3. Anne, born Oct. 25, 1533, married Rev. Anthony Gattonby, Vicar of Andover and later of Goodworth Clatford.

4. Jane, born Oct. 15, 1540, married Mr. Horsington.
5. Francis, born March, 1543, of whom see after, XXIII
6. Richard, born May 8, 1544, of whom see after, XXIV
7. Swithin, youngest son, of whom see after, XXV

And the will above given also shows :

8. Martha, never married; died in Andover Hants 1572, leaving her property to Anthony Gattonby; will P. C. C. 11 Peter.
9. Elizabeth, married John Baber and died in 1588; her will is filed at Wells.

XXI. NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, born about 1500. Apparently lived in Hampshire, since his son James was settled in Andover about 1580, having been at William of Wykeham's College in Winchester.

Nicholas inherited from his father, lands in Rodbourne, Wilts, and presumably from his mother, a considerable estate in Hants. (See under VI the Inq. P. M., which shows that Anne, wife of John Brocas as heir to John Rogers of Freefolke, Hants, inherited "many lands in Hants and elsewhere.")

The will of John Samborne of Timsbury, mentions his "brother Nicholas' son John" and his "cousin James Samborne." As cousin in those days denoted nephew, I assume the following were sons of Nicholas :

- | | |
| <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. John, of whom see after, XXVI 2. James, of whom see after, XXVII 3. Edward, of whom see after, XXVIII | } See under "The Sambornes of Hampshire." |

XXII. JOHN SAMBORNE, born May 31, 1528. Lived at Timsbury, Somt. Married (1) Bridget, daughter of ——— Willoughby of Turner's Puddle, Dorset, who was buried at Timsbury, February 14, 1574. (2) Dorothy ———, who survived him. All the children of John were by the first marriage.

The brother of the first Lord Willoughby de Brooke, was lord of the manor of Toner's or Turner's Puddle, Dorset, and Bridget Willoughby was his descendant.—just what the line was does not appear, but apparently she was one of the heirs of her father, since Coker's Survey of Dorset states the heirs generalls of the Willoughbys of Turner's Puddle were married to Thomas Gerrard, Samborne, Hayman, Cuff, Newport, and Baynard.

An indenture dated August 3, 1607, between Sir Barnaby Samborne and Sir Thomas Freke, recites that "Thos. Moollens, Esq^{re}, John Cleves, Gent., Nicholas Meader, and Nicholas White, by deed dated Nov. 19, 1565, did grant to Bridget Samborne, wife to John Samborne, and to her heirs, an annuity of £10, issuing out of the manor of Turner's Puddle and all lands, etc., in Turners Puddle, Snelling and Chilbarrowes."

Will of John Samborne, Esq., of Timsbury, filed 40 Carew P. C. C., and dated April 11, 1575, is as follows :

The chain of gold, disposed of by my father John Samborne's will, shall succeed to our heirs. To my four younger sons, Israel, Toby, Samuel, & Peter, during their lives, out of the rents of Bury Blunsden, £40 by the year. To my daughters Mary, Margery, & Elizabeth, £500, to be raised out of the rents of my manors of Maiden Newton & Up Sydling. To Mary my daughter, her mother's wedding-ring. To my brother Richard Samborne the reversion of a tenement in Maiden Newton. To my brother Swithin Samborne, the presentation to the next avoidance after Richard Shepforde, parson of Tymesborow. My said brothers to have the use and charge of the said legacies during my children's non-age. Son Barnabas, Exr: Edw. Baber, Esqre, and John Slocum, Clerk, B. D., Overseers.

(Closs Roll. 28 Eliz. part 7.)—Indenture made 21 June 28 Eliz. [1586] between Thomas Haydock of Stanton in Co. Wilts, gent, and Barnabe Sambourne of Timsborough in Co. Somerset esq. whereas the said Barnabe by his indenture dated the 20th day of this present month has sold to the said Thomas Haydock & his heirs two parts of the manor of Buryblonsdon alias Burytowne in co. Wilts; if all the said two parts shall for ever remain to the said Thomas & his heirs, clearly discharged from all former charges, sales, leases, &c. made by the said Barnabe or by Nicholas Sambourne esq. his great grandfather, John Sambourne esq. his grandfather, or John Sambourne esq. his father, or by Michael Dennys of Shinglinge Rowe in the Isle of Wight, esq. “or by any other ancestors of the Sambournes or Dennys” (the rents and services due to the chief lords of the fee, and respite of homage & other duties due during the nonage of the said Barnabe. 1 lease by the said Michael Dennys to Susan Warneford and 2 other leases by John Sambourne esq. to Richard Warnford excepted).

(Closs Roll. 5 Jas. 1. p. 10.)—Indenture made 3 Aug. 5 James I [1607] between Sir Barnaby Samborne of Tysmborowe in Co. Somerset, Knight, and Sir Thomas Freke of Iwerne Courtney in Co. Dorset, Knight, and Richard Swayne of Tarrant Gunvile in Co. Dorset, esq.

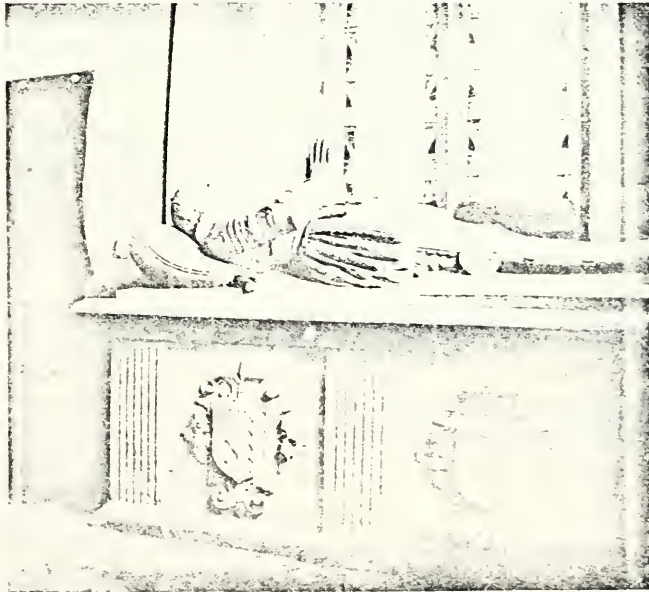

Whereas Thomas Moollens esq., John Cleves, gent., Nicholas Meader and Nicholas White by deed dated 19 November [1565] did grant to Bridget Samborne wife of John Samborne and to her heirs an annuity of £10 issuing out of the manor of Turnerspuddie and out of all messuages, lands and tenements in Turnerspuddell, Snelling and Chilbarowes, since which grant made the said Bridget died seized of the same rent which descended to the said Sir Barnaby as her son and heir; these presents witness that the said Sir Barnaby in consideration of £120 has granted to the said Sir Thomas Freke and Richard Swayne the said annuity and deed.

Sir Barnaby was the most prominent of the Timsbury Sambornes. He has a fine stone monument in Timsbury church, representing him in full armor, with his hands clasped together. His epitaph (which was bungled by the historian Collinson) is worth inserting in full. It is carved in a diamond-shaped piece of marble:

Here lieth the body of sir Barnaby Samborne, Knight, who lived all his days faithful to his Prince, and in loving affection to his country; being a zelous professor of the Trew Religion, and continued constantly in the same: of whose worth & Vertew, much might be spoken But he resting from his labours. His good works follow him: who, when he had lived his years, in hapie and peaceful manner, departed this life A. D. 1610. His body being here interred: His soul waiteth for the Resurrection to Glory.

Into Thy hands I commend my spirit for Thou has redeemed me O Thou Lord of Truth.

Sir Barnaby's nuncupative will, dated April 7, 1610, and filed 41 Wingfield P. C. C., leaves to his four younger sons—Thomas, William, Richard, and John—100 marks apiece, to be raised out of his farm called Peglinche and Woodberowe. Residue to Dame Margaret Samborne, his wife.

The Inq. P. M. of Sir Barnaby Samborne (Court of Wards, 17 and 18, James I, Bdl. 30, No. 116) states that "he was seized in his demesne as of fee of the manor of Tymesbury and of 30 messuages, 10 cottages, 30 gardens, 30 orchards, 300 a. of land, 100 a. of meadow, 500 a. of pasture, 40 a. of wood, and 100 a. of furze and heath in Tymesbury. So seized, a fine was levied, 42 Elizabeth (1600) between Sir Thos. Throgmorton, Kt. and the said Barnaby, . . . to the use of Barnaby & Margaret his wife & their heirs male: & for default to the use of the right heirs of Barnabas. The said Barnaby & Margaret had issue Thomas Samborne who still survives. The said premises are held of Chas. Walgrave, Esq., as of his manor of Chewton, by fealty, & are worth per ann. clear £15.15s." This shows how Timsbury came to the children of Lady Margaret Samborne.

Dame Margaret Samborne's will, dated April 8th, 1626, and filed 62 Skynner P. C. C., is as follows:

To my son Thomas Samborne my wedding ring, the cup that was Sir Thomas Throgmorton's (my dear & loving Father), the bed he lies on & the "faire wrought stoole" that was my Mother's. I make my said son sole executor.

To my son William Samborne £200. Whereas my said son has a copyhold estate in Pooles Tenement & living, in Widow Gullock's tenement & living & in Barnabas Lie's Tenement & living, parcels of my manor of Timsborough which estate I desire may be enlarged to him in the 3 said livings on surrender of his said estate for 3 lives or 21 years, in reversion of his said estate; and whereas this cannot be by me assured to him, although the estate of inheritance of the whole manor of Timsborough has ever since the death of my husband Sir Barnabas Samborne been in me to dispose of: I hereby will the same to be effectually assured to him.

To my son Richard Samborne £300, to be paid to my brother Sir W^m Throgmorton, my kinsman Thomas Baynard Esq. & my friend Edward Orange gent, to be by them bestowed in an annuity or living for the said Richard.

To my son John Samborne £200, to be paid to him 6 months after he attain the age of 21: in the meantime his brother Thomas to be careful to send him to a good school and to Oxford.

A copy of the Somerset Visitation of 1573 at the British Museum (Harl. MSS. 1559, fo. 85) gives the children of Peter Samborne and his wives' names. In addition the will of his first father-in-law, Robert Hassall, of London, farrier, proved April 8, 1606, filed P. C. C. XXXVI. EZRA SAMBORNE, of Stowey, Somt., yeoman. Born 1599. Apparently never married; at all events had no issue, for his will, dated May 4, 1666, filed at Wells, divides his estate among the children of his brother Joseph.

XXXVII. JOSEPH SAMBORNE, of Stowey, husbandman. Born about 1600. Married Sarah, daughter of Isaac Robbins. A well-to-do man. His will, dated June 26, 1665, proved 1667, filed at Wells, makes brothers-in-law John and Isaac Robbins, trustees. 7. Ezra.

} From these sons descended a Somerset family of Sambornes, whom I have not traced further.

His daughter Deborah, spinster, of Stowey, in her will, dated Nov. 25, 1691, proved 1692, mentions sisters Phebe and Martha, brothers Richard, John, and Ezra, "cousins Martha and John Loscombe." His widow Sarah died in 1685, and her will is filed at Wells.

XXXVIII. OEEDIAH SAMBORNE, of Farmborough, Somt. Nuncupative will dated Nov. 8, 1667, gave all to the poor.

XXXIX. BARNABY SAMBORNE. Born 1590. Son of Sir Barnaby by the first wife. Left home and became a merchant in London. Inherited from his father only the entailed manors of Peglinche and Woodbarrow, Somt., which were heavily charged with a legacy for his brothers. Probably lived first with his uncle Peter, then with a London merchant, Mr. George Chambers. Apparently never married. In St. Mary Aldermary Register occurs this entry: "1619, July, died Barnaby Samborne, out of Mr. Chamber's house." His will, filed Parker 104 P. C. C., is as follows:

All my lands in Camerton and Wellowe and elsewhere in England to be sold within one year, the proceeds to be divided to allow To Richard Samborne now resident in Caen, Normandy, £300, and to each of his children £20. So seised, the said Barnabas made his will 21 July. 16 Jas. I [1618] & thereby declared that the said premises should be sold to the highest bidder & the money used to pay his debts & legacies.

The said premises are held of the king in chief by knights service, but by what part of a knights fee the jurors know not, by the yearly rent of 28s., & are worth per ann., clear, £7.

Barnabas Samborne died at London 24 Nov. last past, Mackleius Samborne, gent., is his kinsman & next heir, to wit, son & heir of Peter Samborne decd, brother of Barnabe Samborne Kt., father of the said Barnabie named in the writ.

XL. THOMAS SAMBORNE, of Timsbury, Somt. Born 1601. The richest of the Somerset family. In addition to the ancestral estates, he obtained through his wife, Amice, daughter and co-heir of Roger Maudley, half the splendid manor of Nunney, Somt., and bought the other half from his brother-in-law, John Jessopp. Lived at Nunney, and is buried in Nunney church, where are some fine Samborne monuments of the Stuart period. His will, dated January 12, 1636, proved March 10, 1636, and filed 47 Goare, mentions daughters Margery and Anne, and son Thomas. To these three younger children he leaves the manor of Nunney, the advowson of Nunney church, and several small pieces of land. XLI. WILLIAM SAMBORNE, of Paulton, Somt. Born 1604. Matriculated at Balliol College, Oxford, 1624, det. 1625. Married Anne, widow of Virgil Vaughan, Esq., but had no issue.

(Chan. Pro. Before 1714. Hamilton 382, No. 21.)—William Webb of Marshfield in Co. Glouc. gent. & Jane his wife, admrx of the goods of Ric^d Mogg, junior, gent, complain that Hen. Vaughan late of Stoneaston in Co. Somerset, gent, needing money prevailed on the said Ric^d Mogg being his near relation to be bound with him to Hen. Bull of Midsomer Norton in a bond of the penalty of £200 dated 20 May, 1641.

The said Hen. Vaughan was engaged as a commander in the late unhappy wars & was seised of divers lands.

The answer of William Samborne Esq. & Ann his wife: Defts do not know that plts were the administrators of Ric^d Mogge deced. They knew the said Hen. Vaughan deced for he was son to this deft. Anne, & did not know what bonds he entered into. They do not know that the said Hen. owed money to the said Richard. They have heard that he had an estate in fee-tail in Stone Easton, but do not know the value thereof. He was to have enjoyed the farm & lands at Paulton wherein defts. live for his life if he had survived this deft. Ann, who when she was sole made a lease to him about the year 1631 of certain lands called the Heyes & old mills & other grounds containing 111 a., parcel of the said farm of Paulton for the term of 16 years; these he enjoyed until 1645 when going to the wars he was killed at Langporte in Co. Somerset. In 1637 or 8 deft made another lease to the said Henry of the residue of the said farm of Paulton at the rent of £60 per ann., which he likewise enjoyed until his death when defts. re-entered the same. Defts do not know what goods the said Hen. left at his death except a sword, a buff coat & a mare which the soldiers took possession of.

