CHAPTER XVI.

THE HODGDON FAMILY.

Alexander Hodgdon, Sr., was among the soldiers who garrisoned the old fort of William and Mary at New Castle, New Hampshire, in 1708. He was taxed in Portsmouth in 1713, and was excused from its payment by the government because he was in the military service. An assessment was made against him in that portion of Portsmouth, which is now Greenland, in 1714. Large tracts of land were bought by him near Welchman's Cove in Newington, N. H., where he subsequently lived, and where he served as surveyor of highways in 1721. He married as early as 1716, and probably some years previous, Jane ———, and facts point strongly to them as being the parents of John Hodgdon, Jr., born in 1708, the ancestor of the Hodgdon family of Barnstead, N. H.

Alexander Hodgdon, Sr., had a son Alexander Hodgdon, Jr., who was the progenitor of many of the Hodggons of Rochester, N. H., and of Philadelphia, Penn.

John Hodgdon, Sr., of Newington, N. H., was contemporary with Alexander Hodgdon, Sr., and is supposed to have been his brother. He had a son John Hodgdon, Jr., born at a different date from John Hodgdon, Jr., ancestor of the family of the name in Barnstead, N. H.

1. John Hodgdon, Jr.¹, progenitor of the Hodggons of Barnstead, N. H., was born in 1708, and his home was in Newington, N. H. He married Jan. 30, 1729, Mary Decker, who was born in the year 1711.