His will, proved June 7, 1670, filed Penn 85 P. C. C., is as follows :

To be buried in the Chancel of Tymsbury Church, as near as possible to the Corpse of Lady Margaret Samborne, my mother. To wife Anne, £10. To poor of Tymsbury and Paulton. To Abraham Bailey. Residue to Nephew Maudley Samborne, sole executor.

XLIII. MAUDLEY SAMBORNE, ancestor of the present Sambornes of Timsbury, Somt. Born —.

In 1649, being sequestered, he petitioned against it, saying "he had done nothing nor engaged in y^e last War." Yet doubting he may have done "some act w^h may make him liable to sequestration he took advantage of a promise of Parliament to favour all such as voluntarily discover themselves, and sent in a list of his estates at Tymesborowe & Nunney; the yearly value of y^e latter was £180 w^h he had in fee tayle after the death of his mother." In consideration of this "discovery" he was fined a sixth, being on the whole estate £210.

XLIV. THOMAS SAMBORNE. Born —. Lived at Nunney, Somt. Married and had the following issue :

THE SAMBORNES OF HAMPSHIRE.

XXVI. JOHN SAMBORNE. Born about 1530. Apparently lived at Timsbury, since his uncle John left him the reversion of a cottage there.

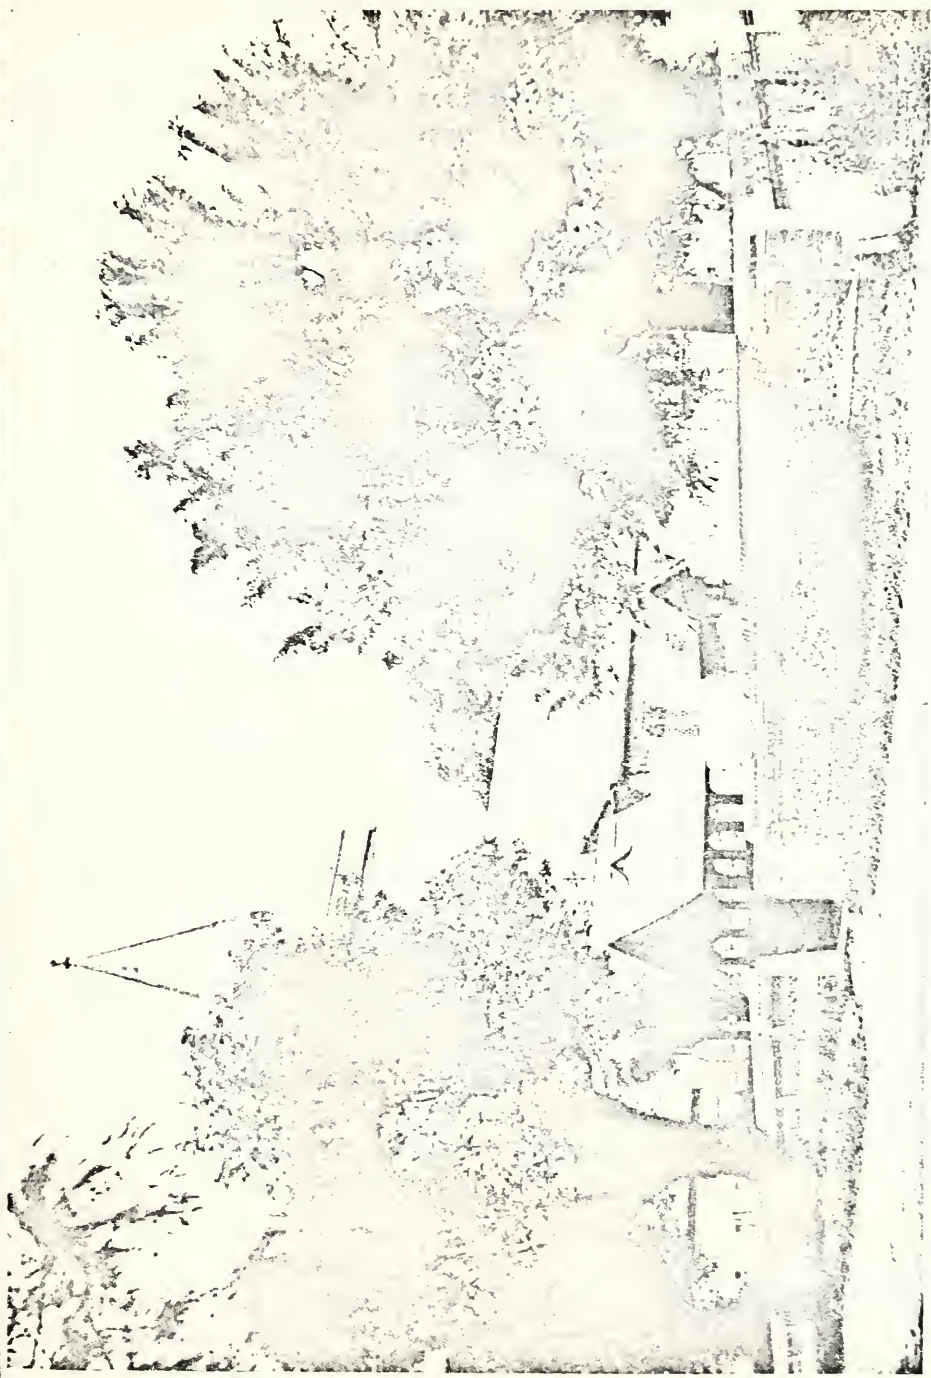

XXVII. JAMES SAMBORNE. Born about 1540. Studied at William of Wykeham's College in Winchester. Lived first in Weyhill, near Andover. Vicar of Andover, Hants, from 1580 to 1603.

James Samborne's will, dated May 18, 1603, is filed at Winchester, and is the only Samborne will filed there. It is as follows :

GOODWORTH CLATFORD (HANTS) PARISH CHURCH.

His inventory, taken Aug 25, 1603, by Anthony Gattonby, Richard Venables, Rowland Hopgood, and Wm. Barton of Andover, is very interesting (amount £91 8s.), describing all the goods in detail, covering eight pages, and mentioning among other things—all the books (£5), a writing-desk (4d.), wearing apparel (£5 19s.).

From this it will be seen that the only surviving children of Rev. James Samborne were Abigail and James. These are the only ones of whom we have any record.

1. Abigail, baptised at Weyhill. Hants, April 13, 1572.
2. James, born 1576, (Oxford Register), of whom see after, L

We spent several days in the neighborhood of Andover, the early home of the Hampshire Sambornes, and through the kindness of the late Rev. R. H. Clutterbuck, Rector of Penton Mewsey, Hants, an antiquary of fame, we enjoyed opportunities which few could have. Mr. Clutterbuck himself escorted us about Andover, and pointed out the house in which probably lived Julius Samborne, town clerk of Andover in 1700. For my church notes of Andover, however, I am indebted to my friend, Mr. George F. Tudor Sherwood, of London, whose courtesy I take this means of acknowledging.

At Upper Clatford, Hants, the home of Rev. James and Rev. Thomas Samborne, we spent pleasant hours, and the Rector, Rev. Mr. Noakes, was most kind in showing me the old Registers, which a predecessor has preserved, though in a somewhat damaged condition.

Upper Clatford is a charming village on the banks of the Anton; and the church is an ideal country church, embowered in trees, and so old that its exact age is unknown. Parts of the present delightful rectory are also very old, and a beautiful avenue connects it with the church.

Goodworth Clatford, Hants, is also a Samborne home, for there Rev. Anthony Gattonby spent his life, after resigning the Vicarage of Andover to his relative, Rev. James Samborne. Both Gattonby and Samborne were strong Hampshire men, and both students at Winchester College. Rev. Mr. Iremonger, the present Rector of Goodworth Clatford, was very hospitable and generous in showing me the Registers.

XXVIII. EDWARD SAMBORNE. Born about 1550. The only record we have of him is the mention in the will of his brother, Rev. James, in 1603. My theory points to him as the ancestor of our American family (see sketch pedigree.)

L. REV. JAMES SAMBORNE. Born in 1576, according to the Oxford Registers. Matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford. Described as "son of a gentleman of Hants." Apparently had some family influence near Andover (perhaps at Thruxton, where his cousins, the Philpots, held the ancient Lisle possessions). Foster says James Samborne was Rector of Grateley, Hants, in 1604, and of Upper Clatford, Hants, in 1610. We know that he was presented to the living of Upper Clatford by Arthur Swaine of Sarson, Hants (next parish to Thruxton).

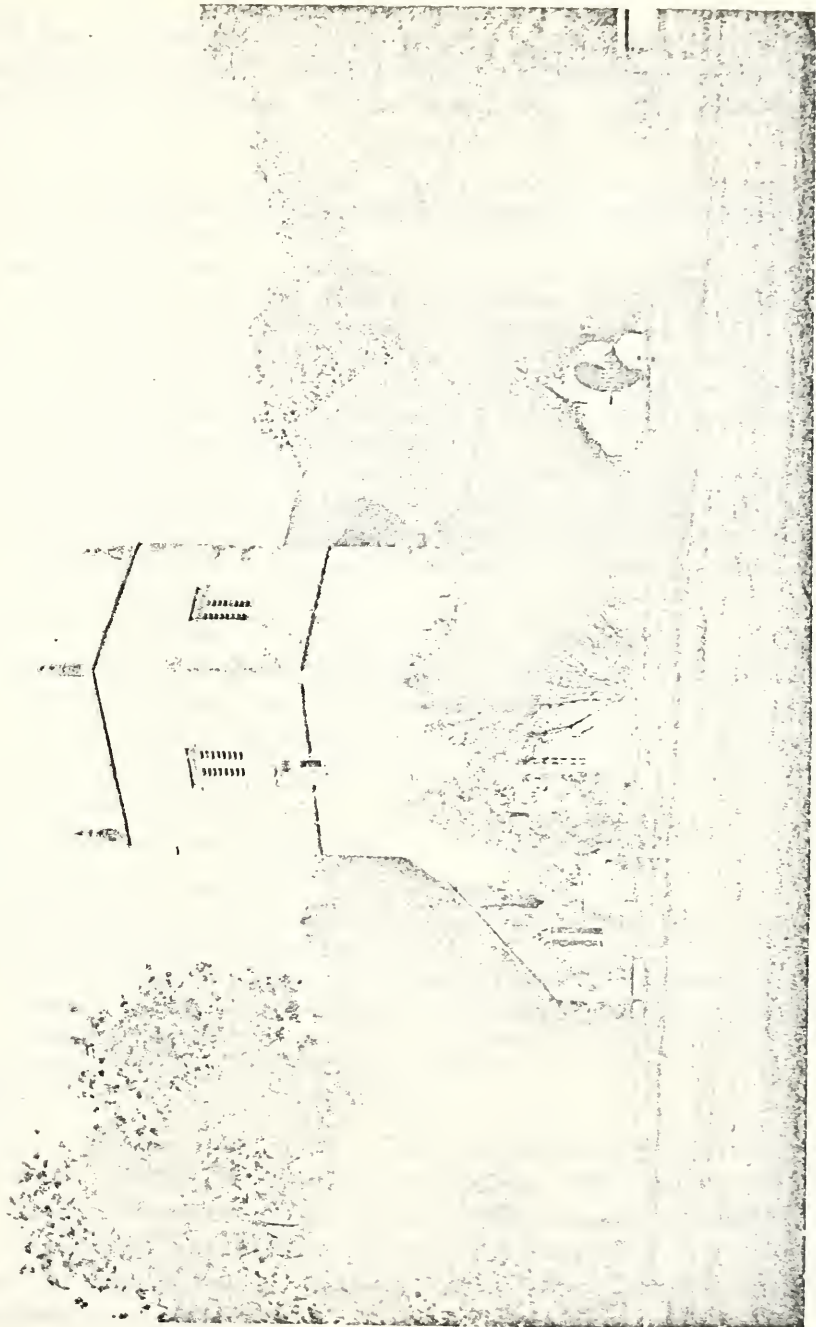

A long bill, filed in Chancery Proceedings, June 13, 1664, is, in brief, as follows :

Bill of Thomas Samborne, eldest son & heir of Thomas Samborne, late of Up Clatford Hants, Clarke, who was eldest son & heir of James Samborne late of the same parish. About 1610 one Arthur Swaine of Sarson, Hants, was seized of the right of presentation to p'ish of Up Clatford, and presented the said James Samborne to the said Rectory, who was thereupon instituted &c. Shortly after, Arthur Swaine died & his son Edward sold all his rights to the said James Samborne. About 1628 your orator's father being then under 21 and a scholar of St. Mary Magdalen Hall in the Univ. of Oxford, the said James Samborne, being a very intimate friend of Sir Thomas Jervois, then of Herriard, Hants, did convey all his interest in Up Clatford in trust to the said Jervois & shortly after, died. Sir Thomas Jervois instituted one Hook* to the living, but your orator's father coming of age, the said Hook resigned, and your orator's said father, Thomas Samborne was presented to the living (in 1632) when Sir Thos. Jervois pretended that he had paid some debts of your orator's grandfather & said he would retain the title to the premises until the debts were paid. But the late unhappy wars breaking out, and your orator's father being a person of eminent loyalty to the late glorious mighty King Charles I; and the said Jervois being a person of great authority in the then pretended Parlyament, he procured your orator's father to be sequestered for a delinquent against the said parlyament (and he was the very first minister that was sequestered in that county or in the whole kingdom), and so he continued during all the time of the said trouble, until the late happy restoration, when your orator's father being legally restored to the premises died about eighteen months ago. When he was so sequestered, the said Jervois came to him, confessed the deed to be a trust, & offered that if your orator's father would assert the interest of the then "godly & well affected party" as then called, he would not only restore him to the rectory but would reconvey the premises to him &c.

As an answer, Thomas Jervois of Herriard recited the indenture of 1637, whereby Christian Samborne, widow of James Samborne; and Thomas Samborne, Clerke, decd., son and heir to the said James Samborne, conveyed the said rectory, etc., for a valuable consideration to Sir Thomas Jervois.

This Sir Thomas Jervois was a prominent Puritan, a member of the 'Rump Parlyament,' and a commander in the Civil War. His descendants still live at Herriard Park, the present representative being Francis Michael Ellis-Jervois, J. P. A close intimacy existed between Sir Thomas Jervois and James Samborne, as can be seen from the following entries on the Close Rolls.

Close Roll, May 17th 1616, 14 James I. "Thos. Jervois Co. South., Kt. for 10 s. in hand paid by Sir Geo. Wrotesly and James Samborne clerk, conveys in trust the manors of Poyle, Chelmarsh, and Nethercourt."

Close Roll, June 26th 1623, 21 James I. "Between Sir Thos. Jervois, Herriard, Co South., Henry Cherfield and Robert Mason of Lincoln's Inn; and Sir Geo. Wrottesley of Farneham, Co. Surrey, Kt. and James Samburne of Clatford, Co. South. Clerk. Whereas Henry Arthur of Herriard and Eliz. his wife, conveyed to Cherfield and Mason during the life of Eliz. manorholds called Lee Place and lands in Herriard, Southropp and Weston Patrick in Co. South: Cherfield & Mason with consent of Jervois convey to Wrotesley and Samburne for £1,000 the said premises during life of Eliz.

Close Roll November 7th 21 James I. Between Sir Thomas Jervois: and Henry Cherfield of New Sarum and James Samborne of Upper Clatford, Clerk, conveys in trust "Manor of Britford, Wilts, and other lands in Wilts, on condition that they allow Jervois to occupy during life, that they pay his debts at death, residue for daughters of Jervois by Dame Lucy, now his wife," whose interest is also provided for.

Sherfield was a Wiltshire Recorder, who had strong Puritan tendencies, and was tried for sacrilege in destroying a stained-glass window in Salisbury. From the intimacy between Rev. James Samborne and these Puritans it may reasonably be asserted that he was himself of their way of thinking, and this would bring him near in spirit to that "notorious inconformist," Stephen Bachiler.

LIII. THOMAS SAMBORNE. Baptized at Upper Clatford, Hants, Aug. 29, 1636. The only further record of him we have is in Chancery Proc., Reynardson, 406, when Rev. OLD PARISH CHURCH OF ANDOVER, HANTS.

THE SAMBORNES OF FRANCE AND LONDON.

XXXIII. RICHARD SAMBORNE. Born in Maiden Newton, Dorset; baptised there, Jan. 9, 1575. A merchant in Weymouth, Dorset, with a large (and I fear irregular) trade to France. Finally moved his establishment to Caen, in Normandy, where he apparently lived and died. A merchant in a large way, who entered several Bills in Chancery for misappropriation of his goods by factors. The Calendars of State Papers furnish the following :

“ 1625: Prohibited goods laden in Ireland in a ship belonging to Richard Samborne, under bond to land them in Weymouth, but carried thence without entry at the Custom House; suggested that R. S. be committed and give surety for £10,000, the value of the goods.”

“ 1628: Petition of Mary, wife of Richard Samborne to the illustrious Prince, George, Duke of Buckingham: petitioner's husband having his whole estate in Normandy at Caen, crossed the seas in June last, proposing to ship his goods to England, but the coming of the English fleet prevented his doing so. Prays for permission to accomplish his intent.”

He married in France, Marie, daughter of — Rignouf; and died in 1642. His will, dated Feb. 21, 1631, proved July 15, 1642, and filed 94 Campbell, P. C. C., is as follows :

“ Whereas, John Saintlow, now of London, merchant, by deed dated June 24, 21 Jac. 1, by the name of John Saintlow of Knighton, Wilts, demised to me 2 parts (in 3 to be divided) of the capital messuage or farm of Pegledge als. Peglinche, and Woodberowe, situate in the parishes of Camerton and Wellow, Somt., with all the appurtenances, also all the messuages, lands, etc., sold to the said John Saintlow by John Doughty of Bristol, merchant, and Oliver Snell of the same, linen draper, by indenture dated June 7. 21 Jac. 1; to hold for the period of 99 years under the yearly rent of one peppercorn. And whereas also Giles Greene of Weymouth in Co. Dorset, gent., and the sd. John Saintlowe by deed dated 16 Nov. 2 Car. 1 demised to me the other 3d part of all the above-mentioned premises and all other the lands, tenements and hereditaments in Wellowe and Camerton which then lately descended to Mackleius Samborne as cousin and next heir of Barnaby Samborne deceased, to hold to me for 99 years under the yearly rent of 4d.; Now I give all the said premises to Nicholas Polden of Puscandle, my brother-in-law and my cousin John Cole of Collumpton in Devon upon trust that they immediately after my death sell the same and distribute the money therefrom arising amongst my 4 sons, Michael, Richard, Thomas and John. I make the said Nicholas Polden & John Cole my executors.” Witnesses Christopher Squire, John Byle, Wm. Hide.

Children :

1. Anne, born 1602, of whom see after, LX
2. Margaret, married, but died without issue.
3. Michael, of whom see after, LXI
4. Richard, of whom see after, LXII

XXXIV. FRANCIS SAMBORNE. Born in Maiden Newton, Dorset, about 1577. A merchant in London; said in Vis. of London, 1687, to have been a goldsmith. Married at St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, February, 1606, Margaret, daughter of Nicholas Blencowe or Blincoe, gent., of Southwark. Francis Samborne was a substantial merchant, but seems to have been involved in many vexatious cases at law. In Chanc. Proc., temp. Car. I, bdl. S 25, No. 39, appears the following Bill brought by him vs. William Clayball:

“Orator Francis Samborne, of London, gent.; his wife Margaret Blincoe was left by her father one messuage in London; she died having borne him four children, Nicholas, Francis William & Richard. Six years since, your orator having about that time sent his eldest son Nicholas to Holland as a factor for some goods valued at £800 sent by ship, heard that the ship, his son and the goods were cast away, whereupon your orator took a journey into those parts to be better ascertained of the said information; and before his departure called to mind (as truly is) that Will: Clayball was a lessee in trust for your orator; and asked him to take upon himself the education of your orator’s two younger sons, telling him that your orator was to take with him Francis Samborne, his second son, to bind him apprentice to some merchant in those parts. Your orator gave to Will: Clayball £100 in money and clothing, and authorized him to receive in trust the rents of the sd. Messuage in Mark Lane where your orator lived and of two other houses. Your orator was absent from Nov. 1627 to Feb. 1632 and then returned home, having found that his son Nicholas and his goods had been cast away, and leaving his son Francis bound apprentice in Holland, to your orator’s great charges; etc.” Goes on to say that Clayball had misappropriated the property left in his charge.

In the same bundle, No. 5, appears a Bill brought by Francis Samborne vs. Peter George, a Yeoman of the Guard, complaining that when Samborne went abroad he left all his papers, books, etc., in the possession of the said George, who had embezzled them.

Children:

1. Nicholas, born 1610; entered at Merchant Taylor’s School in London, 1618; drowned at 16 years, as has been seen above.
2. Francis, of whom see after, LXVI
3. William, of whom see after, LXVII
4. Richard, of whom see after, LXVIII

XXXV. JOHN SAMBORNE. Born about 1585. Said in the Visitation of London, 1687, to have been a merchant abroad with his brother Richard. No further record exists of him, except the title of the following elaborate heraldic scroll, which shows that he was living abroad in 1651, and thus disposes of the theory that he was the father of the three American Sambornes, since that member of the family had died before 1632. The heraldic scroll of which the following is the title, was exhibited thirty years ago by the late John Gough Nichols, at the Heraldic Exhibition of the Society of Antiquaries at Somerset House; it is mentioned in Vol. I of the Herald and Genealogist, but I have been unable to find any further trace of it. This is the title:

“Genealogia, sive prosapia generosissimi viri: Johannis Samborne, jam in partis transmarinis existentis: filii quarti Francisci Sambourne de Maiden Newton in Com. Dorset generosi: filii secundi Johannis Sambourne de Tymesburie in Com. Somt: ex antiqua stirpe Sambournorum in Sunning in Com. Berks oriundi.” (Dated July 4, 1651.)

LX. ANNE SAMBORNE. Born in 1602. Married probably in Caen, Normandy, France, John LeBas, of Caen, Gent., born July 13, 1607, son of John LeBas, Esq., and Marie, daughter of Robert Paisan. John LeBas was a French merchant, whose sons came to England with the Restoration. Children:

1. John, born March 10, 1625, ob. s. p.
2. James, born June 26, 1627, ob. s. p.
3. Richard, born Dec. 30, 1629, of whom see after, LXIX
4. Michael, born 1632, ob. s. p.
5. Marie, born Dec. 28, 1633; married — Jeanblin.

LXI. MICHAEL SAMBORNE. Born about 1603. Perhaps lived in France, but left no issue. Living in 1676.

LXII. RICHARD SAMBORNE. Born about 1605. A merchant trading between France and England; probably lived in Caen, and came to England at the Restoration. Married and died before 1676, leaving a wife and two daughters.

LXIII. THOMAS SAMBORNE, of Caen, in France, and later of London. He and his brother John were wealthy merchants, Royalists, who aided in the escape of Charles II, and in his restoration in 1660.

The Calendars of State Papers between 1650 and 1660 contain frequent references to these Sambornes, who appear to have been the means of advancing money for the King, and were prominent in the plots to restore him to the throne.

“Petition dated July 1660, of Thomas and John Samborne, merchants, for the nomination of one of them as Commissioner in the Excise Office. They have done great services during the late war, in relieving persons of quality and others related to His Majesty; they hope he will not forget the infinite honour he did them at Rouen on his miraculous deliverance. Statement of reasons why Thomas and John Samborne should be looked upon as loyal sufferers: they have had several commissions from the late and present King,—supplied munitions &c. to the value of £25,000, were banished and sold their inheritance for fear of sequestration; on the King’s escape from Worcester and landing in Rouen. John Samborne was the only person to whom he trusted the secret of his arrival, and sent him with a packet to the Queen Mother; he introduced to His Majesty Mr. Scott, who relieved him with money for Paris; and he still preserves a part of His Majesty's disguise as a relic. They undertook commissions for the King, Queen and Duke of York when none else would sail, settling near the Queen at the Palais Royal. A year ago they were employed to bring the King and Princes from Paris to be delivered on board the Admiral of England. Many nobles can attest their services; they request the least office for one of them." (Cal. of State Papers.)

Volume IV of Clarendon's State Papers contains many letters interchanged between Lord Chancellor Hyde (Lord Clarendon) and Mr. John Samborne, showing the friendly relations in which Samborne stood with the English Court.

Married Margaret, widow of Peter Gosfruit, a wealthy merchant of London. Had no issue. The will of Thomas Samborne, dated June 3, 1676, filed 92 King, P. C. C., is as follows:

"To be buried either at Somersett House or the Chapel Royal, as the religious men belonging to His Majesty's Chapel and the Chapel of the Portuguese Ambassador shall see fit. To Mr. Huddleston, His Majesty's chaplain, £50;—if he die it shall go to the Prior of Somersett House for pious and charitable uses. To wife Margaret, besides £100 a year during her life out of my estate of Llwngetwth, all right and title in the lease of the house where I now live, in Axe Yard, Westminster; and all plate, household stuff etc. and wearing apparel save what she gives to my manservant; if more than two months elapse without payment of the £100, it is to be paid out of my personal estate. To eldest brother, Michael Samborne £100. To two nieces, daus. of my brother Richard Samborne, £50 To widow of late brother John Samborne, £100, and to her children. To children of nephew John LeBas, £50, equally divided. To nephew James LeBas £50 for his son Peter LeBas. To loving friend Lewis Lewis, Esq., of Penmeon in Monmouthshire, £50. To my wife's children Fras. Gosfruight, now at Leghorn; and Richard Gosfruight of the New Exchange, £50. Rest to children of nephew Richard LeBas now living in Westminster, and Kiffiana his wife." Codicil leaves £100 more to his wife,—the jewel he purchased of the Swedish Ambassador for £500 to be sold by Richard LeBas to pay these legacies.

(Chan. Pro. before 1714. Collins 605, p. 36, n. 35.)—15 July, 1679. Richard Lebas & Kiffiana his wife, Margaret Lebas, Charles Samborne Lebas, Charlotte Lebas & Francis Lebas children of the said Richard & Kiffiana, being all under the age of 21. complain that whereas Thomas Samborne late of the parish of St. Margaret's Westminster, Esq. about the 3rd June, 1674, lent to John Vaughan of Whitehouse in the parish of Landevaylog in Co. Carnarvan, Esq. £300 in consideration whereof the said John demised to him his messuages & lands called Gelly Lladnais, those in the occupation of Owen St. John, the messuage called Tally Farme in the occ. of Richard John, the mess. & lands called Knucke in the occ. of W^m Anthony, those called Killgadgen in the tenure of Lewis Trebery, those in the occ. of David Lloyd, those called Prigan in the occ. of Evan Edward, those in the occ. of Anthony John, & those in the lordships of Clwin (?) in the occ. of the said John Vaughan. David John & Lewis John in the said parish of Landevaylog: To hold for 99 years, at the yearly rent of 1 pepper-corn. The said Thos. Samborne by deed dated 28 Sept. 1674, re-demised the said premises to the said John Vaughan for 98 years, at the yearly rent of £60 for the first 7 1-2 years, & afterwards 1 peppercorn.

Thos. Haward of Fflethehill in Co. Pembroke, gent, in consideration of £500 to him paid by Thos. Samborne, demised to the said Thos. the manors or lordships of Fletherhill, Rudbaxton & St. Ismaells, & divers messuages, rectories, mills, farms, & lands in Fletherhill, Rudbaxton, St. Ismaells & other parishes & places in Cos. Carmarthen & Pembroke, which then belonged to the said Thos. Haward or to Geo. Haward or to Thos. Haward, Esq. To hold for 21 years, at the yearly rent of 1 peppercorn. By indenture dated 23 July, 1674, the said Thos. Samborne demised to the said Thos. Haward all the said manors &c.: To hold for 20 years and 11 months, paying therefore yearly for the first 7 years £100, & for the residue of the said term 1 peppercorn. The said Thos. Samborne being possessed of the said annuities of £60 & £100 & having also a considerable personal estate by his will devised £100 per ann. to his wife Margaret for her life; also the lease of his dwelling house in Axe yard, & all his furniture, plate, pictures, &c. in the said house, worth about £1000, & after giving divers legacies to the children and relations of the said Margaret by her former husband, testator bequeathed the rest of his estate to Lewis Lewis, Esq., Francis Gosfruight & Ric^d Gosfruight 2 of the sons of the said Margaret by her former husband, whom he made executors, in trust for the benefit of plts., the said Kiffiana being also a dau. of the said Margaret by her former husband. About Sept., 1677, the said Margaret being dissatisfied with the provision made for her, while her husband lay on his death bed went into the closet where his money, securities, jewels, &c. were kept, & carried away a diamond jewel which cost testator £500. & a bond whereby Mr Pargiter was bound to pay testator £300. At first she denied taking them, but afterwards confessed, whereupon a treaty was had between testator & Sir Nathaniel Hearne & others & it was agreed that if the said Margaret restored the said jewel & bond testator should give her £200 more than he had left her in his will.

The said Thomas Samborne died about January, 1676, & the said Lewis Lewis & Francis Gosfruight proved his said will, but the said Ric^d Gosfruight did not prove it. Then the said Margaret in spite of the said agreement gave out that according to the custom of Wales she ought to have a third part of the said annuities of £60 & £100, & commenced a suit against the said exors. & now they are confederating together so that there may be but a faint defence, & that the verdict may be given for her. The said Margaret was born in Wales & has many friends and relations there whereas plts. live in Midds. & are quite unable to attend any trial in Wales &c.

SCATTERED NOTES ON ENGLISH SAMBORNES.

Besides the foregoing connected pedigree, I have come across the following scattered links, which I cannot connect with the main line:

A. In Foster's "London Marriage Licenses" I find the following: "Feby 10, 1599. BAR-NABY SAMBORNE of Paddington, Middlesex and Alice, daughter of William Blackleech of Paddington."

B. 1. DAVID SAMBORNE, probably of London, only known of by the marriage entry of his son,—

2. RICHARD SAMBORNE, Barber, of London. In the Register of St. Peter's, Cornhill. I find this entry: "Feby. 15, 1578, wedded, Richard Sanborn, Barber, son of Davy Sanborn and Isabel Walker, daughter of Richard Walker, Carpenter. Richard Samborne was the father (probably) of

C. A friend has kindly sent me the following entry from the Parish Register of Easton-in-Gordano, Somt.: "Married Robert Samborne and Agnes Phillipps, the 6t of July, 1635." Doubtless this was a descendant of the Timsbury Sambornes, whose line outside the direct owners of Timsbury is rather incomplete. Easton-in-Gordano is eight miles east of Bristol, abutting on the river Avon, and four miles from Portishead, where it enters the British Channel. The name still exists in the parish, my friend goes on to say,—“Hanging in the vestry of the church were the surplices of the choristers, and in each is the name of the wearer, on a piece of paper sewn upon it; one is ‘Willie Sambourne,’ and another, ‘Herbert Sambourne.’”

D. Chambers' "Next of Kin" contains a note, No. 94,812, which I find to be an advertisement for the representative of Richard Samborne, Gent., who in the year 1749, was a Solicitor and one of the 60 Clerks in Chancery, residing in Bartlett's Buildings, Holborn, London.

E. The following data, written by the celebrated artist, Mr. Linley Sambourne, shows his ancestry as far back as he can trace it. Mr. Sambourne is probably the best known artist in black and white in England, and his cartoons for Punch have been one of the features of that journal for twenty years and more:

LINLEY SAMBOURNE, ESQ., OF LONDON.

Mr Edward Linley Sambourne's father, uncle and aunt were born at Easton, Penn., U. S. A. There are two letters from this Thomas Samborne, or Sambourne (he added the u) to his uncle, James Wheat, dated Philadelphia, April 3, 1800, and April 10th, 1804, explaining the reasons for his long silence and going somewhat fully into the state of American politics, etc., and the latter enclosing a power of attorney for his mother to receive a legacy due to him. At the end of the latter he says, "My little boy is very hearty and the very picture of his grandmother." In the former he says, "Owing to the good education you have given me I have been enabled to turn my hand to any line of life. I learned surveying by my own application, and few have been supposed better where I was known. My plannings would not have disgraced Mr. Fairbanks, and I venture to assure you that I have never disgraced the education you have bestowed on me by being otherways than a gentleman. I teach music at present in a few genteel families here until I can save a few hundred pounds, which will enable me to retire into the Back country and follow my former profession of the Law, which is both the most lucrative and most respected here," etc.

Edward Linley Sambourne, born January 4, 1844. Educated at city of London schools and Chester colleges. Intended for the engineering profession, and entered the establishment of John Penn & Son, engineers, Greenwich, 1861-7. Began to draw for Punch, 1867, and has contributed ever since. Now is cartoonist with Sir John Tenniel, and is well known as a draughtsman and designer.

F. William Sambourne of Brimpton, Berks, was appointed overseer of the will of Walter Bacheller, cooper, of Tadley, Hants,—will dated July 23, 1616, and proved the same year. Walter Bacheller was the son of John Bacheller of Woking, and had brothers John and Edmund, the latter living in Aldermaston, Berks. This connection between the Bachellers and Sambornes seems suggestive, and I tried to get the entries from Brimpton registers, since I had been unable to find any trace of who this William was. Unfortunately the Brimpton Registers were burned, so that there are now none extant dated before 1650, nor are there any Samborne entries up to 1700.

ENGLISH REFERENCES: EARLY SAMBORNE PEDIGREES.

It would be unnecessary and cumbersome to print in this volume every Samborne pedigree, printed and in MS., or to give the exact reference to all the English records on which Samborne data are found. All the English pedigrees of the name have contained the same errors. As examples I print the following :

- A. A curious old pedigree from Timsbury MSS. of the Stuart period; apparently the work of some heraldic forger, since none of the earlier matches can be verified; and the generations just before John Samborne, who married Dorothy Tichborne, are certainly incorrect.
- B. A pedigree compiled by the Heralds' College for the father of the present owner of Timsbury, when the latter obtained Royal permission to assume the name of Samborne. It is interesting as showing the errors of the early Visitations perpetuated in the Heralds' work of this century.
- C. The pedigree of the Oxfordshire and Berkshire-Sambournes, registered by Thomas Sambourne of Sonning in the Oxfordshire Visitation of 1566; shows the erroneous early generations, and is the foundation for all later Berkshire Sambourne descents.
- D. Sambourne pedigree in Vis. of Berks. 1623.
- E. The pedigree of the Somersetshire Sambornes, registered by the oldest son in the Somerset Visitation of 1623. Shows the entirely erroneous early generation; and also shows ignorance of the connection between the Somerset and Berks branches, which should have been known at that time.

In tracing for this volume the Samborne descent, the correctness of which is undoubted, the following records have been searched, and every capital reference to the name extracted :

PROBABLE CONNECTION WITH AMERICAN SANBORNS.

There is no doubt that the American Sanborns are a branch of the ancient Wiltshire family of Samborne, but the absolute proof of connection has not yet come to light, in spite of a protracted search in this country and England.

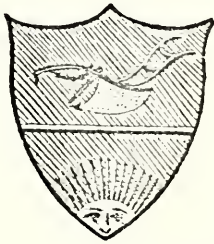

There are several English Sambornes from any one of whom we may be descended. I have tabulated these various theoretical ancestors as follows, in order of probability :

1. Hampshire Sambornes. This seems the most probable connection since the life and associations of our ancestor, Rev. Stephen Bachiler, were much with the county of Hants. While he was living there, in Wherwell and Newton Stacy, there were living in neighboring parishes two of the Hampshire family, Rev. James Samborne of Gratley and Upper Clatford, and Rev. Anthony Gattonby of Andover and Goodworth Clatford. James Samborne held strong Puritanical views, and would thus have been closely associated with Bachiler. Gattonby lived even nearer Bachiler, and was of the same turn of mind. James Samborne himself, born about 1576, was apparently not the father of our Samborne ancestor, who married Anne Bachiler; but his uncles, Edward and John Samborne, probably lived near Andover, and either of them may have been his father. At Brimpton, in Berks, just across the line from Kingsclere in Hants, we find a William Sambourne, overseer to the will of Walter Bachiler in 1616. At Basingstoke, in 1641, we find a John Samborne, sergeant-at-mace to George Baynard, mayor of Basingstoke in that year. Baynard was a staunch Puritan and own cousin to Sir Barnaby Samborne of Timsbury, who was a cousin to Rev. James. My theory is shown by the following sketch pedigree :

REV. STEPHEN BACHILER: OUR FIRST AMERICAN ANCESTOR.

The best clue to our English origin seems to lie through the discoveries in regard to Rev. Stephen Bachiler, the grandfather of our first American ancestors. The account of Mr. Bachiler, given below, states the main facts of his life; but for our purpose the most important point is that he was first and last a Hampshire man. He lived in Hampshire from his presentation to the living of Wherwell until he sailed for America, and all his connections were with Hampshire. He was Vicar of Wherwell while Rev. James Samborne was Vicar of Andover, almost the next parish, and while Anthony Gattonby was Rector of Goodworth Clatford, the very next parish to Wherwell; after Mr. Bachiler had been deprived of his benefice the second Rev. James Samborne was successively Rector of Grateley and Upper Clatford, but a few miles further away; and as we have seen, the Sambornes and Gattonby were strongly tinged with Puritanism. This branch of the Sambornes was essentially a Hampshire family, owning land there and marrying Hampshire women.

All the children of Rev. Stephen Bachiler of whom we have record married in Hampshire or the adjoining counties, viz. :

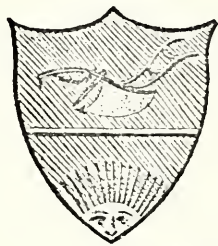

- i. Nathaniel, born 1590; married Hester Mercer of Southampton, a niece of Rev. John Priaulx, Archdeacon of Sarum.
- ii. Deborah, born 1592; married Rev. John Wing of Oxfordshire, Holland and London.
- iii. Stephen, born 1594; matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford (James Samborne's College).

2. Berkshire Sambournes. Not so probable, since the name was differently spelt, and there is no special reason for connecting them with Rev. Stephen Bachiler. But John Sambourne of Cholsey, son of Richard of Wallingford, was born about 1591, and may have been the husband of Anne Bachiler.

3. London Sambornes. I can find no member of this branch who might have been our ancestor. From the record of Anne Samborne's journey to Holland, in 1631, it is apparent that she was living "in ye strand." Perhaps this points to a London connection, but it is more probable she was staying with one of her brothers, or their families, the Mercers.

The best clue to our English origin seems to lie through the discoveries in regard to Rev. Stephen Bachiler, the grandfather of our first American ancestors. - iv. Samuel, born 1596, a chaplain in Holland, 1620.
- v. Theodate, born 1598; married Christopher Hussey, of Dorking, in Surrey, but a connection probably of Christopher Hussey, many years Mayor of Winchester.
- vi. Anne, born 1600; married about 1619 (John?) Samborne, who died about 1628-'30.

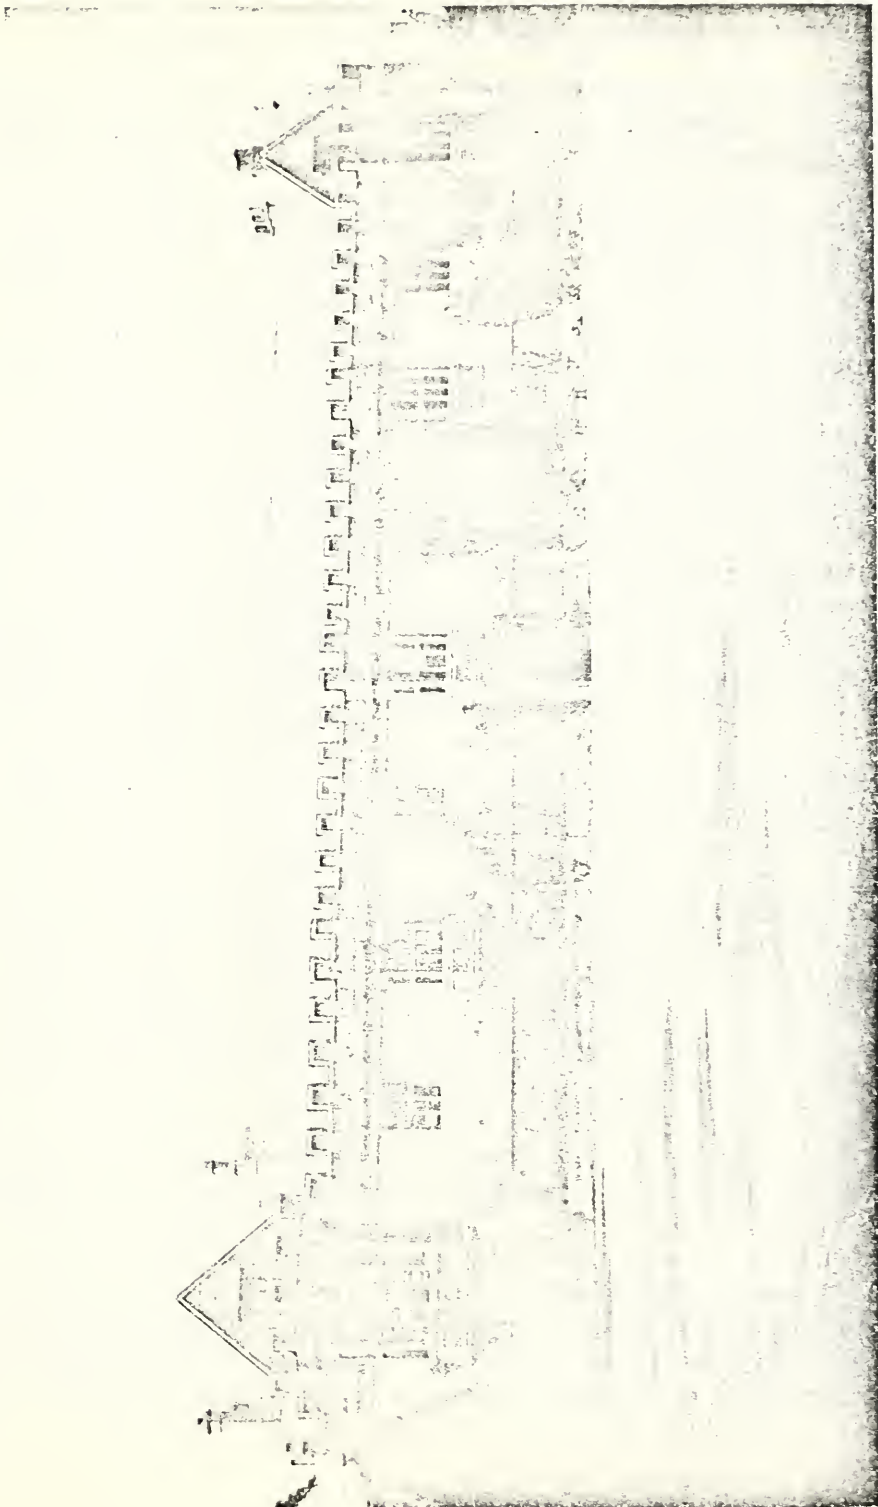

Thus propinquity and sympathy in religious feeling would point to a connection between the Bachilers and the Hampshire Sambornes.

The Registers of Wherwell are destroyed, and those of Upper Clatford are somewhat injured; the Andover Registers throw but little light on the Hampshire Sambornes, and there is but one Samborne will filed at Winchester. One of the most important files of Winchester wills is, however, missing, and should that ever be found it may elucidate the mystery.

Concerning the life of Stephen Bachiler, less is extant than of most of the founders of New England; yet few of the early Puritans were more widely known in their day, and none had a more checkered career. Bachiler, as is said of a descendant of his, "had a real genius for opposing the majority," and in consequence his character has been much maligned. The truth is, he was a reformer, with the strength and weakness of his kind. He was among the first to refuse conformity to the English church, and "suffered much at the hands of the Bishops." He came to America in his old age, hoping to find here that liberty which was denied at home; he rebelled at the union of church and state which the strong Puritan covenant enforced; and in consequence found himself opposed to the party in power, the Massachusetts authorities. After twenty years of conflict, in his old age he returned to England, preferring to pass his last days among the Puritans there, rather than in New England. His life measures the Puritan epoch; he was among the first clergymen to be ejected, and he died with the English Republic.

Stephen Bachiler was born in 1560. His parentage and birthplace are yet unknown,—Southern England was at that time full of Bachilers; Hampshire, Surrey, Sussex, and Kent had distinct lines, while the Channel Islands were the home of a Bachiler family of French extraction. Probably this French family, migrating to Southampton and forming an important part of the French Protestant church there, was the ancestral line of Stephen Bachiler. Certain it is that his lifelong connection was with Hampshire, and he was allied to the LeMercier and Priaux families of Jersey and Southampton.

The first record of Stephen Bachiler is in 1581, when, at 20, he was matriculated at the then newly established college of St. John, Oxford, on Nov. 17, 1581. Here he took his B. A. in 1586. St. John's was founded in 1555 by Sir Thomas White, and is now one of the most interesting colleges in Oxford, possessing the most beautiful gardens there. The scholars of St. John's were of various opinions,—the list includes Archbishops Laud and Juxon, and the celebrated nonconformist Calamy.

From Oxford Bachiler entered the church, and on July 15, 1587, was instituted as Vicar of Wherwell, Hants, being presented to that living by William, Lord de la Warr, the ancestor of the nobleman from whom Delaware derives its name. Wherwell ("Horrell") is a beautiful village on the Test, and was in its most perfect beauty when I saw it in June, 1895. The church lies a short distance from Wherwell Priory, the home of Mr. Iremonger, and a most ideal English country-seat. The present church, though located on the original site, is not the building of Bachiler's time, and the Registers before 1624 are missing, so that I found nothing there concerning him. The Bishop's Transcripts at Winchester are not accessible. In 1605 Bachiler was "deprived" of his living,—the cause is not stated, but it was presumably by the order of the Commission appointed by James I, of which Commission Lord de la Warr, a son of the nobleman who presented Bachiler to Wherwell, was a member. August 9, 1605, John Bate was appointed Vicar of Wherwell, a vacancy existing because of "the ejection of Stephen Bachiler."

From 1605 the record of Bachiler's English life is very fragmentary. In 1610 his son Stephen was matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford, "the son of a clergyman of Hampshire." In 1621 Adam Winthrop's diary relates that he had "Mr. Bachiler the preacher" to dine with him. Tradition says that Bachiler fled to Holland; Winthrop's History states that he "suffered much at the hands of the Bishops;" but no record of his life in Holland is extant. Perhaps this suffering and flight were between 1605 and 1622; for in the latter year we find him established in Newton Stacy, a retired hamlet, a mile and a half east of Wherwell. Here Bachiler bought land in 1622 and 1629, accumulating a considerable property; he still preached the Puritan doctrines, for we find Sir Robert Payne in 1632 (being then of Hants) complaining that his tenants "having been formerly misled by one Stephen Bachiler, a notorious inconformist, did demolish a consecrated chapel in Newton Stacy."

In 1630 "The Plough Company of Husbandmen" was formed, and obtained a patent to land near the mouth of the Sagadahoc river, in Maine. They chose Bachiler as their Pastor, and he also adventured a considerable sum in the enterprise, selling his Hampshire property to enable him to do this. Through fraud or some underhand dealing the Plough Company failed, in 1631-'32, after Bachiler had made preparations to come to New England and settle in Cambridge (Newtown). Before sailing for America, Bachiler and his wife, accompanied by his widowed daughter, Ann Samborne, then "living in ye Strand," obtained permission to go to Holland for two months, "to visit his sons and daughters there." One of these sons was probably that Samuel Bachiler, chaplain to Sir Charles Morgan's regiment in Holland, who in 1625 published his "Miles Christianus," probably the treatise which Bachiler sent as a gift to Margaret Winthrop in 1640. At this period, too, is that grant of arms to Stephen Bachiler, described by Sylvanus Morgan in his "Sphere of Gentry,"—Vert, a plow in fess; in base the sun rising, or. This coat Morgan states was granted to "Stephen Bachiler, the first Pastor of the church of Lygonia in New England, the plough to signify his ploughing up the fallow ground of their hearts, and the sun in allusion to his motto 'Sol Justitiae Exoritur.'"

Bachiler married twice in England; all his children of whom we have record were by the first wife. His second wife, Helen, accompanied him to New England, dying in 1642.

On March 9, 1632, Bachiler sailed for New England in the William and Francis, landing at Boston, June 3, 1632. Winthrop in relating the fact states that on the ship were "Mr. Bachiler and Mr. Welde with their families, and many other honest men." Just what family Bachiler brought with him is not known,—presumably his second wife and his four grandsons, Nathaniel Bachiler, and John, William, and Stephen Samborne. Apparently none of Bachiler's own children came. The failure of the "Plough Company" compelled him to give up his plan of settling in Cambridge, and he accepted a call from the church at Saugus (Lynn), where his son-in-law, Christopher Hussey, then resided. On June 8, 1632, Bachiler commenced his ministrations, baptising four children; it is said that when Thomas Newhall, the first white child born in Lynn, was presented for baptism, Bachiler put him aside, saying, "I will baptise mine own child first," meaning Stephen Hussey, his grandson and namesake.

Shortly after his arrival, Bachiler came into conflict with the authorities, for on Oct. 3, 1632, the General Court ordered "that Mr. Batcheler forbear exercising his gifts as a pastor or teacher publicly in our pattennt, unless it be to those he brought with him, for contempt of authority, and until some scandles be removed." By "scandles" is merely meant some report of his utterances against the authorities. After five months this order was recalled. He was at the conference of ministers Sept. 17, 1633, and again Dec. 19, 1634. Early in 1635 a general convention of elders was held in Lynn to discuss the quarrel between Bachiler and an opposing faction in his church, who held that he had no true communion. The council agreed that though not at first installed in due order, yet Bachiler had a true church there; after a time peace was restored. On May 5, 1635, he became a freeman. In January, 1636, he was summoned before the magistrates, because, "coming out of England with 6 or 7 persons, and having since received in many more at Sagus; and contention coming between him and the greatest part of his church, he desired dismissal for himself and his first members, which being granted he with the said six or seven persons presently renewed their old covenant, intending to raise another church in Sagus; whereat the most and cheefe of the town being offended for that it would cross their intention of summoning Mr. Peter or some other minister, they complained to the magistrates, who forbade him to proceed in any church way until the cause were considered by the other ministers. But he refused to desist. Upon his appearance and submission, and promise to remove out of the town within 3 months, he was discharged." In February, 1636, Bachiler moved to Ipswich, the home of John Winthrop, where he received fifty acres of land, but, apparently discouraged by his troubles at Saugus, gave up the active work of the ministry. This latter fact was mentioned in a letter of the period from a Puritan minister in England as a result of the rigid and bigoted spirit in New England, which deterred many from coming to this country.

Early in 1638, in the winter time, Bachiler tried to form a settlement near Yarmouth, on Cape Cod, where his Wing grand-children afterwards lived, and walked there from Ipswich. But, says Winthrop, "he and his company being poor men, gave it over and others undertook it." In the spring of 1638 he removed to Newbury, where his son-in-law Hussey and his connection, Mr. Richard Dummer, were living. The latter had come into conflict with the powers that be, having been one of those disarmed a year before because of his adherence to the forbidden opinions of Anne Hutchinson.

Few men at seventy-nine years of age would undertake to start a new settlement in the wilderness, especially after thirty-three years of conflict; but such was the determined nature of Stephen Bachiler. No better spot could have been chosen, comprising as it did both fertile farm lands and wide stretches of salt and fresh meadows. Bachiler had visited it before September, 1638, and in that month had petitioned the General Court for leave to begin a plantation there. On Oct. 9, 1638, writing to Gov. Winthrop and asking him and Mr. Bradstreet to accompany the little band of settlers, he says,—“ We were there and viewed it cursorily and we found a reasonable meet place, which we shall shew you.” Bachiler’s fellow petitioners and settlers were mostly from the counties of Hampshire and Wiltshire, among them are two of his old parishioners in England, but there were also some from Norfolk and Suffolk.

June 7, 1639, Winnicunnet was made a town, and in the fall the name was changed to Hampton, at the request of Bachiler and in honor of the city of Southampton, then commonly called Hampton, with which the Bachiler family was associated. Stephen Bachiler was thus the founder and father of Hampton, the third settlement in New Hampshire, and for years the principal town in that colony; he received a grant of 300 acres from the town, gave a bell for their church, and bound up his fortunes with the new settlement. In 1639 Ipswich promised him a large grant if he would settle with them, but he refused. About this time Hampton received a considerable influx of new settlers, many of them from Norfolk and Suffolk,—and a Suffolk clergyman, Timothy Dalton, was associated with Bachiler in the ministry, as Teacher and Curate. From this time dated a long period of strife in the Hampton church. Dalton was thirty years younger than Bachiler, educated, a sizar, at St. John’s, Cambridge, and had brought with him many of his old parishioners. He was politic, active, and an earnest adherent of the plans of Massachusetts.

But little definite record is left us of the conflict between pastor and teacher; the town records are mute and the church records are missing. Winthrop’s History contains little of value concerning it, and is mainly responsible for preserving the slander which it is now thought Dalton and his party manufactured out of the whole cloth,—that Bachiler solicited the chastity of a member of his church. Judge Batchelder, in refuting this falsehood, calls attention to the fact that no definite charge was ever brought, that the woman’s name was never mentioned, and that no investigation was made, although Bachiler earnestly and publicly entreated it. In Bachiler’s letter to Winthrop he charges Dalton with “ having done all and been the cause of all the dishonor that hath accrewed to God, shame to myself and greefe to all God’s people by his irregular proceeding and abuse of the power of the church in his hand, the main part cleaving to him being his countrymen and acquaintance in England. The Teachers’ excommunicating of me would prove the foulest matter, both for the cause alleged and the impulsive cause (even wrath and revenge).” Winthrop’s account censures Dalton, “ who indeed had not carried himself in this cause so well as became him and acknowledged it.” In 1643 the magistrates, to whom the case was referred, annulled the excommunication, but did not restore Bachiler to his pastoral office. To show the general belief in Bachiler's innocence, just at this time while the report was rife, two neighboring towns, Casco on the north and Exeter on the west, called him to be their minister; he at once set their calls before the magistrates, saying that he wished to accept neither until he had a full hearing in his case against Dalton. The magistrates in reply merely advised him to leave Hampton, and he accepted the call to Exeter; but as this was within the jurisdiction claimed by the Massachusetts authorities, they were unwilling to have so troublesome an opponent within their bounds, and in 1644 the Court ordered the Exeter people, on account of their divisions and contentions, to defer gathering a church. Winthrop adds that "Mr. Bachiler had been in three places before, and through his means, as was supposed, the churches fell into such divisions that no peace could be till he was removed." Bachiler, who had declined the call to Casco, and prepared to settle in Exeter, remained in Hampton. The troubles were growing more bitter. Hampton had paid him no salary, and he petitioned the General Court for some allowance, but they refused to step in, leaving him to sue through the District Court. July 15, 1644, Winthrop says, "The contentions in Hampton were grown to a great height, the whole town was divided into two factions, one with Mr. Bachiler, their late Pastor, and the other with Mr. Dalton, their Teacher, both men very passionate and wanting discretion and moderation."

Just before this time, Bachiler's troubles increased; his wife died, and his house and library "to the vallieu of £200" were burned. Disheartened, he sold his land in Hampton and moved to Portsmouth, where he became a private resident, though still preaching occasionally. He hired a "good neighbour" as his housekeeper, and in 1648, at 88 years of age, he married her. The match proved most disastrous; in 1650 she was convicted of adultery with one Rogers, and sentenced to be publicly whipped and branded with the letter "A". Bachiler sued for divorce, but was met with the atrocious order that he "and his wife shall live together as man and wife, as in this Corte they have professed to do; and if either desert the other the marshall shall apprehend both and bring them to Boston, to be kept until the next Corte." The only explanation for this order is the determination to make impossible Bachiler's remaining in the Massachusetts Colony; the attempt was successful. About 1654, accompanied by his grandchild and godson, Stephen Samborne, Bachiler left the New World, from which he had hoped so much, to end his days quietly in England, where Cromwell and the Puritans held sway. His last act was to convey his American estate to his son-in-law Hussey,—“ April 8, 1673, Edward Colcord of Hampton, aged 56, and Wm. Fifield of Hampton, testify that when Mr. Stephen Bacheller of Hampton was upon his voyage to England. they did hear Mr. Bacheller say unto his son-in-law Mr. Chr. Hussey that in consn the said Hussey had little or nothing from him with his daughter which was then married to the said Hussey, as also in consⁿ that this said son Hussey & his wife had been helpful unto him both formerly in fitting him for his voyage, & for other considerations, he did give to the said Hussey all his estate consisting in cattell, household goods & debts, for which his gift aforesaid he also gave a deed in writing & delivered a copy thereof to the said Hussey.”

In 1654, Bachiler's children and grand-children were well established in England, and tradition says he spent his last days in peace and comfort near London. His worthless wife, in 1656, spread a baseless report that he “took to himself another wife,” but as this is the only source from which the story comes, we may well believe it false.

The last record of this long and stormy career is contained in the following: “The ancient Stephen Bachiler of Hampton died at Hackney, a village and parish in Middlesex 2 miles from London, in 1660 in the 100th year of his age.”

Perhaps the best proof of the striking character of Stephen Bachiler is the belief of many of his descendants that their abilities are derived from him. Daniel Webster so believed, and also Caleb Cushing, William Pitt Fessenden, and William Batchelder Greene.

CIVIL TROUBLES IN HAMPTON: TAX LIST OF 1653.

Robert Pike, one of the founders of Salisbury, and, in 1653, a lieutenant, petty magistrate, and active citizen there, at the age of thirty-six, was informed that the General Court of the Massachusetts colony, of which John Endicott was then governor, had passed a law making it penal for certain persons to teach religion,—aimed particularly, it was said, at Thomas Macy and Joseph Peasley, of Salisbury, his neighbors,—and was properly indignant at such intermeddling with the conscience of Englishmen. Being accustomed to speak his mind, Lieutenant Pike declared that “such persons as did act in making that law, did break their oath to the country;” for, said he, “It is against the liberty of the country, both civil and ecclesiastical.” In this he was but echoing the words of Vane and of Cromwell, then in power in England, who had said, “Liberty of conscience is a natural right, and he that would have it ought to give it.” But the Massachusetts bigots held no such liberal doctrine; and they soon sent an officer from Boston to the other side of the Merrimack, to bring Pike before them. Once there, the general court ordered him to pay a fine of twenty marks (about thirteen pounds sterling) and to be disfranchised, disqualified from ever holding office, and bound over to good behavior, like a criminal.

Lieutenant Pike was personally known to every man in Hampton, and much sorrow and wrath was felt there at his unjust sentence. Then, and for years after, he was intimate with Christopher Hussey, the uncle by marriage of Nathaniel Bachiler, and of the three brothers Samborne, John, William, and Stephen. Mr. Hussey seems to have been the man who advised a petition to the court, asking to have Pike's sentence revoked; it may have been drafted by John Samborne. They and their kinsmen signed it, and also the two Daltons, brother and nephew of the successor of Bachiler in the ministry, Robert Tucke, the “chirurgion” of the town, Jasper Blake, Abraham Perkins, Humphrey Humber, the Marstons, Moultons, and other substantial citizens, to the number of thirty-eight in all. A larger number of signers added their names in Salisbury and Newbury, and a few in Andover and Haverhill; but the first page of the rare old paper is given up wholly to Hampton, and the autographs of its planters. It is still very legible, and nowhere else is there extant a fuller list of their actual signatures.

This moderate and numerous-signed petition made the Lords Brethren at Boston still more angry than they had before been. They had the prudence, however, to repeal the obnoxious order “concerning public preaching without allowance; which order, we understand, is dissatisfactory to divers of the brethren whom we have cause to respect and tender.” But they also proceeded to punish the petitioners in these words:

The Court cannot but deeply resent that so many persons, of several towns, conditions and relations, should combine together to present such an unjust and unreasonable request as the revoking the sentence passed the last court against Lieutenant Pike and the restoring him to his proper liberty, without any petition of his own, or at least acknowledgement of his offence, fully proved against him; which was no less than defaming this Court and charging them with breach of oath; etc.—which the petitioners call some words let fall by occasion. The Court doth therefore order, in this extraordinary case, that commissioners be appointed in the several towns,—namely, [here those for the other towns] and Captain Wiggan for Hampton,—who shall have power to call the said petitioners together, or so many of them at a time as they think meet, and require a reason of their unjust request, and how they came to be induced to subscribe to said petition, and so to make return to the next session, that the court may consider further how to proceed herein.

This was the preliminary step. After Captain Wiggan had made his report for Hampton, and it appeared that Christopher Hussey and his nephew, John Samborne, would not give up their right to petition, in any manner and for any cause they saw fit, the Lords Brethren then voted (October, 1654), that those persons “who have not given satisfaction, and whose names are herein written, shall be summoned to give bond, in £10 for each man, to give answers for their offence before the county court.” It does not appear whether our ancestor actually gave bonds or not,—probably only in name, if at all. Thomas Wiggan, who made the report, was not strictly a resident of Hampton at any time; but had taken up a large farm in Stratham, not yet made into a town, and was rated and paid taxes at Hampton for convenience, rather than at Exeter; his son Andrew afterwards (1659) married Hannah Bradstreet, daughter of Simon, afterwards governor of Massachusetts, and his wife, the poetess, Anne Bradstreet, whose father was Governor Dudley, one of the strictest of the Lords Brethren.

The Wiggan report, in 1654, was brief and suggestive:

For Hampton, Captain Wiggan returns that those persons that gave their hands to that petition do acknowledge their offence, and humbly desire the court to pass it by; except two persons, who refused to make answer, to any satisfaction; whose names (Christopher Hussey and John Samborne) are here underwritten.

It is probable that the uncle and nephew, as heads of the two families of Hussey and Samborne, took upon themselves the reproach that might attach to disobedience, and allowed the younger members to shield themselves from further censure.

It is extremely doubtful if either William or Stephen Samborne “humbly desired” to be pardoned; but they were probably so reported by Captain Wiggan, who wished to bring the matter to a peaceful issue. Still less is it likely that another of our ancestors, Edward Gove, then registered in Salisbury, but afterwards a citizen of Hampton (in that part which is now Seabrook), made many apologies for his boldness in petitioning; for he was the person who, in 1683, headed a small rebellion against the tyranny of Cranfield and Mason in New Hampshire, and was sentenced to be hanged, drawn, and quartered for that offense. Gove was taken to England, but there pardoned and returned to Hampton, where he died in his bed. John Samborne’s son Joseph married Edward Gove’s daughter, and established himself, about 1680, on the Sanborn estate in Hampton Falls, which has never since been out of the family. John Samborne himself was arrested in October, 1684, at his house in Old Hampton, for not admitting the title of Mason to his property there; the next year he was chosen, with his cousin, Nathaniel Bachiler, to represent Hampton in the general assembly at Portsmouth. He died in 1692, and his brother William (who was drawn a jurymen for the trial of Gove, in 1683, but did not sit), died the same year. Major Pike (he rose to that grade after 1653, when he was only lieutenant), paid his fine for exercising the privilege of free speech, but was not long disfranchised; his pastor, Mr. Worcester, who preceded the pugnacious John Wheelwright as minister of Salisbury, petitioned the general court in Pike's favor, and the court voted October 23, 1657, to revoke his sentence. He was soon after elected representative from Salisbury, and took his seat at Boston, May 10, 1658. At the same session, but without Pike's vote, a second severe law was passed against the Quakers, of which sect by this time were Thomas Macy and Joseph Peasley, at whom the law of 1653 was aimed. Macy soon went away to Nantucket, of which he and a son of Christopher Hussey were founders, and where Pike was one of the landowners. King Charles II. in 1661 revoked the law against the Quakers, after several of the sect had been hanged in Boston, and others flogged in other towns,—two women, in particular, having been sentenced by Major Waldron of Dover to be flogged, in 1656, all the way from Dover to Ipswich, at the cart's tail. When they reached Salisbury, Major Pike, through Walter Barefoot, released them, and forbade their whipping in his jurisdiction, as the tradition goes. In 1682, notwithstanding his liberal opinions, he was made an assistant, that is, a councillor, of the governor of Massachusetts, and continued in that office till he was eighty years old. Transcribed into legible English, but preserving the antique spelling, this interesting document of 1653 reads as follows:

The deputies desier the honer'd Magistrates to declare their Apprehentions in this Case in the first place.

WILLIAM TORREY Cleric.

No date appears on this petition, but it was signed in the years 1653-'54. At this time the Quakers began to be troublesome to the Puritans, although the first English Quakers did not land in Boston till the summer of 1656; and the first law against them in Massachusetts (which still held jurisdiction in the four New Hampshire towns of Hampton, Exeter, Dover, and Portsmouth), was published by beat of drum, October 21, 1656. Its savage preamble ran thus:

Whereas there is a cursed sect of heretics lately risen up in the world, which are commonly called Quakers, who take upon them to be immediately sent of God, and infallibly assisted by the Spirit to speak and write blasphemous opinions, despising government and the order of God in church and commonwealth, speaking evil of dignities, reproaching and reviling magistrates and ministers, seeking to turn the people from the faith, and gain proselytes to their pernicious ways, etc.

During this short persecution of the Quakers, Christopher Hussey and his family seem to have joined the sect, which became numerous in Seabrook and Salisbury, numbering many of the names of Chase, Hussey, Page, Philbrick, Gove, etc. But John Samborne and his family remained in the orthodox church; they were friendly to liberty and stout in resisting aggression, but not given to fanatical ways or strange doctrine. Edward Gove may have been tainted with fanaticism; some of his sayings and doings look like it, and he was the progenitor of many Quakers, as well as of one race of Sanborns. Both he and his daughter Mary's father-in-law, John Samborne, were of the class described by Gray as

Some village Hampden who, with dauntless breast,
The little tyrant of his fields withstood;

and both Samborne and Hussey had no hesitation in withstanding the more formidable tyranny of the bigots who then bore sway in Boston. The right of petition has seldom been more haughtily denied than by these petty rulers who fined Pike, and threatened his neighbors for raising a respectful voice in his behalf.

An examination of the autograph signatures discloses some odd facts. While many of the Hampton planters use a chirography resembling Shakespeare's peculiar signature, others, as the three Sambornes, have a more clerly hand, of the early seventeenth century; and still others, like Abraham Perkins, Humphry Humber, and Nathaniel Bachiler, write as do men of the present age. The latter's signature resembles his grandfather's, Rev. Stephen, as preserved in his letters to Governor Winthrop.

In the same year, 1653, we have the following list of County Tax Rates. Dr. C. H. Sanborn states that he got this list in 1860, from the late Josiah Page of Hampton, who made the locations:

THE SAMBORNE COAT-OF-ARMS.

PRESERVED IN THE AMERICAN FAMILY.

Until I carefully examined the MSS. of Dr. Nathan and Dyer H. Sanborn I was not aware that any tradition existed among the American Sanborns concerning a coat-of-arms. In reading over the letters I came upon the facts shown in the following quotations, marked 1, 2, 3, and 4. Noting the reference to arms preserved by the Epsom Sanborns I sent the papers to Gen. John B. Sanborn of St. Paul, whose answer is subjoined, marked 5. The letters speak for themselves; even if they do not prove our right to bear the Samborne arms, they form good evidence and show a remarkable and interesting coincidence.

1. Dr. Thomas Sanborn, Newport, N. H., March, 1855: to Dr. Nathan Sanborn. "Dr. E. Sanborn of Andover has requested me to forward such information as I had obtained while in England in 1853. The name of Samborne is to be found in Bristol (one or two) and two or three in London. Their home is in Montesford (sic) Co. Berks, Hampshire, and Somersetshire. The following description of the Samborne arms may be relied on as correct,—Silver (or plain) a chevron sable, between three mullets gules (or red). The crest is,—A right hand holding a sheaf of arrows, proper. Another family shows the shield "sable (another azure) a lion rampant, or," but I cannot learn that there is more than one crest. The arms are those of a Knight or Squire. Herein is inclosed a rude drawing* of the crest and shield.

2. The Same; April 15, 1856: to the Same. "The knowledge I possess is already in your possession: although very meagre as relates to location, arms, change of name, etc., is from pretty good authority. From Burke's "General Armoury" published by John & John Bernard Burke I learn the Samborne family reside in Berks, Hants and Somt. and that they have two coats of arms: but one crest is given of which you already possess a description. The second [coat] is as follows,—no crest being given: Sable, a lion rampant or. No. 1 is that represented generally in Messrs. Burke's "General Armoury." I regret not being able to give you a drawing colored: but for copy under the direction of Mr Drake to the engraver the colour is of but little use, as certain lines or dots represent the different tinctures, as observed in No. 3, the black being represented by lines crossing each other, the gold by dots.†

3. Dr. Nathan Sanborn, Henniker, May 22, 1856: to Dyer H. Sanborn. "Yours of

* Unfortunately not preserved. V. C. S.

† Apparently Dr. Sanborn sent sketches of (1) the chevron and mullets; (2) the crest; (3) the lion rampant. Why did Mr. Drake choose the latter and add mullets to it? V. C. S.

21st* received: I have received nothing for many a day that gave me so much satisfaction. I feel very anxious for several reasons to see the documents you have obtained from your brother. One is, there seems to be on the part of some of our name a disposition to doubt the existence of such a thing as a coat-of-arms belonging to our race; and if there be such a thing, still disposed to undervalue it. Now as to the existence of the thing it seems as if doubt were very unreasonable: how could our cousins in Epsom have obtained and kept for so many generations a copy of what they had no right to possess? And now we have obtained from three different and distant sources copies of the same device; viz.: from Boston, London and Canada, who can be incredulous enough to doubt?"

4. Dyer H. Sanborn, Pittsfield, N. H., May 22, 1856, to Dr Nathan Sanborn: encloses copy of letter from John S. Sanborn of Sherbrooke, P. Q., giving in detail the same heraldic data quoted by Dr Thos. Sanborn.

5. Gen. John B. Sanborn, St. Paul, July 20, 1898, to V. C. S. "In regard to the statement that the Epsom cousins had a coat-of-arms, I can state but little from personal knowledge. My recollection is that there was a representation of the Sanborn coat-of-arms on parchment when I was a small boy; and had no idea of its significance or importance: and that the children were using it as a common play-thing. After I became old enough to have some idea of its importance, I inquired for it of my grandfather Sanborn and of my mother, and both said it had always remained in a box of papers brought from Hampton to Epsom about 1768; and it was in the box the last they knew. They said no care had been taken of it, and it had probably been lost or destroyed. Both gave the same impression of the striking features of it.

"There is no doubt that there was a copy of the old coat-of-arms in our house at Epsom until long after I was born, as I recognize in your representation of the coat-of-arms on your sheet the same representation that I saw when I was a mere lad in our Epsom home."

* I cannot find this letter; apparently it recited the data found by Hon. John Sanborn about Samborne arms.

THE AMERICAN SANBORNS.

JOHN, WILLIAM, and STEPHEN SAMBORNE (for so they spelt the name) were sons of an English Samborne (probably William of Brimpton, Berks.) and Anne, daughter of Rev. Stephen Bachiler.

Ann Bachiler's husband died about 1630, for Mr. Waters printed in Register, July, 1891, the following extract from "Licenses to Pass beyond Seas:"

"xxij Junii 1631: Steephen Bachiller aged 70 yeres resident at South Stonham, South^e & uxor Hellen, of age xlvij yeres, v^{ss} flushing to visit their sons and daughters there; and so to return wth in two moneths. Ann Sandburn of age 30 yeres, widow, resident in y^e Strand, v^{ss} vlishing."

The three sons of Anne Samborne are said to have come to America with their grandfather Bachiler in 1632, but apparently their mother did not come over; nor have we any trace of the three sons until 1639 in Hampton.

2. LIEUT. JOHN SAMBORNE, born 1620 (Deposition in Norf. Co. Files). Probably in Hampton in 1640, since he was then granted a house-lot and a tract of land there. In 1643 his name is signed to a Hampton petition; and from this date the records contain frequent mention of him.

23rd 3rd mo. 1645 (Norf. Co. Deeds I), John Samborne of Hampton sells to Thos. Marston, "for a valuable consideration, fower acres of fresh marsh, bounded by the salt marsh of John Cram, now in the hands of Rodger Shaw; by that of W^m Marston: by the upland of John Samborne, a highway to the north." Witness, Jos: Mason, Humphrey Humber, Abraham Pirkins.

December 23, 1645, two shares of the Common were granted to John Samborne. His house in Hampton was next to that of Stephen Bachiler, across the road from Meeting House Green, and nearly opposite the old meeting house.

In 1647 the Jury of Norfolk County presented case vs. "Will: Palmer, for challenging John Samborne into ye field,—witnesses John Samborne & Edw. Colcord."

In 1647 Rev. Stephen Bachiler left Hampton, and on April 20, 1647 (Rock. Co. Reg., xiii., 221), he made the following conveyance:

Know all Men by these Presents that I Stephen Bachiler late of Hampton, in Co. of Norfolk, and now of Strawberry Bank for Naturall Love & Affection towards my fouer Grand Children John Stephen & William Samborn & Nathaniell Batchiller all now or lately of Hampton aforesaid & to y^e intent that my Hous & land or Ground with y^e Appurtinances of Hamapton aforesaid, may be estated upon y^e Said John Samborn & his Posteritie as also in regard of Securitie by Bond Now Immediately to be Giuen by y^e Sd John for the payment of twentye pounds a peice to y^e s^d Stephen, William & Nathaniell to whome I haue

On the same date (Norf. Co. Deeds ii., 178), John Samborne doth "seale, signe and set over to Willi: Samborne 6 acres of upland, lying between the land of John Samborne & Chr: Hussey; 5 acres of fresh meadow; one share of all y^e Comons except y^e great Ox Comon, for the just som of £13, w^{ch} is in consideration of a £20 legacy given to the said William Samborne by his grandfather, under his own hand and seale, by virtue of an assignment unto the s^d John Samborne," who also promises to pay the other £7 within a certain time. Witnesses W^m Fifield, Tho. Warde. 1st 12th mo. 1647 (Norf. Co. Deeds, ii., 97), conveys to W^m Samborne "6 acres meadow and 6 acres upland, w^{ch} was formerly given to W^m Samborne by Mr Steven Bachiler Sen^r late of Hampton, but no legal conveyance made, since it was included in a general conveyance to me." Signed John Samborne "wth a seale to it." Witness, Chr. Hussey, (T) mark of Abr. Tilton.

At Hampton Court, 26th 7th mo. 1648, John Samborne was plaintiff in an action for trespass against Robert Lord, but was nonsuited, and defendant allowed 10s. 6d. for unjust molestation. 24th 2nd mo. 1649, John Samborne was on the "Jury of Tryalls" at Salisbury Court. In 1650 he was one of the Hampton selectmen. 9th 2nd mo. 1650, he sued Walter Abbott at Salisbury Court for debt of £5. 7. 6 due for bill assigned to him by Mr Steven Bachiller. At Hampton Court, 3rd 8th mo. 1650, he, Mr Hussey & Tho. Chase were released from bond they gave for Edw. Colcord's appearance.*

In 1651, on petition from Hampton, the General Court (Mass. Col. Rec., iii., 253; iv., 67)

* Colcord was a friend or relative of the Bachilers and Sambornes; for full account of him see N. H. Prov. Papers, Vol. I.

orders John Samborne & Edw. Colcord to return to their owners until they should exhibit some proper power of attorney, all goods &c. taken by them on pretence of being authorized by Rev. Stephen Bachiler.

January, 1654, John Samborne and Wm. Estow were appointed "to view the upland and medow on this side Strawberry Bank bounds, to ascertain who were the proprietors and what their titles were." In this year Christopher Hussey and John Samborne alone in Hampton refused to withdraw their petition to remit Lieut. Pike's fine; see our chapter on "Civil Troubles in Hampton."

February 2, 1657, John Samborne was chosen a Selectman, but exempted. March 30, 1657, he was appointed on a committee to see to the building of a house for Rev. Mr. Cotton.

His familiarity with the town records and boundaries led to his being chosen on all committees to examine old grants, or to establish boundary lines. Thus in 1651, and again in 1658, he was chosen on a committee to "join with the Town Clerk to examine all the grants and appointments of lands, highways and the like; and to perfect the same in the Town Book."

In 1661 John Samborne was again a selectman, and on March 16 it was voted "that Thos. Marston and Willi: Moulton shall join wth John Samborne to hire the present schoolmaster* for another year, pvided they shall not exceed the som of £26 for his year's wages, nor he be more difficult in his pay than last year."

In 1663 he was chosen on committees to examine the allotment of the commonage, and to lay out the "New Plantation."

April 12, 1664, at Salisbury Court he was foreman of the "Jury of Tryalls." At Hampton Court, October, 1664, it was voted.—"Whereas John Samborne was legally chosen by the Military Company at Hampton to be their ensign,—it appearing to this Corte that he is not yet a freeman, referred to the Gen^l Corte for confirmation."

Selectman again in 1665,—on June 20, he, "with Sam^l Dalton, Town Clerk, and Mr Sea-borne Cotton the Pastor was chosen to express to the Com^{rs} in writing the views of the people of Hampton and to assert their rights in the lands claimed by Mason."

May, 1666, John Samborne was made a freeman (Mass. Col. Rec. iv., 367). In 1666, 1667, and 1669, "Mr John Samborne (also called Ensign) with Capt. Chr. Hussey and Mr Sam^l Dalton were chosen and ratified by the Court as commissioners of small causes for the town of Hampton."

Selectman again in 1668; in 1669 chosen as Agent by the town of Hampton in the boundary dispute with Portsmouth. Also appointed to look into the question of Exeter bounds. In 1670, sells to Samuel Tilton for £26. five acres of salt marsh on the south side of the Falls River.

Chosen Selectman in 1671, and appointed a "Commissioner in behalf of the country, to work with the Selectmen in making the Country Rate for the next six months according to law."

"April 25, 1672, Capt. Hussey, Ensign John Samborne and Mr Dalton were appointed to treat with Mr Dudley and Mr John Gilman to issue all differences betwixt the inhabitants of Hampton and Exeter concerning land. pvided that the said Mr Dudley & Mr Gilman shall procure the like power from the town of Exeter."

Sept. 29, 1676. John Samborn Sen. of Hampton, Norfolk Co. for naturall affection &

* John Barshan, II. U. 1658.

ffatherly Love for his son John Samborn of H. & for other good causes, as also in consideration of his marregg with Judeth y^e Daughter of Trufterm Coffin of nubery gave him upland & meadows in H. which was granted & laid out to my ffather in Law Robert Tuck, 40 acres of upland & 7 acres of meadow, 10 acres of salt marsh, 1 share of comonage above s^d, valued by estimation to be worth £150.

Selectman in 1674-5, 1678-9. At Salisbury Court, Nov. 14, 1676. John Samborne was Foreman of the Grand Jury. As Ensign of the Hampton Company in 1677. he signed a petition to Maj. Gen. Denison, asking for help. Commissioned Lieutenant of Hampton forces, October 15, 1679. (Mass. Col. Rec. v., 252.)

When Charles II. decided to make New Hampshire a Royal Province in 1679, Sir W. Warren wrote to the Lords of Trade that in Hampton the men most eminent and best qualified for His Majesty's Council were Sam^l Dalton, Capt. Hussey, John Samborne & Nath^l Wyer. (State Papers, Colonial, 1670-'80.)

In the Cranfield and Mason persecutions we find that John Samborne suffered :

“ W^m Fifield &c. depose that in Oct 1684 being at John Samborne Sen^r's house, when Robert Mason, Sherlock the Marshall and James Leach came to give Mason possession,—when Samborne not opening the door, Leach broke it open and Sherlock took Samborne prisoner, when Mason told the people openly,—This is what you shall all come to.” (N. H. Prov. Papers, i., 539.)

Also in Capt. Henry Dow's diary we find,—“ Bro Sambourne put in prison, 21 Oct. 1684. Capt. Sherburne & I compared a copie with the original execution; & there was no return made upon it the 1st Nov. 1684.”

John Samborne's signature appears on the petition against Cranfield in 1685. In this year he was a Representative,—“ At a meeting of the free holders of Hampton, Sept. 24, 1685, M^r Nath^l Weare, Lt. John Samborne and Nath^l Bachiler Sen^r were chosen to serve in the next General Assembly.” (Register, vi. 56.)

March 26, 1691. John Samborn Sen. gave his son Richard (on condition that he should pay 30 pounds as he (John) should hereafter order in his will) the hous where Richard dwells $\frac{1}{2}$ the home lot and orchard, Richard to have the side next to Wm. bro. of John's land, John reserving $\frac{1}{2}$ acre out of that end next Daniel Lamprey's: Rich. to have $\frac{1}{2}$ the fresh meadow near the beach, the side next to Timothy Hilliard's meadow, & $\frac{1}{2}$ of salt marsh in ye little ox common, he to have Southerly end; easterly half of the barn and the Lentoes belonging & $\frac{1}{2}$ ye threshing flore and in case he and they who shall be my heirs agree not hereafter about ye improvement of y^e said flore one shall improve itt one week and the other the other & so bee at equal charge of maintaining y^e flores & Dores; also $\frac{1}{2}$ my upland, the half towards Robert Smith's land att that end next the meadow, and that peice next y^e ffall gate y^e say^d Richard shall divide that peice and I will choose which half he shall have; also $\frac{1}{2}$ my swamp ground for a pasture lying between my hous lott and land some time William Fuller's bee y^e Same more less, as itt is my heirs; and he so fence itt and seed (?) itt together; but if they agree not in so doing, the younger shall divide itt and y^e other choose which he will have: as also my grant the land in y^e north division; as also a share in y^e cow commons; as also one share in the great Ox common. Dow's "History of Hampton" says he served as Lieutenant in King William's War, 1689. In 1690 he was appointed on a committee to wait on Mr Pike the new minister. He died Oct. 20, 1692; his will is not extant, the closing words only remaining in an old copy at Exeter:

3. WILLIAM SAMBORNE, born about 1622, as appears from the record of his death. His is the earliest Samborne record I find at Hampton.—“Nov. 27, 1639, Willi: Samborne (wth his consent) is appointed to ring the bell before meetings on the Lord's day & other days, for w^{ch} he is to have 6d. pr. lott of eury one hauing a lotte wthin the towne.”

Not so prominent as his older brother, but often chosen on town committees. Savage says he was Representative, but I have found no record of it.

Served in King Philip's War. (Register, xliiii., 273.)

May 17, 1647, W^m Samborne sold to Serg^t Thos. Philbrick for £24 his house and housclot between those of W^m Fifield & John Brown, 3 acres fresh marsh, and 3 acres upland; 1 share in cow comon. (Norf. Deeds, i., 4.)

The will of John Moulton (Norf. Deeds, i., 12), dated 23rd 1st mo. 1649, proved 8th 1st mo. 1650, divides 12 acres between Samborne & dau. Ann: to son Samborne 10 acres salt marsh w^{ch} is yet to be appointed; & 4 acres salt marsh.

At Hampton Court, 8th 8th mo. 1651, W^m Samborne took y^e freeman's oath.

Thos. Philbrick for £35. sells to W^m Samborne 10 acres salt marsh, Oct. 13, 1665 (Norf. Deeds, ii., 96.) June 10, 1667, Nath^l Boulter of Hampton nominates my "louing friend M^r Will: Samborne of Hampton as a feoffee in trust" for John and Hannah Souter (Norf. Deeds, ii., 116). Aug. 22, 1668, Thos. June 22, 1681, William Samborne Sen. of Hampton for love & Fatherly affection gave his son Josiah the home lott which I lought of Thos. Thirsten (deed not recorded) 7 acres more or less bounded on the west with y^e house lott Sometime Jesp. At Salisbury Court, 14th 9th mo. 1676, W^m Samborne took the oath for a Constable. He died Nov. 18, 1692. Only a fragment of his will is preserved in the old book of copies at Exeter; he leaves to his wife Mary certain yearly allowances, and one half of his house. "To son Josiah 50 acres "in the plaine towards Exeter" and some salt marsh and commonage. To son William "a share in the great ox common & one cowe he hauing the reste of " . . . To son Mephibosheth, 9 acres near his house, $\frac{1}{2}$ share of commonage, 8 acres of upland and 25

Col. George Mayhew Moulton, commander of the Second Regiment of Infantry, Illinois National Guard, is one of the most enterprising and successful business men of Chicago. His life story, both in its business, social, and military aspects, is a remarkable record of indefatigable energy and progress. Colonel Moulton, son of Joseph Tilton Moulton and Jane Maria Babcock, was born March 15, 1851, in Readsboro, Bennington county, Vt., and came, at the age of two, with his father's family to Chicago, where he has since lived. He graduated from the Central High school in 1868 and joined his father in his business, that of building the high grain elevators. Every detail of this important business he learned, and also the trade of carpenter. In 1870, he accompanied his father to Duluth, and aided in the construction of the first grain elevator in that section. When the elevator was completed, he engaged with the owners to operate it for a year; but before that period had been transferred to superintend the erection of an elevator at Stillwater. Ever since then, Colonel Moulton has been engaged in the building of those immense and soaring edifices, the "agricultural banks," wherein is annually hoarded the country's wealth of corn.

The excellence, both in design and construction, of the elevators put up by J. T. Moulton & Son soon became widely known. The building contracts of the firm extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and its reputation and business grew so that it stood without a peer in this special line of architectural work. In Chicago, the famous Illinois Central A, with a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels of grain, and Illinois Central B, with a capacity of 1,600,000 bushels, are lofty monuments of the building ability of Moulton & Son, and their elevators also stand in New York, Baltimore, Detroit, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Buffalo, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Toledo and East Toledo, O., Portland, Me., Norfolk, Va., Tacoma, Wash., Washburn and West Superior, Wis., Galena City, Union City, and other places,—affording in all, capacity for 44,800,000 bushels of grain. With all this, George M. Moulton has by no means confined himself to the business of building elevators. His enterprises have been many and various. In 1877, he began with George H. Johnson the manufacture and application of fireproof material for buildings. Three years later the company was organized and incorporated, and now the Pioneer Fire-proof Construction Company, as it is called (it was originally the Ottawa Tile Company), owns the largest clay-manufacturing establishment in the West, with Colonel Moulton as president and leading stockholder. The Colonel is also president and leading stockholder of the Moulton-Starrett Construction Company (organized by him under another name in 1894); it contracts for the construction of large buildings, of which it has erected several, including the fine Fisher building in Chicago, the Guaranty building in Buffalo, the Onondaga Savings Bank building in Syracuse, and the Columbus Union Station in Columbus, O. Colonel Moulton was also president of one of the largest cold storage companies in Chicago, and somehow found time to be officially and financially interested in the River Bank Coal Company, the Chicago Deposit Vault Company, the Commerce Vault Company, and the Medinah Temple Company.

As to his military record, Mr. Moulton was in 1886 commissioned major in the Second Regiment, I. N. G. He resigned his commission four years afterwards, when Colonel Wheeler (at whose solicitation he had entered the service) retired from command of the corps; but in February, 1894, he was unanimously elected to the command of the regiment, which is the largest in the state, and which has attained a high reputation. Colonel Moulton commanded it during its duty outing of July and August, 1894, occasioned by the trouble arising from the railroad strike, and also in the Spanish-American War of 1898. He still holds the command. His deep interest in the corps and his close application to the duties of his office have highly increased the efficiency and the soldierly appearance of the corps, and both men and officers hold him in high esteem.

In his club relations and society affiliations and attainments Colonel Moulton is, in a manner, a marvel. He is a member of the Union League Club, Chicago Athletic Association, the Buffalo Club, Milona Club, Sons of Vermont, Chicago Art Institute, Field Columbian Museum Association, and Illinois Society of the Sons of the Revolution, being a member of the state board of managers of the latter society. He is a specially-enthusiastic Mason, and has taken the following degrees in Masonry:

Raised a Master Mason in Covenant Lodge No. 526. F. & A. M., Feb. 26, 1875; exalted a Royal Arch Mason in Corinthian Chapter No. 69, May 17, 1875; greeted a Select Master in Siloam Council No. 53, Aug. 7, 1875; afterwards

mitted to Chicago Council No. 4, R. & S. M.; created a Knights Templar in St. Bernard Commandery No. 35, Sept. 1, 1875; created Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret thirty-second degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in Oriental Consistory, June 4, 1880. He was crowned a Sovereign Grand Inspector General, thirty-third and last degree for the Northern Jurisdiction, U. S. A., Sept. 20, 1887. He was created Knight of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine and Guardian Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, in the Grand Council of the State of Illinois, Oct. 25, 1875, afterwards affiliating with St. John's Conclave Premier of that Order. He also holds membership in Queen Esther Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and Medinah Temple, Ancient Accepted Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Nor has he been an idle member of these various bodies; on the contrary, he has been an almost constant, faithful, and efficient office bearer, serving with fidelity in many of the humbler official positions, and with distinction in many of the most important in the gift of Masonry. Among the stations he has filled are the following: In the Lodge, Senior Deacon, 1877, Junior Warden, 1878 and 1890, Senior Warden, 1891, and Worshipful Master in 1892; in the Chapter, King, 1884 and 1885, and Excellent High Priest in 1886, receiving the Order of High Priesthood, October, 1886; in the Council, Thrice Illustrious Master in 1884; in the Commandery, Captain-General, 1877, Generallissimo, 1878, and Eminent Commander in 1883; in Chicago Council, Princes of Jerusalem, sixteenth degree, A. He is a stockholder in the Masonic Fraternity Association of Chicago. In 1884, he became one of the incorporators of the Knights Templar and Masons' Life Indemnity Company, a fraternal coöperative insurance company, of which he was vice-president until 1890, when he succeeded the late Dr. Allen as president, retaining that office at the present time. Managed with ability, this company has now twenty-five millions of insurance in force, and has enjoyed a steady growth that is a source of much pride to Colonel Moulton. In 1885, he became one of the incorporators of the Illinois Masonic Orphans' Home, and was elected president of the association, filling that office until 1890, when he retired voluntarily, remaining, however, on the board of trustees. During the presidency of Colonel Moulton, the association acquired a property which is valued at $50,000, and is practically free from debt. The Home is in practical operation, and affords a delightful protection to a considerable number of dependent orphans of deceased Masons.

Colonel Moulton was married March 12, 1873, to Miss Anna Florence Garland. They have two children, Dorothy Edith (m., 1898. John H. Murphy) and Arthur Garland. They live at No. 2119 Calumet avenue, on the site of the old homestead property of Gen. John A. Logan.

The ancestral mansion on Bride Hill, where John Sanborn lived and died, stands on a farm, taken up on the first settlement of this country, and which has passed by inheritance ever since, never by deed. The frame of this ancient house is of white oak; the plan is square, a door in the centre leading into a capacious hall, on each side of which is a room twenty feet square. A door from each room leads into the kitchen, in which there is a vast fireplace, the chimney being built of bricks brought over from England.

John Pitts of Belgrade, with whom she was then living. She was a descendant of Judge Simon Lynde (Massachusetts Superior Court), James Bowdoin, and James Pitts of the Kings Council.

391. JAMES WILLIAM (150) SANBORN, born at Falmouth, Me., April 19, 1813, was the son of William Sanborn, M. D. In youth he gave evidence of great energy of character and keen powers of observation.

He chose for his first venture a seafaring life, and made frequent voyages to the West Indies, and also crossed the Atlantic ocean repeatedly. He went to Michigan in 1835, and in company with Abner Coburn (afterward governor of Maine), Charles Merrill of Detroit, and Joseph L. Kelsey, located 25,000 acres of pine land in St. Clair and Sanilac counties. Mr. Sanborn, then but twenty-two years old, was left in charge of the investment. In 1836, he established himself in Metamora, Lapeer county, from which district he was elected to the legislature in 1838 and again in 1846, and in 1853 from St. Clair county; and in 1858 he was chosen commissioner of the state land office.

In 1845, he associated with himself in business, as co-partner, his brother-in-law, Alvah Sweetser, also of Maine. They purchased large tracts of pine land on the Saginaw and Muskegon rivers and their tributaries, the Au Sable and Pine rivers, on Thunder Bay and the Upper Peninsula. In 1847, they removed to Port Huron, and under the firm name of Sweetser & Sanborn carried on an extensive business in lumbering, merchandise, and real estate until the death of Mr. Sweetser in 1864, after which, with Mrs. Sweetser as partner, the business was carried on in the name of J. W. Sanborn & Co. until the death of both during the year 1870.

As a legislator, Mr. Sanborn evinced the same habits of industry and faithfulness which so eminently characterized him in private life. In business matters he had a quick perception and was far-seeing, always combining promptness with caution. Just in his dealings, he expected and exacted the same from others. Strong in his likes and dislikes, he never failed in proving the sincerity of his feelings to those he once recognized as friends. He numbered among his intimate associates many young men, who were indebted to him for friendly counsel as well as for substantial aid in their business undertakings.

Earnest in politics, as in other matters, and originally a Whig, Mr. Sanborn stood among the foremost organizers of the Republican party. He represented his district as a delegate to that convention whose proceedings "under the oaks at Jackson" have been accorded a page not only in the annals of state, but also of national history. To this party he ever after gave active allegiance and support.

He was constant in attendance upon the worship of the Congregational church, of which he was a member and trustee, contributing largely to its management and support. He married (1) 1839, Hannah Maria Rossman, b. 1821, d. Oct. 2, 1853; (2) June 27, 1855, Charlotte Fish, widow of Cummings Sanborn (398), d. Sept. 10, 1859; (3) Feb. 18, 1861, Mehitabel Davis, b. Feb. 21, 1830, still living in Port Huron. Mr. Sanborn died April 13, 1870, at his home in Port Huron.

To very few men is it permitted to exert so large an influence on a new and vigorous state.

398. CUMMINGS (152) SANBORN, like so many of our kinsfolk, had for his birthplace a New England farm. He was born at North Haverhill, N. H., Jan. 15, 1799; and there he worked with his father until he arrived at man's estate. Although thus circumstances seemed to declare in favor of a plain and homespun existence, his genius carved out a different career. He was a bright scholar, and, according to Mrs. Evans, his niece, now living at the age of 80,—“he early showed that teaching was his forte; and he knew how to make his instructions valued. His discipline was admirable, and yet always pleasantly enforced. His pupils loved him, and,” Mrs. Evans says, “he was the most gentlemanly man I ever saw.” After having taught at Staten Island and other places, in 1833 he moved to Michigan, and at once entered upon his profession as a teacher in that new country. Almost at once, however, his quick and energetic mind saw the great opportunities in the future; he placed the money earned by teaching in the Carleton district school during the winters of 1833-'34, in new ventures. Mr. Timothy Barron of St. Clair, Mich., says: “In the fall and winter of 1835, Mr. Sanborn built the water sawmill on Pine river, six miles north of Vicksburg, now Marysville, Mich., also a store in Marysville; he ran the mill two or three years, then he sold it with the adjoining land, taking his pay in lumber and the sawing of lumber. In the early forties, he moved his store of goods to Port Huron, and invested in pine lands near there; built a steam sawmill there, and was a pioneer in the lake transportation business; he associated with himself in business his nephew, Martin S. Gillette, and his brother-in-law, Allen Fish, Jr.; he afterwards built the steam mill on the lake shore, three miles below Lexington. Nov. 14, 1839, he married Charlotte, widow of Thomas Robertson, and daughter of Allen Fish. His ability and perseverance early met with their reward; he earned the confidence of his fellow-citizens, and was by them chosen as state representative. He served as postmaster of Port Huron from 1846 to 1849. The Port Huron Herald says: “He was full of business activity, and widely known as an honorable and upright man.” He was over six feet in height, of splendid proportions, straight and handsome. He carried himself proudly, with no stoop; and was always well dressed.

Mr. Sanborn's undoubted ability brought him substantial returns in a worldly sense; he accumulated a large property, and was one of the most prosperous and influential men in Michigan. After years of successful enterprise in the new field, he made a visit to his New England birthplace, in 1852. Before he left Port Huron, he made his will, disposing judiciously of his large estates; amongst other bequests was one to the public library of Port Huron, thus helping in giving a start to what is now a fine collection. It was an example of public spirit and generosity, which has not always been shown by the wealthy and prosperous. He died in North Haverhill, N. H., Sept. 17, 1852, a comparatively young man, and in the prime of life and strength. Identified as he was with all that was best in Michigan of that time, he was mourned by a wide circle of friends, and his loss was felt by all who knew him.

521. Dr. NATHAN (199) SANBORN, born in Sanbornton, March 7, 1791. He may well be called the founder of the "Sanborn Genealogy," since it is to his unremitting labors that we owe the complete record published in this volume. His task was accomplished in the face of serious obstacles.— as a youth and in later life, Dr. Sanborn was of delicate constitution; he says of himself, "My health was never very robust, having suffered much with bleeding at the nose, followed by congestion of the liver, which at the age of seventeen compelled me to abandon farming as a pursuit, and look for some other; three or four years at this important period were spent in the most unsocial state of debility and despondency, unfit for manual or intellectual labour." Soon after he became twenty, Dr. Sanborn commenced the study of medicine, reading with Dr. Ichabod Shaw of Moultonborough. He took up his residence in Henniker in May, 1816, and lived there for more than forty years, greatly beloved and honored as physician and citizen; and was well called, for his honor and integrity, as was remarked in the funeral sermon preached by his pastor, "the good physician." While practising his profession, Dr. Sanborn continued to study it, and in 1834 received the degree of M. D. from Dartmouth College. He attended to his professional calls and duties with a devotion seldom surpassed. He was a member and an officer of the New Hampshire Medical Society for many years; was also past district deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire. For twenty-seven years he was a member of the Congregational church of Henniker, and a constant attendant at public and social meetings when his health and duties permitted.

Among all his other occupations, Dr. Sanborn managed to devote a considerable amount of time to his favorite study, the "Sanborn Genealogy." Largely by his efforts, the Sanborn Family Association was formed in 1853, and he became its recording secretary, to him being allotted the task of preparing for publication the family records. What such a task meant in those days few can realize.—the myriads of records to be searched, scattered over many states and not arranged in anything like the systematic way in which they are filed to-day, made the work of incalculable extent. We may well wonder how any one man had the courage to attack it, even when aided as he was by the intelligent aid of many kinsmen. In three years Dr. Sanborn and Prof. Dyer H. Sanborn had arranged a table of seven Sanborn generations, which did not assume to be an exhaustive study of the family, but was the beginning of a more important work. This tabulation was printed in the "New England Historic-Genealogical Register" for July and October, 1856, and was afterwards reprinted in pamphlet form. Whitmore, in his "American Genealogies," commends it for its system and clearness.

To the completion of a larger genealogy Dr. Sanborn now bent his best energies. Dyer H. Sanborn, his collaborator, says of him: "He prosecuted the work during the last years of his life with unremitting ardor, and had arranged nearly 2,500 names in consecutive order for publication, hoping to send the book to press in May or June, 1859. He much regretted that this labor, the favorite idea of his life, could not have been finished while he was still living, but a wise Providence ordered it otherwise. A spirit of calm resignation pervaded his mind, and he met death with composure and Christian resignation. His last words were, 'It is well,—well,—well.' Dr. Sanborn had been a great sufferer for more than twenty years, and had been on the confines of the grave more than once. He was in the railroad accident at Norwalk, Conn., in 1854, when the train fell into the river and fifty passengers were killed, among them Drs. Pearson and Bartlett, his intimate friends. He was also in a serious collision at Lake Village, N. H. At a post-mortem examination, it appeared that almost every inch of the lungs' surface adhered to the pleura; the profuse hemorrhages to which he was subject were caused by occasional separation of these, causing intense suffering."

Besides his "Sanborn Genealogy," Dr. Sanborn was also the author of a volume of "Occasional Poems," published by his children. He married Oct. 2, 1816, Seus, daughter of Thomas Lancaster of Sanbornton, who was born May 29, 1797. Dr. Sanborn died in Henniker, N. H., Dec. 15, 1858.

695. CYRUS (266) SANBORN, born in Chichester, N. H., Aug. 31, 1811. A builder in Chichester, where he lived and died. Married (1) Polly Green; (2) Sarah Wells of Loudon, N. H., who died in 1893. All his children were by the second wife.

When about twenty-five years of age was married to Polly Green of Pittsfield, N. H., who died two years later. In 1845, he was united in marriage to Sarah Wells of Loudon, N. H., a distant relative to General McClary, who fell at the Battle of Bunker Hill. From this union were born seven children,—two sons and five daughters—all of whom are living at this time. As a life work, he followed that of carpenter and builder, moving to Manchester when that city was a small village of a few hundred inhabitants, and was identified with the solid growth of the city.

Possessed of uncommon inventive ability, he invented many useful appliances;—among other things, the "Sanborn Safety Car Heater," designed as a protection against fire in case of accident. This was superseded by the present system of steam heat from the engine.

In 1862, he enlisted as drummer in Co. H. 14th New Hampshire Volunteers, served about two years, when he was discharged for disability.

In his religious life he was a Methodist; in politics, an old-time Democrat. He held no public office.

774. REV. JACOB (298) SANBORN, born in Unity, N. H., May 16, 1788. As a result of pious training, he early felt attracted to the ministry, and joined the Methodist church at 18 years of age. In order to test his convictions, he preached one year at his own expense; his labors proving successful, he joined in 1812, the Methodist Conference. From that time until 1850, he gave himself up to his life work, filling, in thirty-eight years of ministerial duty, many important pulpits in New England. He preached in Portland, Me., in Exeter, N. H., and in Providence, R. I. He was for four years Presiding Elder in the New Hampshire district. In Massachusetts, he preached in many cities. After his regular labors as a pastor had ceased, he continued frequently to occupy the pulpit until 1863, closing his ministerial career where he began it, fifty-two years before. As a pulpit orator, he had marked ability; a man of dignity and of noble stature, fine voice, clear thought, and impressive utterance. In business affairs, he was a model of punctuality and good faith. The soul of honor himself, it grieved him much to hear of improvidence, of business dishonor, or even of apparent disregard of pecuniary obligations, in any one bearing the Christian name. By strict economy, he was able often to fill out from his own limited means, the inadequate salaries so common in his time. During all his career, he contributed to the charities of his church, and never, even in his old age, received any aid from them. A stalwart and brave religious teacher, he belonged to that heroic age of the New England Methodist church, and was prominent among the moral heroes of his day. He married (1) Dec. 25, 1817, Fanny Eastman of Landaff, N. H., born July 1, 1793, died May 14, 1825; (2) June 21, 1826, Eliza Robinson of Portsmouth, N. H., born June 11, 1797, died March 25, 1888.
